Mr. Farmer told the police that he sold his furnishing goods store, at 73 Fulton Street, last week, and had the proceeds in the pockets of his trousers which he hung on a chair beside the bed, when he retired Saturday night. He had twenty one-hundred-dollar bills, two five-hundred-dollar bills, and seven ten-dollar bills, in all $3,070. His wife, who had taken her diamonds from a down-town safe deposit vault to wear at a reception, put them in a chamois bag, which she placed under her pillow. The diamonds it contained were a diamond sunburst, a diamond butterfly with sapphire centre, a gold watch with a twenty-four-diamond star, two solitaire diamond rings, and a pair of diamond earrings, all valued at $3,000.

When he arose yesterday morning, Mr. Farmer found that his trousers had vanished. A hasty examination showed that the bag of jewelry was also gone. It was learned from his mother, who lives in the house, that on going down stairs about half an hour after midnight, she had found the front door ajar and a window in the rear of the house open. She closed them without thinking the matter strange. Fifty cents and a penknife belonging to Mr. Farmer were found by his son in the yard during the afternoon.

Detectives Bosser and Barry looked all over the house, particularly at the door and window which had been found open, but they found no trace of jimmy work or other evidence of burglars.

LONG SEARCH FOR HEIRS.

Forty-two Collateral Relatives of Miss Caroline Suydam Found.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Dec. 2.—The recent suicide of Miss Laura Hamilton, one of the heirs at law to the estate of the late Miss Catherine Ann Suydam, caused a troublesome search to learn who are the heirs at law of the estate. Miss Suydam died early in November. She was eighty-eight years old. She left a will dated eight years ago. No brother or sister of Miss Suydam survived her. There was no brother's child nor child of a sister, so that all those having any possible interest in the estate were collateral heirs.

The executors started the search as far back as 1738, and found that forty-two persons had an interest in the estate. These are all children of the brothers and sisters of the father and mother of the testatrix, or the children of such children.

The majority of the forty-two persons interested in the will live in Nassau and Queens Counties, to the citations have to be sent to Brooklyn, New York, Washington, D. C.; Paris, France; St. Paul, Minn.; Plainfield, N. J.; San Francisco, and Chicago. The suicide of Miss Hamilton not only removed an heir, but put another estate in a similar position, as many of the Suydam heirs are also collateral heirs to the estate left by Miss Hamilton. Miss Suydam's estate is worth several hundred thousand dollars, it is said. Some of the most valuable lands in Oyster Bay and Nassau County are involved in the case.

FIGHT FOLLOWS FOOTBALL.

Mutes Resent an Insult by a Woman and Then the Police Were Busy.

A football game with more than usually exciting features was played at Coney Island yesterday. The game was never finished, but there was enough of it to keep the police busy. The contest was between an eleven from the Brighton Athletic Club and the Arlingstons of Delancey Street, this city, a team made up entirely of deaf-mutes. A large crowd of friends and sympathizers of the contestants was on hand.

Only one "half" was played. The score then was 2 to 0 in favor of the Coney Island team, and the outlook appeared so gloomy to the mutes that they decided to quit, which they did amid the jeers of their opponents and the majority of the spectators. The Arlingtons could not hear the highly-seasoned remarks addressed to them as they passed to their dressing-rooms, but one of the deaf players noticed a woman whose every gesture and motion was so eloquent of insult and derision that even a deaf man could understand her. She erased Slayer said nothing but struck the woman in the face. This was the signal for a free fight, in which both football teams and as many spectators as could get near enough took a hand. Everybody was trying to kick a goal with his neighbors head when three mounted policemen arrived, and, riding their horses through the crowd, dispersed it. A little later the fighting was renewed, and it required a half hour for the police to disentangle the contestants. There was a number of broken heads, but no arrests were made.

TRIED TO WRECK A TRAIN.

Stones and Other Obstructions Placed on Delaware and Hudson Track.

SCHENECTADY, Dec. 2.—Several determined efforts were made to wreck a Delaware and Hudson train near Edison Park at a late hour last night. Quantities of stone were taken from a car on a siding and placed upon the rails. A freight train hit the obstruction, but managed to keep to the rails.

After the freight train had passed stone again was placed on the track and later a fishplate was bolted to one of the rails.

Sheriff Wasson is working on the case, and he expects to catch the guilty parties to-morrow.

GIBSON REPORTED CAPTURED.

Said to be Held by Miners at Rush, Ky., for the Reward.

ASHLAND, Ky., Dec. 2.—William Gibson, who is charged with burning his two-year-old step-daughter to death with a poker, is undoubtedly captured, and it is said the officers have given up the chase.

A message from Rush, Ky., says he has been captured there and is being held for a reward. His captors are miners and have secreted him in the mines. Gov. Beckham will offer a reward of $500 tomorrow, but his captors will not turn him over unless the reward is raised to $1,000.

ANOTHER SMALLPOX CASE.

Health Regulations Are Rigorously Enforced on the West Side.

Another case of smallpox was discovered last night on the west side of the city, where the disease started. The patient is Annie Moore, five years old, of 305 West Sixty-ninth Street, where she lives with her father, mother, brothers, and sisters.

She was sent to the Willard Parker Hospital and the Board of Health physicians vaccinated all the other members of the family. This is the first case in two days the city has had.

The Health Department regulations prepared for the outbreak have been continued rigorously and all suspected cases are examined at once, while vaccinations are still going on in the district.

Want Hunting Season Shortened.

OLD FORGE, N. Y., Dec. 2.—It is the general opinion among woodsmen and those interested in the preservation of deer that the hunting season should be shortened at the latter part. At this time it is obvious that the hunters have great advantage when snow covers the ground. At the rate deer have been killed during the past few seasons they will be exceedingly rare in a few years.

FUGITIVE BREAKS HIS LEGS.

Boy, Chased by a Policeman, Jumps from a High Roof to a Low One.

During a battle between two factions of boys, known respectively as the Cherry Hill gang and the Inkpot or Hamilton Street gang, in Water Street yesterday afternoon, John Stark, eleven years old, of 383 Cherry Street, picked up a stone and, it is alleged, hurled it at James McCabe, a policeman, who sought to interfere. The stone missed the policeman, but struck a woman and knocked her down.

McCabe chased the boy, who ran into the house at 634 Water Street, and up to the roof; thence to the house next door, and then, finding the policeman still in pursuit, jumped to the roof of 640 Water Street, several feet below. When the policeman followed he found that the boy was badly hurt. He was trying gamely to escape, and had crawled to the edge of the roof.

An ambulance was called, and the boy was taken to Gouverneur Hospital, whence he was transferred to Bellevue. It was found that both legs were broken. The Warden at Bellevue objected to having the boy put in the prison ward, and a policeman was detailed to watch him.

The boy said at the hospital that McCabe had a grudge against him, and continually persecuted him. The police say that he has been arrested several times. The woman who had been hit by the missile could not be found.

TEMPERANCE ADVOCATES MEET.

W. C. T. U. Convention in Washington Renews Fight Against the Canteen.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—About five hundred delegates are in Washington to attend the twenty-seventh Annual Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, whose regular business sessions begin in this city at the Lafayette Square Theatre to-morrow.

To-day a preliminary meeting was held in the opera house, over which the national President, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens of Maine presided. Mrs. J. K. Barney of Rhode Island, round-the-world temperance missionary worker for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, delivered the annual sermon, in which she referred to the flight of the Israelites under Moses to Jericho. She likened the promised land of the Hebrews to the promised land of the twentieth century now dawning for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union workers.

"Our Jericho," she said, "is about to dawn upon us. It is the coming century when every effort should be redoubled, and aggressiveness should be the watchword for increased activity in abolishing the saloon and stamping out the liquor evil."

One of the most important features of the convention will be a discussion pertaining to the adoption of some sort of resolution with reference to the canteen system in the army. Mrs. Ella M. Thatcher, National Superintendent of the Soldiers and Sailors' department, who has this matter in charge, will submit her annual report Thursday afternoon. She also will offer a resolution condemning the army canteeen.

During the past year, Mrs. Thatcher says, she has visited all the army headquarters and all the soldiers' homes of the country, and examined the workings of the canteen very thoroughly. She declared there is a remarkable difference between the old soldiers at the homes at Marion, Ind., where there is no canteen, and other posts. The men are better both morally and physically, she said.

Mrs. Helen Bullock, National Superintendent of the Social Purity League, and a delegate to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union from New York, delivered an address to-night at the First Presbyterian Church on the subject of temperance. She said the Woman's Christian Temperance Union now had 300,000 boys and girls in its Royal Temperance Legion, and that 16,000,000 children in the public schools were receiving temperance instruction. In every State except South Carolina and Utah, she stated, the laws demanded that all public school children be taught temperance, and be instructed on the evils of drink and the virtues of abstinence.

HELD FOR ATTEMPTED MURDER.

Massachusetts Brewer Charged with Shooting at Sheriff's Keeper.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Dec. 2.—Carl E. Schlosstein, proprietor of a brewery in Bradford, is under arrest here charged with an attempt to murder ex-City Marshal Edward T. Howe last night at the brewery, where Howe had been serving as keeper under an attachment placed by a Milwaukee firm.

Schlosstein was away yesterday, and during his absence a representative of the Milwaukee, firm under warrant from the court, proceeded to take away a part of the engine. Howe was left in charge of the place. When Schlosstein was notified, according to Howe's story, Schlosstein went into his house. Howe was sitting in front of the entrance to the brewery.

Suddenly, Howe says, he heard the crack of a rifle and a bullet whistled by his head. He ran inside the brewery and hid, when another bullet came crashing through the door, and Schlosstein soon entered the building, loading a rifle, and went into the upper part of the structure.

Howe made his escape, came here, and procured a warrant for Schlosstein's arrest, which was made this evening. The prisoner has been unable to secure bail during the day.

Mrs. Schlosstein claims that the first shot was the result of an attempt on the part of her husband to commit suicide. The police, however, scout the theory of suicide.

OPTION ON MICHIGAN MINES.

English Corporation Spent $1,300,000 and Then Left Them.

Special to The New York Times.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Dec. 2.—An option on the Belt Mines has been given to Capt. W. A. Dunn of this place, one of the most experienced mining men of the district. The Belt Mines are those which came to an inglorious end in 1884, under the ownership of an English corporation.

The Englishmen sent over "experts" to examine the property before purchasing. They reported that the property was better than the Calumet and Hecle, and on the strength of their statement the English corporation sunk $1,300,000 in the venture. Most of this money was spent on the surface, extensive improvements being made at heavy cost, but when the mill started the mines were so little opened that they were unable to furnish 200 tons of stamp rock daily, and the entire business was abandoned by the Englishmen in disgust.

Dunn is understood to have optioned the property in behalf of a wealthy Philadelphia syndicate.

MAY BE MURDER, NOT SUICIDE.

Autopsy Shows George Annis of Jamestown Was Injured Before Death.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 2.—The body of George Annis of this city who, it was reported, committed suicide by jumping into the canal in Syracuse last Thursday, was brought to Jamestown and this morning an autopsy was conducted. It showed conclusively that the young man was suffering from a deranged condition of the mental faculties, and that this condition resulted from a recent blow on the head. The scalp was bruised and a clot of blood had formed between the scalp and the skull. Under the skull at this point the brain was congested and blood clots had formed.

Indications were that the injury was of very recent origin, no more than forty-eight hours before death. The physicians say that the injury was caused by a sandbag or something of that nature. Annis had evidently been robbed, a valuable ring had been torn from the finger, and a large amount of money which Annis should have had in his possession, was missing. District Attorney Green of Chautauqua County has taken hold of the case for the family, and will join with the Syracuse officials in making a thorough investigation of the case which, according to the testimony of the physicians who conducted the autopsy, may develop one of murder, and not suicide.

Exercises of Jersey City Elks.

Jersey City Lodge No. 211, B. P. O. Elks, yesterday held its annual memorial services at Elks Hall, formerly the Congregational Tabernacle. The opening prayer was by the Rev. John L. Scudder, and the benediction by the Rev. Cornelius Brett. William J. O'Brien, P. E. R., Baltimore Lodge, delivered the eulogy, and Norman L. Rowe an address on "Brotherly Love." The musical exercises were by William Broderick of the Bostonian Opera troupe, Misses Edith M. Alston and Mary E. Currie, and the Cecilian Quartette.

WATCH STOLEN ON A CAR

Passengers in a Panic While Victim Fought the Thief.

All Shut in the Car Save a Woman Suspected of Being a Possible Accomplice.

There was excitement on a Fifty-ninth Street east-bound electric car just before last midnight, and before it was over James Ward, who says he is a cabinet maker living at 148 East Sixteenth Street, was locked up charged with being a pickpocket.

William Murphy of 350 East Sixty-fifth Street, a passenger, stood in the crowded car between Ward and a well-dressed woman. Murphy felt a hand pulling at his watch. He grabbed Ward and yelled "Thief!"

Ward struggled to be free, and Murphy held on to him. Women screamed. Several were knocked down and trampled on by the struggling men. The woman who had stood beside Murphy was the only passenger who got out of the car. She hurled away. The conductor held the door shut after the woman got out and signaled the motorman to go ahead in a hurry.

The motorman put on all power, and the car sped along, the fight inside between Ward and Murphy going on more and more fiercely, the other passengers screaming and hammering on the car windows.

The car went four blocks, and then stopped with a jerk at Madison Avenue. The motorman called Patrolman Bell of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who got into the car and arrested Ward. He dragged him to the street, followed by Murphy. The other passengers straightened themselves out and the car went on.

All the way to the station house Ward fought fiercely. The policeman had to use his club some. At the station house, four policemen held Ward while a fifth searched him. Murphy's watch was found in his pocket. It had been wrenched from the ring that held it to the chain.

Ward was put in a cell, still fighting. The police, when they heard of the well-dressed woman and her disappearance, thought she might have had some connection with the stealing of the watch.

KEPT OUT OF A THEATRE.

Thomas F. Hurley Complains that He Was Denied Admission at Proctor's.

Thomas F. Hurley of 305 West Forty-sixth Street, who was plainly but neatly dressed and apparently in perfect possession of all his faculties, visited the Tenderloin police station last night and complained to the Sergeant that he had been refused admission at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Hurley said he had gone up to the ticket office of the theatre complained of, and, tendering a $1 bill, asked for a seat. The money was passed back to him by the ticket seller and Hurley, according to his story told at the police station, was told to get out. He then got a cabman to purchase a ticket for him. This he presented at the door, but was refused admission. He then went to the police station. The man was told that his complaint should be made in a civil court.

At the theatre in question it was stated by the ticket seller that Hurley was refused admission because he was thought to be under the influence of liquor.

SKIN-GRAFTING OPERATION.

Boy's Uninjured Leg Supplies Sixty-nine Pieces for Its Fellow Leg.

What is said to be the largest skin-grafting operation ever performed at the J. Hood Wright Hospital, was undertaken yesterday by House Surgeon Campbell, assisted by the hospital staff. The patient was Leo Madden, fourteen years old, of 312 West One Hundred and Eleventh Street. On Oct. 24 the boy was knocked down and dragged by an Eighth Avenue cable car. His right leg was badly injured and the flesh was torn off from the hip down, exposing the muscles.

As the wound did not heal, it was decided to resort to grafting. With a razor, sixty-nine pieces of skin were taken from Madden's left leg yesterday and grafted on the right leg. A surface one and a half feet in length was covered. The surgeons think the operation will prove successful.

TWENTY KILLED IN A WRECK.

Two Trains Crash Together in Mexico—Sixty Persons Hurt.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Dec. 2.—A terrible wreck in which a score of persons were killed and about sixty hurt occurred on the Mexican Central Railway on Thursday afternoon between Tamanacha and Symon, fifty miles south of Jumilico. The first news of the disaster reached here to-day. Edward Rische, a citizen of San Antonio, was at the scene twenty minutes after the engines crashed together.

The place where the wreck occurred is in a valley at the foot of two immense hills. At the time both trains were running thirty miles an hour. One of the trains had on board a construction crew numbering 150 men. The other was a freight train of fifty-five empty cars. Three engines and about forty cars were piled up thirty feet high. Two American train employes were forced to flee to avoid being lynched. The names of the killed and injured are not obtainable. This is said to be the most serious wreck that has ever occurred in Mexico.

HOW TO REFORM CITIES

Rabbi Schulman Speaks of the Requirements for Purification.

Civic Unselfishness, Moderation in Demands, Education, and Sanity of Method the Essentials.

Associate Rabbi Samuel Schulman of the Temple Beth-El at Seventy-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue, preached a sermon yesterday on "The Ideal City," in which he gave considerable attention to the present conditions on the east side, and outlined the principles on which any reform movement, in his opinion, must be founded to insure success. He said that the recent outbreak of vice on the east side was alarming, chiefly because it was a symptom of the disease from which the City Government is suffering. Any reformer who hoped for success, he said, must lay aside all partisan feeling. Any attempt at reform, also, which involved a change in the habits of the people was foredoomed to failure.

Rabbi Schulman's text was the seventeenth verse of the sixtieth chapter of Isaiah, "I will make thy officers righteous." He opened his sermon by speaking of the recent meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

"The history of his experience as presented on that occasion by an aged statesman and philanthropist," he said, "is instructive and at the same time pathetic, because it shows us the treachery and moral perversion of partisan politics in this city. The moral forces are hampering each other by their animosities and permitting their quarrels to interfere with their work so that at present the conditions in the city are terrible. Vice inundates the dwellings of sober, law-abiding citizens. It no longer hides itself, but flaunts itself in public places, waylaying youth, insulting virtue, and boasting of its power in the very presence of those who are sworn to enforce the law and protect the innocent from crime.

"The recent outbreak is only the eruption that shows that the whole City Government is diseased and corrupt. Radical means are necessary for reform. The city is not without some of the elements of an ideal one, and there are many of the evils of which we complain that are only the necessary results of high civilization and great wealth."

Rabbi Schulman then said that there were four things necessary in a good government: Partisan unselfishness, education, sanity and moderation in method and co-operation.

"In a reform," he said, "we must not stop at sentiment and sentimental indignation. We must not limit ourselves to vigilance and criticism of administrative bodies. A reform should be a movement of popular instruction in civic responsibility. The best men are deficient in civic unselfishness. We find in the most surprising places the sentiment, 'What benefit will I get by voting in a certain way?' It is easy for a man to be honest, it is easy for him to help the poor and suffering who come under his notice, but it is very hard for him to be perfectly unselfish in casting his vote. We must quicken the imaginations of the people so as to make them believe that it is wrong for them to cast their votes for any selfish motive. I believe that lectures educating the people in this way should be given in every part of the city. That would be a great step toward purifying the City Government.

"We are deeply ingrained with partisan prejudices, and that is why a lasting and effectual reform has hitherto been an impossibility. But education is not the only thing we need. Vice should be eliminated and exterminated in the neighborhoods where decent people live, and that criminal industry which has dragged so many young and old men to ruin should be banished from the city completely. We should demand purity and efficiency in our officials, and we should have an absolutely non-partisan police force. The merit and civil service systems should be strictly enforced in all our departments."

Rabbi Schulman next spoke on the methods of effecting a reform.

"This city, with its great cosmopolitan population, is not like a small inland town thoroughly American and Puritan in sentiment. There are some ideas that are in every man's breast, no matter of what race or religion. We all want our wives and children kept in purity, and we all hate fraud. The trouble is with many reformers that they have a fanatical desire for sumptuary legislation. The majority of the people will not allow any change in their habits, and a reform that brings with it sumptuary legislation is sure to fail. The people will not tolerate any interference with old and established habits which are generally innocent and productive of no harm in themselves.

"There is no way of starting a successful reform from above. We must get the people themselves interested in the movement, and the way to do that is to gain their friendship. The ward politician knows that his strength lies in the friendship of the people of his ward for him. He is sympathetic and friendly to every one. A reformer to be successful must be a philanthropist. He must set any personal or partisan feeling aside, and work unselfishly with only one end in mind. He must avoid creed, class, and political influences. Politics is not my metier, but I believe that it would be beneficial to any party to interest itself in a reform movement absolutely unselfishly. A party that did this would be taking a great step toward securing the ideal city. Besides doing that it would gain by its unselfishness. Such an example of unselfishness would win many votes for the party.

"The only way by which we can secure an ideal city is by observing all four of the points on which I have spoken. Civic unselfishness is hard to attain. The people must first be convinced of the guilt of voting from any selfish motive whatsoever. Education is also necessary, because the people must be educated up to a proper conception of civic responsibility. Sanity of method is necessary, because the people naturally object to any infringement on their rights and co-operation and unity of effort are absolute essentials to success. When we have a reform movement that has all these characteristics we may hope for the ideal city."

ATTITUDE OF DR. PADDOCK.

Not Certain Whether He Will Serve on the Committee of Fifteen.

The Rev. Dr. Paddock, in the morning service at the Pro-Cathedral on Stanton Street, yesterday morning, preached on the necessity of having a big heart in order to do good in the world. He made only passing reference to the conditions in the district where the Pro-Cathedral is situated.

After the service there was a meeting of the Pro-Cathedral Branch of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood, at which Dr. Paddock presided. Two public meetings for men will be held at the Pro-Cathedral on Wednesday under the auspices of the Branch Brotherhood, and the meeting was for the purpose of making the preliminary arrangements.

When asked whether he had decided to accept a place on the Committee of Fifteen, Dr. Paddock said:

"While I consider my appointment a great honor, I do not know whether I ought to accept a place on that body. I regret very much that my name has been brought so often before the public. I am a very young and very unimportant man, and I am praying God to help me to take the right position in this matter. In the meanwhile I shall keep strictly to my principle of going right ahead with my work and keeping my mouth shut."

BISHOP POTTER TO THE CLUB.

Workingmen Must Be at the Foundation of City Purification.

The twenty-eighth anniversary of the Workingmen's Club of the Church of the Holy Communion was celebrated last night at the church, 324 Sixth Avenue. Reports were read by the Treasurer, W. C. Burkinshaw; the Financial Secretary, W. R. Woolett, and the Recording Secretary, F. C. Martin. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Charles Cuthbert Hall, D. D., President of the Union Theological Seminary.

The Treasurer in his report stated that since the club was organized, in 1871, it had received and disbursed in sick benefits nearly $33,000, and that the balance in the treasury at the present time is over $550. The club has 100 members.

At the November meeting of the club a resolution was adopted to the effect that the club pledged support to Bishop Potter in his efforts for the purification of the city.

The following reply from the Bishop was read at last night's meeting:

Frederick C. Martin, Secretary the Workingman's Club:

My Dear Sir: Nothing that has come to me for a long time has given me so much gratification as your letter of the 21st inst. If we are to have better conditions of life, whether in this city or this land, it must be because workingmen are at the foundation of the movement which creates these conditions. Convey my acknowledgments to your associates. Believe me, very faithfully yours, H. C. POTTER.

Bishop Potter at Middletown.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Dec. 2.—In an address to a large class which he confirmed at Grace Episcopal Church here to-day Bishop Potter declared that "all great reforms, political, social, and moral, have originated with the Christian Church."

The Tenderloin Resorts Closed.

It was a very quiet Sunday night in the Tenderloin. The police gave out the "tip" that resorts must close Sunday and after hours. As a result all of the dives, that heretofore have run at all hours and on Sundays, were closed last night.

CLERGYMEN AT ODDS.

Priests Object to Ministers Signing Their Names to a Circular.

A religious war in Wakefield and William's Bridge has brought about a public apology from some Protestant ministers to three Catholic priests—the Rev. John J. Carr of St. Mary's, Joseph Dworzak of St. Valentine's, and Francis P. Moore of St. Francis of Rome.

A circular had invited the people to their church, and the priests, who would not join a conference, objected to the use of their names and asked for a public apology. The priests called at the home of the Rev. Clayton Grinnell, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church. There Father Carr became vexed, and invited the Rev. Mr. Grinnell into the street. Mr. Grinnell is quoted as having said Father Moore had told him if he met him among his parishioners he would exercise muscular Christianity. Father Carr was sick in bed yesterday, and Father Collins, his assistant, said they did not want to talk about the matter. He accused the Rev. Mr. Grinnell, however, of having broken the compact not to have the matter in print.

"Take that story and burn it up," said the Rev. Mr. Grinnell when he was seen. "I never gave the story out. However, I intend to get a retraction to-morrow morning."

The Rev. E. G. Richardson of Olin Methodist Episcopal Church, who signed the circular and apology, explained that the first conference to which all Protestant and Catholic clergy were invited, but which the Catholic priests did not attend, was to get a census of the people and their ideas. They put the names of the churches and the priests simply as a directory, with no thought that the priests would object. He and the Rev. Mr. Grinnell were responsible, he said.

"Father Moore said it was forgery in the third degree to put the names on the circular," said Mr. Richardson, "but I was in the law before the ministry, and I said it was not forgery. At the next conference the priests said they wanted an apology because their Bishop would remove them if they participated in such a work. I doubt if either Father Carr or Father Moore threatened Mr. Grinnell."

Father Dworzak said: "Those who attended the conference were gentlemen and acted as such. Yes, Mr. Grinnell reminded Father Carr that he (Father Carr) was in his (Mr. Grinnell's) house. I don't remember what words Father Carr used, but he did say: 'Come out on the street and I'll talk to you.' I don't think he meant to fight with fists. Father Moore didn't want to fight. The Rev. Mr. Grinnell does not go among Father Moore's parishioners, so how can Father Moore punch his face? Oh, all was pleasant and agreeable."

ANXIETY FOR LIEUT. HOBSON.

Many Inquiries for the Naval Officer Who Has the Typhoid Fever.

Lieut. Richmond Pearson Hobson passed a comfortable day in the Presbyterian Hospital yesterday. It was said there last night that his illness was certainly typhoid fever. As yet, the officials said, it is impossible to tell how he will bear the attack, as it has not developed completely. His family has been informed of his condition, but none of them has arrived in the city. No one is allowed to see the patient.

All day yesterday the telephone of the hospital was kept busy by people inquiring after the young officer's health. There were also many callers, some of them his friends, and some strangers who wanted to know how he was faring.

BOY A BOLD THIEF.

Tried to Strip Another Boy of His Overcoat in a Post Office.

John Phalen, a sturdy twelve-year-old boy, who lives with his parents in 315 East Ninth Street, was held in $500 bail for examination to-day by Magistrate Pool, in Yorkville Court, yesterday morning on the charge of attempting to pick pockets.

On Saturday afternoon William Pardoe of 244 First Avenue went to Station D of the Post Office at Eighth Street and Third Avenue to send a money order. He took with him his eight-year-old son, William Pardoe, Jr. The little boy had on a new overcoat. While Mr. Pardoe was at the money-order window the Phalen boy entered. He slipped up behind Pardoe, Jr., and tried to pick his pockets, but found nothing in them. Then he began tugging at the new overcoat and had it nearly off when Mr. Pardoe looked around.

Young Phalen ran, and Mr. Pardoe followed, shouting "Stop thief!" About a block away the boy was caught by Policeman Ross of the Fifth Street Station.

ELKS' MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Brooklyn Lodge's Annual Exercises in Plymouth Church.

The annual memorial service of Brooklyn Lodge, No. 22, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, was held yesterday afternoon in Plymouth Church. Exalted Ruler Charles Cranford conducted the exercises. There was an organ voluntary by Gen. Horatio C. King, and, after a brief address by the Exalted Ruler, Secretary Americus called the roll of the lodge's dead, a bell tolling for each name. At the conclusion of the opening exercises prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. H. P. Dewey, pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims.

A tribute to the memory of the dead was paid by Frederick R. Peterson of Jamestown Lodge. He said, in his address, that in the hearts of all Elks their country's flag had an honored place. The members should pledge themselves to keep the flag unsullied. While there might be disagreement as to how far on the frontier of civilization the flag should be carried, once there it should be always held there.

A feature of the service was the singing by a quartet of "Our Heavenly Home," inscribed to the Elks by Gen. King.

The Memorial Committee comprised William J. Buttling, Gen. Horatio C. King, George L. Weed, Charles E. Walker, and E. T. Rippler.

LABOR TO AID IN REFORM

Episcopalian Clergyman Criticises the Committee of Fifteen.

Should Represent All Classes, Dr. Bliss Tells the Federated Union—Central Union's Resolution.

Both the Central Federated Union and the Central Labor Union decided yesterday to take a hand in the purification of this city, and are ready to act when their plans are formed. The subject was brought up at the meeting of the Central Federated Union by the Rev. Dr. W. D. P. Bliss, an Episcopalian clergyman, who has been for some time identified with reform movements and helped two years ago to organize the National Social Reform Union at Buffalo. Dr. Bliss received the privilege of the floor, and was escorted to the platform by a committee of delegates.

He began by saying that the present movements for purifying the city of vice were not broad enough. The committee of fifteen appointed by Charles Stewart Smith should have embraced the labor element. It was only composed of rich men, as bankers, merchants, and lawyers, and ought to be large enough for all classes. He asked for the appointment of two delegates to meet members of labor and reform societies at a convention to be held early in January, for the purpose of attacking vice in its strongholds.

"The committee appointed by Mr. Smith," he said, "does not go deeply enough into the causes of the present state of affairs in the city. It is the result of the economic conditions. It is wrong to believe that girls on the east side will go into the streets for money at the start. The girls have to work in filthy rooms, breathing foul air and under depressing conditions. They go into the street to get a little fresh air, and are met by people who induce them to go to places of amusement, and finally bring about their downfall. To hold the police mainly responsible for this is ridiculous. To people are as much to blame as the police. If some of the disorderly houses have dealings with the police it is the outcome of the present economic conditions."

Dr. Bliss held that the landlords were responsible for the running of disorderly resorts as much as any one else. The present anti-vice movements, he said, had all more or less to do with politics.

The speaker was applauded when he finished. Herman Robinson of the United Clothing Salesmen and James P. Archibald of the Paper Hangers' Union were appointed as a committee to act with the reform organization. Mr. Bliss is in touch with and a call will be issued for the proposed anti-vice convention early this week.

Vice Chairman Kopp of the Central Labor Union brought up the question of purifying the city at the meeting of that body. He said that up to the time Dr. Parkhurst started on his crusade vice had a certain extent been localized in New York. He considered that the Parkhurst raids did incalculable harm.

"Brooklyn was a moral city up to that time," he continued, "but the Parkhurst raids drove many vicious people across the river and multiplied disorderly houses in the City of Churches. It drove the women of ill-repute to the streets and the tenements in New York, and spread vice over a greater area. In the days of Superintendent Kelso, and others, vicious resorts were at least confined to a given area, where it was known they existed."

John H. Cooke of District Assembly No. 220, Knights of Labor, then offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Central Labor Union is fully in sympathy with the movements being carried on in the present vice crusade, and we hope that it will result in driving glaring vice out of the city.

A burst of cheers followed the offering of this resolution. A delegate then got up in a state of indignation and declared that he had come to talk on labor matters, and not to hear speeches about vice. He thought the Central Labor Union had no business with such matters.

The Chairman declared him out of order, and then there was an uproarious scene. The protesting delegate shouted that he had a right to protest. Others said that the welfare of the community was the business of the Central Labor Union, and it could be narrowed down in its scope merely to reports about trades unions. Five or six delegates began to talk at once. When order was restored the resolution was carried by acclamation. It was decided to keep on agitating the subject until some good is accomplished in the purification of the city.

BROOKLYN CHURCH DEDICATED.

Three Services Yesterday in the New Union Methodist Episcopal Edifice.

The new Union Methodist Episcopal Church at Conselyea and Leonard Streets, Brooklyn, of which the Rev. William P. Estes is pastor, was dedicated yesterday in the presence of a large congregation and many Methodist clergymen. The Rev. James Montgomery, the Presiding Elder, had charge of the morning service, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of The Christian Advocate.

There was a laymen's meeting in the afternoon, at which John Searles, the President of the Brooklyn Church Society, made an address. At the evening service Presiding Elder Montgomery spoke. The celebration will continue every night until Friday.

BABY RAKED OUT OF ASH HEAP.

Was Very Much Alive, and Scared Man Who Found It on a Dump.

A baby that was very much alive was unearthed yesterday in an ash dump at Meserole Avenue and Guernsey Street, Greenpoint, by an Italian who was digging for anything of value he could find. He reached the dump at daybreak and, while raking over a heap of ashes he heard a wail, and presently saw before him a moving bundle of rags. He became frightened and ran away, but recovering his courage, returned and cautiously examined the bundle. The sounds coming from it satisfied him that it contained nothing more dangerous than a baby, which proved to be a girl.

He ran to the Greenpoint Avenue Police Station and gave the infant to the Sergeant. The latter sent a call for an ambulance doctor to St. Catharine's Hospital, and Dr. Hoyt responded. The little one who was about five hours old, was covered with ashes. How it managed to keep alive puzzled the doctor. It was named Stacia and sent to the city nurse.

MYSTERY IN A DROWNING

Policeman McGloin's Body Found in the River Near His Post.

Had Been at Roll Call in the Station About an Hour Before His Body Was Seen in the Water.

The police of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station are mystified over the drowning of Policeman Patrick McGloin of that station, whose dead body was found shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning floating in the East River at the foot of East Ninety-fifth Street.

McGloin, who had been on the force for twenty-five years, had been detailed to duty about the House of the Good Shepherd, at the foot of Ninetieth Street, for upward of ten years. He answered the 8 o'clock roll call as usual yesterday morning in the East Eighty-eighth Street Station House, and then left, presumably for his beat outside the walls of the House of the Good Shepherd.

Shortly after 9 o'clock Capt. Timothy Callahan of the canalboat Ernest S. Green, moored on the south side of the pier at East Ninety-fifth Street, discovered McGloin's body in the water. Policeman Madden of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station and others were called, and assisted in dragging the body from the water. It was taken to the station house, where, in the dead policeman's pockets was found $105 of the $112.75 which he had drawn on Saturday as his month's pay. There were also found some Brooklyn newspapers. It was thought strange that neither these papers nor the dead man's underclothing were altogether wet.

Neither the canalboat Captain nor the watchman at the Second Avenue trolley power house saw McGloin on the pier yesterday morning. Callahan said that he had been at work about the deck of his boat since 6 o'clock in the morning, and if any one had come out on the pier he certainly would have noticed it.

Detectives Finn and Farrel of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station investigated the case, but their efforts thus far seem to have but added mystery to it. At the station house it was said yesterday afternoon that no marks of violence were found on McGloin's body, and no part of his uniform had been disarranged. He was not a drinking man, and, according to the Sergeant at the station house, he seemed to be in his usual health and spirits when he left for his post after roll call.

The detectives were unable to find any one who had seen McGloin after he left the station house. The police theory is that he was walking about the edge of the river, at the foot of Ninetieth Street, when he was attacked by vertigo or apoplexy and fell into the water. It was learned from the canalboatman, however, that at the time the body was found the tide was running out. This would make it impossible for the body to have floated from East Ninetieth to East Ninety-fifth Street, where it was found.

McGloin's body was taken to his home, at 586 East Eighty-sixth Street, where the Coroner will perform an autopsy. The dead man was fifty-four years old, and was appointed to the police force April 24, 1875. He leaves a widow and family.

CONCERTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

Works of Tone Masters to be Given in Cooper Union Hall by Great Artists.

Announcement was made yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the People's Choral Union, at Cooper Union, that a number of prominent men and women had made arrangements for a number of orchestral concerts, at which the best compositions would be produced. Frank Damrosch said that this idea had sprung from the belief that fine orchestral concerts were beyond the reach of the masses on account of the high prices charged, and that unless persons of influence took hold of the matter high-class compositions would remain a luxury to be enjoyed by a comparitively few.

The proposed series of concerts will be known as the People's Symphony Concerts, and will be given in Cooper Union Assembly Hall. The conductor will be Franz X. Arens. The series will be given in co-operation with the People's Institute and the Society for University Extension. The Advisory Board of those interested in the series consists of ex-Mayor Abram S. Hewitt, Charles Sprague Smith, J. Eugene Whitney, Archibald Hill, Dr. Elphalet Potter, John Noble Stearns, and Satterlee Swartout, and the patronesses of the undertaking are Mrs. Charles H. Ditson, Miss Godwin, Miss Grace H. Dodge, Mrs. Granville P. Hawes, Mrs. John Noble Stearns, Mrs. Satterlee Swartout, Mrs. Theodore Sutro, and Mrs. Andrew Findlay.

The programmes of these concerts are to differ radically from those usually offered by the Philharmonics or the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in that they are intended to emphasize the educational side of the problem. The orchestral works of Bach and Handel, the symphonies of Haydn and Mozart, and the earlier symphonies of Beethoven will occupy a place of honor on the programmes. The concerts will be given on Friday evenings, the first to be held on Dec. 14. The series will comprise five concerts. The others will be given on Jan. 4, Feb. 8, March 15, and April 12. Tickets for the whole series will not be higher than $1.25; admission for a single performance goes as low as 10 cents.

The announcement concludes as follows: "The very best musicians obtainable have been engaged, and it is our aim to render these concerts quite unique, not only as to the programmes offered, but also with regard to the high artistic standard of the performances as such."

BIG BOILER ROLLED UPON HIM.

Rapid Transit Tunnel Laborer's Life Crushed Out Instantly.

In an instant the life of Nicola Sachs, a laborer, who lived at 353 East One Hundred and Thirteenth Street, was crushed out by a big steam boiler, which rolled on him, pinning him against a heavy beam, yesterday. A gang of men, of which Sachs was one, had just started to move the boiler, which supplies steam for rock drills, from Sixty-fourth Street to Sixty-third Street. The men were working yesterday, so that everything might be in readiness for the continuance of the tunneling operations to-day. Sachs was told to place a block under one side of the boiler, but before he could do so it rolled upon him.

Sachs was employed by Bradley Brothers, contractors, of 533 West Forty-seventh Street, who have the contract for the construction of the tunnel from Sixtieth Street to One Hundred and Fourth Street. A. J. Bradley, who had charge of the men, was arrested by Policeman John White of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station. In the West Side Court, Magistrate Deuel held Mr. Bradley in $3,000 bail until to-day, when he will be remanded to the Coroner. Bail was furnished by Senator George W. Plunkitt.

Three Grand Coat Bargains.

$9.74, worth $15.00. $12.99, worth $18.00. $19.74, worth $35.00.

Here's your Coat chance. Three incomparable values—$9.74, $12.99, $19.74—choose according to your need, taste and purse. Such opportunities are like finding money. We've been ultra conservative in stating the respective value of each garment. A high authority and good judge of such merchandise affirms we are altogether too modest in our advertising—because the Coats are worth more than we say. However, we enjoy having you find more than you expect. That's the Macy way. It pays. The maker—and his is a name to conjure with in Cloakdom—sold us these Coats at a sacrifice. Same old, iterated, logical reason—"warm weather." For two weeks we've been hoping for cold days in the interest of these goods. Our reserve of patience is exhausted and trade prudence urges immediate action. We obey the promptings. That explains the unprecedented prices.

$35.00 Automobile Box Coats at $19.74.

Women's Automobile Box Coats—42 inches long—made of the finest quality kersey that is manufactured—smooth and delicate to the touch as French broadcloth—more richly calendered and heavier, of course; fly-front, semi-fitting back, silk velvet collar, broad lapped seams, faultlessly tailored, lined throughout with elegant, glossy all-silk satin, black and tan, worth $35.00; our price $19.74.

"Straus" Cut Glass.

The Straus Cut Glass holds an acknowledged supremacy in the realm of industrial art. We never prevaricate or quibble. Our statements are never ambiguous or obscure. Direct words please us best. There are some stocks for which we do not claim leadership; but concerning Cut Glass we honestly assert the peerlessness of our productions and the matchlessness of our prices. Every claim we make has been thoroughly sustained by competent and disinterested critics. Our specimens displayed at the World's Fair were awarded the medal. Our achievements have been no less practical than aesthetic. We have taxed the resources of brains and capital to reduce the cost of these ideal creations. Here is conclusive testimony of our great success in that direction:

A special display of Salad, Fruit and Flower Bowls, Sugar Bowls, Water Bottles, Spoon Glasses, Cream Pitchers, Celery Trays, Celery Holders, Ice Tubs, Bon Bon Trays, Water Tankards and various other desirable pieces—rich cuttings and artistic patterns.

Jewelry.

No use vaporing about "beauty unadorned." Jewelry is its own proposition, argument and proof. Men and women of the Western World have the same passion for a profusion of Jewelry that is so pronounced in the tastes of Orientals. The love for personal adornment has grown ever since it first took root centuries ago. Macy's would not be in Holiday trim without a magnificent showing of Diamonds, Gold Jewelry of every description and Watches. Our prices average a third less than others charge. The display and the saving are worth coming miles to enjoy.

Christmasy Toys.

Our Empire of Toys Has Extended. Bicycles and Sporting Goods have been wheeled to another section, surrendering their long-occupied territory to the mighty overflow of the former. Don't fret, little children; there are Toys a-plenty. We'll nudge Santa Claus persistently and continually from now until Christmas Eve. He's ever-present at Macy's. His blessing seems to brood in the air, making it soft and kindly. He's the tenderest saint in the calendar of love—the grave, venerable, generous patron of childhood.

Keep easy, beware of impatience and all your fond dreams will come true.

Best Dolls.

Dolls—visionary and artificial personages, but endowed with life and feeling to the child.

Fancy furnishes them with hearts and tears and makes them responsive to the love and caresses of their gentle owners.

Rich in imagination, replete with innocent pleasure, there is no joy like the joy that belongs to the Doll period. The largest stock of them is beneath this roof—and the lowest prices, as a matter of course.

No damaged Dolls—no seconds. This is a temporary abode for strong, beautiful, robust, perfect Dolls—not a hospital for cripples and hurt ones.

Haviland China at Half Prices? Yes, Less Than Half Prices.

Haviland's China—highest class grand fire decorations. The fogs and gales of mid-ocean delayed their arrival. The goods should have been on sale a week before Thanksgiving. But we cover that by the broad, true, trade-winning statement that every piece will be on the counters Monday marked at half and less than half regular prices. An extraordinary offering, including hundreds of dozens of fine Plates, Fish and Game Sets, Salad Bowls, Fruit Compotieres, new style Relish Dishes, Chocolate Pots, Cups and Saucers, Oyster Plates, Roll Trays, Cracker Jars and many other articles. CHURCH CORNERSTONE LAID.

New Sanctuary for a Catholic Parish on Coney Island.

The cornerstone of the new Catholic Church of the Guardian Angel, on the Boulevard at Coney Island, was laid yesterday afternoon in the presence of 2,000 spectators. The parish was organized seven years ago by the Rev. James Cullen, its present head. Father Cullen in his efforts to raise funds for the new edifice has in the past seven years held sixty entertainments of various kinds, and, with subscriptions, has succeeded in raising $24,000.

The cornerstone of the new structure was laid by Vicar General McNamara of Brooklyn, assisted by the Rev. Fathers Heffner and Brophy, the latter the priest of the Italian Church of Coney Island. The Rev. Thomas Cullen, a member of the Paulist Fathers of Philadelphia, preached the sermon.

The stone was laid with a silver trowel, which will be sold at auction later for the benefit of the church. A collection was taken during the services, and $2,000 was realized.

The new edifice will be built of brick and redstone, and will be finished within three months. The structure will cost $50,000.

American Missionaries for Guam.

Five representatives of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions have sailed for the Island of Guam, where they will undertake mission work as pioneers of Protestantism among the natives. They are the Rev. and Mrs. Francis M. Price, Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Hyde, and Miss Mary A. Channell. These missionaries are passengers on the United States transport Solace, which recently sailed from San Francisco.

MARRIAGE NOT A FAILURE.

Discord the Exception, Says Dr. Myers—Divorce and Sin Among the Rich and in Clubs Denounced.

The Rev. Dr. Cortland Myers, preaching last evening in the Baptist Temple, Brooklyn, on "The Gospel of the Marriage Altar," declared that although the east side had its sin, Fifth Avenue had its share, and that clubs for both men and women had their relations to the home and marriage altar "as well as the saloon and other homes of vice." His sermon, in part, was as follows:

"Marriage is not a failure. Three thousand weddings are solemnized every day to bear witness to the triumphs of the marriage altar. Harmony is the rule, discord the exception. The divorce court does not shadow every home. It still remains true as at the beginning that 'it is not good for man to be alone.' The salvation of society is as much dependent upon this law as upon the law of gravity. Its greatest peril at this hour is not in the mud at the bottom of the stream, but in the scum at the top.

"Divorces are most frequent in the society world. The people of that world have less regard for love and the most sacred things of life. The east side has its sin, but Fifth Avenue has its share. It is the same article only in different clothes. Impurity in one part of New York is just as hateful to God as in another part.

"The countless clubs among men, and now almost as many among women, have their relations to the home and the marriage altar as well as the saloon and other homes of vice. The Sunday afternoon teas and society events now inaugurated may be more evil in the sight of Heaven than the Sunday afternoon 'sprees' of the tenements.

"Marriage is a failure only when the wickedness of man makes it so. Easy divorce among the rich is not the pathway of escape before the judgment. We need a new definition of love. We use the word without ever being able to define it or understand its meanin. So much that passes under the name of love is the sham of sentiment. Love knows no selfishness. There are domestic tyrants and Shylocks who are the destroyers of homes and violators of every wedding vow. Riches in home and dress cannot make love. Poverty cannot destroy it. It has a secret all its own, a divine mystery, but life's deepest reality."

W. C. Carl's Free Organ Concert.

William C. Carl's seventy-sixth free organ concert will be given in the "Old First" Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street, to-morrow afternoon. The soloists will be Miss Bessie Bonsall, contralto, and F. L. Huebner, (lately of Vienna,) basso.

Fell Downstairs, Broke His Neck.

Patrick McDermott, who lived at 522½ West Twenty-sixth Street, with his wife and three children, paid a visit to his friend, Daniel O'Connor, on the first floor of 625 Hudson Street, Saturday night. When he started to go home early yesterday morning he pitched from the landing of the O'Connor apartment to the bottom of the stairs. His neck was broken, and death was instantaneous, according to an ambulance surgeon summoned from St. Vincent's Hospital.

Alleged Woman Thief Caught.

Capt. McClusky of the Detective Bureau said last night that earlier in the day Detective Sergeant McManus had arrested in Philadelphia Emily Neilson, who, it is claimed, is Mabel Smith. The Smith woman is accused by Charles Guerin, whom the police call Charles Garsey, of having robbed him of money and jewelry valued at a large sum on Nov. 20 in a flat at 259 West Thirty-ninth Street. She will be brought on here.

The values in our two bargain stores are not approached by any offerings anywhere; for in addition to the extremely low prices, we give quality that is above reproach in every instance; and variety that meets every wish in the matter of style.

Judge the two stores by these representative offerings to-day:

Men's $3.50 to $5 Shoes at $2.85—

Patent Leather, Boarded Tan Calf, Chrome Kidskin, Black Box Calf, Waxed Calfskin—the newest shapes, sizes nearly complete. The reason—stock adjustment—only 1,120 pairs left.

Women's $3.50 Dress Shoes at $2—

The "Jenness Miller" shoes that are as good as most other shoes sold at $3.50 on the market—dainty shapes, superb kidskin, in both black and tan; with turned soles.

Basement, under Main Shoe Store.

Women's JACKETS Under-Price

Here is a group of probably a hundred stylish Jackets, in sorts that have sold down to a few of a kind. There is wide variety to select from—short jackets with loose or semi-fitting backs, in various lengths. Some pretty blouse styles. Materials are kerseys, cheviots and double-faced tweeds, in black, blue, tan and castor. Prices have been $18 to $28. To-day choose for fifteen dollars

Second floor, Broadway.

Women's NECKWEAR $1 for $1.50 And $2 Values

This is a most attractive gathering of delicate pieces of neckwear for tasteful women. They were designed and made in our own workrooms, and scarcely two pieces in the collection are alike. Some are copied after fetching bits of Paris designing, but made, of course, less expensively. A wide range of materials has been drawn on to produce the variety of effects—velour, chiffon, ribbon, gold braid, spangles, Liberty silk and taffeta.

At the new prices $1, for neckwear fully worth $1.50 and $2, the selling will be rapid; and the prettiest pieces will find fortunate owners early.

Tenth street.

Walking HATS Reduced

They are eminently in keeping with a pedestrian skirt, particularly for rainy-day wear; for they give a touch of independence of weather conditions to the costume. They are of felt, some with plain silk band, others trimmed simply, with scarf and quill. Besides their practicalness, they have a worthy claim on your interest in that they are now priced at $1 to $1.50, instead of $1.50 to $2.50, as formerly.

Second floor, Tenth Street.

Clothing Boys on Wanamaker Principles

The principle is in active operation in every part of the store. Specialized for the Clothing Store, and briefly stated, it amounts to this: Best materials, best workmanship, lowest prices. Herein are comprehended all attributes of good clothing—reliability, durability, fit and style. These are all particularly necessary when you're clothing boys. Add to them the important consideration of lower-than-elsewhere prices, and you put Wanamaker clothing for boys in a class by itself. Witness these proofs:

Boys' Suits—
Double-breasted suits, for boys from 8 to 16 years, in a large assortment of fancy and plain blue cheviots, at $5, $6.50, $7.50, $8.50 to $12.

Second floor, Ninth street.

Children's APRONS

This of lawn aprons for little ones from 2 to 12 years of age. In various grades of lawn. But one kind of making—careful, even better than most home-making. Cut very full and made with deep hem. Fifty cents for one kind with trimming of neat embroidery insertion. Some also at 85c—Mother Hubbard style—very prettily trimmed. And at $1.25, and on up to $7. At the last named price the aprons are of fine French nainsook, with trimming of torchon lace and feather stitching.

Second floor, Fourth avenue.

FUR RUGS and Robes

Handsome Animal Skins in Large Number

We haven't said much of our furs, these shapes so far this season, though the selling has gone on very satisfactorily for weeks. The fact of the matter is we're only just prepared this morning to show our completed collection. There's a very superior exhibit of fine animal rugs here now, on the third floor. Interesting to view whether you're thinking of buying or not. A Broadway window also holds some splendid specimens.

A list of the many kinds and prices would be much too long to print. Here, however, is a hint as to prices, all of which are very reasonable:

Rugs—
Grizzly Bears, fine selected skins, large size, $150.
Tigers (Mongolian), $150 to $200.
Leopards, very handsomely marked, $12 to $50.
Wolves (Hudson Bay and Timber), $8.50 to $75.
Tiger Cats, $15. Foxes, $12. Lynx, $6.

Third floor.

Robes—
All the regular sizes, in gray fox, lynx, tiger cat, wolf, china deer and grizzly bear; beaver lined and Indian cured—$22 to $125.
Also a complete stock of imitation black and grizzly bear, Mongolian and Japanese Marten. "Best on earth," the maker says. Perfect in every way, and with good care will last a lifetime. $8.50 to $35.

New Japanese SILKS The Printings for 1901

The new Foulard and Japanese Silks are ready this morning. The patterns show many radical departures from the effects seen before. The early arrival is planned for those who wish to send a dress or waist pattern for a holiday gift; and yet there are hundreds of women who will buy them for their own use. They represent what will be shown regularly a month or two hence.

A splendid variety at

Fifty Cents a Yard

Also many more elaborate patterns, up to $1 yard.

Rotunda.

DINNER SETS Fresh Importations

For days we have been busy unpacking the great casks of china that are continually arriving from across the sea. As soon as an empty cask is rolled aside, others are here, their precious contents clamoring for the light. The gathering is rich and comprehensive, and now at its best. English, French and Austrian dinner sets and pieces join with the most artistic of American manufacture to form an imposing display.

Never were prices lower than now; thus the combination of choice and cheapness suggests that prudence lies in anticipating your Christmas needs and purchasing now.

Among the hundred or more Dinner Sets in the collection, there are 61 in open stock patterns, which can be bought by the set, or singly, to replace broken pieces without delay. Their price range is from $12 to $310. Complete dinner sets in other designs are priced at $6.50 to $200, affording an almost unlimited field for selection in quality, design and price.

A word of some especially good values:

It's a very complete assortment—interesting to view at any time. See it whether you care to buy or not.

Women's and Children's WORK-BOXES

We sell a great many of these every year about this time. Not a few are bought by those who are busy with fancy work intended for Christmas gifts. The majority, however, are purchased to give as presents themselves. We go to Germany and England for the boxes—they excel in work of this kind, as you'll readily note when you see some of these handsome affairs. We fill the boxes with the various sewing needfuls from our own worthy stocks. You can have them filled to your order if you don't approve of our judgment in the matter.

Many kinds for little ones as well as grown-ups. Fifty cents for some of the children's boxes, up to $15 for the finest box for women.

Rivalry in WAISTS Silk vs. Flannel

The verdict must be left to you—we won't attempt to decide between the claimants for favor. Each is a splendid waist of its kind, and each is a remarkably good money's worth. Perhaps, if you see them, you'll want one of each. This is by way of helping you decide:

Flannel Waists at $1.75, worth $2.75.—This is the third instalment of these waists we've offered; the other two disappeared like mist before the sun. These will probably go as rapidly. Full front, with 8 small box plaits from neck to bust, stitched flat; fitted back, with 2 clusters of plaits from neck to waist; bishop sleeves; shirt cuffs. In solid colors—black, navy blue, red and rose; trimmed with brass buttons.

Silk Waists, at $5—These are beautifully made, full of style, and especially suitable for wear with tailor-made costumes. Of peau de soie silk; full front, with 6 box plaits from neck to bust; French back, bishop sleeves, shirt cuffs; in solid colors, rich shades, light blue, pink, violet, cream, cardinal and ox-blood; trimmed with handsome brass buttons.

Second floor, Tenth street.

Irish Point Lace CURTAINS So Cheap

Take a very moderate price, then subtract a third from it—that's the way all these lace curtains have been re-priced. There are novelty Irish Point curtains, in butter color, at $5.25 to $7.75—they were $8 to $11.50. Some in Arab color at $6.25 to $11, that were $9.50 to $16.75. And another group in white and ecru, have new prices like these: $10 instead of $15, $11 instead of $16, and $20 instead of $30. There are other grades and styles at other prices, but the plan of price-reduction is the same throughout. All the goods are desirable in every way.

Third floor.

High-Grade MATTRESSES Not High Priced

This is about one kind of mattress alone. It's the product of our own factory, and as close to perfection as we think any maker has yet reached. It is made of extra black drawings horse hair, the top and bottom covered with fine lamb's wool. The covering of art drapery ticking is laced, not tufted, and has imperial edge—that is, 4 rows of stitching. The full size weighs 50 lbs.—made in one part only. The price, $37.50, is exceptionally moderate for so excellent a mattress.

Fourth floor.

Women's Embroidered Handkerchiefs

The makers abroad and those at home are represented here with almost endless assortments. If all-linen and a pretty design, it's probably among this collection, for it's so vast that but few styles could possibly be missed. There are hemstitched embroidered handkerchiefs at 12½c, and up to $25. Scalloped embroidered handkerchiefs at 25c and up to $75. With such a wide range of choice, maybe you'll be able to find the styles that you fancy—either for your own use, or for giving at Christmas time. You'll find the prices throughout to have a strong leaning in your favor—they're never else than very moderate here.

The Handkerchief Store is somewhat enlarged to-day—better facilities for proper display and prompt attention.

A Wholly New Collection of Good Values in the Basement Under-price STORE

Seasonable goods of various kinds—things sought for just at this time—and almost without exception, fresh goods in perfect condition. The Christmas present thought is pervasive there this morning. A handsome lamp, a pretty desk adjunct, a warm and stylish scarf, and so on. The entire collection is doubly interesting in the fact that everything in it is priced under value:

The most extensive offering ready this morning is this:

60,000 Yards of Black Cotton Dress Goods, worth 12½c, at 6 1-4 cents a Yard

The quantity made the remarkable price. The goods are refined in appearance, and will make up almost as effectively as wool goods. The weave is soft and heavy, in little diamond-like figurings; solid black, and the maker assures us that the color is permanent. It is probably the best black cotton goods ever offered at such a price, and the selling will no doubt be rapid. 6¼c a yard.

Fur Scarfs—Six Kinds, All Very Low-Priced—
The comparison shown below of present prices and values, is to be understood as referring to our valuation. A comparison made with prices that prevail in many other stores would show even greater savings. We bought these cheaply—they'll be sold so, and in a hurry, too, most likely:

Did you ever stop to think that the well-known cooking experts, Mrs. Rorer, Mrs. Ewing, Marion Harland, Mrs. Lincoln, Mrs. Owens, Mrs. Parker, Miss Willis, Mrs. Hiller, all use and recommend in preference to all other cooking fats?

Is not their opinion something to you? Try a pail of WHITE COTTOLENE and you will find that your food will be more delicious, appetizing and wholesome than ever before.

There is no hog fat in WHITE COTTOLENE.

Expert Cooks are unanimous in their praise of WHITE COTTOLENE and use it in preference to all other cooking fats. Mrs. Ewing, who is dean of the Chautauqua (N. Y.) Cooking School, says:

"White COTTOLENE is absolutely neutral, perfectly odorless and flavorless, and consequently much superior to lard as a frying medium and shortening agent. It is more economical, cleaner and more wholesome than lard for all cooking purposes."

OPINIONS ON THE CHARTER

Just What Bronx Borough Wanted, Says ex-Judge Hall.

Senator McCarren Favors the Increased Power for Borough Presidents—Controller Coler Approves.

Ex-Judge Ernest Hall, one of the best-known citizens in the Borough of the Bronx, was asked by a reporter of THE NEW YORK TIMES what he thought of the proposed amendments to the charter. "The Borough of the Bronx has practically got everything it has asked for in the amendments," he said, "and much credit is due James L. Wells, the Bronx Borough member of the committee. Among the most important amendments is that which calls for the establishment of a separate Building Department. Formerly builders and architects were obliged to go away down town to file plans for new buildings or transact any business with the department. Then a branch office was established in the Bronx section, and after it had been shown that its was a benefit and convenience it was abolished, despite the protests of the building interests.

"Another gain of importance is the extension of the powers of the local boards of improvements. The enlargement of the power of the Borough Presidents and giving them a seat in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment means much for the various boroughs and does away with many annoying conditions. The abolition of the Deputy Commissioners of Sewers, Streets, Bridges, and Lighting is also a good thing, as is the clause which says that Deputy Tax Commissioners must reside in the district they represent and that they must assess property only in their own borough.

"The charter as revised is exactly what the residents and property owners of the Borough of the Bronx have been aiming at since consolidation. We had home rule in this borough and an ideal government before the consolidation, but that wiped it all out, and since then we have been struggling along under difficulties."

Maurice F. Holahan, President of the Board of Public Improvement, said last night: "I was not surprised to learn that the Commission had recommended that the Board of Public Improvements be abolished. I appeared before the commission once, by request, and explained the workings of my department."

Senator Patrick H. McCerren of Brooklyn in discussing the proposed Charter amendments said: "That the powers of the Borough Presidents should be increased has been my belief. I am of the opinion that much better government can be secured by enlarging local governmental powers. We must make the best of the conditions which exist as a result of the consolidation act. Increased powers for the Borough Presidents is along this line. It is a question what the Republican majority in the Legislature will do with the report of the Commission. For my own part, I shall act entirely upon my own judgment, irrespective of the recommendations of the commission. The attitude of the Kings County Democratic organization will depend very largely, I think, upon the attitude assumed by the State organization and the Democratic members of the Legislature."

Controller Coler said: "The document contains many excellent recommendations, and, taken altogether, is the best instrument of its kind turned out. It is what I would call a good working instrument."

Frederick S. Gibbs said: "I feel a good deal as Abe Gruber does. What is the use of getting music for a dance unless you know you are to have a dance? I believe in single-headed commissions. So far as the Aldermen are concerned, my opinion is that, instead of increasing the number to two from each Assembly district, it would be better to reduce it to one from each of the five boroughs."

Charles Steckler said: "I consider the proposed Board of Aldermen altogether too unwieldy."

SMALLPOX CASE IN HOBOKEN.

Disease Taken There by a Child Who Contracted It in This City.

Sadie Semple, five years old, of 259 Eleventh Street, Hoboken, was taken to the pest house at Snake Hill last night suffering from smallpox. The house in which the child's parents live is a five-story double tenement, in which there are at least twenty children.

The Semples moved to Hoboken on Nov. 16 from this city, where they had lived on West Sixty-ninth Street. The girl had attended the kindergarten school there. Some days ago she became sick, and a physician was called in. He did not diagnose the case as smallpox, and it was not until the mother read of the outbreak in the neighborhood they had come from that she became suspicious, and again called in the physician, who then immediately informed the health officials.

Dr. Heifer, the President of the Board of Health, vaccinated all the inmates and quarantined the house. The option of accompanying her daughter to the pest house or of being isolated in her home was given to the mother. She decided to go with the child in order to help nurse her.

SEAMEN IN A LABOR UNION.

Organizers at Work on the Atlantic Coast and the Great Lakes.

President Andrew Furnseth of the Atlantic Coast Seamen's Union attended the meeting of the Central Federated Union yesterday to thank that body for its co-operation in organizing the seamen. The Union, he said, had spent $5,000 in 1900 in organizing the sailors on the great lakes. At the beginning of the year 1,000 of the lake seamen were organized, and now 5,000 of them belonged to the Union.

"Five or six of our agents are at work on the Atlantic coast," he said, "and we hope to see every American seaman not only on the great lakes but on the Atlantic and Pacific coast a member of the union.

Schooner Margaretta Refloated.

The merchant schooner Margaretta of Port Jefferson, L. I., arrived at City Island yesterday lashed to the side of the Chapman wrecking tug Champion. The Margaretta, while beating across Long Island Sound off Captain's Island Light during the gale on Nov. 17, shifted about twelve tons of the iron wire stored in the hold toward the bow. The shift caused her to pitch forward and down. The crew, with the exception of William Valentine, managed to get clear in the vessel's yawlboat. Valentine, who was at that time in the forecastle, went down with the vessel. The Margaretta was undamaged, save for the loss of her sails.

AMERICAN COAL IN RUSSIA.

Possibilities of Lucrative Trade at the Black Sea Ports.

The possibility of selling American coal at the Black Sea ports at a fair, if not large, profit is suggested in a report that Consul Heenan sends from Odessa, under date of Oct. 16, inclosing a letter from the Mayor of that town asking about the properties and prices of American coal. The towns of Nicolaiev and Sebastopol, as well as Odessa, are largely dependent upon foreign coal. The Russian fleet on the Black Sea and all southern railways are buyers of the best qualities of foreign coal. Mr. Heenan suggests that competent men be sent to study the requirements of the trade. He believes that coal amounting to from 800,000 to 1,000,000 tons could be sold each year.

The Mayor's letter is, in part, as follows:

I again address you with the respectful request to take upon yourself the trouble of collecting information as to whether, among the American coals, there are such kinds which not being too hard in quality, compare favorably with English Newcastle; at which price such kinds of coal could be delivered at Odessa when an entire ship is freighted; what length of time is required for the delivery of the coal from the place of its mining to Odessa, and to whom one must make the direct offers.

It is also possible that the administration of the town municipality, in the event of further increase of prices of coal, will take upon itself the purchase of coal for sale to the town population. I deem it necessary here to mention also the fact that during the last three years the price of coal at Odessa has constantly increased. Under these conditions American coal, if it possesses qualities not inferior to the English Newcastle coal and can be sold at a price below, will, without doubt, find a general sale in the Odessa market, all the more so since of the Russian coal the Dombrovsky variety, which was formerly found on this market in large amounts, is at present not to be had except in small quantities.

FIGHT AGAINST LEADER O'BRIEN

His Opponents Give a Dinner at Which the Inspector's Defeat Is Planned.

What purported to be a dinner by the James G. Blaine Club of the Fourth Assembly District to Joseph Levenson and Julius G. Kremer, but which is said to be the initiative for the overthrow of Patrick J. O'Brien, the Republican leader there, was served at the Murray Hill Lyceum, in East Thirty-fourth Street, last night. Mr. O'Brien is a Deputy Factory Inspector, and Mr. Kremer was the nominee for Assembly in opposition to the candidate named by Mr. O'Brien. There was very little difference in their respective votes.

The factional strife in the district has been very bitter for some time, but it is expected a settlement will be reached when the County Committee meets for organization this month. The defeated candidate for executive member will concede defeat and join hands with his opponents to overthrow Tammany Hall next November.

MINNESOTA'S SENATORSHIP.

Gov. Lind Offers Vacant Seat to Judge Loren W. Collins.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 2.—Loren W. Collins, Republican, Associate Justice of the State Supreme Court, was to-day offered by Gov. Lind the United States Senatorship, made vacant by the death of Cushman K. Davis. Mr. Collins has not yet accepted. The man appointed by Gov. Lind will hold until a Senator shall be elected by the State Legislature.

Judge Collins, who was born in Massachusetts in 1838, came to Minnesota in 1854. When the civil war broke out he enlisted, serving until its close in the Seventh Minnesota. On his return from the war he was admitted to the bar, and shortly thereafter became County Attorney of Stearns County, which office he held for ten years. He was a member of the Legislature from 1881 to 1883, and has been on the Supreme Court bench since 1887.

TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND.

Dr. Dickey Put in Charge of the Presbyterian Work.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—The committee of the General Assembly having in charge the raising of the Twentieth Century Fund of the Presbyterian Church states that the entire expense of the work necessary to the gathering of this fund has been provided for by certain generous gentlemen. Every dollar, therefore, contributed to special objects or to the general fund by churches or individuals will go as directed by the donors.

The Rev. Dr. Charles A. Dickey, Moderator of the General Assembly, has been granted a leave of absence from his duties as one of the Trustees of the Presbyterian Hospital in Philadelphia and as pastor of Bethany Presbyterian Church, in order that he may, at the urgent solicitation of the committee, undertake the work of representing the fund before the Church.

Twentieth Century Watch Meetings.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Miss Clara Barton has received many telegrams and letters asking about the twentieth century watch meetings. While the movement is under her guidance and control, all the details are committed to the New York office of the Red Cross, in the St. James's Building, New York City. Many towns seem to be watching for special authorization to hold these meetings, whereas none is necessary. All that any church, lodge, military company, or society of any kind needs to do is to organize its own watch meetings.

To Consecrate the New Century.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Archbishop Martinelli, the Apostolic Delegate, will participate at the services to be held at St. Patrick's Church in this city at midnight Dec. 31 to consecrate the new century to God. The ceremony, like that of a year ago, is expected to be an unusually brilliant one, and most of the Bishops throughout the country probably will hold similar services.

Burglar Caught at Staten Island Ferry.

The clothing and dry goods store of Alter Mord, at Vanderbilt Avenue and Bay Street, Stapleton, was entered by a burglar early yesterday morning, and clothing to the value of $85 was stolen. Patrolman Thomas Manley of the West Brighton Station, who was on duty at the Staten Island Ferry house at St. George at 5 o'clock, saw a man carrying a large bag boarding the ferryboat. He questioned the man, and, not being satisfied with his replies, took him to the station house. The man gave his name as Albert Laidster of 40 St. Mark's Place, Manhattan. In the bag was the clothing stolen from Mord's store.

Slashed His Throat with a Jackknife.

Philip Hackenberg of 303 East Thirty-fifth Street, who had traveled the city for work for months without finding any, and who became ill and despondent, walked into a lot at Madison Avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-fifth Street last night and slashed his throat with a jackknife, severing his windpipe. A policeman sent a call for an ambulance to the Manhattan Hospital, and Dr. Ogilvie, who responded, kept Hackenberg alive by means of a piece of tube while taking him to the hospital, where it was said the man's chances of recovery are slight.

Want Election Day a National Holiday.

The Central Labor Union yesterday instructed its delegates to see their Congressmen and ask them to bring up the question of making election day a National holiday. J. H. Cooke, delegate of District Assembly 220, Knights of Labor, said it would be better to make election day a National holiday than for workingmen to have their pay "docked" for election day when they took that day off.

Actor Faversham Somewhat Better.

The condition of Actor William Faversham was said last night by Dr. Burke, his attending physician, to be somewhat improved. The patient is not yet out of danger, however.

NEW IMMIGRANT STATION

Will Be Ready for Use by December 15.

Striking Contrast Between the Present Cramped Quarters and the Buildings on Ellis Island.

The Bureau of Immigration will be transferred from the present quarters to the new station on Ellis Island the 15th of this month. The transition from the cramped and badly arranged quarters which the bureau has occupied since the fire that destroyed the old station on the island in 1897 will be marked. One has only to remember the old ramshackle structure to be able to appreciate the magnificent and admirably arranged new quarters. Situated on one of the most prominent locations in the harbor, the new station is an imposing as well as a pleasing addition to the picturesque water front of the metropolis.

The plans and specifications for the new structure were selected from the designs submitted by the architectural firm of Boring & Tilton of this city. The judges upon whose recommendation the designs were accepted were Robert S. Peabody of Boston, T. P. Chandler of Philadelphia, and James Knox Taylor, Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department at Washington, all of whom are among the leading members of the American Institute of Architects. The wisdom of their choice of plans can be best understood by studying a description of the station. The main building, situated in the centre of the island, is 385 feet in length and 165 feet in width. The body of the building is 62 feet high, while the four towers at each corner are 100 feet from the ground to the top of the domes. The style is a conglomeration of several styles of architecture, the predominating style being that of the French Renaissance. The material used in the construction is brick, with light stone trimmings, harmonized so as to make the general effect as attractive in appearance as possible.

The spires of the towers are copper-covered, and in the top of each is an observatory, from which a splendid view of the harbor and city may be had. On the western and eastern sides of the building are the main entrances, massives arches which extend well into the second story. Over the arch in concrete work appear the National coat of arms, while eagles of the same material, make the general effect still more attractive.

But the interior arrangements are what, after all, make the station a model of completeness. Every detail of the exacting and confusing service to which its uses are to be dedicated were considered in perfecting the interior plans. The transportation, examining, medical, inquiry, and various other departments of the service being assigned quarters that, while they are practically separate in every detail, yet are so arranged as to follow one after the other, according to its proper place in the department. Thus from the office of the Commissioner the doors lead to the quarters of his assistant, and then, according to rank, come the medical, financial, examining, railroad, inquiry, and other branches of the service. When the immigrant is landed from the barges he will pass through an imposing private entrance, made as nearly as possible free from the observation of the curious, besides protecting him during bad weather. He then goes to the second floor, the entire centre of which is given up to the examining department, where he is inspected by the medical authorities, and the officials of other branches of the service who pass upon his eligibility to land. Every inch of space on this floor is utilized.

The railings forming the network of the aisles, in which the immigrants are placed in alphabetical order, according to nationality, gives the great amphitheatre the appearance of an immense spider web. Two shiploads can be handled easily, and two more in an emergency by the Inspectors and other attaches. It is estimated that 5,000 persons can be thoroughly examined with perfect ease, and in an emergency 3,000 more, by the application of a little added energy on the part of the examiners. Surrounding this room, from the third floor, is the observation gallery, where visitors can watch the Inspectors at work. The dormitories are entered from doors on the gallery. There are two main apartments, which can accommodate about 600 sleepers comfortably.

The southwestern corner of the second floor has been assigned to "that terror of the immigrant," the Board of Special Inquiry. Adjoining this department is the dormitory for the unfortunates labeled "excluded." There is a telegraph and railroad office also on this floor, the latter service also having a large division on the southern end of the ground floor, where the principal agencies will be located. Iron stairways lead from the private quarters of the immigrants to the roofs on either end of the building, which have been dubbed "roof gardens" and "pavilion roofs." The former name being the name given by the immigration authorities, while the latter is a title conferred by the construction forces. Whether there are to be vaudeville or other entertainments, the authorities so far have failed to state. But it can be said, with some degree of authority, that such entertainments as will take place will be given by "stage folk" and other artists who of necessity will have to pass under the supervision of the department. The administration offices and baggage room, together with the railroad departments, occupy the ground floor.

Convenient apartments have been assigned to the Bureau of Information—the private rooms of the Inspectors, matrons, clerks, and other attachés. One of the greatest of the improvements will be the bathing house, where 200 immigrants can be bathed at a time, 8,000 being about the number that can be thus refreshed during an ordinary day.

"We expect to wash them once a day, and they will land on American soil clean, if nothing more," said Assistant Commissioner McSweeney a few days ago. This improvement will not be ready for use, however, until the beginning of the new year. The baths will be of the "shower" variety. The restaurant, laundry, where thousands of pieces of linen and other fabrics can be cleansed daily, besides other routine necessities, will also have a separate pavilion.

The next building in importance to the main is the hospital, situated opposite Governors Island. This structure, while plain in plan, is arranged with perfect details for the purpose for which it is to serve.

All of the structures on the island are absolutely fireproof, the only inflammable material being the office furniture. The floors are of concrete and slate, the railings of iron, while the beds are combinations of iron and wire netting. The completion of the station will eliminate practically all of the unpleasant and irritating features connected with the Barge Office at the Battery. No longer will the immigrant be defrauded by the boarding house shark and the fakir. The crowd of foreigners who besiege the present quarters every day, making life hideous with their quarrels or cursing the guards and gatemen in a babel of tongues, will be things of the past.

At the new station, while everything will be arranged so as to permit the friends of immigrants to see them or visitors to inspect the department, this eliminating of the hoodlum and fakir element is to the authorities one of the pleasantest anticipations connected with the transfer so soon to take place.

New ferryboats are to be added, better and more substantial docks to be built, and the official force will probably be increased.

The spending of the million and a half dollars by the Government on Ellis Island will be, according to those best fitted to judge, the beginning of a new era in the complicated system of the immigration service.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

PALMER, Mass., Dec. 2.—Fire this morning in the section of the town known as Bondsville caused a loss of $25,000. The fire destroyed the blocks owned by Michael Sullivan and John Carmody, in which were several stores and tenements.

ATLANTA, Dec. 2.—The plant of the Chattahoochee Brick Company near this city was destroyed by fire to-day. All the buildings were burned, except the stockade, where several hundred convicts were kept. The loss is about $60,000, partly covered by insurance.

THOMAS T. KINNEY DEAD.

Ex-Proprietor of The Newark Advertiser Passes Away in the Town of His Birth.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Dec. 2.—Thomas T. Kinney, for many years one of Newark's most prominent residents, died this morning at his home, 1,062 Broad Street, of a complication of diseases. The funeral will be held Wednesday morning at Grace Church, this city.

Mr. Kinney was born in Newark, Aug. 13, 1821. He was a son of William Burnet Kinney, founder of The Newark Daily Advertiser and Minister to Turin, the friend of the Brownings and other famous literary and artistic folk in Italy nearly fifty years ago. Thomas T. Kinney was named after his uncle, whose middle name, Tallmadge, was from Gen. Benjamin Tallmadge of Revolutionary fame, ancestor of the Kinneys. Thomas was educated in the Newark Academy, and entered Princeton in 1841. Returning to Newark he began the study of law in the office of the late Justice Joseph P. Bradley, and was admitted to the bar. He never practiced, however, as it became necessary for him to aid his father in the newspaper office. The Advertiser was already one of the leading afternoon journals in this section of the country, and the son made the property more valuable than it was before. He organized, in conjunction with New York papers, a news agency which was of great usefulness. Mr. Kinney retained his control of The Advertiser until about six years ago, when he sold out.

He was one of the oldest stockholders in both the Morris and Essex and the Lackawanna Railroad Company, and was for several years President of the Fidelity Title and Guarantee Company. He was for many years President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and was one of the founders of the organization. He was a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, one of the proprietors of the East Jersey Water Company, and was associated with many other public and corporate interests. He was a delegate to the convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln for President in 1860, and always remained a stanch Republican. When James G. Blaine was Secretary of State, the post of Minister to Italy was offered to him, but he declined it.

Mr. Kinney married Miss Estelle Condit, of the well-known Newark family of that name, and she survives him, with one son, William B. Kinney, a lawyer, and three daughters, Mrs. W. Campbell Clark and Miss Margaret and Miss Estelle Kinney.

BURGLAR'S GRASP AWOKE HER.

With His Hand at Her Throat Mrs. Loveridge Was Compelled to Answer Questions.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 2.—Mrs. M. B. Loveridge, a widow, who lives with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Patton, at 45 Linden Place, this city, was awakened at 2 o'clock this morning by some one grasping her, and opened her eyes to find a man standing beside the bed, with one hand upon her shoulder and one clasping her throat.

"We want your money and jewelry, and won't hurt you if you tell us where they are," said the man.

Although badly frightened, Mrs. Loveridge managed to stammer that she had no money.

"Who else is in the house?" demanded the man, still with his hand on her throat.

Mrs. Loveridge explained that her daughter, son-in-law, and granddaughter occupied separate rooms on the same floor.

"Well, we need money. Have they got any?" he inquired.

He was told that there was no money in the house, and at once left the room, warning the frightened woman not to cry out if she valued her life.

For some time after the intruder left, Mrs. Loveridge was too badly scared to move. At length, however, she succeeded in calling to her daughter and arousing her. Mrs. Patton, the daughter, said she had been partly awakened by some one in the room, but the man said something about being sick, and told her to lie still, and thinking it was her husband, she went to sleep again.

A thorough search of the house failed to show that the men, for it is believed there were two of them, had taken anything. They had gained entrance by prying open a pantry window, and had departed through the back door, which they left open.

Two servant girls who slept on the third floor of the house were not awakened, and their month's wages, which they had received last night, lay on a bureau in their room, untouched.

MAN AND WIFE FOUND DEAD.

Asphyxiated by Gas in a Jersey City Boarding House.

George Musselman, bridge builder, and Jane, his wife, went to board three weeks ago at the house of Mrs. Selma Haig, 105 York Street, Jersey City. About 5 o'clock last evening a servant detected an odor of gas in the hall. She notified Mrs. Haig, who traced it to the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Musselman.

The door was found locked, and the police were called. When the door was forced the couple were found dead in bed. There were two gas jets, one of which had been arranged for a gas stove. This had been turned on, and it is supposed that the affair was accidental, as Musselman had been sick, and there were indications that his wife had prepared a pot of tea for him. The bodies were removed to the Morgue.

PATERSON BROKER WANTED.

Warrant Secured by a Customer for the Arrest of Elmer E. Creely.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 2.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Elmer E. Creely, who, until recently, ran a broker's office in this city. He did what appeared to be a prosperous business. He was supposed to be operating through a firm of brokers in the stock market in New York, and had a good class of customers.

The warrant charges that he has failed to pay to the speculator who obtained it several hundred dollars' profit resulting from a deal in stocks. Creely is said to have some thousands of dollars paid in by customers to cover their margins and the profits resulting according to the prices prevailing yesterday.

MAN'S DETERMINED SUICIDE.

Appearances Indicate He Tried to Hang Himself Before Taking Acid.

Special to The New York Times.

Thomas Lynch, a resident of Brown's Point, a settlement midway between Matawan and Keyport, died last night under circumstances that led to an investigation by the Coroner, who has ordered an autopsy. Last evening Lynch staggered into a saloon at Brown's point and sat at a table. It was seen that he was sick, and he was carried to his home, where he died a few hours later.

As far as can be ascertained, Lynch must have been in the stables of the horse car company near by, where he had been employed. A bottle that had contained acid was found, and it is thought the contents caused the man's death. A doctor's examination showed the man's throat to be injured, as if he had been strangled. It is supposed this injury was caused by an attempt to hang himself, which failed, and which was followed by the taking of the acid. No reason for the act is known.

Woman Fatally Burned in Jersey City.

Bridget Kelly, a widow, sixty years old, living alone in a one-story frame house in the rear of 102 Beacon Avenue, Jersey City, was raking the fire last night when several live coals fell out, setting fire to the floor. In trying to extinguish the flames Mrs. Kelly set fire to her dress, and before help arrived she was fatally burned. She was taken to the City Hospital in a dying condition. The fire did no damage to the house.

Wagon Hit by a Car, Two Men Hurt.

Charles Coler and Louis Begler of 171 Bleecker Street, Jersey City, were driving through Communipaw Avenue yesterday when their wagon was struck by Trolley Car No. 534 of the North Jersey Street Railroad. The vehicle was wrecked, and both men severely hurt internally. Coler's left arm was broken in addition. They were taken to the City Hospital.

Statement of Mr. Barnaby.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the matter of Healy versus Martin I am very sorry that the Court should exhibit so much ignorance of the case as to characterize my conduct as a broker, which is the only position I ever occupied in the matter, as I did not receive any proceeds or profits of the exchange beyond the usual legal commissions. The Court ignored much of the evidence and drew upon its imagination when rendering its absurd decision when it assumes that I am the owner of the Brooklyn property lately owned by Mr. Healy because I collected the rents for Martin Brothers, who admitted in court that they were the actual owners, although the title thereto stood in the name of James W. Golden, whom I had never seen up to the time of the trial. The Court proclaims its ignorance of the primary laws of business, I was the broker in this transaction, and I cannot see any reason why I would not be glad to undertake to negotiate just such an exchange again, and I trust with as much benefit to my client as the evidence in this case has shown me services to be to Mr. Healy.

The present condition of the case is probably due to the fact that my attorneys did not consider the evidence of the plaintiff of sufficient importance to be contradicted, and had I been called to the witness stand the result would have been very different. We are, however, far from the end of the case, and my friends and the reading public generally will see the entire transaction in its proper legal light, for some reason entirely ignored in the opinion just handed down.

STABBED NEAR BELLEVUE.

Flynn Accuses the Boy Brother of a Friend Who Assisted Him.

A young man was seen about 10:30 last night leaning against the fence around Bellevue Hospital, at Twenty-sixth Street and First Avenue, and it was thought that he was intoxicated. Presently Michael Corbet passed and the young man called to him, saying: "Mike, come and help me down to the hospital. I'm done for."

At the hospital it was found that the injured man was suffering from a serious stab wound in the head and another in the breast. He gave his name as Joseph Flynn, twenty-one years old, of 311 East Twenty-sixth Street. He said later that he had been stabbed by Michael Corbet's fourteen-year-old brother, Patrick, and that he did not wish to say anything about it before Corbet, as they were friends and he did not wish to cause the boy any trouble. The police are investigating the case.

THE OPENING OF CONGRESS.

It is a curious evidence of the grip that selfish interests have on political parties that the first thing the Republicans will try to do in the session that opens to-day at Washington is to push aside the bill of Senator SPOONER regulating civil government in the Philippines and replace it by the Frye ship-subsidy bill.

It may be said, and truly, that the Spooner bill, being regarded by the opposition as a political bill, will draw out a good deal of discussion, and that the chances of passing it at the short session are few. But that ought to be the case with the ship-subsidy bill, which is in absolute contradiction to all the principles of the Democratic Party when that party could boast of the possession of principles. Surely the spare time not needed for the passage of the appropriation bills could as profitably be employed in thrashing out the views of the two parties in regard to our policy in the Philippines as in trying to secure the passage of rich subsidies for an industry which complains only that the demand for its product is greater than it can supply.

This indecent haste in pressing the subsidy bill, which was shelved in the last session precisely because it was considered imprudent to go to the people with it, is a direct and impudent insult to the people. We do not say that the measure, had it been pressed last Summer, and passed, would have affected the result of the election; it probably would not; but it was withheld because the Republican leaders feared that it would. It was regarded not only by the opposition but by many who supported the Administration as abusing the power of the majority party in the Congress in the interest of the rich and in oppression of the body of the taxpayers. The managers felt that it could not be effectively defended in a campaign in which the selfish influence of combined capital on the political action of the Government was attracting so much attention. Yet the moment the election is over the scheme is renewed and every nerve will be strained to secure its passage. We trust that it will be opposed strenuously by every parliamentary device, and it will be if the Democrats have not utterly lost all respect for the vital principles for which they once contended.

With the exception of this scheme, the time of Congress at the short session will be devoted to the appropriation bills, the Army bill, and the bill for the reduction of the internal revenue taxes, all of which will doubtless be acted on. This will require unusual activity on the part of the majority, but the programme seems to have been pretty firmly arranged, and will probably be carried out unless it is changed by recommendations from the President, which is not likely.

REFORM IN THE SCHOOLS.

Probably no part of the plan of the Charter Revision Commission will have to face more determined opposition than that relating to the changes in the school system, but there is none more important and, on the whole, more sound and practical.

The particular evils which compelled the revision of the charter have been the lack of concentrated responsibility anywhere and a corresponding distribution of the opportunity and right to muddle. These are the things that the commission has tried to remedy in the local Legislature, in the police force, in the direction of public works, and in the office of the Chief Executive. The commission has made an intelligent effort to remedy these evils and provide against their recurrence in all these branches of the City Government. It has made the same effort in the school system, and it was needed there quite as much, though there was not the same scandal to attract attention to it as in the other departments.

The charter which it is now proposed to amend made some decided improvements on the old methods. But when it came to organizing a system for all the component boroughs of the greater city the authors of the charter hesitated, and finally yielded to the pressure of the local interests and prejudices which would have been affected by a thorough and efficient plan. The actual result was to deprive the local boards of the responsibility and strength previously possessed by them, without conferring adequate power and responsibility on any central board. And this error, which was a radical one as to the boards, was carried to a greater extent with still more unsatisfactory results in the department of inspection, supervision, and regulation of the teaching force, and in the administration of instruction generally. The schools of the city for the past three years have been in a state of confusion that has rendered the best work impossible, and that would have proved disastrous had it not been for the large number of devoted and unselfish men and women who have labored unceasingly to make the best of the unfortunate conditions. Even with this conservative force in constant operation, there has been much mischief done, while the plans for the advance so sorely needed—for the schools of New York are far below the level that has elsewhere been obtained—has practically been blocked.

The Charter Revision Commission now proposes, within certain limits imposed by the varying conditions in the different boroughs, to put the business administration of the schools in the hands of one board of forty-six members, appointed by the Mayor, and the educational administration in the hands of the City Superintendent and six Assistant Superintendents, subject to the approval of the Central Board. The immediate supervision of the schools will be allotted to fifteen District Superintendents, while the city will be divided into forty-six school districts, in each of which there will be a board consisting of five members appointed by the Borough President, with a member of the Central Board as Chairman, and a District Superintendent, to attend to the strictly local needs of the schools.

The efficiency of this plan is, in our judgment, secured by the sound and business-like principle that it seeks to apply. If the appointments to the Board of Education are made with care and an honest intention to get competent men, it will be a representative legislative body, not too large for harmonious action, and adapted to intelligent study and wise determination of the questions with which it will have to deal. Its powers will be great enough to awaken a sense of responsibility for their use. The circumstances and requirements of the various localities can be known through the members of the Central Board and through the district boards, in which each one of them will sit. The Central Board will have the aid and advice of the City Superintendent in all the work assigned to it. At the same time the Superintendent, with his assistants, will have what he now entirely lacks, adequate powers of inspection, supervision, and regulation of the schools. While the ultimate authority rests in the Board of Education, as is necessary, the general educational policy of the city will be determined largely by the responsible Superintendent, and carried out by him. It is, we repeat, a sound and practical plan.

THE GRAND CENTRAL.

Without doubt it is discouraging for the officers of the Grand Central Station corporation to be greeted with a general chorus of execration just as they are bringing toward completion improvements of which the total cost is stated at two millions and a half. The condition which gives rise to some of these complaints, as, for instance, to those about the handling of baggage, is doubtless temporary, and one of the incidents of undertaking to use premises while they are undergoing transformation. It is evident to whoever has had the opportunity to inspect the alterations made and projected, that, when these are completed, the handling of baggage will be far more expeditiously and unobtrusively done than it has ever been before. Nor, indeed, is there any fault to be fairly found with what has been done, except that it was time and money lost to attempt to accommodate the increased traffic of the station upon the space available. Although the improvements were projected, and the contracts closed, upon the basis of the unprecedentedly heavy traffic of 1898, it is already seen that those calculations have been far transcended by the increase of business.

Mr. HALL, the President of the New Haven Road, is quoted as saying that the local and suburban traffic, which has so far outgrown the accommodations of the Grand Central that the remodeled and improved Grand Central cannot accommodate it, must be removed to the other side of the Harlem, where ground for it can still be had at comparatively moderate prices, and that the only alternative to this is the acquisition of more land adjoining the present cramped yard of the Grand Central at an immense cost. The cost would render the latter course out of the question. The "life" of a station is estimated by railroad men at twenty-five years, and the Grand Central has long exceeded this limit. Such experience as has already been had indicates that the traffic which it has purported to accommodate must henceforth be divided, and that it must be only one of two or more main stations.

It does not follow that the money spent upon the improvements has been wasted. If the station be retained for the through traffic only, that traffic, there is reason to believe, will soon grow to require all its accommodation. It is noteworthy, that none of the technical authorities seems to regard the restriction of the actual tunnel to four tracks as very important. With the "third rail," or some other feasible mode of electric traction, the transit through the tunnel will lose most of its terrors, and, for other than suburban traffic, the station may continue for yet many years to deserve its name of "Grand Central." An able technical staff will doubtless continue to struggle with, and succeed in solving, the minor problems that remain. But the experience already had seems to point to the conclusion that the Grand Central Station and "yard," no matter how much improved within the limits available, cannot now continue to do the work they were planned to do thirty years ago, and that the improvements cannot, therefore, solve the major and real problem. If that be so, the part of wisdom seems to be to recognize the failure at the earliest moment, and to make other arrangements while they can still be made at a not prohibitive cost.

MR. KRUEGER'S "TRIUMPHAL" PROGRESS.

Now that Mr. KRUEGER has passed from French territory, and the relations between the Quai d'Orsay and Downing Street have apparently undergone no change, and the French Government morally and physically is stronger than at any time during the Loubet administration, the remarkable demonstrations inspired by the venerable burgher appear something in the light of a paradox. In spontaneity, sincerity, and pictorial effects they undoubtedly exceeded the most ardent desires of their early promoters. Yet they accomplished nothing—nothing for the Boer cause, nothing for the Anglophobes, and nothing for the internal enemies of France. Therein lies more credit to the French Government than appears on the surface.

The gracious, even sympathetic, way in which the members of the Government collectively and individually received Mr. KRUEGER, practically reposed his case in the hands of the people and their representatives in the Chambers, at the same time it spoiled the schemes of the Nationalists and their anti-British brethren, who became demoralized and quickly lost their identity in the general enthusiasm. The French Government has emerged triumphantly from a very trying ordeal in which there was not a single false move made by its members, and in which every point that might have been attacked gave the appearance of great reserve strength. At the same time, the wisdom of the British Government in not formally notifying France that the Transvaal had ceased to exist is now beyond question.

According to certain papers of Rome and Vienna, grave apprehension was felt in European Chancelleries over the outcome of the French visit. In a word, it was feared that just what did not happen would happen, and that the French Government would be unequal to deal with the irreconcilable elements. And it may be that the German Government was fearful of submitting the empire to the same test which France actually invited. The mistakes of the irreconcilables in the latter country might not have been repeated by those in Germany. Nothing would be gained by submitting this to an experiment. The German Government, which does not exist by the will of the people, had no necessity, as had the French Government, to thrust itself deliberately into the fire in order to ascertain the exact temper of its steel.

THE DECLINE OF NATURAL GAS.

Data gathered and compiled for the 1900 report of the United States Geological Survey show that, while still a factor of local importance in a few industries, and a domestic convenience wherever available, natural gas is giving out. The amount utilized in 1899 is estimated at about 108,000,000,000 cubic feet. In calorific value this was equivalent to about 4,062,628 tons of coal. To maintain this supply longer than another year or two will involve opening new fields and extending, shifting, and enlarging thousands of miles of piping. There has been a necessary increase in the charge to consumers, owing to diminished pressure and the necessity for pumping the gas through long lines. Such increase tends to check its consumption for industrial purposes. With every advance beyond the very low price at which it was originally sold, a good many large consumers returned to coal, and found a substantial economy in doing so.

During the past two or three years the failure of the natural gas supply has been very rapid. In the Ohio field, once famous for its "roarers," and which gave gas under an initial pressure of from 450 to 480 pounds per square inch, the gas now has no initial pressure, and compression is necessary to its distribution. In the Indiana field it is estimated by experts that one-half the total supply has already been exhausted. The pressure at the wells was formerly an average of 325 pounds. Very few now deliver gas with a pressure of 160 pounds, and as a pressure of 100 pounds is needed to hold back the salt water with which the gas-bearing strata are saturated, it follows that when further weakened by continued blowing off, the wells will begin to fill up and the flow cease. About 66 per cent. of the gas in the ground has been exhausted, and of that which carries a pressure less than 100 pounds, comparatively little is likely to be available. The reckless waste permitted when the supply was deemed inexhaustible is now much regretted, but in such a case ex post facto wisdom does not greatly profit those who have it.

In Pennsylvania and West Virginia the gas areas are separated by impervious partitions, so to speak. For this reason local gas pressures are due to local conditions, and exhausting one area does not mean the exhaustion of all, as in Ohio and Indiana. At an average valuation of 18½ cents per thousand, the value of the 1899 product of the several States yielding natural gas was as follows: Indiana, $6,680,370; Pennsylvania, $8,337,210; West Virginia, $2,335,864; Ohio, $1,866,271; Kansas, $282,392; New York, $294,593; Kentucky, $125,745; California, $86,891. The average for Colorado, Missouri, Illinois, South Dakota, and Texas was about $3,000. The extent of the capital investment in the natural gas business, while not calculable from any data at hand, may be judged from the fact that it maintains nearly 19,000 miles of distributing mains, up to 36 inches diameter.

As compared with coal, it was never a cheap fuel, and at its present average price it cannot be used with economy in any operation for which coal is available. Natural gas in complete combustion gives off 1,053,274 heat units per 1,000 cubic feet. A pound of bituminous coal of average quality will liberate in complete combustion about 14,000 heat units. We may assume, therefore, that 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas are theoretically equal in calorific value to about 75 pounds of coal. At $2.50 per net ton, which is considerably more than the average price of bituminous coal where it comes into competition with natural gas, it costs one-eighth of a cent per pound. Consequently the coal to equal 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas is worth less than 10 cents. In practice, however, natural gas has not maintained in competition with coal its theoretical comparative value. Tests made at Pittsburg under perfectly fair conditions showed that, as compared with coal at $2.50 per ton, natural gas in steam evaporation was worth only 6.8 cents per thousand. At the present average price of 18½ cents per thousand it is about on a parity with bituminous coal at $5 per ton, or, say, twice the present average cost of the best steam coal in the natural gas district.

The natural gas development was a picturesque incident in the industrial history of this country, but it did not accomplish a revolution in manufacturing, nor did the districts supplied with it prosper according to their expectation. It has, on the whole, had more interest for the tourist than for the consumer, and when it is gone the return to coal will not be attended with any shock to the business interests of the communities using it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

—In discussing the benefits to follow the substitution of electricity for steam as the motive power on the elevated railways of this city, The Electrical Review prophesies that even the excellent equipment now in course of installation will prove entirely inadequate before the underground road is completed. "Even with electricity," it adds, "the capacity of the elevated system, as it stands at present, cannot be increased more than about 50 per cent." The average New Yorker, instead of finding cause for discouragement in that "not more than 50 per cent.," is likely to rejoice at finding expert opinion justifying hope of an improvement so material. It is easy enough to see how the electric motors will add to the comfort, or, rather, decrease the discomforts, of travel on the elevated roads by getting rid of cinders and noxious gases, but it is not obvious how the number of cars and the speed of their motion—the "facilities," that is—are to be made greater by half than they are now. Improvement there will be, doubtless, for the electrically moved trains can be longer by a car without covering much more track space than do those now in use; presumably they can be started and stopped more quickly, and they will have a higher potential speed, which means that they will run faster when the way is clear. But when will the way be clear? At the hours of morning and evening when traffic is at present slow the trouble arises, not from the inability of the locomotives to pull their loads, but from the crowding of the line with trains and the consequent necessity for occasional stops between stations and for frequent diminutions of speed. If The Electrical Review is right about its 50 per cent., we will all be agreeably disappointed. Fifty per cent. is a good deal, and if attained it would mean a very appreciable betterment of urban life. Everybody knows, however, that the Manhattan Company loves the sight of crowded cars, and whatever its facilities may be in the future, we never expect to see it running trains in which every passenger is sitting down.

—Instead of bewailing the lack of an "ideal" newspaper, The Churchman grieves over the fact that even the worst of the papers now in existence are ideal in the sense that they satisfy their readers by giving them exactly what they desire. How, it asks, is a newspaper which is independent of advertisers and subscribers to do any good to people who do not want to read it? "The great mass of readers do not want, and never have wanted, the news of the world," declares this surprisingly cynical writer. "The novel is too long for them, the short story is too long. They want snippets of sensation. The place to begin reform is in the readers. They must be made to want something else. This can be done directly by education, indirectly by the object lessons of good government and good citizenship. But it will hardly be done without the co-operation of the newspapers themselves. They cannot preach, but they can guide effectively if they will to better things." Then follows a sentence of direct interest to ourselves, if we mistake not—"At least one New York journal has achieved a great and deserved success, pecuniary and moral, in these last years by assuming that people who wanted a penny paper wanted also a clean paper." There is a slight discrepancy between this and what precedes it, but it would be ungrateful to dwell upon that point. In concluding its remarks, The Churchman says: "We have not much faith in any journalism that does not pay its way. We do not believe that an endowed journal would be less free from pecuniary influences than a journal that depends to some degree on its advertisements. Are the endowed universities and seminaries freer than those that depend not on patrons but on patronage?" Common sense suggests but one answer to that question. Endowments and independence do not go together anywhere.

—Historians who deal only with the happenings of times well past do not avoid mistakes, perhaps, but they do escape troubles of the kind that have befallen the author of a history of Kansas, which the school children of that State are now studying. This book follows the course of events close up to yesterday, and therefore it has much to say about the heroic deeds of the Twentieth Kansas Regiment in the Philippines. Among other eloquent passages is one telling how Col. FREDERIC FUNSTON swam the Marilao River under a heavy fire. Now, it so happens that the truth of that tale is vehemently denied by some of the men who certainly ought to know just what took place, and one of these men, Capt. E. J. HARDY, has made a formal protest to the Chairman of the Kansas Textbook Board against what he calls the misleading of the Kansas children. For Capt. HARDY solemnly declares that it was not FUNSTON who swam the Marilao, but himself and two privates, HUNTSMAN and WILLEY by name, who made the perilous crossing, and that their commander did not reach the other side until they went back with a boat and got him, after the fighting was all over. He does not intimate that the Colonel staid behind because he was afraid; the fact is, he declares, that the Colonel couldn't swim, and said so at the time. A very human touch appears in the letter of protest. "I have a boy of my own," writes Capt. HARDY, "and I shall tell him as other old soldiers do of my life as a soldier in the Philippines, and I propose to be able to tell my boy that it was not Col. FUNSTON, but HUNTSMAN, WILLEY, and I who swam the Marilao River, and I do not intend that any history published under the auspices of the State of Kansas shall give the credit to another man, and tell my boy that his father is a liar, if I can help it." The State Superintendent of Schools has promised to have the matter investigated, and to straighten things out in the next edition of the history. Incidentally, it may be stated that Capt. HARDY and Gen. FUNSTON once had a fierce and prolonged quarrel because the superior officer insisted that another man deserved promotion more than Capt. HARDY did. This may or may not have something to do with the vivacity of the present controversy.

—There is no particular reason why the French Senator, FABRE, should not have given a copy of his "Life of Washington" to Mr. KRUEGER, but it is a rather notable fact that the inscription in the gift avoids drawing a comparison between the Boer statesman and WASHINGTON, but is content with likening him to FRANKLIN. To both, the Senator wrote: "France has given the same enthusiastic welcome, regretting that she has been unable up to the present time to co-operate in the foundation of the United States of South Africa as she co-operated in the foundation of the United States of America." The inscription does state that Mr. KRUEGER "recalls" WASHINGTON, but that point is passed over quickly and lightly, in uneasy consciousness, evidently that the recalling is due only to the dissimilarities between the two. WASHINGTON staid at home and led the fighting. He intrusted appeals for foreign aid to others, and it is not obviously to Mr. KRUEGER's credit that he is far from the scene of danger, listening to the cheers of the foes of his foes, themselves as safe from harm as he. To be sure, he is an old man, but he seems to be hale enough, and Lord ROBERTS, too, is not exactly a boy. FRANKLIN did his full and only duty in going to France, for, unlike Mr. KRUEGER, he had never shown any talent for war, while he had much reason for sharing the confidence of his countrymen in his abilities as a diplomat. Mr. KRUEGER accepts the rôle of the man with a grievance, which is never a very dignified one, and he attempts to make capital by charging with the maltreatment of women the enemy at whose mercy he has voluntarily left his own wife. Either he is a most curious sort of a husband, or else he knows that his own charges are nonsense. There is no escape from that alternative, and a race so intensely logical as the French ought to be the first to see the dilemma he has created for himself.

GENERAL NOTES.

A man with a gun in the woods near Jackson, Mich., on Sunday morning last saw a big American eagle, "the first seen in that neighborhood for many years," and promptly shot it. He is very proud of his achievement after the manner of inconsiderate "sportsmen," and brags that the bird measured 6 feet 6 inches from tip to tip. The rarer the bird the prouder seems the amateur gunner at having shot it.

The California fruit growers are to hold their annual four days' convention in San Francisco, beginning Dec. 4. It is held under the patronage of the State Board of Horticulture, the attendance is expected to be large, and one great object desired to be attained is an improved and expedited service for fruit shipments to the Eastern States.

At the November election the people of Indiana cast 814,000 votes in favor of the two proposed amendments to their State Constitution, but the total vote for President at the same election was 664,094, and Gov. Mount has decided that both amendments have failed because the vote upon them was less than half the total vote. From his decision, it is said, there is no appeal.

AS TO MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If municipal ownership of public utilities—street railways, for instance—is such a bad scheme, how do you explain inclosed from a recent London paper?

Since the London County Council has taken over the tramways in South London, it has arranged to give one day's rest in seven to every person employed, and has established a sixty hours' week. It has improved the service, extended the system of halfpenny fares, and at the same time has earned £42,000 to go toward the relief of the ratepayers.

This refers to one section of London only. Two hundred thousand dollars profit! The reports for the whole city are I believe just as favorable. — the last Mayoralty election all three parties pronounced for municipal ownership. Do you expect us to travel backward?

APATHY IN THE CHURCHES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A clergyman, after prolonged observation and study, has given in The Boston Transcript his reasons why people go to church in much fewer numbers than in former years. My observations in Boston, New York, and other cities, East and West, have led me to a different conclusion, for the churches attended have been uniformly well filled, often crowded, and the preaching helpful, inspiring, up to date, and fresh as an after-dinner speech. But on every hand there is apathy. It is difficult to get men to take responsible positions in churches or Bible schools or do church work. As one religious journal expresses it, men need to be "almost dragooned into service," and preachers everywhere lament apathy and cry, What can we do? Why is this? With churches filled by intelligent worshippers, and with an army of noble preachers, why should there be apathy?

It has occurred to a layman that apathy in our churches may be due to a destructive invasion that has been made in doctrines, which, over a long period of time, have been deemed fundamental. Regard a single instance. It was only the other day that theological schools and preachers taught that our sinful nature is a legacy of Adam. This was taught to be as fundamental as recovery through Christ or His resurrection. No minister who denied the doctrine could have been admitted into an orthodox pulpit. No doctrine was more fundamental than the fall of Adam. Now we are asked to abandon it, and word comes from an advanced thinker of an orthodox theological seminary that our Lord had no pre-existence. This appears to be logical enough, for if man has not fallen, why should man need a Saviour? But laymen ask, What next?

Is it any wonder that laymen lose heart and begin to doubt the dictum of the preacher, and to question if sin, after all, be not merely an arrest of development? Who knows? The preacher? Only the other day he assured us that sin is an inheritance of Adam. Is the dictum of to-day any more certain than his dictum of yesterday? The preacher has made laymen question, has raised doubts which the preacher is unable to set aside, and the atmosphere of doubt is hardly the atmosphere of zeal and self-sacrificing toil. Hence laymen are not merely apathetic and evade calls of duty, but are silent and sad and know not what to believe or what to do.

We do not hear of apathy among Catholic churches or of waning attendance on the part of Catholics. Why? The Catholic thinks the doctrines of his Church are worthy of belief, has unhesitating faith in them, hence his unswerving fidelity and matchless zeal.

Laymen have not given up the Church or the Bible. They know that the Bible has made large contributions to industry and thrift and led intelligence to sit by the fireside; that it has elevated woman, created and fostered the home; that no civilization has been so worn out as to be able to neutralize its influence; that always and everywhere it has gone the Bible has made for the well-being of mankind; that no book or set of books can take its place, and that one who takes the Bible for his guide is not likely to come to much harm. But theologians have made it a book of mistakes and delusions till we wonder whether, with all its beneficent influence, it is any more inspired than "Paradise Lost."

Let preachers give laymen something to stand on, a sure foothold, if they would change our spirit of apathy into a spirit of puissant zeal. PILGRIM.

Choice of a Mayoralty Candidate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is, I believe, unquestionable that in this city there is a sufficiently large number of respectable and law-abiding citizens honestly desirous of a radical change in the now feloniously inspired Municipal Government and Police Department who by their votes one year hence can effect this result.

I beg to suggest that to the Chamber of Commerce be delegated the power of the selection of a candidate for the Mayoralty at the next election, and upon whom all citizens, irrespective of their political affiliations, or any other influences, may unite in casting their votes at that time.

I also beg to suggest that there be an enrollment of the names of all citizens who will thereby pledge their votes to that candidate, so selected, which enrollment shall be held inviolate, and under no circumstances whatever be submitted, to the knowledge of any one other than the Chamber or its sub-committee appointed by it.

This procedure will be of value to the Chamber in strengthening its action, for it will thereby be enabled to obtain comparatively precise knowledge of the voting power supporting its efforts; and, too, it will enable every citizen (even he who may feel constrained to appear to support the powers that be in opposition to his better sentiments) to primarily give his moral support to the good cause.

Better than all else, perhaps, is the fact that such a method of nomination and election will divest the latter of all influence of the more or less Honorable (?) Thomas C. Platt and the dis-Honorable Richard Croker and their pals.

Asks for Reform in Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To-day the public mind is aroused by reform committees. It seems opportune to say a word, which probably goes to the bottom of the whole matter.

Why is it that there is such depravity? Whence comes all this vice and immoral condition, giving political schemers the occasion to bind the public eye? Why are reforms needed every now and then?

Here is the answer to these questions: The training of the young in the public schools is such that we find here the cause. The triangle of education—the mental, moral, and physical sides—has but one side to some degree developed. The moral and physical aspects are shamefully neglected, this neglect being due to the present school curriculum. The schools cannot turn out manly, moral, and dutiful citizens. Children are placed in an atmosphere conducive to immoral training; insubordination cannot be sufficiently punished and corrected. Duty to self and to others can hardly be taught. Immorality is bred because a moral tone is almost impossible of cultivation. To get, then, at the root of the immorality in the city we must start in to correct the young. Make moral beings of them in their places of learning, and little need will there be of correcting them when grown up. It is in the schools that "reform committees" should occupy themselves. A TEACHER.

Danger in Cutting Corns.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The death of Senator Davis should serve as a warning to the public concerning the danger there is in the careless use of the knife in trimming corns on the feet.

Hundreds of deaths occur every year from this cause. This callous formation, when cut through to the live tissues, forms a wound that does not heal, because the blood does not circulate through it. It is through the circulation of the blood that wounds heal.

The danger in cutting corns varies in different persons. In the case of a young person, in whose blood there is but slight poison contamination, a wound will heal much more promptly than in the case of a person of mature years, because, with age comes impoverishment and contaminated blood. The purer the blood, the faster the wound will heal. The newspapers announce that Senator Davis was a heavy smoker. Smoking tends to impairment of the powers of the liver, kidneys, and heart, which organs are principally burdened with the removal of poisons from the blood. The most damage which came to Senator Davis through tobacco seems to have been visited on the kidneys. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link. When the kidneys broke down, an excess of poisons at once accumulated in the blood. The wound in the foot had two difficulties to contend with. The blood circulation to the part was imperfect, owing to the calloused flesh, and such blood as did reach the spot was overcharged with impurities; and, hence, its work of healing and renovation was attended with very imperfect success. Under such conditions blood poisoning was an inevitable consequence. J. M. BISHOP.

His help had not before,
In some fair way, been freely shown—
All that he asked for was his own,
No jot nor tittle more.

I saw him buried yesterday,
There was no weeping crowd—
No mourners lingered on behind—
Ah, but the county still was kind,
It furnished him a shroud.

IN FOREIGN LANDS.

THE ASSEMBLING OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT.—According to London cable advices the new Parliament will assemble to-day for a brief session, the business of which, following the announcement of the chief Ministerial Whip, should be confined exclusively to the question of the supplementary vote required to meet the expenses of the war in South Africa. According to the calculations of the Government, three days will be allotted to the swearing in of members and the election of a Speaker, and on Thursday the speech from the Throne will be read. All parties regard the re-election of William Court Gully, member for Carlisle and Speaker of the late House, as a foregone conclusion. The Government has made it clear that it neither desires debate on the address in reply to the speech from the Throne nor an "unreasonable" amount of speaking in regard to the vote authorizing new expenditures.

The Opposition, however, as shown yesterday by the London correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES, regards this strategy as vain, "because any number of amendments raising all manner of questions can be started no matter were the Queen's speech to consist of the single sentence, 'Gentlemen of the House of Commons, I want money,'" and because there will be made "a determined effort to raise the question of the relations between the Chamberlain family and the public spending departments."

To objections similar to this the Government organs have replied that since it is settled that there will be a prorogation as soon as the financial question is disposed of, the debate on the speech from the Throne can afford little room for controversy, particularly as when Parliament meets for a new session in February, the Queen's speech will then contain the usual statement of Ministerial policy, and will be open to the usual criticism. Moreover, it is pointed out by the supporters of the Government, that to attempt to open an attack on the Government when the only business before the House of Commons will be the voting of money to carry on a war which the nation has approved by a popular vote, would be a dangerous action for the Opposition in its present state.

In his speech at Dundee the other day Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the possible Liberal leader, intimated that every step of the Government to attempt to have the House vote a fresh supply of money would be contested, and that the recent appeal to the country for a confirmation for the policy of the Government had resulted in "a false election," and, moreover, that the Ministry had "reached a depth of infamy and of party malice to which no previous Government has ever sunk." This sentiment which has of late been repeated by other leading Liberals is said to indicate that the Opposition will not wait until the February session in order to make a fight with the aid of the Irish members, but will at the first opportunity attempt to show that the Government has miscalculated its own strength.

A SEQUEL TO THE DREYFUS CASE.—It now seems that while the question of a general amnesty for all persons concerned in the Dreyfus case was being examined by a commission of the French Senate, Commandant Esterhazy, who was then in London, made an exhaustive deposition before the local French Consul General, which, however, was either not communicated to the commission or rejected by it. A recent number of the Independance Belge, published in Brussels, contains the full text of the deposition, which is sworn to by Esterhazy. Copies of the documents to substantiate the declarations are also in some instances presented. The deposition incriminates Col. du Paty de Clam, Col. Henry, Gen. Billot, Gen. Boisdeffre, Gen. Gonse, and Gen. Saussier.

Esterhazy swears that the bordereau, which was the sole legal piece of evidence against Dreyfus, was forged by Esterhazy, and that therefore the examination of it by the handwriting experts was illusory. He practically confirms the conclusions arrived at by the Cour de Cassation as far as they went, admitting the truth of the charges made by this court against him, but declaring that in forging the document he acted in obedience to orders. Moreover, he declares that the alleged letters from the Kaiser containing evidence of Dreyfus's treason were simply fabrications.

M. MILLERAND'S BILL ON STRIKES.—The bill on strikes, which M. Millerand, the French Minister of Commerce, has been preparing, has just been presented to the Chamber of Deputies. It provides that in every factory employing fifty or more men a printed notice shall be posted which shall state whether or not arbitration is one of the conditions of employment. In case of the affirmative—and all State contracts will require this—the men are to elect delegates, who will submit any complaints or demands to the employer, and, failing an agreement, both sides may nominate arbitrators.

If, on the other hand, the employer should refuse to do this, the men may resolve by secret ballot on a strike, but the votes of a majority of those present and of one-third of the men employed are necessary. There must also be a weekly vote to decide on the continuance or cessation of the strike.

ANOTHER CAUSE FOR FRICTION BETWEEN AUSTRIA AND HUNGARY.—The Bosnian railway question, which for some time has been a cause for dispute between the two parts of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, has temporarily been settled by a compromise, which, according to The Neue Freie Presse of Vienna, is a "concession, but no compromise," as "Hungary gets the line from Serajevo to the sandjak of Novi Bazar and the Servian frontier, while Austria, which pays two-thirds of the cost, gets nothing." The surrender, it is reported in Vienna, will be keenly felt all over Austria, where the papers of all political parties, except the Government organs, find explanation in the fact that the Austrian Ministry was inadequate to deal with that of Hungary. In the latter country the Ministry is drawn from the Parliament, and, in order to exist at all, must have at its back a strong majority of the legislators, while in Austria the Cabinet officials are chosen by the sovereign, with no Parliamentary support whatever, and at present represent a country divided against itself, and one in which legislation has practically been impossible for the last three years.

The compromise, however, is said to hold out some hope in Austria that the conditions may be modified, provided that the January elections to Parliament shall make it possible to break the legislative deadlock. The prospect held out is that the line to the Dalmatian frontier, to be begun in three years, is subject to the approval of the Austrian and Hungarian Parliaments, and consequently conditional. It is also true that the extension to the sandjak of Novi Bazar, which is to be begun at once, is also subject to Parliamentary sanction, but, while it is sure of being adopted by the Hungarian Chamber of Deputies, the chance of its even being seriously considered by the Austrian Parliament is said to be extremely doubtful, in which case the Emperor may impose his prerogative.

THE ALLEGED RITUAL MURDER IN BOHEMIA.—The result of the second trial in the case of Leopold Hilsner, at Pisek, in Bohemia, has already been cabled to this country. Hilsner, who was a Jew, was sentenced to death for complicity with some unknown person or persons in the murder of two Christian girls. The first trial, owing to a prejudiced jury and Judge, attributed the crime to ritualistic motives. This verdict was promptly set aside by the Supreme Court, and in the trial recently closed the officials who had worked up the case and the persons who had been identified with the prosecution in the first trial were severely rebuked by the Public Prosecutor, and a rider was attached to the second verdict which declared that the well-substantiated opinion of the Bohemian medical faculty, together with the absence of all evidence of a relevant and trustworthy character to weaken its effect, left no doubt in any unbiased mind that the motive of the murder could not have been to obtain possession of Christian blood.

The Public Prosecutor, in closing his address, said: "It is impossible to make any positive assertion as to why the murder was committed. Some persons, however, have thoughtlessly, and others intentionally, set rumors in circulation respecting that motive which it is now, unfortunately, impossible to convince the masses were entirely false. But I hold that the motive was not the one which passed from mouth to mouth shortly after the murder—that is to say, the employment of Christian blood by the Jews for ritual purposes."

It is said that Dr. Baxa, counsel for the mother of one of the victims, who, in his various capacities of lawyer, anti-Semitic agitator, and Radical journalist, contributed chiefly to the circulation of the ritual murder theory in connection with the case, will be proceeded against by the Government on the charge of attempting to incite sedition.

PORTO RICANS IMPROVING

Commissioner Degetau Arrives and Describes Present Conditions.

GREATER FREEDOM WELCOMED

Those Who Do Not Understand American Government Alone Suspicious —Question of the Tariff.

Frederic Degetau, first Commissioner to the American Congress elected by the people of Porto Rico, is at the Hotel Imperial. While an accomplished linguist, Mr. Degetau speaks English with less fluency than some other tongues. Born at Ponce he has traveled extensively, and has an intimate knowledge of different forms of government. He has a decided predilection for the American system.

"I am a great admirer of the United States," he said to a NEW YORK TIMES reporter last night. "While I have what might be termed a crude idea of your form of government, I have learned enough of it to satisfy me that it is about as good as any that can be arranged."

"Are the people of Porto Rico satisfied with the administration given by this Government?" the reporter asked.

"Yes and no," Mr. Degetau replied. "You see, they don't exactly understand what is going on, and many of them are suspicious, but the more intelligent Porto Ricans are perfectly satisfied. Planters and merchants have already recognized the benefits they have derived since Porto Rico became an American possession, and the lower classes will soon realize it."

"What do the Porto Ricans want?"

"Well," answered Mr. Degetau, "they want what you call a territorial form of government. That is, they want the same privileges that you accord to the people of Arizona, Indian Territory, Oklahoma, and other Territories. But we are doing very well in Porto Rico, and Americans feel at home there."

"Do the people prefer American to Spanish rule?"

"Most assuredly," rejoined Mr. Degetau, "and the people are rapidly shaping themselves to American lines. Since Porto Rico came under the flag of the United States there has been a great improvement in business. There is more confidence. The sugar trade has improved, but there has been a decrease in the coffee trade. That is due to the effects of the hurricanes, and not to a change from Spanish to American sovereignty."

"What is the outlook for Porto Rico?"

"Excellent. Under American rule Porto Rico is bound to become very wealthy. There are great opportunities in the fruit business—oranges, lemons, bananas, &c.—and other branches of agriculture. All of these will be fostered, and the land owner is certain to be benefited."

"How do the tariff provisions enacted by the United States Government affect the Porto Ricans?"

"Opinions differ on that point. Some think them bad; others believe them good. I am one of the latter. But one thing is certain—that the pay of the wage-earners has increased. Where the tellers were receiving from 30 to 37 cents per day they are now getting from 53 to 60 cents. Some say that this is due to the difference in the exchange rates of money under the American system, while others attribute it to the tariff system. That is a matter of opinion."

At this juncture Mr. Degetau turned to an Englishman from Porto Rico, who did not want his name used, but who represents the second largest sugar industry on the island, and remarked:

"My friend here does not like the tariff duties, but I see no fault to find with them."

"As I understand it the tariff duties levied in Porto Rico are returned to the Island Government for general improvements?"

"That is true; but as these are collected on one or two industries, the people engaged in these think there should be a general tax on the whole people."

"But you say you notice an improvement in the condition of the people under American rule?"

"Most assuredly. Especially is this noticeable among the children. Under the management of Mr. Brumbraugh, the Commissioner of Education, the children of Porto Rico are making rapid advancement. There is no mistake that there is a rapidly growing belief in Porto Rico that the American form of government is a great improvement. There is more freedom on the island, and the people are quick to recognize it. I am very hopeful of the outcome."

Mr. Degetau will go to Washington early this week, and will spend the greater part of the next two years in this country.

It will be in aid of the widow and children of "Joe" Ott, who at the time of his death was engaged as leading comedian at the New York. Mr. Ott was thought to be wealthy, but since his death it has been learned that he left his wife and children almost in destitute circumstances. The White Rats of America were the first to respond, the services of all members in New York being offered. They also sent $1,000, the first financial contribution. This was followed by a thousand-dollar check from the Sire Brothers, and checks from Olga Nethersole, James J. Hitherto the provincial organizations have never gone outside their respective provinces. From this time the guards can be sent to any part of the island to meet any emergency. The plan is to concentrate as many as possible in the vicinity of the sugar estates during the grinding season.

BOY CAPTURED A FILIPINO.

Started Into the Interior on a Trip, but Was Brought Back.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Three little regimental mascots were involuntarily passengers from Manila on the transport Thomas. They were Fred Seagelstell, aged thirteen years, from Cleveland, who went out with the Thirteenth Infantry; John Wolfling, aged nine years, of Buffalo, and Sam Carter, a colored boy, who claims the South as his home.

Seagelstell distinguished himself in the Philippines by capturing a Filipino soldier and by being himself captured before he could land the Filipino within the American lines. While scouting around on his own account at Lipa the little fellow came upon a stray Filipino, whom he took into custody at the point of a gun. He was on his way to camp with his prisoner when a band of Filipinos took him in. Beyond relieving him of his shoes and hat, the Filipinos treated him kindly, and a few days later turned him over to the Americans.

Wolfling and Seagelstell together planned to go into the interior, regardless of war and, after procuring a team of horses, had started on their trip, when the American officers took them in charge at Calamba and sent them back to Manila.

BODY HURRIED TO MORGUE.

Mrs. Gannon Says Hospital's Attendants Wanted to Name the Undertaker.

When John Gannon of 31 West One Hundred and Thirty-second Street died at Harlem Hospital last Wednesday, where he had been taken two hours before ill with pneumonia, his wife left his bedside and started for the street. In the hall an attendant met her and offered the services of an undertaker. She declined; in the lower hall a second attendant was similarly solicitous, and a third met the woman on the stoop, proffering the services of an undertaker.

Mrs. Gannon declined in each case, and engaged James Hynes of 318 Willis Avenue. When Hynes went to the hospital for the body on Thursday he was informed that it had been sent to Bellevue Morgue. Hynes reported the matter to Coroner O'Hanlon, who said that the case had been misrepresented to him. He gave a permit for the release of the body from the Morgue, but refused a burial permit until he had seen Mrs. Gannon, who succeeded in having the body brought away on Saturday morning, but it was late, that night before she was able to find Coroner O'Hanlon and secure a permit for the burial, which took place yesterday.

SALOON WRECKED, MAN SHOT.

Italian Probably Fatally Wounded in a Fierce Battle.

Louis Cramanora, an Italian laborer, of 3,172 Jerome Avenue, was shot twice last night in the saloon of Stephano Caporomo, at Van Courtlandt Avenue and Jerome Avenue. The wounds are very serious, and it is thought the man will not live.

Cramanora is not liked by the men who frequent the saloon. These men are employed on the Jerome Park Reservoir, and they claim that Cramanora tells things they say about the foremen and other superintendents. There were hot words last night as soon as Cramanora entered the saloon. Policeman Sullivan heard shots and noises of a hard fight in the place, and he rushed over, but when he got there he could see no one.

The saloon had been wrecked. All the glassware in the place was broken, the chairs and tables were overturned and smashed, the bar was overturned, and bottles of all descriptions were lying all over the floor, some broken. Under a table Sullivan found Cramonora, with two bullet wounds in his abdomen. The man was unconscious. He was sent to the Fordham Hospital, while several detectives started out to find who his assailants were. Early this morning Antonio Zurgo of 3,169 Jerome Avenue was arrested by the Bronx Park police. He had a bad razor slash in the back, and had to be sent to Fordham Hospital.

FIGHTING AGED MAN'S WILL.

Mr. Rutan's Granddaughter Alleges Undue Influence by His Young Wife.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 2.—Mrs. Minnie Ackerman, granddaughter of Abram R. Rutan, will appeal from the filing of the will of her grandfather, and will claim undue influence upon the part of her step-grandmother. Mrs. Ackerman tried to file objection to the filing of the will, but the action was taken too late, and Surrogate King held the will had been proved. Her redress is now in the Orphans' Court, and it is intended by her counsel to file notice of appeal from the decision of the Surrogate when the Court next sits. In the will Mrs. Ackerman is ignored.

Mr. Rutan was seventy-six years of age at the time of his death. When sixty-two years old Mr. Rutan, despite opposition on the part of his family, married a young woman. By her he has one son, who is still a small boy. It is to him that the bulk of the estate is left. The boy's portion is in trust, the mother being trustee.

Besides her widow's portion the mother is made residuary legatee. After Mr. Rutan's remarriage he and his children and their children were never fully reconciled. Mr. Rutan in his will says that he left the children of his son out of his last testament because he had supported them for many years, and that one of them was now married and comfortably well off while the other was old enough to care for herself. He also says in his will that his second wife soothed his declining years, administered the affairs of his household well, and would need the fortune to support herself and their son.

FOUGHT WATER FOR LIFE

The Bolivia's Crew Had to Man the Pumps Day and Night.

Rescued from Their Sinking Bark by the Steamship Olbers—Surprise Meeting at Norwegian Home.

The Belgian steamship Olbers, Capt. Brathwaite, which arrived from Brazilian ports yesterday, brought into port the shipwrecked crew of the Norwegian bark Bolivia—sixteen men, among them Capt. Olaf Haakonsen, the commander of the ill-fated craft. They had been rescued about 200 miles northeast of Bermuda early Thanksgiving morning.

For several days every man aboard the Norwegian vessel had been struggling night and day, pumping water from her hold, which, pouring through a large leak in her bottom, steadily gained on them despite their efforts, and Capt. Haakonsen soon saw that their only hope lay in a rescue by some passing vessel. Accordingly calling his men on deck, he informed them of their peril, and ordered the signal of distress, two red lights, placed in the mizzen rigging. Early the following morning the Olbers sighted the signal and showing the blue light, which on the sea announces the approach of the rescuer, headed for the sinking bark, which was about two miles distant. The work of rescue occupied nearly two hours, after which the Bolivia was left to her fate. On their arrival yesterday the rescued crew were taken in charge by the Scandinavian Sailors' Temporary Home, 172 Carroll Street, Brooklyn. This morning the Swedish Consul General will be asked to furnish them transportation to their home in Tonsberg, Swenden, which was the hailing port of the Bolivia.

Capt. Haakonsen was seen at the home yesterday afternoon and recounted his perilous experiences.

"The Bolivia," he said, "which was a vessel of 883 tons, built in Nova Scotia in 1873, left Darien, Ga., on the 20th of November for Hull with a cargo of lumber. When we set sail the ship was tight and in good shape. Until the 24th we had good weather, but then early in the morning a stiff wind from the southeast sprang up. It increased in strength all day until it blew at a furious rate. Seas swept over the deck and the ship rolled and pitched heavily. About 8 A. M. on the 25th the leak was discovered. It was in the lower hold, near the bow port. A windmill pump was set to work, and we experienced no trouble in keeping the water out on that day. About 4 o'clock on the morning of the 26th the wind shifted to west-southwest. Tremendous seas swept over us, tossing the ship about at will, and widening the leak. Then we started four men to work on the midship pump. At this time the Bolivia was running under her lower topsails only.

"The wind slightly abated the following day, and the foresails were set. The water was still pouring in the hold, but the pumps seemed to keep pace with it. The 28th the weather continued to improve, and the upper topsails were set, but we sprang another leak that afternoon which investigation proved to be in the stem. A crew was set to work cutting away the timber so as to get at it, but at 10:30 o'clock when we got right down to the skin we found the water pouring in at a terrific rate between the timbers where we couldn't get at it. Calling the men on deck, and informing them of the turn matters had taken, I put the customary questions as to what was best to be done. We decided to try and make port, and headed for Bermuda 240 miles east-northeast of us. At 5 o'clock the water was coming in at the rate of five and a half inches every fifteen minutes, and we saw that it would be impossible to make port. We, therefore, set our distress signals, which, early the next morning were seen by the Olbers. Capt. Braithwaite and all on board treated us with the utmost kindness."

When the crew of the Bolivia arrived at the Scandinavian Home yesterday, they were surprised to find that the Superintendent, Mr. Jacobsen, was a native of Tonsberg, and that nearly all of them knew him. Mr. Jacobsen was further surprised to find among the crew Lars Larsen, his nephew, who is sixteen years old.

Two dogs, Moses, a Georgia hound, and Pipp, an Argentine spaniel, belonging to Miss Magda Haakonsen, a sister of Capt. Haakonsen, were also taken off the Bolivia by the Olbers. The Argentine dog was given to the chief steward of the Olbers as a token of appreciation for his kindness. Four turkeys and six chickens, which had been secured in Georgia, for the Christmas dinner in his Norwegian home by the Captain, were left in the abandoned vessel. "But we saved the coon," proudly remarked a big, burly Norwegian seaman, pointing to a full-grown Georgia raccoon.

DEAL IN STREET RAILROADS.

Control of Washington Lines May Be Acquired by Boston Syndicate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Post to-morrow will say that a deal by which the Consolidated Street Railway properties of the Washington Traction Company may pass into the control of the Boston street railway syndicate, represented by Stone and Webster of that city, is under way, and may be consummated Wednesday in New York, when the bondholders of the Washington company will meet the representatives of the Boston people and capitalists interested in the matter, including Jacob Firth, President of the Puget Sound National Bank of Seattle, Washington, and A. W. Tuttle of Savannah, Ga.

Mr. Firth, who has been in consultation in Boston for the past week with Messrs. Stone and Webster, was in Washington today looking over the properties the New York bondholders control, and to-night expressed himself as very much pleased with what he had found. He says that while it is by no means settled that the representatives of the various interests will be able to come to terms, he is in Washington to look into the properties and report to those with whom he is interested.

The officers of the Washington Traction Company here say that they have no knowledge of the proposed deal.

JEALOUS BOARDER HELD.

Accused of Sending Threatening Letters to Landlady and Detective.

On the complaint of Mrs. Mary Curry, a widow thirty-three years old, of 15 Debevoise Place, Brooklyn, Harry N. Ayres, a bookkeeper was arraigned in the Adams Street Police Court yesterday.

It was said that Ayres, who had been renting a room at Mrs. Curry's for two years, had become jealous of a detective who took his meals at the house. Ayres was said to have written threatening letters to both the detective and Mrs. Curry.

Ayres was locked up on Saturday night and in court yesterday pleaded guilty to the charge of violating Section 359 of the Penal Code. He was sent to the Raymond Street Jail pending a further hearing.

Economic Club Holds Aloof.

There was a meeting of the Economic Club at 96 Rivington Street last night, in which the club decided not to co-operate with the organizations fighting vice in the city. The opinion prevailed that the element of politics enters into all present efforts to deal with the question of the eradication of protected vice, and a resolution to appoint a committee to co-operate with the organizations now carrying on the fight was lost.

Test for a Looter.

From The London Telegraph.

There is an unauthorized catechism and proved tests the colonial trooper must pass in, let him be New Zealander, Canadian, Australian, South African, or even a Lumsden's Horse. "Well, my man, what can you carry on your saddle beside you and your equipment?" "Oh, a sack of flour, half a dozen chickens, ducks, geese, or turkeys, a sucking pig two, a small bag of measles, and, at a pinch, half a sack of sugar, Sir!" "Pooh! If you cannot get a piano on as well you cannot class yourself as a looter."

PRESBYTERIAN REVISION.

Details of the Vote—Supplementary Creed Likely to be Adopted.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The committee appointed by the last General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church to consider the revision of the creed of the Church, will meet in Washington, D. C., Tuesday, and Dr. Herrick Johnson of McCormick Theological Seminary, who is the Chairman, will leave Chicago to-morrow to preside.

The vote which Dr. Johnson will present to the committee is as follows: For a revision, 67; for a supplementary creed, 67; for a substitutional creed, 15; for an explanatory statement, 11; for a dismissal of the subject, 45. Besides these there are 40 Presbyteries which have not been heard from, most of them being either in China, India, or Mexico. Dr. Johnson said:

"The popular vote of the Presbyterian Church indicates that some change in our Creed is demanded. Exactly what that change or changes will be I cannot say, but it is probable that the committee will recommend to the next General Assembly that a supplementary Creed be adopted.

"I should say that the new article would be another standard of doctrine in addition to the four great principles now contained in the old creed and authorized and sanctioned by the Presbyterian Church. All the essentials of our faith will probably be contained in this supplement, but put in such a form as to be clear to the popular mind. Some of our creed has been misconstrued, and that is why some Presbyteries have asked for merely an explanatory statement."

PACKING COMPANY ACCUSED.

Bondholders of the International Seek Information from It.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Some of the bondholders of the International Packing Company are seeking through their attorney, Jacob Newman, an investigation into the affairs of the company. A letter was sent to Alfred S. Austrian, attorney for the packing company, yesterday, making an inquiry as to where all the money had gone. It is charged that the concern has speculated on the Board of Trade, using funds which should have been held intact.

Attorney Newman asserts that the company bought $761,000 of the bonds at 20 points above the market.

"The company bought this amount up," said Attorney Newman. "Now, from whom did the company buy these bonds? From the officers of the company and the Directors, or did they give every bondholder a chance?"

The attorney intimated that a favored few had been permitted to unload holdings from which they had received no returns for the last three years.

At a meeting of the shareholders, held Nov. 20, a committee was appointed to look into the affairs of the concern. This committee will make its report at a meeting on Tuesday.

DUEL MAY BE FATAL TO BOTH

Italian After Wounding Another Rides from the Bronx Down Town with Three Stab Wounds.

Policeman McCarthy of the Mulberry Street Station was passing 21 Spring Street late last night when he overheard some Italians talking about a stabbing affray and he walked in. He found Alexander Narge, twenty-five years old, of 41 Carmine Street, in a dying condition with three stab wounds in the back.

The policeman sent to St. Vincent's Hospital for an ambulance, which soon arrived, and when the physician had relieved the man a little he said he had been stabbed by Giovanni di Scapolo, at Morris Avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-second Street. He had got on an elevated road train and ridden down town, and stopped at 21 Spring Street, where his cousin lives. The man was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital.

When the policeman was reporting the case the Sergeant received word to look out for a man who was wanted for a stabbing in the Bronx. The police there had found Di Scapolo in the hallway of 637 Morris Avenue, with two severe stab wounds, one in the back of the neck and the other in the abdomen. The man was in a critical condition, and unconscious. He was hurried off to the Fordham Hospital. He did not revive during the night, and could not tell any story. It was said that he could not recover.

The police of the Mulberry Street Station placed Narge under arrest in the hospital. The police suppose the men had a knife fight with each other on Morris Avenue. They do not understand how Narge could have got down town with the three wounds he received.

BANK DEFAULTERS.

How a Conspiracy Between Two Was Brought to Naught.

From The New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"No system of checks can prevent a dishonest employe from stealing," said a veteran business man and bank Director of this city, "and the best deterrent I know of is an occasional overhauling of accounts by an outside actuary. If all hands feel that this is liable to happen at any moment, they are very apt to keep straight. The strong point about such examinations should be their unexpectedness. I don't believe in the rotation of bookkeepers or other trusted employes as a check on one another. Good men in the same establishment always have an aversion to tale-bearing, and, in nine cases out of ten, they will fail to report little things that would at once excite their suspicion in a lodger kept by a stranger. They don't want to run the risk of making a mistake and securing the everlasting enmity of a fellow-employe. The man who makes the inspection should be brought, if possible from another city.

"That reminds me, by the way, of a remarkable story of collusion which was related to me lately by a National bank examiner of my acquaintance. One day he was going through the usual inspection of affairs at a solid old bank in a Northeastern city, when the cashier suddenly toppled over in an apoplectic fit, and died almost instantly. His cash and accounts were found to be absolutely correct. Some months later the Inspector dropped in to make an examination of another bank only a few doors away, and the cashier promptly slipped out a side entrance and disappeared. It developed that he was short a large amount, and, when subsequently caught a curious story leaked out. It seemed that both cashiers were defaulters, and had been in the habit of helping each other out with cash to 'make good' when the examiner appeared. At the time the first man dropped dead he had about $30,000 of the other bank's money, which he had intended to return next day. The tragedy left his friend in a terrible hole, as he had to shoulder both shortages, and when the examiner next arrived there was nothing to do but run. His statement was confirmed by ample extraneous evidence, but I don't believe it was ever given to the public in all its details."

NIGHTMARE FOR IZAAK WALTON.

If He Were Alive Surely He Would Shudder at Fishing Like This.

From The London Express.

Seven hundred fishermen fished the three miles of river between Richmond and Teddington yesterday. Far as the eye could pierce the mist, the towpath bristled with fishing rods.

It was "the London United Anglers' Annual Monster Competition in aid of the Anglers' Benevolent Society and Convalescent Home funds." There were nearly a thousand entries.

Most of the anglers were Thames men and boys, but others came from all over London and from Brighton. Any one might enter who possessed a fishing rod and a shilling for the entrance fee.

At intervals there was a flapping of silver on the towpath, and a cry of "Steward!" from the triumphant angler. A sunburned committeeman hurried up, and if the fish were eligible registered it.

The fish had to be up to the "Thames standard" of inches. If not, they were put back, and no doubt all thus escaping hurried off sadder and wiser fish to some place where rods were not 200 to the mile.

Jack, pope, minnow, bleak, and eels were "barred." Roach and dace were the chief takes.

No angler might stand within ten yards of another unless by "mutual consent." Each man must use only one rod.

The rain fell straight, and a chill East wind blew, but the jolly fishermen were oblivious to the elements. Only a cyclone would have moved them.

They fished till the twilight fell, and then packed up their rods and flocked to riverside hostelry, where the takes were weighed.

The prizes numbered about 100, including a silver medal for the first prize winner. They ranged from clocks and cigars to "a shade of birds" and a box of fireworks!

This is the monster competition's second year at Richmond. Formerly it was held at Windsor.

PAN-AMERICAN EXHIBITS

Some of the Novel Features Which Will Interest Visitors.

Republic of Chile Makes an Appropriation of $185,000—Maine's Unique Building.

A decree of the Department of Industry and Public Works of Chile issued recently gives notice that Chile will be among the exhibitors at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo. An appropriation of 500,000 pesos, equal to about $185,000, will be provided to pay the expenses of the exhibition. It has been decided to hold a national exhibition in Chile in order to make a collection of the representative Chilean products. A selection will be made from this exhibition, and after it is over the exhibits to be sent to the Pan-American Exposition will be chosen.

The Chilean National Exposition will be opened on Dec. 8, in the Normal School of Agriculture, in Santiago, and will close on Jan. 6, 1901.

An Executive Committee of eleven has been appointed to classify the exhibits at the national exposition and make selections of those to be sent to the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

Another feature at the Pan-American Exposition which is expected to attract considerable attention will be the canned food exhibit. A. Edward Fuller, who has charge of this department, has devised a comprehensive plan of showing details of the canning industry in a new manner.

The process of hermetically sealing fruits to preserve them was discovered by a Frenchman, Nicholas Appert, in 1810.

The exhibits at the exposition will show all the methods of canning foods which have ever been in use, and will also show the progress of the industry in this country. The canning of fruits and vegetables as a business in the United States dates back to 1825. At that time American preserved fruits were sold in South America and the Philippines, and cranberry sauce was sold in India at $1.50 a jar.

The first real impetus that the industry in the United States received was from a polar expedition in which American canned goods were used. The explorers when they returned to civilization unintentionally did some very good advertizing for American canners.

Although the process of canning goods is comparatively simple, a thorough scientific knowledge is necessary. For many years canners have met with large losses apparently without cause. Whole warehouses full of corn have turned sour without any apparent reason. At present, however, the business is conducted with a skill that makes it almost an exact science.

Another striking feature of the exposition will be the publishers' exhibit. A collective exhibit of books and periodicals will be made in the Department of Liberal Arts.

A space sixteen by twenty feet in floor area, facing an aisle and three sides, will be surrounded by cases and be provided with tables in the interior. The shelving in the wall cases will furnish exhibit space for books in any desired number, from single volumes to the whole exhibit of a publishing house. Cases glazed all around will occupy the corners between aisles. Large books and periodicals may find places on the tables, if necessary, in glazed cases. Space above wall cases may be occupied with posters, &c.

Dr. Selim H. Peabody, Superintendent of the Department of Liberal Arts, says that the photographers will be well represented. Small wall space for hanging pictures will be allowed each exhibitor, he says, but there will be so many exhibitors that the photographic department will cover a large area of territory.

Maine will probably be one of the States for which separate buildings will be erected on the exposition grounds. A plan has been proposed to erect one building for all the New England States, but it has met with strong opposition. The State of Maine proposes to erect a building of a design so unique that it is sure to at once attract the attention of every visitor to Buffalo.

The building will be of staff like the other exposition buildings, circular in form, with projecting entrances and surmounted by a dome. Over the first entrance will appear the life-size figure of a moose. Beneath this and inside the pediment will appear an allegorical figure representing the East, and at each side, the arms of the State.

On each side of the main entrance between Ionic columns greups of statuary of proper significance will be placed, and the side porches will have similar ornamentation, a deer replacing the moose on the pediment.

In the middle of the building will be a large tank, with a fountain in the centre. The tank will be filled with large trout from the lakes and streams in Maine. The dome over this tank will be decorated with panels representing typical scenes from the Maine woods.

A wide balcony will run entirely around the building. The spaces between the decorative columns will support what will be filled with special exhibits: Great moose, deer, caribou, and other game will appear at every corner. The dome is to be covered with stained glass. The design for the Maine building is by Harry Cochrane, an architect of Lewiston, Me. It will be built in Lewiston and shipped to Buffalo in sections. It is planned to raise a guarantee fund to defray the expenses of the building and exhibit pending the action of the Maine Legislature, which does not meet until Jan. 1, 1901.

One of the places on the Pan-American Midway, which will attract a good deal of attention, will be the Nuremburg, which is now in process of construction. "Alt Nuremberg," or old Nuremburg, will give visitors a thoroughly realistic picture of mediaeval life in the famous old German town. The street scenes and quaint architecture have been planned with the greatest care. The old Town Hall, the Church of St. Sebald, and other buildings familiar to tourists will be introduced.

This exhibit will have a frontage of 330 feet on the Mall, and will face the Service Building. The symmetrical placing of the various large buildings at the exposition will make it extremely easy for a stranger to find his way about the grounds. A system of connecting courts will be formed, each with its special features. The principal courts are the Court of Fountains and the Plaza, which forms a north and south perpendicular and connects with a transverse court called the Esplenade. Two minor courts open into the Esplanade known as the Court of Cypresses and Court of Lilies.

Special attention is being given to the hydraulic and fountain effects to be shown at the exposition. Each of the courts has its special fountain feature. The Court of Fountains contains a pool covering about two acres, in which are hundreds of darting and sparkling jets. These fountains are in the form of magnificent sculptures in large number. Surrounding the main group of buildings and bordered with a double row of trees and grassy banks is a broad and stately canal more than a mile in length. At certain points this canal forms a part of the court vistas, but has more to do with the rich embellishment of that portion of the grounds outside the main buildings. Lagoons that lose themselves amid lawns and gardens tap the main waterways at various intervals, and at the southern side of the Esplanade broaden into lakes, where have been planted a wonderful variety of water plants to be ready for next year's blossoming. In that part of the great exposition plot known as Delaware Park is a lake half a mile long surrounded by wooded banks that will contribute much to the beauty of the exposition.

MISS GEORGIA CAYVAN ILL.

Actress in a Sanitarium for Nervous Prostration—Mental and Physical Collapse.

Miss Georgia Cayvan, the actress, who for many years was one of the city's most popular players, has been ill for several weeks in the Sanford Hall Sanitarium of Flushing, L. I. She is suffering from nervous prostration. It is said she is on the verge of mental and physical wreck, having become almost totally blind.

Last October, after her health had been declining since an operation undergone in 1895, she became too ill for successful treatment home, and it was necessary to send her to a hospital. Since then she has not rallied either in mind or body, except for a brief interval when her sister came from Massachusetts to visit her the other day. Little hope for her recovery is now entertained. It is said that her once athletic figure is so wasted that she is almost unrecognizable.

In 1892, while Miss Cayvan was appearing in "Squire Kate," at the Lyceum, she began ailing, and her trouble became so serious within the next three years that an operation was imperative. This was successful in a measure, but her health has never been good since. Before the operation she appeared on the stage many times when scarcely able to stand alone, determined not to disappoint her manager or audiences. A trip abroad in 1894 had resulted in only temporary relief, but, although her physicians warned her against work, she insisted on playing in the first ten performances of "A Woman's Silence." On the tenth night her physician peremptorily ordered her to leave the stage.

After the operation she went to Europe again. When she sailed her ill-health had begun to prey on her mind, but on returning a few months later she seemed to have recovered and was in her wonted good spirits. It was then that she decided to become a "star." Backed by a New England millionaire, she toured the country, going south from here, and then appearing in the cities of the Pacific slope. From the first her efforts met with failure, for, although well known in New York, her name had no special attraction for the country. Before she was half across the continent on her return trip the millionaire backer withdrew his support, having already lost thousands of dollars. From her own purse she defrayed the expenses necessary to fulfill the rest of her engagements.

Since the end of that tour Miss Cayvan's health has grown rapidly worse, and only once has she been conspicuously before the public. Then she went before the courts and placed herself on record as the first woman to demand legal exoneration of indiscriminate charges. She was successful in obtaining a complete vindication. Of late she has remained closely at home, seeing only her most intimate friends and absenting herself from the women's clubs of which she had previously been a prominent member.

Miss Cayvan was born in Bath, Me., in 1858. After being graduated with honors from the Boston School of Oratory, she became a reader. Her first part on the stage was in the character of Dolly Dutton in "Hazel Kirke," at the Madison Square Theatre. Then she was for a while in A. M. Palmer's company, returning after that to the Madison Square Theatre, under the management of Daniel Frohman. Later she became the leading woman of the Lyccum Theatre stock company. Both here and in London she has been a favorite. Her travels both across the Atlantic and to the Orient have been wide, and her home is filled with many rare curios collected in various parts of the earth.

COLOMBIAN REBELS ACTIVE.

Capture and Lose Town of Chagres—Other Places Attacked.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 2.—Advices brought to-day from Colon by the Royal Mail steamer Don, Capt. Newton, indicate the continuance of considerable rebel activity in all quarters of Colombia. Last Wednesday a strong force of insurgents captured the town of Chagres, fifteen miles from Colon. Eight hundred Government troops were sent immediately to relieve the town, and sharp fighting followed. The Government forces lost heavily, but the rebels were compelled to retire.

Before the Don left news had reached Colon that the insurgents were attacking Porto Colombia and Sabanilla, and that Government reinforcements had been ordered there.

It was believed at Colon that the insurgents had changed their plan, and would concentrate against Colon instead of Panama, owing to the strict precautions taken by the Government at the latter city. Martial law was being strictly enforced in Colon, and large numbers of people had been imprisoned under suspicion.

The United States gunboat Bancroft and the British second-class cruiser Intrepid were at Colon Friday when the Don left.

LIVELY SPEEDWAY SPORT

A Large Crowd Watched the Fast Brushing.

WAGON SMASHED BY COLLISION

The Bay Pacer Jack Was Seized with a Hemorrhage While Going at Top Speed.

One would have thought the Speedway season was at its height by the number of light-harness horsemen on the stretch yesterday morning. They turned out with one accord bright and early, to enjoy what was probably the last ideal day of the year for brushing. Many old scores between fast steppers were finally settled, and the coming week will see many of the favorites retired until next Spring. The crowd of spectators, which broke all records for 1900, was evidently attracted to the drive by the announcement made on Saturday that the world's champion trotter, The Abbot, (2:03¼,) purchased by John J. Scannell for $26,500 at the "Old Glory" sale, and a number of other equally famous trotters and pacers disposed of during the past week, would be out to give the Speedway stars a brush.

As far as The Abbot was concerned, the crowd was disappointed, for the animal was shipped to Buffalo, but there were a number of other well-known horses out that figured prominently in the sale. Among them was The Monk, (2:08¼,) a seven-year-old brown gelding, by Chimes-Goldfinch, which sold for $1,025, driven by Fred Gerken, owner of the old favorite Baby Berenice, with a mark of 2:26¼. The Monk proved a strong factor in the morning's sport, and made a remarkably good showing, considering the fact that Mr. Gerken had never held the lines over him before.

Much excitement was caused by a bad smash-up that occurred in the stretch near the finish post while the speeding was at its height, and a probably fatal accident was only averted by good horsemanship and the prompt action of Mounted Policeman McKean, whose horse had a large patch of hide stripped from its left hind leg during the mix-up. The accident was caused by a collision between a two-seated surrey and a team of frisky black mares driven by B. Caen and a bay trotter hooked to a pneumatic-tire speeding wagon driven by Trainer Ernest Sommers and owned by L. W. Halbut of 412 West Sixteenth Street. Everybody on the road and upon the sidewalk were interested in a very close brush between Swift, (2:16½,) driven by John R. Cockerill, and the trotter David B., (2:09½,) driven by John W. Cornish. The surrey had passed the finish post, and the entire party was looking back to see the outcome of the heat, paying little or no attention to the team. Coming down the stretch ahead of Swift and David B. was Sommers, with his bay trotter at speed. As he neared the surrey the team suddenly turned, and the next instant there was a crash, and Sommers was thrown out of his rig, while the horse bolted, but did not run far. The wagon broke away from the shafts and rolled completely over on Sommers, who managed to cling to the reins, and was dragged about twenty-five feet by the plunging animal before Mounted Policeman McKean dashed up and headed the animal off just as it was about to bolt, the shafts striking his horse in the left hind leg.

A DRIVER'S FORTUNATE ESCAPE.

Sommers was picked up badly bruised but otherwise unhurt. How he escaped being trampled under the frightened horses' hoofs was a mystery to everybody who witnessed the accident. Each driver blamed the other, but the sympathies of the crowd were with Sommers, for the next time the surrey made a trip down the stretch its occupants were hooted at by the crowd, who called upon the officer to put them off.

Another incident that added to the excitement of the morning occurred to the bay pacer Jack, 2:12½, one of the Speedway favorites owned by Dr. Gill. Jack had been stepped down the stretch a couple of times by Mrs. Gill, who was handling the reins, and was coming down for a third time at speed with an unknown bay pacer, when Jack suddenly stopped short near the finish post, staggered and almost fell. Then he began to bleed at the nostrils, and several spectators ran out and led him to the side of the drive, where it was found he was suffering from a hemorrhage. It was finally checked, and he was taken home in a very weak condition.

The brush which occurred during the smash-up between David B., 2:09½, and Swift, 2:16¾, was won by Swift, but in a second heat David B. had things all his own way in the stretch, and won out by an open length. The roan pacer Moth Miller, 2:07, driven by Dr. David Randall, did some fast work, and won a number of brushes, but tried one heat too many, and fell a victim to the speed of the handsome chestnut pacer Hontas Crooke, 2:09, owned by C. K. G. Billings of Chicago.

On the start Hontas Crooke got a trifle the best of it, but Moth Miller soon closed the gap, and they came down the stretch nose and nose. Nearing the finish Hontas Crooke, who is an excellent finisher, showed one of her famous spurts, which landed her half a length in the lead. Moth Miller, who had been given considerable work, did not seem equal to the occasion, although urged with the whip, while Hontas Crooke continued to increase her lead, and finished with an open length to the good. The trotter Alice Barnes, 2:11½, driven by George Spear, and The Monk, 2:08¼, had one of the fastest and most exciting brushes of the morning. They were turned to a good start at the bend of the road near Dyckman Street, Alice Barnes leading to the first quarter post, when The Monk closed the gap. A nip and tuck race followed for a lead, and both animals came down the stretch at a furious pace under the whip. It looked like a dead heat until within a hundred yards of the finish post, when Alice Barnes increased her speed without apparent effort and crossed the line a head in front of The Monk. Among the most enthusiastic drivers on the road was Senator Horace White of Syracuse, N. Y., handling the ribbons over C. K. G. Billings's brown gelding Wrightwood, 2:16¾. Mr. Billings drove Franker, and the two came down the stretch at a clip that distanced everybody. Franker won out by a head, which he gained close to the finish. On the next trip down Franker lost to the Boston champion trotter, David Harum. C. F. R. Eckerson, driving the bay mare Miss Gaddis, and Charles Lloyd, driving Richard B., 2:21¼, had it nip and tuck over the entire course, with Richard B. just winning by a head.

DARIEL IN GOOD FORM.

The handsome little pacer Dariel, 2:07½, driven by Dr. H. H. Kane, President of the Road Drivers' Association, proved herself in fine form and condition, and led Miss Gaddis and Richard B., 2:21½, home by several lengths.

There was a pretty four-cornered brush between The Monk, 2:08¼; Teddy Look, 2:20¾, driven by H. L. Stout; Woodsboy, 2:25¼, driven by M. Fluckinger, and Smith, driven by J. Wright. Teddy Look took the lead on the start, and held it to the quarter against The Monk and Woodsboy. Then The Monk gradually drew ahead of the bunch, closely followed by Teddy Look and Woodsboy. They finished in this order, with The Monk a half length in the lead. Dariel, 2:07¼, carried Moth Miller, 2:07, to a break, and the little trotter Dark Secret, 2:27½, beat the trotter Mahlon, 2:14¾, driven by Charles Reilly. Arch Wood, 2:13¾, was too slow for Alice Barnes, 2:11¼, the trotter winning out by a good length.

The closing brush of the morning was between Hontas Crooke, 2:09; Fairview, 2:09½, driven by J. P. Balter; Fire Gilt, 2:11½, owned by J. P. Balter, and Ed Locke, owned by M. Hughes. Coming down the stretch the four horses paced nose and nose, and it was any horse's race until close to the finish, when Hontas Crooke drew ahead, closely followed by Ed Locke and won by a very narrow margin. Fairview was a good third.

ON BROOKLYN'S SPEEDWAY.

Loose Stones Lamed Several of the Fast Horses During Yesterday's Driving.

There was one of the greatest turnouts of the season yesterday on the Brooklyn Speedway, and from early dawn until long after dark, the broad stretch of the Coney Island Boulevard extending from the Twenty-second Avenue Boulevard to King's Highway was thronged with one of the largest and most enthusiastic crowds of horsemen witnessed on the big driveway this season.

Admirers of horseflesh who throng the Brooklyn Speedway were sorry to learn that James Gormulley's great mare Georgena, 2:07½, would not again be seen on the Speedway this year. She has been turned out on the farm for the Winter months.

Loose stones on the sprinting path sent sensitive-footed horses lame back to their stalls. The side-wheeler Jovial, with Thomas Frisbie holding the ribbons, came down the road for a brush early in the morning, but picked up a stone, and was taken home lame. Several others suffered the same fate, and complaints will be filed with the Park Commissioners.

Among the well-known horsemen who were seen driving were C. H. Muller, driving Willie K., 2:29; John Dinghee, with Bella Wilkes, 2:18; Capt. William Guy, with Iveta, 2:15¼; Thomas Morgan, driving good old Jube; Dr. Hurd, driving his mare Annie; James Fortune, driving his bay gelding Streak, 2:14½; W. B. Dennison, driving Spendthrift, 2:21¼; Nat. Ward drove his pride Quarter Stake, 2:16; W. H. Beebe was out with Billy T. Phil Collins held the ribbons over his pet Phil C., 2:10; John Driscoll drove Rocksey, William H. Trim, with the brown gelding Edward B., 2:22½; Winfred Alston, with his sorrel team of pacers, Jean, 2:23½, and Jeannette, 2:20¼; Charles Harris, driving his brown pacer Charles H., 2:23¼; Wright Felton, with his brown team Wright and In It; P. T. Barrett, one of the oldest drivers on the road, with the lines over Sophie; J. N. Covert, with his pacing stallion Lawrence W.; W. W. Schmitt, with Albin; Frederick Maynken, driving his fine mare Beautiful Alice, 2:27½.

NATIONAL POLO LEAGUE.

Meriden Managers Enjoined to Strengthen Their Team Immediately.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 2.—A special meeting of the National Polo League was held at Hotel Garde, in this city, this afternoon, one of the objects being to take action on the failure of the Meriden management to strengthen its team. On account of other engagements, President Murnane and Secretary Morse of Boston were not presnt, and Thomas Cotter of Hartford presided. All the teams were represented except Waterbury, Messrs. Miller and Murphy being present for Meriden. The Meriden managers gave as a reason for the poor showing of their team inability to secure two good players, but stated that, owing to the disbandment of the Pawtucket team, a chance might be offered to get hold of George Cunningham or Kid Conway or both. After being given to understand by the meeting that an improvement must be effected in the Meriden team in a reasonable length of time, Mr. Miller left to-night for a trip to Boston, and, if necessary, to Maine, in search of players.

No change was made at the meeting in the present playing schedule. The holiday receipts from games were divided according to the pooling arrangement made at the opening of the season.

AMATEUR BILLIARD TOURNEY.

Games Will Be Played in the Theatre of the Knickerbocker A. C.

The opening game of the annual Class B billiard tournament for the National championship held under the direction of the Amateur Athletic Union will be played at 8 o'clock to-night in the theatre of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, at Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street. Charles Schmitt, the champion billiard player of the Chicago Athletic Association, will meet Isaac A. Mannes of this city. During the remainder of the week two games will be played daily, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. The first five days will be occupied by the qualifying round. As Messrs. Cutler, Hendrick, and Kellogg qualified for the final round in last year's tournament, they will not be obliged to play in these preliminary games. This is the schedule of the qualifying round:

Monday, 8 P. M.—Schmitt vs. Mannes.
Tuesday, 3 P. M.—Ferguson vs. Servatius. 8 P. M.—Billiter vs. Estabrook.
Wednesday, 8 P. M.—Tobias vs. Mannes. 8 P. M.—Page vs. Servatius.
Thursday, 3 P. M.—Presby vs. Estabrook. 8 P. M.—Schmitt vs. Tobias.
Friday, 3 P. M.—Paige vs. Ferguson. 8 P. M.—Billiter vs. Presby.

In case of ties after the completion of the qualifying games in any of the above groups of three contestants, the contestant having the highest grand average will be admitted to the finals, as will also any other contestant in the same group whose grand average reaches five points.

Favoring Detroit Caused a Row.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 2.—The annual meeting of the Inter-Lake Yachting Association was held at Sandusky last night. It was decided to hold the 1901 regatta at Detroit. After the banquet the meeting broke up in a tremendous row, and at a late hour an effort was made to reconvene and attempt to rescind the vote favoring Detroit.

Hugh S. Hart Testimonial Benefit.

Friends of the old athlete and sporting writer Hugh S. Hart, who died about three weeks ago, are arranging a testimonial benefit, to be held at the Grand Central Palace on Dec. 18. The benefit will be in the form of an all-around sporting show, and the leading exponents of nearly every branch of sport have expressed their willingness to give exhibitions. The programme will include wrestling, bag punching, rowing, bicycle riding, feats of strength, handball, and many other specialties.

AMONG THE GOLFERS.

Events Scheduled for the Week on Nearby and Local Links.

With the close of the Thanksgiving events the golf season on Northern links comes to a sudden stop in activity, and the list of fixtures for the coming week presents the smallest number that has appeared since the formal opening of all the courses early in the Spring. As a general rule the competitive season on local links closes with the 1st of December. A few clubs hold impromptu Saturday handicaps as long as the weather is propitious, and every week will see something of competitive interest on the Lakewood links. Provided the links are not covered with snow, New Year's Day will bring out a number of contests, and Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays will also be fairly lively. But, notwithstanding these occasional matches, the fact remains that the Northern season is a closed one for golf, and will so remain until April at least. The programme for the coming week is:

MONDAY, DEC. 3.

Marine and Field—Final round for the Theodore L. Cuyler Cup.
Lakewood—Play off for the handicap cup between James Converse and Irving Brokaw.

TUESDAY, DEC. 4.

Morris County—Final for club championship and Thebaud Cup between James A. Tyng and Howard A. Colby, 36 holes.
Nassau Country—Caddies' tournament, semi-final round.

FRIDAY, DEC. 7.

Lakewood Country—Women's open handicap.
Nassau Country—Caddies' tournament, final round.

SATURDAY, DEC. 8.

Lakewood Country—Men's open handicap.
Nassau Country—Handicap for Percy Chubb Cup.
Dyker Meadow—Club handicap.

From a golfing standpoint, the chief event is the championship final for the Morris County Club honors between James A. Tyng and Howard A. Colby. The clubhouse and links are really closed for the season, as the club allows no playing from Dec. 1 until April, but the committee have sanctioned the use of the course for this belated championship final. By an odd coincidence, both Tyng and Colby are survivors for the Louis Thebaud Cup at bogy match play handicap. So the one match to-morrow will decide both events. Each has recently won a golf championship, Tyng at Baltusrol and Colby at Essex County. The former was not among the Lakewood competitors last week, but Colby qualified in the first set only to be beaten by H. M. Forrest of Philadelphia in the second round.

The excellent golf played by Forrest was one of the features of the Lakewood tournament. He was practically a different player from the same Forrest whom Travis beat by eleven holes in the recent Philadelphia-New York team match at St. Andrew's. In the semi-final round with Findlay Douglas, he kept the former champion guessing all the time, the latter just winning by one hole. Forrest expects to play in the Atlantic City tournament next week, and later he will join the Florida golf delegation.

The tournament also heralded the return to his home links of the Rev. D. L. Schwartz, the Episcopal rector in Lakewood, and whose devotion to golf has sometimes likened him to certain celebrated Scotch divines. The Lakewood clergyman has been abroad over a year, and one of his great achievements was playing fifty-four holes one day on the old St. Andrew's links.

R. B. Wilson, the Lakewood Country Club's golf professional, returned from a two months' visit to Scotland on Thursday, and he will add a few finishing touches to the course this week, preparatory to the women's and men's handicaps next Friday and Saturday. The formal opening of the season's matches was deferred last week, but the pigeon shooting began on Saturday. Dr. Paul Kimball, one of Lakewood's former crack golfers, is now devoting nearly all of the spare time he has for recreation to shooting, and he is a frequent victor.

R. M. Goddard has won the championship of the Crescent Athletic Club, defeating C. V. Meserole in the final thirty-six-hole round by 9 up and 8 to play. James Rhett held the title last year.

Mrs. Otis Howard, whose title to the championship of the Glenwood Golf Club of Hudson, N. Y., has been undisputed for four years, has just met her first defeat. In the final round for the championship of the coming year Mrs. Howard was beaten by Miss Eloise Payne by 5 up and 4 to play. Charles Esselstyn won the men's championship for the fourth year, defeating E. W. Scovill by 3 up and 2 to play in a hotly contested thirty-six hole match.

A Winter course of nine holes has been opened by the Englewood Golf Club. It will afford plenty of sport, for it is a long one, 3,150 yards in circuit. The club is going to send its greenskeeper, Harry Stark, to England and Scotland to make a study of the links, and several changes are proposed to the regular eighteen-hole course when he returns.

As previously announced, Harry Vardon will start this morning on a flying trip to Colorado under engagement to play two matches, one at Denver and the other at Colorado Springs. He will be accompanied by Thomas Bendelow. On Dec. 15 Vardon sails for home, and C. S. Cox, his manager, said yesterday that no arrangements had been made for his return in the Spring.

The truth that all kinds and conditions of persons are seen on the links had another forcible illustration last week, when Mayor James Gould of Chelsea, Mass., won the championship of the Bonnie Burn Golf Club at that place. At the same time the Rev. Samuel M. Cathcart made the lowest score for the course.

The Boston golfers who use the public links are not so fortunate as the New Yorkers, for the Boston Park Commissioners have decreed that the Franklin Park links must be closed this week. A number of the regular players have drawn up a petition asking that the course be kept open until the rigors of Winter set in, but the request has not been granted. Statistics of the players who have used the links during the Summer show that about 40,000 is the round number for the season. The players feel very keenly the death of the professional, Willie Campbell, and a new man will have to be secured next season.

CROSS-COUNTRY RUNNING.

Fine Weather Brought Out Many Participants in the Club Events.

Members and guests of the Brooklyn Athletic Club held an 8-mile run across country yesterday morning, from the clubhouse to Maspeth, L. I. The course lay from the Grand Street Park grounds to and over the farming land to Laurel Hill, then through Corona, Berlin, and back by way of the cross-country route home. B. W. Dudley took the lead in the sprint at the finish, and won by several yards in the fair time of 57 minutes 28½ seconds. The other participants finished in this order: William H. Classen, Thomas F. Fraser, Frank Veres, J. J. Donnelly, H. Classen, Sidney Curtis, Christopher J. Kenney, and John C. Doyle.

The Star Athletic Club of Long Island City held one of the best runs of its season yesterday. The course lay from the clubhouse through Vernon Avenue to Clarke's Woods, through the woods to Washington Avenue, and thence through Washington, Jackson, and Vernon Avenues back to the clubhouse. The distance was approximately four miles. From start to finish there was an exciting race between Robert W. Kennedy, and T. Kelley of the Star Athletic Club and A. L. McKeever of the National Athletic Club. Kennedy won by a bare ten yards, with McKeever second and Kelley third. All of the other starters finished.

The Pastime Athletic Club held its usual run across country yesterday afternoon, the trail leading from Huber's Hotel, at Jerome Avenue and One Hundred and Sixty-first Street, over five miles of the old Jerome course. P. Fortner led the pack of fourteen runners from the start, finishing the course in 35 minutes and 10 seconds. The leaders finished in this order: Fortner, E. Fagan, E. Rathgeber, M. Tausig, and P. Troy.

The National Athletic Club also held a well-attended run over a six-mile course yesterday afternoon. Thomas L. Brophy finished at the head of the pack, his time being 42 minutes. The others finished in this order: R. C. Wills, John J. Holt, F. J. Grundey, William D. Wynne, Peter Wend, and A. L. Rippler.

Fickle Fair One Sued for Car Fare.

From The St. Louis Star.

George Wagerstad of Berlin, Ill., has filed suit for breach of promise of marriage in the Circuit Court. Elizabeth Long, formerly of Springfield, but now living in Berlin, is made the defendant. Wagerstad asserts that she promised to marry him in April, 1899, and, although he has repeatedly asked her since to wed him, she has refused. Wagerstad says he expended $20 in railroad fare from Berlin to Springfield and in street car tickets in order that he might visit her at her home. He now asks that this money be returned to him and that he be recompensed to the extent of $2,000 for his time and wounded feelings.

TO BOWL FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Teams of Five Men Each Compete in the Tournament—Other Events Scheduled.

Beginning on Tuesday evening a series of games for the bowling championship of the Borough of Manhattan will be rolled between picked teams of five men each, representing the four principal bowling leagues of the borough. Two of these leagues—the Harlem and the American National—represent the upper and lower east side respectively, and the other two—the Columbia and National—represent the upper and lower west side respectively. The east side teams will first bowl two matches each for the championship of their district, while the west side teams will engage in a similar contest. The winning teams in each contest will then meet in the final trial for local supremacy.

The teams representing the four leagues are not the regular teams of any clubs, but are selected from the ranks of the association which they represent according to their individual standing and regardless of their club affiliations. In this manner a team representing the full strength of the league is obtained.

The Columbia League team is the only one that has been finally chosen as yet, as the other leagues each have two or more men whose standings are so close that a decision will not be made until they have rolled a few more games. The teams so far as they have been selected, with their individual averages, are as follows:

Columbia League—Frederick Clinch, Corinthian, 176; P. Moynahan, Phoenix, 174; George Roeschlau, Dolando, 179; A. Silvers, Rosedale, 178; C. M. Schaeffer, Corinthian, 185.

Harlem League—William Linden, Empire, 190; David Shiman, Empire, 186; D. McDonald, Morris Club, 187; Edward La Forest, Knickerbocker, 185; H. Lockwood, Belvidere, 185; George Young, Empire, 185.

American National League—Frederick Clinch, Corinthian, 194; Henry Buchholz, Orchard, 193; Edward Keller, Metropolitan, 191; John Koster, Fidelia, 190; John Vorhees, Metropolitan, 190; P. McNally, Columbia of Paterson, N. J., 188; William Rothermel, Fidelia, 188; John Walter, Monarch, 186.

The schedule of the preliminary contests has been arranged as follows:

Monday, Dec. 10—National League vs. Columbia League for west side championship, at Starr's alleys.

Monday, Dec. 17—American National League vs. Harlem League for east side championship, at Thum's Germania alleys.

Tuesday, Dec. 18—Columbia League vs. National League for west side championship, at Schlusing's Columbia alleys.

The date of the final match has not yet been arranged. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged at all the match games, the proceeds to be used in defraying the expenses of the delegates and teams which will represent the New York bowling clubs at the American Bowling Congress at Chicago next month. The games will begin at 8:15 P. M.

FATIGUES OF CAMPAIGNING.

Gov. Stanley of Kansas Talks of His Canvass of His State.

From The Kansas City (Mo.) Journal.

Gov. Stanley made more than one hundred speeches during the recent campaign, and he says he was interrupted only once by a questioner. "This man," says the Governor, "fired a long question at me, which was greatly involved. I answered it seriatim, but he was not satisfied and began to grumble about something. I waited awhile and told him he was all right, that we could stand him once in a while for a day, but I would hate to be his wife and have him all the time. The audience laughed, and the questioner joined in, and before the end of the speech was applauding with the rest, which greatly gratified me."

Speaking of the alleged hardships of the campaign, the Governor said: "I didn't find a hard bed in the State. They were all soft to me, I was so tired after each day's work. I tried no lotions or gargles for my throat and kept away from medicines, with the result that I kept up well, and when I see men like Dennis Flynn, who is younger, collapsing after a campaign I conclude that I am able to stand any amount of hard work. The only effect I have felt from the hard work has come since the election. On two occasions, and entirely unexpected, my legs and back would suddenly grow tired and begin spasmodically aching, but I suppose it is in the nature of a reaction."

Speaking of his liking for children, Mr. Stanley continued: "Knowledge of my liking for children here in Wichita seems to have spread all over the State. How do you suppose? I don't know. Not much has been said about it in the papers, but they all seemed to know it and in all my receptions there were the little tots looking as solemn as could be, and sticking out their chubby hands for a shake. I don't remember any of them having said anything further than 'How do you do, Governor,' and beating a hasty retreat, but I believe, and I am proud of it, that I shook the hands of more little children than any other candidate in the United States this year."

GERMAN MONEY AND TRADE.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—The monthly settlement passed off under unusually easy money conditions. Private discount advanced temporarily to 4¼ per cent., but fell back ½. The market expects easier rates. From Reichsbank officials it is ascertained that the bank now looks forward to entering upon the new year with the existing rate. It also appears that last week's movement, so far as the bank is concerned, was highly satisfactory. Gold to the amount of 10,000,000 marks was imported, and further sums are expected from England soon. The ease in money caused a rise in domestic Government funds, as well as imparted firmness to the general market.

Iron shares vacillated considerably, but the gains for the week ranged from 4 to 9 points. The market was strengthened by the prolongation of the Girder and Half-Finished Products Syndicate and by the expression of opinions by the heads of the Coal Syndicate that the depression in iron would be only temporary. The syndicate has reduced girders to 120 marks per ton and steel billets to 115 marks.

On the Boerse the most sensational event of the week was the meeting of the shareholders and creditors of the two mortgage banks whose affairs, as already cabled, became embarrassed recently. Their total obligations amount to 465,000,000 marks, which, at present quotations, represent a loss of 110,000,000 marks.

The ease in money causes unusual activity in new issues of stocks and bonds. Obligations of the Allgemeine Elektricitaets Gesellschaft, to the amount of 15,000,000 marks, at 4½ per cent., will be subscribed Dec. 6 at 99½. The Heliois Elektricitaets Gesellschaft will issue 4,000,000 marks in shares at 6 per cent. and 1,000,000 marks at 5. The Bochum Cast Steel Company will issue shares to the amount of 4,000,000 marks.

The Boerse estimates the financial needs of the Government at 300,000,000 marks.

Navigation companies have done an unusually profitable business this year, most of them increasing their dividends. The earnings of the North German Lloyd Company to Oct. 31 are estimated at 9,000,000 marks above the figures for 1899.

The South German Cement Syndicate has been renewed, but production will be restricted 30 per cent.

Dr. von Siemens will retire Dec. 31 from the Directorship of the Deutsche Bank, but he will remain on the Board of Overseers.

The prohibition of the importation of canned meats caused unusually heavy imports up to Sept. 30, in anticipation of the law becoming effective, the total import being 5,441 tons, as against 2,627 tons for the corresponding period of the previous year, and of the total 4,005 tons came from the United States, as against 1,929 in the same period last year.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

The decrease in surplus reserve reported by the banks on Saturday is significant of nothing more than the preparations always made at this time of year for dividend and interest payments due on or about the 1st of December. Even with the decrease reported, surplus reserves are still more than two million dollars in excess of the figures at this time a year ago. In view of the recent large interior shipments and the heavy demand incident to the stock market activity, this showing is gratifying and but goes to bear out the opinions of representative bankers that there need be no fear of money tightness in the near future—of anything other than ordinary rates.

So far as the stock market is concerned indications point to further strength and advancement. The many views, and from so diverse quarters, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, telling of National prosperity but reflect the confidence everywhere felt in a continuance of the country's advancement, commercially, financially, and otherwise. And it is but reasonable, but natural, to expect that industrial betterments, financial progress, and commercial expansion will be reflected in improvement in market values.

CANADA'S PROSPERITY.

C. A. Molloy of Toronto, Ontario, speaking of business conditions in Canada, says:

"We are having good times like you, and, like you, we are looking for even greater prosperity. Conditions on our side of the line are much as they are here. We have just gotten over a political campaign which, while it was on, tended to unsettle business conditions. Now, that over, we can devote more of our time to business pursuits; and we purpose to do it.

"I do not know whether you know it, but it is a fact that your prosperity is always reflected in improved conditions with us—for we share in a large measure in your progress.

"So far as I can see, the United States is in for a great period of prosperity, and Canada cannot fail to be benefited thereby."

DEFICIT IN ITALY'S BUDGET.

Greater Part of It Due to Expense of the China Expedition.

ROME, Dec. 2.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day, Signor Rubini, Minister of the Treasury and ad-interim Minister of Finance, announced in his budget statement that the budget of 1900-1901 at present showed a deficit of 19,000,000 lire, of which 13,000,000 lire must be charged up to the expenses of the China expedition.

The Minister said, however, that, in view of the continuing increase of the revenue over the estimates, this deficit would certainly be greatly reduced before the end of the financial year. He pointed out also that, while the estimates for 1901-1902 showed a deficit of 18,000,000 lire, here again no allowance had been made for increasing revenues, which would probably reduce the deficit.

Signor Rubini explained that these small deficits arose from the paying off of the debt and from outlay for railroad construction. The budget situation he characterized as essentially good, but he insited that it was "absolutely imperative to abstain from all increase of taxation and fresh loans, in order to secure a budget which, by raising credit and confidence in the country, will enable the Government to proceed with much desired, extensive, and useful reforms."

OPENING FOR THE SHOE TRADE.

Consul Schumann Advises that Americans Enter the Field in Egypt.

Walter Schumann, Consul, writes from Mainz that if American shoe manufacturers were to study closely the requirements of the Egyptian trade, they ought to be able to conquer that market with ease.

"France," he says, "formerly supplied almost exclusively calf leather for blackened boots; but the market for this leather has greatly decreased, owing to the demand for red and tan colored shoes. This change of fashion has greatly benefited the German export, though for the highest grades England still has the monopoly. Owing to Swiss competition, the export of shoes from France to Egypt has likewise fallen off. On the one hand, the prices of French shoes are too high, and on the other the French manufacturers do not adapt themselves to the requirements of the Egyptian trade."

Consul Schumann believes that the American manufacturers should be able to offer a better and cheaper shoe than the Swiss manufacturers.

WOULD MAKE WORKERS RICH.

Carrahan's Plan Does Not Meet with the Favor of the Union Men.

Delegate Carrahan of the United Masters and Pilots' Association explained to the Central Federated Union yesterday his scheme to reverse the conditions of the millionaires and the workingmen.

Carrahan's plan was to start 200 factories on money raised by issuing bonds of the denominations of the present paper currency. He presented figures until he brought the amount to be raised up to a thousand millions of dollars, and then asked the central body to appoint a Board of Directors.

Delegate Wolf of the Cigarmakers said that the plan would be another Miller syndicate. He advised the delegates to have nothing to do with it. Other delegates said that Carrahan's plan merited further consideration, but people would not trust each other to the extent necessary.

"We have indorsed too many things," said Delegate Kelly of the Theatrical Protective Union. "At one time we indorsed General Coxey's army of hoboes as heroes, and found they were tramps. This scheme is all right theoretically, but practically—not for me, thank you." It was decided to allow Carrahan credentials to go before the affiliated unions with his plan.

PASSENGERS HAVE A REMEDY.

A Law to Reach Conductors Who Start Surface Cars in a Hurry.

At the Central Labor Union yesterday Delegate Kopp reported that he had seen President Vreeland of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, and called his attention to the practice of conductors starting a car while passengers were boarding it. He referred Mr. Vreeland to a recent decision by the Court of Appeals, in which Mrs. Mary Dechtermann of Brooklyn was awarded $4,000 damages against the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for injuries resulting from a similar practice.

"Mr. Vreeland told me," said Mr. Kopp, "that when conductors started the cars in New York while passengers were boarding them the passengers should take their names, and numbers and proceed against them in the courts. There was a law, he said, covering such cases."

JEFFRIES WILL NOT MARRY.

Says He Never Gave Miss Drew Any Encouragement for Matrimony.

James J. Jeffries, the pugilist, made public a statement last night in which he denies ever having proposed marriage to Miss Dorothy Drew, the actress, or that he is engaged to her.

"Miss Drew herself knows this to be the truth," he declares, "and I think the least she could have done was to make a denial of the statement," and he also writes, "I never gave Miss Drew any encouragement whatever in regard to matrimony."

Rough overcoats may come and go, but the good smooth goes on forever.

The power which keeps 'em going lies in the hard surface which doesn't grow shabby whether rough or smooth roads are travelled.

$15 or $18 here, buys a tip-top one; finer ones up to $40, but no better ones—for wear.

The tender-footed touchy-tempered man may find these shoes of ours a cool-off—they have a patent ventilating attachment; $3.50.

Our winter derbies, silk hats and opera hats have been waiting the first touch of frost to burst into sight—now ready.

HIGHER BANK RATE IMMINENT

A Five Per Cent. Narrowly Avoided—No Enthusiasm Noted Over the Subscription to Additional Exchequer Bonds—Trade Reports Unsatisfactory—Gold Exports Made Good from Internal Circulation.

Cable Correspondence.

Copyright, 1900, THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Once more we have escaped a 5 per cent. bank rate, and still are not happy. Money was scarce all last week, and some £2,000,000 had to be borrowed at the Bank to help the market over the end of the month. Discount flinched a little Friday because one bank was buying bills from brokers at 3⅞ per cent., but the weakness only amounted to one-sixteenth out of 4 per cent., and will not go far. The weekly loans were also easier at 3½ per cent. on 'Change, this case also merely representing a release of balances locked up on the last days of the month or held by the Bank to tighten the market. Call money at 3 per cent. or less means nothing. We have escaped because there was no use in imposing a 5 per cent. rate until something was known regarding the intentions and probable demands of the Government.

It got its £3,000,000 additional on Exchequer bonds Friday, but there was no enthusiasm to subscribe or any hint of American help, such as glorified the August issue, and the sanguine views as to the price fostered on the Stock Exchange early last week were quite falsified. The Bank had to take considerable tenders at £97 18s. in order to make up the amount, and the average price was £98 2s. 10d., much below the chatterers' estimates.

The truth is, as I have been harping, there is no spare money about. Our capital and credit are too fully engaged and we should be feeling the scarcity of means more than we have yet done were it not for the reflux of currency, a product of the shrinking business.

From all parts of the kingdom, except perhaps North Ireland, trade reports are becoming unsatisfactory. The iron trade is apparently on the eve of a sharp setback. Advices about our woolen and worsted industries are less pleasant now than for years back, and failures in the north are occurring with ominous frequency. Nor does our cotton industry escape the general contagion.

We are cooling down in a sense and contracting in all directions, therefore less money for wages is wanted, and coin in particular returns to the Bank of England from provincial centres. Our exports of gold, which still continue in a dribbling way, are thus made good from internal circulation, and at the same time the business demand for banking credit is sensibly reduced.

We can thus scrape along, but I remain expectant that any day or week the bank rate may jump to 5 per cent. Shrewd observers say it will go up this week. I shall not prophesy, but I know the market to be thoroughly uncomfortable and unable to make up its mind on the outlook.

One thing that tends to fog us all is the unknown quantity of the Government's further demands. A fresh loan of £16,000,000 is talked about, but not in any authoritative way. Should that prove to be the figure, the news will not calm people's minds, because everybody will at once say, "This is only another put-off." It would be far better to face the music bravely with a loan of £30,000,000 or £40,000,000 than to peddle with small issues perplexing in their variety and continually sprung upon the market without warning.

I have nothing fresh to say about stock market affairs this week. Ferment in your railroad securities has considerably damped off, thanks to the want of outside support, and nothing else has come to take its place. We are all waiting to see what is going to happen next.

The Stock Exchange settlement here revealed no appreciable increase in the quantities of your securities carried on our market, and bankers tell me that their customers have not begun to borrow afresh on such securities. A. J. W.

During the past week the market for outside securities presented a much quieter aspect than during the two preceding weeks, not only in the amount of daily transactions, but in price movements as well. The advances somewhat outnumbered the declines, but throughout the whole list a good deal of irregularity showed. At times prices moved somewhat erratically, but the weakness that appeared seemed principally the result of profit taking, and there was still in the market sufficient buying power for prices in some parts of the list to show much strength. Traders were active in the market and their transactions helped to make the market somewhat irregular. The market was helped by good reports in regard to various companies, and very little news of a disquieting kind came to hand to offset the favorable developments.

The industrials were the most active issues during the week and they held the position which a short time ago was held by the copper shares. The latter were somewhat neglected, and only one or two issues of the group assumed places of any prominence. Consolidated Equipment was active throughout the week, and on some days advanced sharply. It suffered a reaction of about 1 point at the close, but ended the week with a net gain of 1⅞ points. On some days the transactions amounted to as much as 4,000 shares.

Standard Oil, though perhaps the least active of the prominent industrials, continued its upward course, and on Saturday sold as high as 780. The closing bid of 775 showed a net gain for the week of 55 points, the largest advance that the stock has recently made in any one week. Active demand during the earlier part of the week, but at the close was under considerable selling pressure, and was forced down 1 point in the common and more than 2 points in the preferred. After selling as high as 29¼, it was offered on Saturday at 28, while the preferred stock closed at 73 bid, against 76 bid at the close of the preceding week.

Telephone, Telegraph and Cable was very weak as a result of the decision of the Directors to call an additional $5 a share payable on or before Dec. 31. It is understood that plans are under way to remove from the stock the burden of any additional assessments that might be called, but just what the plans of the Directors are in this respect has not been made public. The present call on the stock is the fourth that has been made. In a general way the stock has declined further and further on the announcement of each additional call, and the stock, which is now $10 paid, is selling considerably lower than it did when it was only $2.50 paid. At Saturday's price the stock sold for about 30 per cent. of the paid-in value.

ON THE LONDON EXCHANGE.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—American securities declined early last week under the pressure of realizations, but more than recovered the loss under renewed buying for Continental and New York accounts. More notice was taken as the week advanced of the lower-priced securities, like Erie, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, and Reading, while a prominent feature was the buying of Southern Railroad shares, which closed from 3⅝ to 4½ points higher. Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, Denver and Rio Grande, Louisville and Nashville, Northern Pacific, and Union Pacific shares were substantially higher on the week. The close, however, was dull. Baltimore and Ohio preferred and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, with some others, were ¼ to ⅝ lower.

The settlement disclosed that an enormous business had been done in Americans. The turnover was unprecedented, two foreign banks alone delivering Americans to the value of £1,000,000 for Continental account, principally German.

Mines were somewhat depressed by the news from South Africa and quotations were lower yesterday. Randa fell three-quarters of a point.

Silver was firm, rising 1-16, at 29¾d. per ounce, on the supposition of purchases by the Indian Government.

THE MANCHESTER MARKET.

MANCHESTER, Dec. 2.—Last week closed amid quiet conditions for this month. The firmness of sellers acted as a deterrent in the placing of orders. Apparently shippers of cloth and users of yarns have supplied their wants for some time to come. Reports as to transactions are contradictory, but the turnover was probably below the average.

There is an unsettled feeling with regard to the probable course of prices in cotton, although there is considerable bull sentiment growing out of a belief that the crop figures will be small. On the other hand, many dealers doubt the accuracy of reports which place the crop distinctly below 10,000,000 bales.

In the cloth market a prominent feature last week was the increase in demand for China, which resulted in booking a few lines for quarters where practically nothing had been done for several months.

There was no lack of orders for India, but the limits were frequently impracticable. Occasional transactions were made with the smaller markets, notably in the Far East, South America, and the Mediterranean ports.

ANOTHER REPULSE FOR MR. KRUEGER

Emperor Francis Joseph Declines to Receive Him.

KAISER'S ACTION UNPOPULAR

German Unofficial Press Generally Condemns It—How Krueger Received Emperor William's Message.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"In response to a confidential inquiry as to whether Mr. Krüger would be welcomed here, a polite reply was returned to the effect that Emperor Francis Joseph had made other dispositions for the next few weeks."

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—The Government's curt and decisive intimation that Emperor William will not be able to receive Mr. Krüger has created a profound impression throughout Germany. What may be called the anti-British section of the press does not conceal its annoyance, and the moderate Anglophobe organs with difficulty repress utterances of disappointment.

The inspired journals declare that it was Germany's desire to intimate definitely that Mr. Krüger's visit would not be welcome; and, therefore, the fact that he omitted to comply with the strict etiquette of the German Court and deferred asking Emperor William for an audience until he had reached the Belgo-German frontier, was eagerly seized as a reason for denying such an audience.

The semi-official Cologne Gazette puts the matter as follows:

"The question as to whether Emperor William would welcome Mr. Krüger's visit must be answered without qualification in the negative. The reason why such a visit just now cannot be welcomed is plain, for Mr. Krüger intended the requested audience not only as a mere act of politeness, but as an occasion for receiving proofs of personal sympathy. Furthermore, he is prosecuting at the same time outspoken political aims and desires to induce the rulers of those States which he visits to abandon the strict neutrality they have hitherto found reason to maintain in the war between Great Britain and the Transvaal. The maintenance of strict neutrality, however, accords with Germany's interests, and it would be a serious political error if a mere suspicion was created that, at Mr. Krüger's wish, this neutrality would no longer be maintained."

Mr. Krüger's reception at Cologne was exceedingly enthusiastic so far as the citizens were concerned. They had planned a torchlight procession and serenade, but the police forbade both.

Mr. Krüger's dispatches to Count von Bülow, the Imperial Chancellor, and to the heads of the German States were left unanswered. There is no doubt that, as late as Saturday, Foreign Office officials contemplated that Mr. Krüger would be received in Berlin to-morrow. Emperor William and Count von Bülow must have reconsidered the original plan. It is suggested that, as Mr. Krüger's intention to come to Berlin was mooted while in France, the Kaiser and his advisers may have suspected a trap.

Herr von Tschirschky, German Minister to Belgium, under Emperor William's instructions, personally thanked Mr. Krüger for the telegram to the Kaiser; and Mr. Krüger, when thanking the envoy, said: "I invoke God's blessing upon that august personage."

Diplomats generally regard Mr. Krüger's mission as frustrated, and consider Germany's action of great political importance, as denoting a new era in the relations between Germany and Great Britain.

On the other hand, the Government's attitude is certainly condemned by a large portion of the nation, and there can be no doubt that a vast majority of the representative journals throughout the empire remain pro-Boer. Even the Court Preacher, Dr. Kritinger, in the new Cathedral yesterday, delivered a discourse filled with sentiments strongly favoring the Boer cause and eulogizing Mr. Krüger, concluding as follows:

"Merciful God! Be to him and to his people a savior and helper in their time of need."

Herr von Wildenbruck, the poet, who is a favorite of Emperor William, holds up Mr. Krüger to the sympathies of Germany in an ode which concludes with the petition:

"Lord God! Answer his prayer."

The Vossische Zeitung, the Kreuz Zeitung, the Berliner Tageblatt, the Lokal Anzeiger, the Deutsche Tages Zeitung, the National Zeitung, and the Cologne Volks Zeitung express sentiments strongly favorable to Mr. Krüger, and their example is followed by papers of all political sections.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—Emperor William's telegram to Mr. Krüger refusing to receive him continues to be the chief subject of comment in the French press. The afternoon newspapers strike a note of sadness. They see in his Majesty's action the shattering of his reputation for chivalry. La Temps and Le Journal des Débats explain Emperor William's message by the Anglo-German understanding on African questions. Le Temps says:

"The Emperor's wording, that he could not receive Mr. Krüger on account of dispositions already taken, is very clear. Every one understands that the Emperor, if not actually fulfilling one of the clauses of the recent Anglo-German accord, is inspired by the spirit thereof in declining to receive Mr. Krüger. Neither the declarations of Count von Bülow nor others have concealed from the eyes of the world that the Emperor has veered his policy in favor of England since he sent his famous dispatch re the Jameson raid. The Emperor has failed to find in Europe the alliance needed to brave England, and his people have refused the credits to build a fleet. The consequence was the Emperor threw in his lot with England.

"Mr. Krüger's advisers neither saw nor foresaw anything, and exposed Mr. Krüger to the total check he has just experienced. This, perhaps, is not the first bad advice they gave him, and it explains many things in the past."

Yves Guyot, in Le Siècle, compares the attitude of Emperor William with that of France, to the advantage of the former. He says:

"Emperor William wished to show that his Government had not surrendered its powers to the least enlightened classes, and intimated to Mr. Krüger that he was opposed to his coming to Berlin to be acclaimed by bands, led by Dr. Leyds, of paid agitators. I can affirm to a certitude that if Mr. Krüger approaches the Czar diplomatically he will meet with an equally categorical refusal. The important diplomatic event which was predicted for this week by Dr. Leyds in the press has occurred, but it is the collapse of all the pro-Boer illusions.

"Mr. Krüger's rôle is finished. Emperor William's dispatch brings nigh the date of peace and the commencement of an era of prosperity for the Transvaal."

A special dispatch from Cologne says Mr. Krüger, after he had received Emperor William's telegram, spoke as follows to a deputation styled "friends of the Boers":

"I hope with all my heart that the circumstances which prevent his Majesty from receiving me to-day will become more favorable later. I shall never cease to have confidence in the spirit of justice of the Emperor who, without knowing me, sent me four years ago significant encouragement. I shall stay some time at The Hague and will then renew my request, and that time the Emperor will not refuse."

Mr. Krüger was very sad, and afterward retired to his apartment in tears.

BRITISH TAX ON HIRSCH FUND.

Court of Appeals Decides Death Duties Must Be Paid—Crown Obtains £1,250,000 by the Decision.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Court of Appeal has rendered a decision upholding that of a Divisional Court in the suit of the Attorney General vs. the Jewish Colonization Association. The Crown claimed estate and succession duty upon the death of Baron Maurice de Hirsch.

The Crown by this decision obtains upward of £1,250,000.

Baron de Hirsch died on April 20, 1896, at his estate at Presburg, Hungary, leaving an estate valued at about 400,000,000 francs. Three years before he was worth 500,000,000 francs, but in the interim had given away 100,000,000 francs toward the charitable objects in the furtherance of which the latter years of his life were spent.

With the exception of a number of legacies, the Baron's fortune was left to his widow, but the second clause of the will read:

"Should my wife for any reason not come into possession of this inheritance, I appoint the Jewish Colonization Association, founded in London in October, 1891, as my universal heir."

Baroness de Hirsch died on April 1, 1899, leaving the greater part of her property, including her own fortune and what she had inherited from her husband, to the charities founded by her husband and herself. The Colonization Association, which was established to found homes for expatriated Jews of Russia and Roumania, received about £8,000,000. The Baroness's own property was about £5,350,000.

Meyer S. Isaacs, President of the Baron de Hirsch Fund, was seen at his home, 110 East Seventy-third Street, last night, said that the decision in the case would be regarded as final. He explained that the British Government had claimed the estate tax on such portions of the estate as were invested in British territory. Some of the property had been in France and Austria, and the Governments of those countries had also exacted their tribute. As the institutions that the Baron and Baroness had founded were all established, the decision would not upset any of their plans. It had only been intended to spend the income on these charities, and now there would not be quite so much money to spend. "I hope Great Britain will do some good with this money," said Mr. Isaacs.

The British estate, legacy, and inheritance duties amount to over 10 per cent. of the amount of a deceased person's estate in the case of money left to others than close relatives

LIEUT. HOBSON'S CONDITION.

Is Resting Easy, but Is Not Permitted to See Visitors.

Lieut. Richmond Pearson Hobson, who lies ill and in danger of typhoid fever at the Presbyterian Hospital, was resting easy last night. Dr. Thompson, one of the hospital physicians who has the patient in charge, said that, owing to the Lieutenant's remarkable constitution, the fever would either take considerable time to manifest itself strongly, or, possibly, might be averted entirely. Mr. Hobson is perfectly conscious when awake, but he sleeps most of the time.

No visitors whatever are permitted to see the patient. Nearly 100 floral pieces were sent to him yesterday, but not one of these was even shown Mr. Hobson, nor is he at all aware of their arrival. Similarly, letters and telegrams that are pouring in from all parts of the country are withheld until a more favorable time. "It would take a week to get through all the letters that arrive for Lieut. Hobson in a single day," said the hospital's office manager. There is no use trying to see the patient, nor, for the present, is there sense in sending him flowers or communications of any kind. They will not reach him until such time as his physician permits."

It was said at the same office that no record was kept of the many who had called during the day to see the Lieutenant, and that therefore it was not known what distinguished army or navy men might have been refused permission to see Hobson.

EXPRESS TRAIN DERAILED.

Accident to the Northampton Express at Larchmont.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Dec. 3.—The Northampton express, which left New York at 2 o'clock on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, was derailed this afternoon at Larchmont. The train was going along at its customary speed of forty miles an hour when the engineer heard a crunching noise, and looking back saw the tender of the locomotive dancing along on the ties. He applied the air brakes at once and brought the train to such a sudden stop that some of the passengers were shaken out of their seats. Investigation showed that an axle on the tender had broken in two.

The passengers, numbering several hundred, were transferred to the Gilt Edge express, which leaves New York at 3 o'clock, and to other trains. Local trains and freight traffic were delayed all evening, as the accident happened on the track nearest the platforms, and passengers had to disembark on the middle tracks.

REACHED HOME AND DIED.

Soldier from Cuba Expires in Carriage on Way to See Dying Mother.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Last month Secretary of War Root, at the request of Mayor Dewitt of this city, granted a furlough to John De Roche, stationed in Cuba, with Company C, Tenth Regiment, United States Army. The furlough was granted so that De Roche could come to this city and see his mother, who was expected to live but a few weeks.

De Roche reached this city to-night, and was met at the station by his family. He complained of feebleness and was driven home. On the way his brother William thought he had fallen asleep in the carriage. He was carried into the house gently, so as not to awaken him—then it was discovered that he was dead.

The cause of death is not yet known. On arriving here the soldier said he had been on the water for nine days and had not eaten for five days.

Mrs. McKinley Receives Many Friends.

Mrs. William McKinley, wife of the President, passed a very quiet day in this city yesterday, and the probabilities are that she will return to Washington this afternoon on the special car Grassmere. She breakfasted with Mr. and Mrs. Abner McKinley, Dr. P. M. Rixey, and others. Then she took a drive in Central Park. On her return to the Hotel Manhattan she received many callers. Mrs. McKinley has greatly improved in health.

FORMER CADET BOOZ DEAD

Alleged Victim of Hazing at West Point Expires in Agony.

FIENDISH METHODS CHARGED

The Young Man Steadily Refused to Divulge Names of Cadets Said to Have Tortured Him.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—Oscar L. Booz, a former cadet at West Point Military Academy, who had been lying at the point of death at his home in Bristol, Penn., suffering from injuries which his parents claim were the result of hazing at the academy over two years ago, died to-day in agony. The cause of death was throat consumption.

Booz was appointed a cadet by Congressman Wanger of the Seventh Pennsylvania District, and it is alleged by the young man's father that tabasco sauce was poured down his son's throat while the cadets were hazing him. The father also claims that red pepper was thrown in the youth's eyes, hot grease poured on his bare feet, a tooth knocked out, and other fiendish methods of torture indulged in.

Shortly after the hazing, the father says, Oscar, because of his physical condition, was compelled to resign his cadetship. The young man steadily grew worse, but never would divulge the names of the cadets who ill-treated him. His parents told him it was his duty to tell, but his only answer was: "I went there expecting to take whatever medicine should be given, and it would not be right to complain against the other boys."

When asked regarding the probability of steps being taken against the Government or the West Point officials, a sister of the young man said to-day that, as no one had been named as the guilty person, no further action would be taken in the matter.

SAYS BOOZ WAS NOT HAZED.

Statement by the Superintendent of the Military Academy.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Col. Albert L. Mills, Superintendent of the Military Academy, made the following statement to-day:

"The many statements made in the press of the country alleging that Oscar L. Booz was atrociously hazed while he was a cadet at the Military Academy are untrue and ridiculous. Ex-Cadet Booz was admitted to the Military Academy June 20, 1898, and resigned Oct. 31, 1898. He was on sick report but once, on July 30, when he was excused from the drills for that day on account of diarrhea. Had he been brutally beaten in a fight with another cadet, or had his throat been injured in the manner claimed, it would have been impossible for him to have avoided the sick report. The reason given for his resignation was weak eyes. His record shows he was in the last section in mathematics, and the marks he received to the date of his resignation were deficient.

"I believe therein lies the real cause of his resignation and I think it most probable that stories of his alleged ill-treatment arise from statements he made in endeavoring to explain to his friends why he left the academy. He made no complaint of ill-treatment at the hands of other cadets. He was under orders to do so if such was accorded him. From inquiries made I am convinced that that particular ex-cadet was very little interfered with or molested by other cadets during his entire stay at the Military Academy."

Those who were classmates of Booz concur in the statement of Co. Mills. The story of forcing fluid down Booz's throat is, they say, absurd. Among his classmates who are still cadets Booz was not a favorite. It seems he engaged with an older cadet in one peronal encounter, the particulars of which are put on record. It is, however, certain that it was of such a nature that physical harm to Booz did not result from the fight.

BREWER HOFFMAN INJURED.

Thrown from His Runabout and Picked Up Unconscious.

Jacob Hoffman, the brewer of this city, was thrown from his runabout while driving along Riverside Drive yesterday afternoon. His horses, a new pair that he recently purchased at the Madison Square Garden sale, became frightened near One Hundred and Twentieth Street, and, bolting, threw him and his coachman, Martin Thoma, to the curb. Both were picked up unconscious and taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital. Mr. Hoffman, who weighs 300 pounds, was found to have suffered an abrasion of the scalp and a deep cut across the forehead. Thoma's thigh was broken, and he was otherwise cut and bruised.

Mr. Hoffman, soon after he reached the hospital, left there for his home, at 209 East Fifty-fifth Street. Late last night his condition was not alarming. The coachman remained at the hospital. He is not fatally hurt.

D. H. LOUDERBACK RESIGNS.

London Representative of C. T. Yerkes Coming Back to This Country.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Reports from London say that D. H. Louderback, who went to London to build the Charing Cross underground railway, has cabled his resignation to Charles T. Yerkes. He gives as the reason that the serious illness of his wife makes his return to the United States necessary.

Mr. Yerkes left New York yesterday, and is due in Chicago to-day. A. A. Housman, his New York banker, says he has not heard of Mr. Louderback's resignation.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—D. H. Louderback of Chicago, who came to London as the special representative of Charles T. Yerkes, has arranged to sail for the United States on Dec. 12 on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, the first steamer on which he could obtain accommodations, after arranging for the letting of the contracts of the Yerkes syndicate.

NEW GYMNASTIC APPARATUS.

Prof. Sargent of Harvard Exhibits His Invention, the Innomotor.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 3.—Dr. D. A. Sargent, director of Harvard's gymnasium, has invented a new gymnastic apparatus which, he declares, will supersede all gymnasium machines previously in use.

The innomotor, as Dr. Sargent calls his new machine, exercises every muscle in the body in such a natural way as to make exercise a pleasure. It gives the beneficial results of bicycling and rowing and avoids their defects. Dr. Sargent claims that his new machine introduces a new principle into the art of propelling land or water vehicles and of applying human power so as to produce the greatest amount of work.

The machine is a whole gymnasium in itself. It consists of a pair of levers connected by four adjustable rods with a sliding seat, and a sliding footrest, which are in turn connected by a power applying rod to a crank or gear or sprocket wheel. The machine can be adapted to the propulsion of a tricycle, a boat, a scull, canoe, or a simple gymnastic machine.

The invention is the result of four years of hard work on Dr. Sargent's part. An exhibition of models was given this evening in the Hemenway Gymnasium.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB ELECTION.

Croker Slate, with John Fox at Its Head, Chosen.

The annual election of the Democratic Club took place last evening. The names of officials elected were selected by Richard Croker before leaving for Europe. John Fox was elected President, Cord Meyer and Lewis Nixon Vice Presidents, Theodore F. Hascall Treasurer, William E. Wyatt Secretary, and Andrew T. Kiernan Corresponding Secretary.

John W. Keller was elected a member of the Board of Governors to serve one year, Edward F. O'Dwyer for two years, and James Shevlin, O. H. P. Belmont, M. Warley Platzek, and John F. Carroll for three years.

JOHN McCULLAGH'S ESTATE.

He Will Purchase Haight Property in Orange County This Week—Price Said to be $13,000.

Special to The New York Times.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Since last Autumn, when John McCullagh, State Superintendent of Elections, made his first bid for the Haight property in this village, until the present time negotiations have been pending, and are now practically completed. The deal will be closed on Dec. 6.

The property consists of 180 acres of the best Orange County land, and includes a large park, fronting for over one-quarter of a mile on what is known as the Speedway, the upper end of Goshen's main street. The park contains a large mansion of brick and timber, in which are more than fifty rooms. Its interior is built of hardwoods imported from many countries and beautifully finished in antique designs. There are costly mirrors built into the walls, and the fittings of the library alone cost a fortune. There are six conservatories, one of which is 150 feet long. There are large stables on the estate, also five houses which were in the old days occupied by servants.

A number of years ago Henry J. Haight, the deaf mute whose wife sued him for divorce in New York last Winter, erected fifteen large houses for poultry-raising purposes, and spent thousands of dollars in equipping them with every kind of paraphernalia. These still stand as a monument to a passing whim of Mr. Haight. In the park are about fifty acres. Scattered all over this expanse are groves of trees, flowing streams and rustic Summer houses.

The one-time grandeur of the place is now but a memory to the old servants still living in the cottages, in which they hold a life interest by the will of Mary Ellen Haight. The paths and highways are weed grown, the fountains are filled with rubbish, and the buildings, worn by the elements, stand sadly in need of repair. The conservatories alone show no signs of decay, having been maintained by one of the old employes.

The price to be paid by Mr. McCullagh is said to be $18,000. Exempted from the sale is the large granite mausoleum in which are the ancestors of the Haights.

Some time ago E. B. Thomas, President of the Erie Railroad, tried to buy the property.

THE STATUE OF GEN. SHERMAN.

Commission Meets to Consider Plans to Complete Dead Sculptor's Work.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The commission having in charge the erection of the equestrian statue of Gen. Sherman in this city met in the office of the Secretary of War this afternoon to devise means for completing the work of the sculptor and contractor, Carl Rohl-Smith of Chicago, who died several weeks ago while on a visit to Copenhagen. The commission consists of Secretary Root, and Lieut. Gen. Miles, ex-officio, and Gen. G. M. Dodge of Iowa, President of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee. Col. Bingham, the engineer officer in charge of public buildings and grounds, who has had the supervision of the work on the statue, was present, and placed the commission in possession of all the facts in the case.

Considerable work has already been done toward the fulfillment of the contract, including the erection of a large pedestal. The pedestal figures representing the four branches of the army are finished. The horse is also been partly finished, and there are many studies for the figure of Sherman. The main question to be determined by the commission is the selection of a sculptor to complete the unfinished work of the deceased artist. It seems to be generally agreed that the statue is to be completed in accordance with the original design. Several leading sculptors of this country have indicated a willingness to complete the work, and Mrs. Carl Rohl-Smith, widow of the original contractor, has offered to carry out her husband's contract, with the assistance of a sculptor to be selected by herself.

BANK INCREASES ITS CAPITAL.

Continental National of Chicago Issues $1,000,000 More Stock.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Directors of the Continental National Bank met this afternoon and decided to issue $1,000,000 more capital stock, as authorized by the shareholders some weeks ago. This will make the capital of the bank $3,000,000. Stockholders will subscribe for the increased capital at par, which is below the market value of the stock.

The increased demand for accommodations consequent upon many new and enlarged business schemes and ventures is responsible for the action of the Directors.

KILLED BY MEAT IN HIS THROAT

Man Falls Dead After Eating Hearty Meal in Restaurant.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, Dec. 3.—John Jaycox of Putnam Valley met with a sudden and peculiar death at Cold Spring a few days ago.

Jaycox came into the village and drank a good deal. He walked into the restaurant of Mrs. George Brown and ordered a hearty meal, eating all of it. When he was about to leave he fell heavily on the floor and examination showed that he was dead.

It was thought that heart disease and drinking had caused his death, but when Drs. Conklin and Fillebrown made an autopsy it was found that his death was due to a piece of meat having become lodged in his throat.

No Hugh K. Norman Will Filed.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Dec. 3.—No will of Hugh K. Norman, whose wife, formerly Dorothy Prindall of Gloucester, Mass., sued him for divorce, was filed for probate here to-day, as a New York paper said it would be.

In fact, Mr. Norman, who was practically disinherited by his father, George H. Norman, who made millions building water works, left only a small estate, if any, though his father's will provided only for his support. It could not be learned here to-day that Hugh K. Norman left a will, and it is believed he did not.

Strange Epidemic in Montclair.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 3.—Local physicians are puzzled over a disease that is epidemic here, the cause of which they have not been able to ascertain and to which they have not as yet given a name. There have been forty cases of the malady within the past week, the doctors say, and although it has not proved fatal in a single instance, its victims have suffered terribly. Dr. J. A. Allis says it is a stomach disorder—a contraction of the muscles followed by severe cramps lasting about six hours, after which have come fits of vomiting, leaving the victim sore, weak, and hardly able to speak.

Ballantine's India Pale Ale is regularly used at many of the college training tables.—Adv.

FATAL EXPLOSION IN CHICAGO RAILWAY YARD

Five Killed and Twelve Injured by Boiler Bursting in Power House.

DEBRIS HIT MOVING TRAIN

Several of the Injured Expected to Die—Traffic Delayed for Hours—Loss of $100,000.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Five railroad employes were instantly killed and twelve persons injured by the explosion of a boiler in the power house of the Chicago and Northwestern Road this evening. Among the injured is John Butterworth, chief electrician of the power house. He is so badly hurt that it is believed he will die. Others injured are also expected to die.

The power house was a two-story structure which stood west of the passenger station and north of the tracks leading into it. On the first floor was the boiler room, containing a battery of four boilers, and the dynamo room, which held nine dynamos. Twelve men were employed around the building, and, in addition to such of these as were present at the time, several strangers were standing around watching the dynamos.

It is not known what caused the explosion, as everything in the boiler room seemed in excellent condition, according to the uninjured men who worked in the place. At a few minutes past 5 o'clock one of the boilers in the centre of the row of four burst with a detonation that was plainly heard at points a mile distant. The end of the boiler nearest the tracks was the weak part of the structure, and it flew toward the station tracks, and landed fully seventy feet away from its starting point. The boiler itself, which weighed ten tons, lies to-night sixty feet from the boiler house.

Just as the explosion occurred the Ashland limited train was pulling out of the station. The greater part of the train had passed, and although the cars were all heavily battered with falling brick and debris, none of them was badly damaged, and the passengers within them escaped unhurt.

The last two cars, a Pullman sleeper, and a drawing-room car, were not so fortunate, and the boiler head and the boiler itself caught them. The boiler struck the car in the rear, while the boiler head plowed through the one immediately in front. Fortunately both flew high and struck the cars above the windows, carrying away portions of the roof and vestibule. But few of the passengers happened at the time to be in the ends of the two cars hit by the flying metal, and such of them as were hurt were struck by flying splinters, or suffered from being thrown violently to the floor.

On the train were Mr. and Mrs. August Beck of Milwaukee and Mr. and Mrs. William Becker of Sheboygan, Wis. Both couples were returning from their bridal tour, and all four were injured. Mrs. Beck was dashed against a seat in the car and sustained internal injuries which may prove fatal. Neither of the cars was thrown from the track and the engine drew them a considerable distance before coming to a stop.

The destruction of the electric lighting plant plunged the station into darkness and the pile of débris which was thrown across the tracks temporarily blocked the suburban traffic of the road.

Every one of the injured was shown by the officials of the Northwestern Road. All were conveyed as quickly as possible to hospitals, where their wounds were dressed.

The property loss to the road will not be far from $100,000. The boiler-house was practically reduced to a ruin, two sides being blown completely out and the costly electric plant was nearly torn to pieces.

The regular traffic of the road was delayed about four hours. The cause of the explosion is a mystery, the boilers having been inspected by the insurance companies Sept. 1 and Nov. 1, and being reported in perfect order.

MR. ODELL AS A REFORMER.

Has Decided to Abolish Unnecessary Offices and Merge Positions Wherever Possible.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Dec. 3.—There was consternation on Capitol Hill to-day when it became known that Gov.-elect Odell had decided to merge all positions that it was possible to merge and to lop off these which are needless, in order to make a record for himself as an economical official.

Mr. Odell has been collecting information which led up to this resolve, and the first step he intends to take is to dispense with special attorneys, and place all the work they are engaged upon under the Attorney General's department. During the past few years attorneys have multiplied rapidly, several departments employing them.

Mr. Odell looks upon the whole matter as an abuse, and feels that many positions in the public service can be done away with or be consolidated with others without materially affecting the efficiency of the incoming administration.

TO CONTEST HOYT WILL.

Three First Cousins of the Playwright May Resort to Law.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 3.—Although no definite steps have been taken, it is altogether probable that the relatives of the late Charles H. Hoyt, the playwright, will make a contest in the courts to break his last will and testament.

It had been understood by friends of the deceased that there were no nearer relatives than second and third cousins, but the fact has developed within a few days that there are three, and possibly more, first cousins living. One is Mary E., wife of William R. Green of this city, who is employed at the Abbot Downing Carriage works. Another is her brother, Joseph B. Hoyt of Nashua. Both of these cousins are children of the late Samuel P. Hoyt, a native of this city.

The relationship of Mrs. Green was not unknown to Charles Hoyt. When he was a member of the Legislature he met a son of William Green and in a half hour's conversation with him learned all he could of the family connections. He assured young Green that he would call on his mother before leaving town, but failed to do so.

The third first cousin is a Kate Hale of Boston, with whom the members of the family here are unacquainted. Charles Hoyt had two aunts who married and lived at some place in the West not known here, and it is presumed that Kate Hale may be a daughter of one of them.

Official Election Returns Delayed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Dec. 3.—From present indications the State Board of Canvassers will not pass upon the vote cast at the late election until the 15th inst., the limit of time. All the counties but four have made returns, including New York. The reason for delay in canvassing the vote is the great amount of work necessary in tabulating and comparing the figures, the vote on Electors making the task an unusually heavy one.

FILIPINOS TAKE THE OATH.

2,200 Rebels Swear Allegiance to the United States.

MANILA, Dec. 3.—Sunday in Vigan was a great day for the American cause. Twenty-two hundred natives of the region, nearly all fighting rebels, crowded the church and took the oath of allegiance to the United States. The oath was administered by the priest. All but 500 of those sworn were bolomen. The number included the 1,200 bolomen who had previously surrendered.

The proceedings in the church occupied the entire day, and included an address by Gen. Young and an exhortation by the priest. Scarcely any rebels remain in the vicinity of Santa Maria. Gen. Young attributes this fact to three causes—the re-election of President McKinley, the arrival of a stronger body of troops, and the especially rigid enforcement of war measures and the deportation of prisoners to Manila. He reports that it is necessary to occupy all the barriers in order to protect the natives from the vengeance of Tagalog raiders.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The War Department to-day received the following dispatch from Gen. MacArthur, telling of the voluntary surrender of a large number of insurrectos to Gen. Young at Santa Maria. The omission in the telegram comes of faulty transmission or an inability to plausibly decipher the missing words:

"Adjutant General, Washington:

"Twenty-one hundred and eighty Katipunan insurrectos whom Consique enrolled (bolomen) came from the mountains and surrendered to Gen. Samuel B. M. Young to-day at Santa Maria. (They) renounced insurrection and swore allegiance to the United States. The oath was administered by the padre (priest) at the church with impressive religious ceremonies.

"Gen. Young attributes the surrender to President's re-election and vigorous prosecution of the war. Although no rifles surrendered, this is important as indicating a reaction among the people. —— Movable columns Samar, Panay commenced operations. Twenty-eighth Regiment United States Volunteer Infantry goes to Mindanao."

Santa Maria is a town of 10,030 inhabitants situated nineteen miles from Vigan in the Province of Ilocas Sur.

FATE FOILED HENRY MOORE.

His Wish that His Throat Be Cut After Death and His Body Cremated Not Carried Out.

The death of Henry Moore on Oct. 29 was announced here yesterday in a very peculiar manner. For over thirty years he had been well-known in this city, where he lived at the Hotel St. George, Broadway and Twelfth Street, as a man who had retired after most successful business ventures in what was then known as the Western Reserve. He left New York last June on his usual Summer trip to England. His friends supposed he was still alive until the announcement of the filing of his will yesterday in the Surrogate's Office.

Mr. Moore had a great fear that he might be buried alive. By his will he gives $500 to the person who will see that his body is cremated, but before his body is consigned to the retort he desires that his carotid artery be severed by his friend and physician, Dr. Benjamin R. Morrow of 207 Second Avenue, to whom he bequeaths $100 as a fee for this purpose. These precautions were taken in vain. Mr. Moore died suddenly while staying with relatives in London, England, and was buried in the usual way, his body being placed beside that of his wife, who died over twenty years ago while on a visit to England.

Mr. Moore would have been ninety-one years old if he had lived to March 25 next. His business and social career was marked with many incidents. He came to the United States in 1842. For several years he was a clerk in a hardware store in this city. The firm he was employed by sent him on one trip to Cuba, and then in 1845 put him in charge of a branch house at Cleveland, Ohio. Soon after, the hardware firm failed, and Mr. Moore was left to his own resources. He at once became a public auctioneer. In this and other business ventures in Cleveland, he was so successful that in 1869 he retired and came to New York to live. Every year he and his wife went to England on a visit, and it was while there in 1880 that Mrs. Moore died. To his friends Mr. Moore often expressed a desire that he should also die in England, but that he did not expect to do so on his recent trip is shown in a letter which he wrote to Dr. Morrow on May 18 last. In this letter Mr. Moore says:

I am booked for—not the other world just yet I hope—the other side of the Atlantic. I leave on Saturday, June 2, by the steamship Marquette.

Nothing more was heard here from Mr. Moore by those who had been his friends until his sons had the will offered for probate. As to the throat cutting and cremation provision in the will, Dr. Morrow said last night:

"Several years ago Mr. Moore read an account in an English paper of a man making arrangements in his will to have his throat cut after death. At that time he wrote me he would make a similar provision and asked me to do the cutting. I thought nothing of it until I heard of the will to-day."

The will as filed is dated June 2, 1893. The bulk of the estate is given to his two sons. One of these, William G. Moore, is Vice President of A. B. Kirk & Co., and the other, Henry F. Moore, is with Cook & Bernheimer.

GOLD TO BUILD A CHURCH.

Minister's Dream of a Mammoth Temple May Be Realized.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 3.—A rich vein of gold ore has been cut by the Goodwill Temple Gold Mining and Milling Company in the Cripple Creek district. This means that Goodwill Temple, the largest church ever projected, will be built in the near future in Chicago. This is the realization of the aim of the Rev. J. S. Bitler's life, and is the direct answer to ten years of praying.

The Rev. Mr. Bitler is at present conducting revival meetings at the First Methodist Episcopal Church. He lives in Chicago. About ten years ago he saw in a vision a mighty church built for the masses in a large city. Since that time it has been the object of his life to build that temple. He discovered no means, however, with which to build the structure until a year ago last August, when he met A. J. Wharton, a rich mine owner of Colorado. To him Mr. Bitler unfolded his plan, which met with such favor in the eyes of the mine owner that he decided to give his aid to the work. He presented Bitler with 100 acres of mining land, and a telegram to-day announces a rich strike on the land worth $1,000,000.

LODGE RITES PROVE FATAL.

Explosion of Chemicals Causes Death of One Member and Injures Another.

BEVERLY, Mass., Dec. 3.—An explosion of chemicals, the use of which was for spectacular effect in the initiatory rites in the Improved Order of Red Men, cost the life of Past Sachem Ira T. Crockett of Lynn and severely burned W. F. Rogers of that city, both of the Winnepurket Tribe degree staff, to-night.

The warrior's degree was being worked for Chickatawbet Tribe of this city by the degree staff of the Lynn tribe, and the latter were in an ante-room robing themselves for the work. The explosion occurred there, but the reason for it is not known.

Past Sachem Crockett and Mr. Rogers were preparing the chemicals. Crockett's leg was terribly lacerated in the groin, and on the right leg the femoral artery was severed. Rogers was burned on the right arm and side. A surgeon was immediately called and both men sent to the Beverly Hospital. Mr. Crockett died about 11:15. Mr. Rogers will recover.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS IS AGAIN IN SESSION

Members Listen to the Reading of the President's Message.

TRANSACT LITTLE BUSINESS

New Members Sworn In in Both Branches—Mr. Bailey of Texas Starts a Debate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Time does not diminish popular interest in the opening of Congress. To-day, as heretofore, the Capitol was thronged with people who were drawn by curiosity, pride, or friendship, to see the members of the two houses resume their places and begin the business of making laws for the Nation. There have been larger throngs present than there were to-day, and those greater crowds have been more enthusiastic and eager, but there were enough people about to overcrowd the seating capacity of the Senate and to keep many disappointed ones waiting in the upper halls of the House to secure seats that were vacated by other and earlier comers.

Of actual business there was practically nothing of interest in either house. The reading of the President's message, the announcement of the death of Senators and Representatives, and the swearing in of new members completed the work of the day.

FLOWER SHOW IN THE HOUSE.

The House of Representatives was half blooming garden and half desert, with occasional oases. The Republican side glowed with the gold of vast bunches of chrysanthemums and other flowers favoring the gold standard in color. The Democratic side was not without flowers, but they were so few as compared with the profusion on the other side as to provoke natural comment, and the count made by the close observer, who found that of ninety-six separate flower gifts, seventy-eight were on the desks of Republicans.

Quite the most elaborate of all the floral shows was that about the seat of Representative Babcock of Wisconsin, Chairman of the important District of Columbia Committee and of the Republican Congressional Committee. When he took his seat he disappeared from the view of all in front of him, and he did not again become visible until after a dray load of flowers had been hurried away by alert pages.

The usual scenes of handshaking among old members took place, but there were no greetings of members by applause. The Democratic side did not appear gloomier than usual, although many members on that side were pointed out from the galleries as having suffered defeat in the recent contest, and as doomed to disappear with the Spring, not to return for at least two years. While the galleries were filled, on the floor there were vacant seats, a larger number on the Democratic than on the Republican side.

THE SENATE A GARDEN.

The Senate looked like a rose garden. Nearly all the desks were strewn with loose flowers or covered with elaborate "floral tributes." The exceptions were mostly those of Democrats. Roses were everywhere, with chrysanthemums a good second, and other flowers nowhere. The biggest bunch of flowers was away off in the rear rank, on the obscure desk of Senator Hanna. He was hidden behind a perfect monument of flowers, several feet high. An occasional glimpse of a pudgy hand was the only thing that indicated the presence of Mr. Hanna.

This was Senator Platt's painful day. The opening day of the session always seems a terror to Mr. Platt, on account of the flowers. He always gets plenty of them, and it seems to try his soul. He looks apprehensively at the initial bunch, and sinks resignedly into his seat, where he sits huddled into a heap, occas member of the House, and stated in his resignation that it should take effect Dec. 1. Mr. Bailey made the point that as the resignation could not take effect until Dec. 1 it was only a notice of intention, liable to revocation, and not justifying the Governor of Iowa in calling an election to fill a vacancy. The Speaker considered the point of enough importance to lead him to delay swearing in Mr. Connor in order that the objection he investigated.

The President's message was submitted and read. It did not stir the House at all, and the little applause heard was lacking in spirit. The part that seemed to be impressive to the House was the last paragraph, in which the majority was admonished to consider the necessity of economy when the country is most prosperous. At that very moment, however, members with public building bills on the calendar were rejoicing in the report that all public building bills receiving favorable consideration in committee are to be put in an "omnibus" bill, and then all are to be passed together. That is not a new expedient, but it has not been tried in recent years.

The deaths of Representatives Daly and Hoffecker were announced, and after the adoption of resolutions of regret the House adjourned.

THE NEW HOUSE MEMBERS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—There are ten new members of the Fifty-sixth Congress elected to fill vacancies caused by death or resignation, two of the vacancies occurring in the State of Iowa.

Samuel Davis Woods, who in his biographical sketch in The Congressional Directory mentions that "his election restores the Second Congressional District of California to the Republican Party," is a Tennesscean, who has lived in California since 1850, and has been a practitioner chiefly in the Supreme Court of California since 1875.

Walter Oakey Hoffecker of Delaware takes the place of his father, John Henry Hoffecker, who died during the recess of Congress. He is a civil engineer by profession, a graduate of Lehigh University, a farmer and canner, and also engaged in the fire insurance business.

Walter I. Smith, elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Smith McPherson, has been Judge of the Fifteenth Judicial District of Iowa, but does not mention having held any other office prior to his election to Congress.

James Perry Connor of Iowa, chosen to take the place of Mr. Dolliver, from the Tenth District, but required to stand aside pending decision upon the legality of his election, is an Indianan, educated in Iowa. He has been a District Attorney, Circuit Judge, and District Judge in his State.

Josiah Leeds Kerr, Republican, of Maryland, who takes the place of J. TO CONSIDER SUBSIDY BILL.

Measure Is Made Unfinished Business in the Senate—Hay-Pauncefote Treaty Next in Order.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Republican Senatorial Committee on Order of Business to-day decided that the Ship Subsidy bill should displace the Spooner Philippine bill as the unfinished business. It also considered at the same time the disposition of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and decided that that question should receive alternate attention with the shipping bill. The arrangement provides that the shipping bill shall have preference, but that when no one is prepared to make a speech on it the Senate shall go into executive session for the consideration of the treaty.

In accordance with this, Senator Frye, (Rep., Me.,) as the first opportunity to-morrow will move to take up the bill, and if this motion prevails, as there is little doubt it will, the effect will be to displace the Spooner bill, which there is no disposition at this time to press. Senator Frye probably will make a speech. It is not expected that any other Senator will be prepared to proceed on the subsidy measure, and in that event Senator Lodge (Rep., Mass.,) of the Committee on Foreign Relations, who will have charge of the treaty, will move an executive session, in order to consider the treaty.

The arrangement further provides that if the Army bill reaches the Senate prior to the disposal of the Shipping bill or the treaty, either or both of these may be displaced temporarily in order to permit the prompt consideration of that measure, which is considered to be of more pressing importance than either of the other questions. The same understanding prevails regarding the appropriation bills.

Senator Morgan's (Dem., Ala.) Nicaragua Canal bill received some consideration at the hands of the Committee on Order of Business. While no definite agreement was reached concerning it, the opinion was generally expressed that it should wait upon the Senate's action on the treaty.

The members of the committee apparently consider that the ratification of the treaty is a mere preliminary to the passage of the Canal bill, and the present disposition is to contend for that order of precedence.

The committee also discussed the possibility of Democratic opposition to the Subsidy bill. Some of the members who had talked with the Democratic Senators expressed the opinion that there would be no effort to prevent this legislation by factious opposition, though they expect a number of speeches against it.

Senator Lodge was called into the conference for the purpose of consultation concerning the treaty. He stated that he would be prepared to proceed with it at any time, and that he was anxious to have it disposed of at as early a day as possible.

MR. ROOT'S BILL INTRODUCED.

Army Measure Will Be Reported To-day and Considered Not Later than Friday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Secretary Root's bill for the reorganization of the army was introduced to-day by Chairman Hull (Rep., Iowa,) of the House Military Committee, and at once referred to that committee. Work on the bill has been in progress and the measure now is practically completed and ready to be reported. The report probably will be made to-morrow and Chairman Hull says he hopes to begin consideration of the measure within a day or two, certainly by Friday, with the expectation of passing it in the House before the close of the present week. Mr. Hull says the requirements of the military service make it essential to pass the measure without delay.

One of the changes in the bill made by the committee to-day was to adopt an anti-canteen amendment, offered by Mr. Hay, (Dem., Va.,) prohibiting the sale of liquor on military property, transports, &c. Another change made creates an Inspector of Artillery, instead of a Chief of Artillery, who is to be on the staff of the General commanding the army.

DEMOCRATS OPPOSE THE BILL.

Meet in Caucus, but Adjourn Without Taking Action.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—A caucus of the Democratic members of the House of Representatives was held in the hall of the House at the close of the session to-day to consider the course to be taken on army legislation. Mr. Hay, (Va.,) a member of the Military Committee, explained the status of the Army bill proposed by Secretary Root, and urged the desirability of not legislating until the course of the Government as to the Philippines had been more definitely determined. He proposed the following resolution:

"That it is the sense of this caucus that the law now in existence as to the army be continued for two years from July 1, 1900."

This led to extended discussion. Mr. Slayden, (Texas,) also of the Military Committee, amended the time to one year. Mr. Jones (Va.) offered a substitute resolution expressing the opposition of the caucus to the Army Reorganization bill submitted by the War Department. Representatives Richardson, (Tenn.,) Bailey, (Texas,) Carmack, (Tenn.,) Newlands, (Nevada,) Cox, (Tenn.,) and others made speeches showing considerable diversity of opinion as to what should be done. Mr. Hay finally withdrew his resolution and the other positions were not pressed, the caucus adjourning without action.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S REPORT.

Statistics of Work of Department—Asks for Increased Appropriation for Washington Building.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Attorney General Griggs this afternoon sent his annual report to Congress. It opens with a statement of the conditions of the work of the United States Supreme Court, which shows that 370 appellate cases were docketed and 371 were disposed of, leaving 303 cases still pending. On July 1, 1899, there were 3,137 United States convicts in the various prisons and reformatories of the country, against 2,293 at the close of the last fiscal year. In 907 of the 1,630 civil suits terminated during the last fiscal year, judgments were for the United States; in 206 against the United States; 489 were either dismissed or discontinued, and 28 were appealed.

Of the 17,038 criminal prosecutions terminated during the last year 197 were prosecutions under the customs laws, in which there were 126 convictions; 6,275 under the internal revenue laws, in which there were 3,749 convictions; 1,153 under Post Office laws, in which there were 772 convictions; 6 under naturalization acts, in which there were 4 discontinued and 2 entered nol. pros.; 963 under the intercourse laws, in which there were 630 convictions; 206 under the pension laws, in which there were 145 convictions; 53 for embezzlement, in which there were 32 convictions, and 3,180 miscellaneous prosecutions, in which there were 4,880 convictions.

The aggregate amount of the judgments rendered in favor of the United States in civil suits during the last year was $868,299, and the amount actually collected on these judgments was $52,795, while $52,748 was obtained during the year on judgments rendered in former years for the United States and $27,130 was otherwise realized in civil suits. The aggregate amount of fines, forfeitures, and penalties imposed during the year in criminal prosecutions was $705,137, and the amount of these fines, forfeitures, and penalties collected during the year was $148,020, while $8,203 was realized on fines, forfeitures, and penalties imposed in former years.

Owing to the increase in the price of building material the Attorney General asks for an increase of the limit and an additional appropriation which will enable the department to construct a new building for the Department of Justice, of style and finish that will be in keeping with the dignity of the Government and a credit to the National capital.

WAR DEPARTMENT ESTIMATES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Secretary of War forwarded to-day to the House Committee on Appropriations a comparative statement of War Department estimates for the fiscal years 1901 and 1902, together with a statement of appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901. The estimates for 1901 amount to $185,903,551, and the estimates for 1902 amount to $171,773,855. The appropriations for the present fiscal year amount to $148,205,934.

The estimates for public works, including rivers and harbors, fortifications, &c., amounting to $25,560,665, are $183,245 more than the estimates for 1901 and $24,710,851 more than the appropriations for the present fiscal year. This increase is accounted for by the fact that an aggregate sum of $20,000,000 is included in the present estimates for the river and harbor work, exclusive of continuing contract work for which no appropriation was made for the current fiscal year, and by an increase of $2,380,000 in the estimate for gun and mortar batteries and an increase of $2,356,398 in the estimate for armament of fortifications.

ASKS FOR MORE CONGRESSMEN.

New Bill Provides for Reapportionment Under Last Census.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The first bill of the session introduced in the House of Representatives was by Representative Crumpacker, (Rep., Ind.,) "making an apportionment of representatives in Congress under the eleventh census." It provides an increase of membership from 357 to 365. Under it the following States would gain in representation: Arkansas, 1; Colorado, 1; California, 1; Connecticut, 1; Florida, 1; Illinois, 2; Massachusetts, 1; Minnesota, 2; Missouri, 1; New Jersey, 2; New York, 3; North Dakota, 1; Pennsylvania, 2; Texas, 2; Washington, 1; West Virginia, 1.

The following States lose: Kansas, 1; Louisiana, 2; Mississippi, 3; Nebraska, 1; North Carolina, 4; South Carolina, 3; Virginia, 1.

REPORT ON "CONSPIRACY BILL."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Representative Littlefield, (Rep., Me.,) from the Judiciary Committee of the House, to-day presented a favorable report on what is known as the "Conspiracy bill," limiting the use of restraining orders and injunctions in disputes between employers and employes in places under federal control. The report favors two changes in the bill. One strikes out the provision which would have the effect of excepting combinations in trade disputes from the operations of the Sherman Anti-Trust law. The other amends the bill so it will cover instances of threats to injure persons or property, business or occupation, or overt acts of interference with the rights of others. Otherwise the bill is preserved in limiting the scope of injunctions, conspiracies, &c.

No Caucus on Revenue Reduction.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Chairman Payne (Rep., N. Y.,) of the Ways and Means Committee said to-day that no exact programme had been fixed as to the time of acting in committee on the bill reducing the revenues or for considereing the measure in the House. There has been some talk of a caucus, but it has not come to the attention of Mr. Payne that a caucus on the measure is desired, and there is some doubt as to whether one will be required.

CONGRESSIONAL NOTES.

Mr. Hawley (Rep., Texas,) introduced a bill in the House providing for a breakwater to protect the City of Galveston against devastating storms and calling for a report from the Secretary of War relative to the measures of protection suitable to the situation.

A resolution in behalf of ex-President Krueger was introduced in the House to-day by Representative Fitzgerald, (Dem., Mass.) It recites: "Whereas, The heroic struggle made by the Boer Republics to maintain their existence has excited the sympathy of the whole world, therefore be it

"Resolved, That the efforts of Paul Krueger to obtain the assistance of the civilized nations of the world in securing peace and proper terms of settlement between Great Britain and the Boer Republics is deserving of the praise and sympathy of the American people."

Among the bills introduced in the House were the following: By Mr. Scudder, (Dem., N. Y.) —Fixing the compensation of life savers. By Mr. Bouteli, (Rep., Ill.)—For the education of the blind. By Mr. Shafroth, (Sil., Col.)—For constructing reservoirs in arid-land States. By Mr. Hull, (Rep., R. I.)—For retiring petty officers and enlisted men of the navy; also, for equalizing the pay of naval officers with those of officers of like rank in the army.

Girl Athletes in a Quarrel.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 3.—Because of a disagreement over the rules there will be no basketball game to-morrow between the Newark and Jersey City High School girls. The game was scheduled to be played in the Bayley Lyceum. The Newark girls say the agreement was that the game should be governed by the rules adopted last year for women's basketball. To-day the Jersey City girls telephoned that they would refuse to play unless under the rules adopted for men. The Newark girls will claim the game by default.

FAVORS NICARAGUA ROUTE

Canal Commission Finds that Its Advantages Preponderate.

NO DIRECT RECOMMENDATION

Merits and Demerits of Both Routes to be Set Forth and Congress to Decide.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Members of the Inter-Oceanic Canal Commission have been beset to-day by inquiries concerning the report that they are to unanimously advocate the selection of the Nicaragua route for the canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Holding themselves bound by an agreement to secrecy, they would not discuss the report, but such information as can be obtained sustains their declaration that the assertion that they unanimously favor the Nicaragua route is conjecture.

A week ago the statement was published in THE TIMES, in a dispatch from Washington, that there would be a unanimous report. From what can be learned now, that report is still correct. It is understood that but one report will be made. There is to be no minority representation, but it is also understood that there will be no direct recommendation for any route. In describing the advantages and disadvantages of all the proposed routes, it is true that the commission finds that the advantages of the Nicaragua route preponderate. Having pointed out the advantages in this way, it is left to Congress to decide which route shall be adopted.

A member of the House Committee having the subject in charge directed attention to-day to the language of the President in his message as supporting the proposition that the commission does not directly recommend any route. The President says:

"The views of Congress upon the general subject in the light of the report of the commission appointed to examine the comparative merits of the various trans-Isthmian ship canal projects, may be awaited."

This is taken as indicating that the commission does not directly recommend any route, but it is conjectured that it does find the Nicaragua route preferable.

In connection with this subject Secretary Hay is coming in for much commendation for his judicious management of the interests of the United States in Colombia, Costa Rica, and Nicaragua. The good-will and interest of all three nations has been kept alive by the uncertainty as to which country was to have the canal, and until a decision is reached there will be some striving between Colombia and Costa Rica and Nicaragua to obtain the location preferred by each.

The President makes it plain to-day that a treaty has not been arranged with Nicaragua, but that "overtures" in that direction have been made. This disposes of the ingenious suggestion that the Clayton-Bulwer agreement had been violated by the negotiation of an instrument practically disregarding that treaty. The treaty contemplated and to which the protocol refers will not be signed until the Senate has disposed of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty modifying the Clayton-Bulwer convention.

Great Britain and Nicaragua.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Regarding the dispatch from Washington published in New York this morning saying that Great Britain is endeavoring to negotiate a treaty of amity and commerce with Nicaragua, which is alleged to have disturbed the American State Department officials, a representative of the Foreign Office stated to-day that Great Britain is negotiating with Nicaragua for a renewal of the existing commercial treaty, but that nothing whatever has been suggested of an exceptional character.

DEATH MARS THEIR WEDDINGS.

Joseph H. Godwin, Jr., died suddenly of apoplexy on Sunday at his home, Riverdale Avenue, King's Bridge. Mr. Godwin was a son of Joseph H. Godwin, a retired carriage builder, and for many years had had charge of his father's financial affairs. He was born fifty-four years ago, and was graduated from Williams College. He was at one time a School Trustee of the Twenty-fourth Ward, and for a number of years was a State Fish and Game Commissioner. He leaves a wife, four sons, and one daughter. His father, who also survives him, is eighty-three years of age.

Mr. Godwin's daughter, Ada, is to be married on Dec. 12 to Herbert Randall of Warburton, near Yonkers, in the Church of the Mediator, at King's Bridge, and Jan. 30 is set for the wedding of his son, Cortlandt Godwin, to Sara W. Hedge, daughter of Charles G. Hedge, Vice President and Treasurer of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway. The weddings will take place on the days appointed, but the invitations sent out have been recalled.

Twice before death has preceded weddings in the Godwin family. Miss Maude Wallace, niece of Mr. Godwin, lost her grandmother two weeks previous to her marriage, and a relative of Mrs. Godwin died a fortnight before her marriage.

Clubman Charged with Larceny.

Oscar Oliver, a member of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Smith, in Long Island City, on a charge of grand larceny. Oliver was for four weeks employed as a bookkeeper by the Daimler Motor Company, at Astoria, and was charged by C. F. Frayer, manager of the company, with appropriating $147, which, it was alleged, he took from a safe in the office. Oliver was arrested at the Knickerbocker Athletic Club-house Saturday. Magistrate Smith adjourned the case until Friday next, and in default of bail Oliver was committed to the Queens County Jail.

Queer Mishap to L'Aquitaine.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—Owing to a misdirected hammer blow by one of a number of men working near the keel of L'Aquitaine at Havre yesterday, the liner sprang a leak, and the water entered her machine rooms, causing her to heel over. Her moorings broke, and the stage connecting the quay with the vessel fell, precipitating three men into the water. The men were quickly rescued, and measures were immediately taken to pump out the leakage.

Duke of Manchester's Special Car.

The special car in which the Duke and Duchess of Manchester will journey to the home of the bride's father, Eugene Zimmerman, in Cincinnati, arrived at Jersey City yesterday morning. The car is No. 7 of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad. The interior is finished in cherry and the exterior is painted a maroon color. The car contains a dining room, a kitchen, two staterooms, and an observation room.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Rudolph Aronson has arranged with Manager Jacob Litt for the production of Johann Strauss's new operetta entitled "Wiener Blut," at the Broadway Theatre, on Jan. 21.

Weber & Fields will put on two weeks before Christmas a new burlesque, the play being a travesty on the garden scene of "A Royal Family," now being played by Annie Russell at the Lyceum. The actor-managers will also introduce several skits on some of the popular successes now being played in New York theatres.

After the termination of this week's engagement at Koster & Bial's, Pauline Hall will be loaned under a year's contract by the Hasbim Brothers to Henry Savage, who has arranged to have Miss Hall appear with his company in the Studebacher Theatre, Chicago, beginning Jan. 7, opening in the title rôle of "Erminie."

One of the features of the special matinée performance to be given by Miss Irwin on Thursday afternoon of her new play, "Madge Smith, Attorney," will be a budget of new songs which will be heard for the first time. Besides these songs sung by Miss Irwin, Joseph Sparks will have a number entitled, "The Turkey and the Turk," written for him, and also a new one for Ignacio Martinetti, French in character.

The stage of the Herald Square Theatre was the scene of considerable activity from yesterday morning until a long way toward the time for the evening performance to begin. It seems that Manager Shubert had promised the use of his stage to Charles Frohman for rehearsing Miss Edna May and her company from 10:30 until 12, when "The Cadet Girl" company took possession until 2:30 to rehearse a new member, who is to succeed Miss Adele Ritchie in the title rôle. Then La Shelle & Hamlin's "Arizona" company No. 3 occupied the stage until 6 o'clock. During all this time Mr. Shubert's company, which is to appear on Friday afternoon in John C. Dixon's new play, "Sold and Paid For," for the benefit of the widow and children of Joe Ott, was rehearsing in the art room of the theatre.

HAD HER NOSE ALTERED

Miss Humphreys Afterward Brought Suit for Damages.

Claimed the Job Was an Unsuccessful One—Recovered $100 Damages from the Dermatologist.

Ettie Humphreys, a rather pleasing looking young woman, was a dressmaker who had a voice and considerable musical talent. Her ambition was to go on the stage, but in her own opinion there was one obstacle in the way. This was a little too much prominence of the tip of her nose. Miss Humphreys visited Woodbury's dermatological institute and had an operation performed. The result of this operation was an action for $10,000 damages which was on trial all day yesterday before Justice Beekman and a jury in the Supreme Court and resulted in a verdict of $100 in her favor.

Miss Humphreys was the first witness called.

"What was your occupation before you were operated upon?" she was asked.

"I was a dressmaker."

"Did you sing any then?"

"Oh, yes."

Miss Humphreys then told how she had sung in a number of concerts and had finally decided to go on the stage. "I did not consider my nose quite symmetrical," she said, "and as I wanted a perfect profile I went to the defendant's institute."

She explained that her idea was to have it altered from retrousse to a regular Roman nose. In October, 1897, she went to the dermatological institute and arranged to have the operation performed. Her claim was that those in charge agreed for $60 to give her a genuine Roman nose, and that there would be no scar. At the end of six weeks she said her nose had not been benefited, and further there was a decided scar.

After she had told all of this her counsel said:

"Now show your nose to the Court and jury."

At this command Miss Humphreys placed her nose in evidence, although the stenographer did not stamp the exhibit, as is usual.

"Why did you have the operation performed?" he asked.

"So as to have a perfect profile."

"Were you not satisfied with your appearance?"

"I was not satisfied with the profile of my nose."

A number of photographs of Miss Humphreys were offered in evidence to show that her nose had been changed, but not for the better, since the operation.

Richard Humphreys, her father, went on the stand as one of the witnesses to identify photographs taken before the opration. He said he was a jeweler at 825½ Broadway.

For the defense, the surgeon who performed the operation said that he was an expert in plastic surgery, and that he had told Miss Humphreys that there would be a scar on the nose.

Dr. Leonard F. Pitkin was then called as an expert. He said that from what he had heard of the case the operation had been skillfully performed. On cross-examination, he was asked:

"Do you consider that Miss Humphrey's nose has a straight profile?"

"I am no judge of profiles."

"What would you say about her nose now?"

"I would say that it was retrousse, tilted up, or pug, so to speak."

Other witnesses for the defense then tried to show that Miss Humphreys had a bulbous growth on the end of the nose, and it was this she had removed. She went on the stand in rebuttal, and denied this, declaring that all she wanted was to have the shape of her nose corrected so that it would be more presentable when she appeared on the stage.

The jury was out about forty-five minutes.

CITIZENS' UNION ORGANIZING.

Progress of the Work of Choosing District Representatives for the Central City Committee.

Members of the Citizens' Union last night held meetings in the Fourteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-ninth Assembly Districts to perfect organizations preparatory to a general organization in Greater New York for participation in the coming Mayoralty campaign.

Thus far associations under the control of the Citizens' Union have been formed in twenty-two of the thirty-five Assembly districts in New York County. Under the provisions of the rules of the union, not less than seventy-five members must be enrolled in each district before any action can be taken warranting representation on the Central City Committee. Thus far the returns have been most satisfactory.

James R. Burnett presided at the meeting at 42 East Twenty-third Street last night, and there was a large attendance. Similar conditions prevailed at the Sherman Square Hotel and in the Twenty-ninth District. Nothing was said about candidates at these meetings, but committees were appointed to provide for meetings in all districts and arrange for a general meeting of those who will affiliate with the Citizens' Union in Manhattan and the Bronx.

The meeting in the Fourteenth District was held at Wilson's Hall, Avenue A and St. Mark's Place. L. A. Hauser was elected as Chairman of the district. It was also moved and carried that John Brooks Leavitt be elected delegate to the City Committee. John J. Biggan was elected Secretary-Treasurer.

PRESBYTERIAN UNION DINNER.

Dr. Dickie Appeals for a New Charity to Replace Creed Contention.

The annual dinner of the Presbyterian Union of the City of New York was held last night at the Hotel Savoy. About one-half of the three hundred members and guests present were women. The President, William E. Stiger, being absent on account of illness, Vice President Frank A. Ferris presided.

The principal address was made by Dr. Charles A. Dickie, Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly. His subject being "Some Interesting Features of Advanced Christian Work." The speaker said he was not indifferent to the worth of a clear and correct Confession of Faith, but he believed that the best presentation of the doctrines of Christ is attention to His teachings.

"We must get the Gospel to the masses and the masses to the Gospel," said the speaker. "We cannot expect the masses to crowd our churches to hear of the life to come until we convince them of the good that is in the life of the present. Our mission lies not so much in being good as in doing good. Let our church swallow up its contention about creeds in a new charity. We want combination in church work as well as in business. It is possible to create a great church, with not one, but a half dozen pastors. Such a church could reach the poor as individual churches cannot."

Miss Mary E. Woolley, President of Mount Holyoke College, spoke on "Glimpses of University Life for Women in England and Scotland," and Dr. James H. Canfield, Librarian of Columbia University, talked entertainingly on "The Value of Books."

ROMAN CATHOLIC FEDERATION.

At a meeting of the Executive Council of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, held at 120 West Sixtieth Street yesterday, the question of uniting the organization with the proposed federation of all Roman Catholic societies in the United States was taken up for discussion. The Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America comprises a membership of 31,000, being probably the largest lay organization in the Roman Catholic Church in the United States.

All the members of the council agreed that the affiliation of the society with the proposed federation would be for the best interest of the organization, provided certain conditions were complied with by the adoption of a platform which should embrace the following principles: The independence of the Holy See, the advancement of religious education, and the maintenance of the apostolate of the press for the dissemination of sound ideas of Catholic doctrine.

Col. J. S. Williams Dead.

The Pianola is an Ideal Christmas Gift. See Special Announcement at bottom of Advertisement.

PADEREWSKI

ORDERS ANOTHER

Pianola

CHALET RIOND-BOSSON MORGES,
7th of November, 1900.

THE AEOLIAN COMPANY,
18 W. 23d St., New York.

GENTLEMEN:

I desire to order another Pianola for use in my residence. Will you kindly select an instrument in rosewood and have packed with it rolls of music and shipped via steamer.

Yours very truly,

I. J. PADEREWSKI.

IT IS not mere chance which makes composers, pianists and musicians of all classes unite in endorsing the Pianola, or lack of artistic temperament which causes Paderewski, Sauer and Rosenthal to select this dexterous little piano player for their own use; yet the history of the Pianola is full of such acknowledgments of merit.

It is evident that the Pianola must give a return in pleasure for the expenditure made, and that this pleasure must be of a pronounced character. Also, the Pianola must afford enjoyment to every one, whether he be a skilled musician or the veriest novice, for each is equally enthusiastic in its praise.

Within a month after Sauer took a Pianola home with him he ordered two more for friends in Germany, the home of piano-forte playing.

Now Paderewski orders another for his residence in Switzerland.

If the appreciation of the Pianola by all musicial authorities is a coincidence, thousands of non-professional music-lovers are enjoying the coincidence with them, and the movement is spreading, with unprecedented rapidity.

You cannot afford to ignore the Pianola if you are interested in your home pleasures.

With its aid any member of your household may play upon the piano even if he or she literally does not know one note from another—not only one or two selections, but every piece of music ever written for the piano-forte. Grand and light operas, Liszt's Rhapsodies, Sousa's marches, and the latest rag-time hits are practically "on your fingers' ends." You have all the pleasure of hand playing because you control the expression which is the soul of music.

The Pianola being placed in position to play upright piano. It does not mar or injure the piano in any way. When not in use it can be removed to another part of the room.

Estimate for yourself the profit in pleasure the Pianola would bring you in a single year.

Christmas and the advent of the winter is the logical time to purchase a Pianola. It is an ideal Christmas gift as it affords entertainment to the entire family throughout the year.

PRICE $250.

Can be bought by moderate monthly payments if desired.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

Owing to the increasing demand for these instruments for Holiday presents and to avoid a repetition of last year's disappointments occasioned by the difficulty of obtaining, at the last moment, Pianolas to match pianos, we make the following announcement: Piano's ordered now will be held subject to your order for future delivery. This courtesy will be extended whether the instruments are bought for cash or by monthly payments.

GRAND JURY INFORMED OF PROTECTED VICE

Judge Foster's Charge Deals with Alleged Official Corruption.

POWERS OF THE JURY DEFINED

The Members Told that it Is Their Duty to Investigate Evil Resorts Now Existing.

Judge Warren W. Foster, in charging the November Grand Jury, sworn in by him yesterday, called the attention of that body in General Sessions to its powers in connection with the vicious resorts and disorderly places that "it is rumored and suggested and stated exist in the city," and whose existence "is owing, perhaps, in large measure to official corruption." District Attorney Gardiner failed to hear Judge Foster's charge, arriving at the doors of Part I., General Sessions, just after the court crier had enjoined all persons to silence. Court Officer Schwab halted the public prosecutor at the entrance and the two remained in conversation until the doors were again opened.

"It is rumored and suggested and stated," said Judge Foster, "in the public press of our city and county, that there exist many vicious resorts and other disorderly places, and that their existence is owing, perhaps, in large measure to official corruption.

"If this be so, these are crimes that it is your bounden and sworn duty to inquire into and present to the Court, and the Court will in every way endeavor to aid you in such inquiry.

"There is little or no limitation to the power which the law gives you in this direction. You may send for whomsoever you will, and compel their attendance. You may examine thoroughly, minutely, mercilessly, whomsoever you may subpoena, and compel answers to your inquiries. If, with all these inquisitorial powers which the law gives you, the Grand Jury, crime and corruption not only exist, but remain unpresented and unpunished, then you will have failed to properly discharge your sworn duty as Grand Jurors of this County.

"But, gentlemen, beware of the private prosecutor. Let him not intrude into your room, and, through malice or hatred, influence your action against his enemy. Ordinarily, where the defendant is within the jurisdiction of the Court, no good reason can exist for having the charge against him first heard by the Grand Jury. Our law contemplates and provides for a hearing before a City Magistrate, where the one accused can be fully advised of the charge against him, and where he may have full opportunity to explain it away; and, if no such opportunity has been afforded the defendant and no preliminary examination has been had, you may safely be very cautious in dealing with such complaints."

Edward A. Van Volkenburgh, a merchant, of 62 Worth Street, who has often served in this capacity, is foreman of the Grand Jury, whose composition is as follows:

Edward W. Dewey, a relative of Admiral Dewey, 408 Broome Street.
Augustus C. Bechstein, casings, 50 Water Street.
George E. Montanye, coffee, 66 Barclay Street.
Cyrus J. Lawrence, banker, 31 Broad Street.
Charles H. Isham, retired, 30 East Sixty-third Street.
William H. Lefferts, merchant, 71 South Street.
Stanley A. Cohen, Secretary, 224 West Fourteenth Street.
Max Ruttenan, commission merchant, 15 Whitehall Street.
J. Henry Haggerty, supplies, 50 South Street.
Henry T. Carr, broker, 42 New Street.
Charles M. Lamline, retired, 325 East Sixty-second Street.
Edmund Penfold, merchant, 45 South Street.
James M. Reyna, retired, 202 West Forty-fourth Street.
Thomas Holland, dumb waiters, 211 East Eighty-fourth Street.
Henry P. Drew, contractor, 286 Second Avenue.
Frederick C. Wagner, real estate, 45 Broadway.
Leopold Stern, jewelry, 144 West Fourteenth Street.
Andrew B. Yetter, storage, 305 East Sixty-first Street.
John Boardman, real estate, 180 Broadway.
William Gibson, Secretary, 320 Broadway.
James H. Parker, banker, 36 Cotton Exchange.
Emil Stork, cigars, 194 Greenwich Street.

Awaiting the action of the Grand Jury are 412 cases, 169 of which are prison cases. The first session yesterday was devoted to the consideration of the complaints against candidates who had failed to file lists of their election expenses with the County Clerk. Seven complaints were dismissed.

THE NOTICES TO OWNERS.

District Attorney's Assistant Reaffirms the Correctness of the List Published—Col. Gardiner's Statement.

No notifications to owners of houses used as illegal resorts were sent out by District Attorney Gardiner yesterday, and no more names of well-known persons, as the owners of such property, were made public, although Assistant District Attorneys Hennessy and O'Reilly were hard at work all day going over the list of title holders submitted by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company.

On this list there are about 200 names, and, although many of the persons and representatives of estates said to be the owners of east side property where vice flourishes have made public denial of ownership, Assistant District Attorney Hennessy insists upon the correctness of the list of owners published and states that he is willing to stake his reputation that the names given as owners of record of the houses are as printed.

"I did not intend to give this matter out," he said, "but upon learning of the appointment of the Committee of Fifteen I decided to do so."

District Attorney Gardiner, when asked regarding the procedure of his office in the matter, said that it was in accordance with his policy decided on last February, when notification blanks were printed and Chief Devery was asked for reports on alleged disorderly and gambling houses. Notices were then sent to owners, he said, and added:

"This was quite beyond the ordinary business of my office, and I wanted if possible to get out of tenement houses and apartment houses those who had settled there when vice was disseminated under the 'Lexow crusade.' In a number of instances we had letters of thanks from the owners, and the nuisances were abated. In other instances it was found that the police had been mistaken, and in still others no answers were received.

"The police reports did not take the form of evidence, and the results were not quite commensurate with the labor involved in this office.

"When, however, State Superintendent of Elections McCullagh employed detectives for a purpose which I do not know, as it was not within the purview of election inquiry, and sent to me sworn complaints of alleged disorderly houses, gambling houses, and policy places, I thought I had something tangible, and before taking them all before a Magistrate, under the terms of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, and also sent to the Title Guarantee and Trust Company to find who the owners of the premises were in order that the formal notices might be sent to them, which, as before remarked, were printed for the office last February.

"Of course, the Title Guarantee and Trust Company officials are alone responsible for their own reports. They have a recognized reputation among lawyers, and do a great deal of work for this office in investigating bail bonds, and thus far with accuracy, so far as I know.

"Whoever have been reported as owners will certainly receive the usual notice."

COMMITTEE OF FIFTEEN.

First Meeting to be Held This Week—No Declinations Expected.

The Committee of Fifteen appointed last Friday by Charles Stewart Smith as a result of the Chamber of Commerce meeting may meet to-morrow. James C. Carter, who will call the members together, will return from his trip to Boston to-day, and it is expected will send out a call for the meeting. It is possible, however, that the first meeting will be deferred until Thursday or Friday. Several of the members are still out of town.

So far as is now known, none of the men selected by Mr. Smith will decline to serve. Mr. Smith said yesterday that while he now has nothing to say regarding the doings of the committee he does not think there will be any declinations.

THE WORK OF TAMMANY.

Complaints of Disorderly Houses Sent to Chief Devery—Capt. Titus Active.

The Tammany Hall committee appointed to investigate vice in the city met at 192 Bowery yesterday afternoon. There was the usual executive session before the public meeting, the details of which were not disclosed.

At the public meeting, Mr. Warley Platzek stated that he had turned over to the Chief of Police some sixty complaints regarding disorderly houses which had been sent to the committee. He also stated that he had turned over to Capt. Titus of the Eldridge Street Station the testimony given by Paul Klopstock at the last meeting, when Klopstock stated that disorderly houses were running without hindrance on various east side streets. Capt. Titus investigated the complaint of the boy and reported that in every case but one the houses alleged to be disorderly were occupied by reputable tenants.

James B. Reynolds, head worker of the University Settlement, yesterday commended the work that Capt. Titus is doing in his precinct, which he said was now comparatively clean on the surface.

"There is no telling, however," he said, "how long these conditions will last. We have had the same experience before, and the resorts opened again as soon as the restraint was removed. It seems that the women have merely been driven from the houses to the tenements, and but few have left the district altogether."

Mr. Reynolds said that the Tenement House Commission, of which he is a member, would make certain recommendations to the incoming Legislature regarding vice in the tenements, but that it had not yet been decided what form these recommendations would take.

Slot Machine Room Raided.

Three detectives, headed by a Roundsman, took a patrol wagon to 942 Third Avenue early last night, where a number of young men and some boys and girls were looking at pictures in twenty-two different slot machines. The officers raided the place, taking away the machines in the wagon. The proprietor, Henry Schwartz, was placed under arrest. A crowd of hundreds of persons witnessed the raid and stopped the electric cars so they could see. Schwartz's place, which has been open only a week, was called the "Great Paris Fair."

NINETEEN FIREMEN OVERCOME.

They Were Fighting Blaze in Canal Street Cellar and Quickly Revived.

Nineteen firemen and a girl were overcome by gas and smoke at a fire in the cellar at 317 Canal Street yesterday morning. They were quickly revived.

The list of those who were overcome included Deputy Chief Ahearn, Lieut. McDonald, Engine Company No. 31; Harry M. Siegel, Engine Company No. 20; Battalion Chief Kenny, Lieut. McDermott, Acting Battalion Chief King, Thomas Callan, Engine Company No. 31; Capt. Patrick Mayer, Lieut. J. J. Connolly, M. E. Healy, Joseph S. Reagan, J. J. Shaler, and William Craft, Engine Company No. 20; Thomas Hayes, Patrick McGuire, Edward F. Meyers, and James McLaughlin, Engine Company No. 31; Joseph Blitz, Hook and Ladder Company No. 20, and Foreman Conlan, Engine Company No. 27.

The four engines which answered to the first alarm had arrived on the scene, and it was thought advisable to sound a second alarm. Through a mistake the signal sent out meant that the fire was at Broadway and Bleecker Street. Two engines hastened to that point, and, after their Captains had been unable to find any fire, a message asking the whereabouts of the blaze was sent to headquarters.

SUIT TO SET ASIDE DIVORCE.

Reported that Hollister Will Contest North Dakota Decree.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Edward Valentine, née Voice, who until she obtained a divorce in North Dakota was Mrs. Charles Hollister, has again figured in the courts. Mrs. Valentine, who is a granddaughter of Alfred H. Duncomb, a millionaire of East Chester, inherited, it is understood, $500,000 from her grandfather's estate. She lived with her grandmother. In 1897 she eloped with Hollister, but they separated in a short time, and she went to North Dakota and obtained a divorce. She returned to live with her grandmother.

A story was being circulated to-day to the effect that Charles Hollister had begun an action in the Supreme Court to have the North Dakota decree set aside on the ground that the New York Court of Appeals had decided that decrees of divorce obtained where the defendant is not present are null and void.

Mr. Valentine, when seen to-night, admitted he had been served with the papers in an action against him for alienation of affections, and that his wife had also been served. Mr. Valentine is a member of a well-known family and highly respected. His wife is very popular with a large circle of friends.

OWEN MURPHY PASSES AWAY.

Owen Murphy died yesterday morning of old age at his home, 381 First Street, Brooklyn. For nearly sixty years he was one of the best known characters of Wall Street and its neighborhood. He was born in County Monahan, Ireland, in 1817, and emigrated to this country when he was about twenty-two years of age. After a short service in the dry goods business, he became agent and manager of the Lord estate, which took in almost the entire block bounded by Broad Street, Exchange Place, William Street, and Beaver Street. He retained that position until this year, and the estate remained as it was when he originally became intrusted with its management, up to about four years ago, when some of the buildings were torn down and replaced by what is now known as the Lord's Court Building. The other buildings were torn down this year to make room for the Broad Exchange Building, now in the course of erection.

Rufus Lord, who amassed the great bulk of the Lord estate, was accustomed to keep all his securities in safes in his office in Exchange Place, and to these safes access was only had by himself and Mr. Murphy, up to one day in 1865, when "Dutch Heinrich" and several associate thieves made their way to them while Mr. Murphy was out, and Mr. Lord was engaged in another part of the office, and looted them of $1,500,000. The police made a great ado about the pursuit of the thieves and harassed everybody who had had any relation with the business of Mr. Lord's office on the day of the robbery. They undertook to subject Mr. Murphy to the "third degree," but Mr. Lord refused to permit it, saying, "If Owen Murphy wanted to rob me he could have done it long ago, and have taken more than has now gone."

About two years later some of the securities, which were not negotiable, and which represented about one-half the value of those stolen, were recovered in a mysterious fashion from Europe. The belief that the robbery was effected under the protection of the police was current at the time of its occurrence. One of the results of the robbery was a quarrel between John Young, Captain of the Detective Squad, and James Irving, his chief subordinate, which resulted in the dismissal of Young. Irving was appointed to succeed him, and he in turn was dismissed, for wrongdoing, and the detective force was reorganized.

The funeral of Mr. Murphy will take place from the Church of St. Francis Xavier, Sixth Avenue and President Street, Brooklyn, to-morrow morning.

J. S. STERN INDIGNANT.

J. S. Stern, Vice President of the Bamberger-Stern Dressing Company, at 135 Fifth Avenue, arrived home from Europe on Saturday on the American liner St. Louis. Mr. Stern had in his baggage two trunks which contained merchandise, and, in accordance with the law, he made a declaration and paid duty on the merchandise amounting to between $270 and $300. After his trunks had been passed by a Custom-House Inspector, they were held up by another official, and sent to the Appraisers' Store, where, after examination, it was found that Mr. Stern's declaration was right, and his trunks were released.

Yesterday Mr. Stern visited the Custom House and protested vigorously against the treatment to which he had been subjected. When a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES called last evening at his home, 82 East One Hundred and Eighth Street, Mr. Stern was greeted by one of his daughters that he was too fatigued to leave his room, and that he might make a statement regarding the matter, at his office to-day.

At the Collector's Office it was said that the trunks had been sent to the Appraisers' Stores in order that the declaration might be verified. It was added that it was unusual to bring merchandise in trunks.

THE EAST SIDE ALARMED

Story of Organized Criminals Led by a "Big Man."

All Crime in the Quarter Attributed to This Gang — Their Peculiar Swindling Operations.

"Professor Moriarty" has come to life in the east side, and there is no Sherlock Holmes to cope with him. Maybe the professor is a myth, but to the inhabitants of the quarter around Rivington and Attorney Streets he is as real as he is mysterious, having at his beck and call a score or more of henchmen equally as wicked as himself. "When his name is mentioned doors are shut fast; when a head is broken or valuable property stolen in the vicinity the people whisper to themselves, "It's the Big Man!"

It is among the small jewelry shops of the quarter that "the Big Man" is best known. Until four months ago his fame had not spread abroad, but since that time things have happened that have made the people of the quarter as sure of his proximity as if they had seen his terrible face; which, by the way, no man is supposed to have yet laid eyes on, for he hides somewhere in a villainous den and never shows himself in the light of day, or, for that matter, even in the dimly lit streets by night.

According to the stories that are with difficulty obtained from the shopkeepers of the neighborhood, the work of an alleged gang of criminals, now supposed to be active, consists chiefly in a peculiar game of swindling, wherein credulous and none too honest pedestrians in the quarter are persuaded to purchase watches which they think at first to be of gold, but which afterward prove to be of brass. The game is worked like this: A young man meets the victim on the sidewalk, after "spotting" his man as one not open to qualms of conscience and not blessed with more than ordinary intelligence. To his prey he shows a genuine gold watch, offering to sell the timepiece for a sum that is evidently far below its real value.

"Where did you get it?" is asked.

"Oh, I picked it up," is the reply; or, sometimes: "Perhaps I stole it. But what difference is that to you, as long as you get a great bargain?"

If the purchaser-to-be doubts the purity of the gold in the watch, the young man says: "Take it into any jewelry store, and have it tested."

Then the victim takes it and, while the owner keeps a lookout on the outside, he enters some shop and pays 25 cents to have the metal tested. He comes out, satisfied, after a few minutes, and the young man takes him either into some dive of the neighborhood or to a quiet corner, where they begin to barter. In the course of the bargaining the swindler substitutes a brass watch. Then he accepts an offer.

That this trick is a common one is testified to by the people of the quarter, especially the sellers of jewelry, who have, in many instances, tested the real watches that were offered as baits and have on the following day received visits from the victims of the swindlers, who were much enraged and avowed that the jewelers had deceived them in the test. One of the men who was victimized has consulted Lawyer Mortimer W. Solomon of 271 Broadway, who gave the following account of the trouble yesterday:

"There is certainly a gang of thieves around Rivington and Attorney Streets, who work this game of exchanging watches. One of their victims has applied to me to take action for the apprehension of the criminals. I have investigated the matter and find that my client, whose name I do not wish to disclose at present, is not the only one who has suffered a similar experience. There are many in the gang, and they probably have a leader and an organization. I have been to the precinct police, who say they do not know anything about the affair, and have received no complaints of such robberies. I shall put the case in the hands of the Central Detective Bureau."

A visitor in the neighborhood in question talked to some of the residents yesterday. In a small jewelry store he asked the question:

"Who are these swindlers?"

The owner of the place promptly shut the door, and, after exacting a promise from the visitor that his name should not be given, said:

"Do I know who? Nobody knows. Eef I tell you, I get keelt. De Beeg Man ees de one. He hass twentee—tirtee—manee people. Dey steal und cut und knock on de head."

The jeweler said further that every bad deed committed in the precinct was directly attributable to the mysterious king of crime. He said that even the police were afraid of the secret power.

While the jeweler talked of the alleged terror in the quarter, several of the neighbors came in, and he appealed to them for a verification of his story. All of them confirmed it. They said that "the Big Man" was so clever that nobody could catch him, and that the only hope of the quarter was in his ultimate death.

At the Delancey Street Police Station it was said that no complaints of the watch swindling game had been received, nor any intimation of a powerful criminal organization in the district.

"But it's possible that they're organized," said one of the detectives. "We have plenty of tough characters about here. There are lots of broken heads and thefts and all other sorts of crime, but I never heard that everything bad was done by the same bunch."

ANTI-TAMMANY DEMOCRATS.

Ex-Sheriff O'Brien Again Marshals His Forces for Organization.

George Washington Post Room at the Hoffman House was crowded last night with representatives of the anti-Tammany forces, being marshaled under the leadership of ex-Sheriff James O'Brien. Solomon Mehrbach presided, and A. M. Vernon acted as Secretary.

A committee was appointed to secure permanent headquarters.

Ex-Sheriff O'Brien, being called on for a speech, said there were enough Democrats in Manhattan and the Bronx dissatisfied with Tammany methods to form the nucleus of a strong political organization to fight Crokerism.

Another meeting will be held next Monday.

THE PABST PORTICO FIGHT

Alderman Oatman Thwarts Plan to Legalize the Obstruction.

Has Resolution Passed by the Assembly Recalled and Referred to Him—Strasburg Suit Again Delayed.

A Municipal Assembly device to legalize the squatting on the public street by the portico of the Pabst Hotel, in Forty-second Street, between Broadway and Seventh Avenue, has—for the present—been thwarted by Alderman Joseph Oatman of the Twenty-seventh District.

Councilman George H. Mundorf, to carry out the wishes of Richard Croker and John F. Carroll, who are the "backers" of James B. Regan, who says he is the proprietor of the Pabst Hotel, in his effort to prevent the portico being taken down as an incumbrance, erected without warrant of law or municipal sanction, carried through the Council a resolution intended to override all former illegalities and to defy all effort to restore the street on which it squats to the public. It read as follows:

That permission be and the same is hereby given to Charles Thorley to keep and maintain the porch shown on the accompanying diagram, in front of his premises, on the north side of Forty-second Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, under the direction of the Commissioner of Highways; such permission to continue only during the pleasure of the Municipal Assembly.

Mr. Thorley had the ground lease of the property on which the Pabst Hotel was built. He says that he has now nothing to do with the hotel, which he leased to the Pabst Brewing Company. The new resolution annuls one which permitted him to "erect" the portico "within the stoop line" and "under the direction of the Commissioner of Highways," and one which permitted him to "keep and maintain" such a portico "within the stoop line," neither of which was legalized by the Municipal Assembly and the Mayor. It just permits the incumbrance to remain, rehabilitates it without reference to the stoop line.

The resolution went to the Aldermen and was referred to the Committee on Laws—G. A. Burrell, Isaac Marks, J. E. Gaffney, J. A. Flynn, and Armitage Matthews. This committee, Nov. 20, recommended the adoption of the new resolution. It was passed and sent to the Mayor, but its return was requested by Alderman Oatman Nov. 27, and it was on his motion referred to him as Alderman of the Pabst Hotel district.

"This resolution," said Alderman Oatman yesterday, "would legalize the squatting on the street of this portico. I once favored a resolution to authorize its construction 'within the stoop line.' I oppose the present structure and all efforts to maintain it. Business prevented my presence at the meeting of the Aldermen Nov. 20. It was jammed through and went to the Mayor. I found out the trick and recalled the resolution and had it referred to me. The scheme is backed by Croker and Carroll, Carroll being a close personal friend of Regan, who runs the hotel. It will remain in my hands until the Supreme Court mandamus proceedings are disposed of unless the Aldermen take it from me. Then I may open and fight the point. No opposition was made when I asked that the resolution be recalled. Had there been any I should have spoken plainly."

"The Mayor would be compelled to veto this resolution. The Municipal Assembly has no power to give any part of the streets outside the stoop line. Such power has yet to be given by legislation. I am emphatically opposed to such squatting and trickery. The original scheme was 'hung up' because Thorley refused to be bled and attempts have been made to get 'tribute' from Regan. As to Commissioner Keating, Carroll fixes the matter up with him for Regan so that he has not interfered with the incumbrance.

"This Pabst Hotel portico is one instance of several encroachments on the public streets which I propose to look after. In front of Rector's restaurant they are putting up four curb lamp pillars in violation of law. I am going to-night to write to Commissioner Keating about them. They must come down."

For the eleventh time the argument in the suit instituted by Simon Strasburg, the Raines law hotel keeper, through M. S. Hyman, to secure a mandamus to compel President Holahan of the Board of Public Improvements and Superintendent Sullivan of the Bureau of Incumbrances of the Department of Highways to remove the portico of the Pabst Hotel was adjourned yesterday. It should have come up before Justice Leventritt, but was not put on the calendar of litigated motions because of an agreement between Gen. S. F. Kneeland of counsel for Strasburg and Emanuel Blumenstiel of counsel for Regan.

"I cannot," said Assistant Corporation Counsel Terence Farley, who will appear for the city officials against whom the Strasburg mandamus proceedings are directed, "make the other side go on with a litigated motion unless they want to. The Law Department in this case will tell the court that the defendants will abide by its decision, while it seems to me that the suit should have been brought against Commissioner Keating."

Commissioner Keating, who Aug. 20 last notified James B. Regan that if the squatting portico was not removed by Aug. 25 he, Keating, would take it down, continues to find an excuse for inaction in the Strasburg litigation. He yesterday deputed Secretary Creamer of his department to speak for him on the subject. Mr. Creamer said that Mr. Keating would not act on his ultimatum of Aug. 20 because "the matter got tied up in the courts," and he decided to await the result of the litigation. Even when this case is settled Mr. Keating would have to go to the Board of Apportionment for money to remove the portico.

The Pabst Hotel portico incumbrance is not the only case of the kind that is attracting public and official attention. Action is to be taken against other encroachments, among them that constituted by the Hotel Metropole's taking of the sidewalk opposite the Pabst Hotel and making a Winter restaurant out of it. Valentine Schmitt, its proprietor, will have his attention called to it and be notified that if he does not remove it the proper authorities will be called on to do so.

GEORGIA CAYVAN'S CONDITION.

Inquiry yesterday at Sandford Hall, the sanitarium at Flushing, in which Miss Georgia Cayvan, the actress, is being treated, failed to elicit any definite information about her condition other than that it is of a serious nature.

She is suffering from nervous prostration, and her friends have reason to fear the worst. Miss Cayvan underwent a serious operation about five years ago, and since that she has never enjoyed her former good health.

New Helmets for Street Cleaners.

The "White Wing" force of the Street Cleaning Department will soon be wiped out. Commissioner Nagle has decided to adopt a new helmet made of brown felt, and it is expected that changes will be made in the uniform. The new helmet was adopted because the labor unions claimed the white helmet was non-union made. The new helmet will cost about $1.50. In shape the new headgear is very much like the present patrolman's helmet.

BIG FUNERAL AFTER MONTHS.

Angelo Frinjo's Body Transferred from Pine Box to a Better Coffin.

When Angelo Frinjo died in Coney Island eight months ago, his father, a laborer, buried him as best his poverty would admit in a plain pine coffin in a little plot in Flatbush Cemetery. Not even a small headstone marked the mound, and Antonio's grief was doubly poignant, not only because death had robbed him of his boy, but for the reason that scanty means had deprived the dead of the elaborate church ceremonial and the monument and other trappings of woe for which the father's heart longed.

And so it happened that Antonio's sorrow gave birth to an idea which grew as the days passed, and bore fruit. As the clouds fell dully on the plain coffin, Antonio determined that some day his son should have a second burial, and straightway the plan on that bleak March day shaped itself before him. For eight months Antonio toiled early and late, working steadily, saving every penny, denying himself even the necessities of life. Yesterday the dream was fulfilled. Over the boy's grave a monument stood, with an iron railing around it. That was finished just the other day, and with his surplus earnings Antonio ordered the belated second funeral.

On the altar of the little Italian church near his home, a black cloth-covered coffin rested, and lights burned about it. Many Italians gathered, and requiem mass was said by Father Brophy, with its incense and solemn ceremony. Then the empty coffin was borne to a special trolley car, and the party took it to Flatbush Cemetery.

The gravediggers were expeditious at their work, and in the presence of over fifty mourners, the body was disinterred, quickly changed from the plain pine coffin to the more pretentious black casket, and lowered again into the grave.

Antonio looked satisfied, proud that his dream of eight months was fulfilled. He invited his friends to a hotel, where a big dinner was served to commemorate the event.

COLUMBIA TRUSTEES MEET.

Degree for Teachers College Graduates —Tuition Offered to Filipinos.

At a meeting of the Trustees of Columbia University held yesterday afternoon it was decided that hereafter graduates in the four years' course at Teachers College will receive the degree of Bachelor of Science (in education.) This concession has long been sought by Teachers College students and it is thought that it will increase the number of teachers with collegiate training in the public schools.

President Low reported that the exhibition of the university at the Paris Exposition is now displayed at Manchester, England, and that arrangements are being made to display it at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

The final plans and estimates for Earl Hall were received and approved, and the Committee on Buildings and Grounds was authorized to award the contract and begin the work of construction at once.

The Trustees also decided to offer, through the United States Government, free tuition to five Filipinos. This tuition will be open in all schools of the university except the School of Medicine.

Johnston; Chaplain—The Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix; Board of Managers—Charles R. Henderson, Philip Livingston, John Hone, Alexander R. Thompson, Frederick Clarkson, B. B. Pratt, Samuel P. Avery, Frank J. NEW HUDSON RIVER LINE.

Announcement was made yesterday that a new steamboat line between New York and Albany and Troy, to run in opposition to the Citizens' Line to Troy and the People's Line to Albany, will begin business next year. The projector of the enterprise is J. W. Hancox of this city, a grandson of the late Commodore J. W. Hancox, himself an old and well-known steamboat man on the Hudson. Mr. Hancox said yesterday that his objective point is Troy, but Albany is to be made a stopping point on the regular trips.

Both freight and passenger rates will be cut considerably under the present tariffs. Mr. Hancox is now having plans drawn for a new steamer to cost about $250,000. "I shall expect to start in not long after June 1 next," said Mr. Hancox yesterday. "I can make a profit on 50 cents a head for passengers. Freight tariff may be cut 25 per cent. We intend to put on only one boat to start with."

The Wanamaker Store — The Wanamaker Store

Five Bright TOY STORES

Full of Everything to Make Children Happy

THE busy and jolly Toyland that lies beyond the Wanamaker Subway is the most interesting place for children in Greater New York, these before-Christmas days. As you enter the tunnel from the Basement of the main store, the lively melody of a Regina Music Box is heard inviting you to the children's fairyland. Everything is here that man has contrived to make the little eyes snap and sparkle. The most beautiful dolls—and hundreds of kinds of them. Furry and hairy animals—dogs, cats, lambs, cows, monkeys, elephants—a wonderful menagerie. Tool chests for boys with a mechanical bent; iron and tin toys—choo-choo cars, fire-engines, ice wagons. Blocks and puzzle games; balls and rubber toys—and then the toys that do things. Rabbits that hop across the floor, clowns that roll or walk around, automobiles that run themselves, and the always wonderful railroad trains that run by steam. There are wonderful doll houses for little housekeepers, with electric bell, and some with elevator that really runs. All sorts of nursery furniture, doll carriages, hobby horses, ten pins, tea sets, board games—everything that Santa Claus has ever made or Christmas ever brought to light, to make the heart of children happy, is here in the most wonderful profusion.

That is because we took over five new store-rooms just to show Toys. The whole five stores are coupled into one Toy Store that is the jolliest the children ever found, and the most satisfying that parents ever went to for the selection of Christmas things for children.

Bring the children freely. They'll enjoy it more than the Zoo. There is never any importunity to buy at Wanamaker's. If the pretty things tempt you, there are plenty of people to serve you. But best buying-time is now. Each day the throngs will grow greater, and the rush and hurry will increase.

To-day there is here the best showing of Toys ever shown in New York. Splendid in variety, and all at fairest prices. The story is too long to tell in detail—but it is a collection that no parent, who is planning Christmas happiness for the children, will miss.

All of these are in latest styles, all carefully tailored.

All Around the Store

Broche Hemstitched Scarfs and Squares. Some new arrivals are remarkable for their beautiful colorings and rich designs. The hemstitched scarfs, 16x50 in., are in gold, pink and blue on white, and are marked $1. Those 16x68, at $2.25 and $2.50, have effective designs in combinations of green, pink, blue and yellow. The squares, 32x32 in., are $2.25; lunch cloths, 2x2 yds., $6.50, $7.50 and $8; 2x2½ yds., $9.50 and $10.

New designs in Ornamental Desk accessories and Bric-a-brac are of Vienna bronze, in a variety of subjects. Good-luck pen racks are $5, paper-weights of different designs, $5 to $10, water bowls for copying brush, $10. Then there are some novel French figures—a Kaffir with his tambour, $17; sharpshooters and horsemen, $10 each; and some striking seals and pen-receivers from $6.50 to $10.

Foot-warmers, for carriages and sleighs. These comfortable contrivances take away the terrors of driving in winter. They are cylindrical stoves, covered with carpet, and heated by means of bricks of prepared coal. These will smoulder for 12 to 15 hours, and will thoroughly warm the carriage. In various sizes, from $2.25 to $7; coal, 75c for box of one dozen bricks.

Men's Fur-lined Overcoats. It's not inconceivable that one of them may be needed this winter. Our collection of them is not large, but it is well chosen, and you'll probably be able to find the coat you want at a great saving over the furrier's price. See the one for $85, for instance.

Infants' Long Slips. They are of nainsook and have hemstitched ruffles. 25c, others as 38c and 50c.

Sailor Suits, for Boys. Nowhere in New York is better value obtainable than in these sailor suits for boys of 3 to 12 years. Though they're $6.50 to $10 values, they're priced at $5 a suit.

Framed Pictures. These are etchings in a variety of pleasing subjects, 20x30 in., with mat and 3-in. gilt frame. Our regular price for them has been $3—now they're $2 each.

Cushion Tops. Of tapestry, in effective designs. Two of them make a rich cover for a sofa-cushion. 50c each.

Ribbons for Pillow-Ruffles. They are 3¾ in. broad, with four-toned stripe of colors, combined with white. 25c a yard.

Women's Hosiery. Fast black lisle thread stockings, either Richelieu, Rembrandt or narrow ribbed; also plain, with double soles and high spliced heels—are 38c a pair, or 3 pairs for $1.

Baking Dishes. They are nickel-plated, and contain removable enameled pan. Suitable for baking puddings, macaroni and similar dishes. $1.25 to $2.25.

Women's Gloves. Comfortable gloves for winter wear are of white wool, finely knitted, at 50c, 75c and $1. Silk mittens, in black, are 50c, 75c, $1 and $1.25.

Fur Collarettes. The Fur Store holds an ample assortment of these comfortable articles. Here are two kinds among many: Black Astrakhan storm collars, trimmed with 6 tails, $10; collarettes of dyed opossum, 10 in. deep, $12.

An Automobile for $1. Of course, it's only a toy, but an ingenious and entertaining mechanical one. It climbs hills easily. One of them is at work all day long at this Sisyphus like task in the Toy Store.

Webster's Dictionary. Complete with geographical and biographical appendices, index of proper names, handsomely colored charts of flags of all nations, emblems of rank in the United States Army and Navy; in substantial embossed sheep binding; is sold at $1.35, a remarkably little price for this household reference book of long-acknowledged value.

Slippers. Some of them are too light, while winter shoes are too heavy for house wear. These Romeo slippers for men solve the difficulty—made of black kidskin or tan Russia leather; with welted soles of elkskin. They're light-weight, but warm enough and good-looking. $3.50 a pair.

Link Purses. These are newly imported, of gilt or silver, with a price-range of 25c to $3. Some of them are closed by drawing a chain through rings, instead of the customary clasp. A most attractive group.

Leather Chatelaines. They are of European origin, and a decided novelty. The chatelaines carry a smelling-salt bottle, memorandum book, mirror, match case and pen-knife—all covered with leather of different colors. $1.75 to $4.75.

Men's Winter OVERCOATS

Two coats tell a story to-day that sums up the mastery of this clothing store—shows how the coats themselves give their own argument of Wanamaker supremacy in supplying clothes of honest and refined character at the prices under which parade many showy make-believes.

In purity of wool, in expert tailoring, in smart and stylish appearance, these coats are not matched anywhere at their prices; and they are prices most men want to pay.

At $12—Overcoats of all-wool dark Oxford-mixed frieze, with black all-wool body lining that goes right up to the top of coat under the satin shoulder lining; sleeves are lined with satin, and coats have velvet collars. Many $15 coats are not so good, and handsome.

At $15—Made of all-wool Oxford-mixed cheviot, of a beautiful quality with wool body lining and satin shoulder and sleeve linings. They have no equal under $18 or $20.

Boys' CLOTHING

Never had better assortment of boys' clothing than just now. Nor more attractive styles—nor better values. But the three busiest weeks of the year are those immediately preceding Christmas. And some of the best lines may not,—likely will not—hold out. Don't put off the purchase of the boy's suit or overcoat too long. The advantage is to the prompt.

$5.50—Regulation sailor suits; of blue serge; eagle, anchor, and chevrons on sleeve; lanyard and whistle; 8 to 12 years. Some also at $7.50.
$5.50—Vestee suits for little fellows of 3 to 8 years; blue cheviot; cutaway coat, double-breasted vest with white inserted front. Another style at $6.50.

FLOWERS For Home Decorations

Artificial; but the realest imitations that skill and experience ever produced. Here are roses that the eye cannot tell from the natural rose; and even to the touch the imitation is deceptive. Only the fragrance is missing. The color, the shape, the texture are exact reproductions of nature; but these do not fade or wither. They will hold their beauty all through the holiday festivities.

American Beauty, La France Roses, and Tea Roses, $1.
Chrysanthemums, 75c and $1.25. Carnations, 20c.

Other decorative flowers at these prices:

Roses—pink, red, tea, and yellow, 8c to 75c.
Chrysanthemums—white, yellow, lavender, and pink, 15c to $1.
Carnations—pink, white, and red, 12c to 20c.
Artificial palms, $1.50 to $4. Small plants and ferns, 65c to $4.

ONYX TABLES

Sumptuous Low-priced

Among the most beautiful that we have ever had of their kind. But there are only forty of them—all the maker, a noted one, had left. He parted with them at our own figure, which, when you see the tables and the way they're priced, you'll acknowledge must have been a low one. For they're marked at a third to a half below their value. They're made of the best solid brass castings, in extremely handsome designs, and gold-plated. The tops are of Brazilian onyx, which is one of the most richly tinted of the semi-precious stones. The play of color, light and shade in these specimens is particularly charming; and they are well worth a place in the most luxurious drawing-room.

These are the sizes and prices:

Tables, with 18x18 in. onyx top and 14x14 in. onyx lower shelf, at $62.50; regularly $125.
Tables, with 14x14 in. onyx top and 6x6 in. onyx lower shelf, at $50; regularly $75.
Tables, with 18x24 in. onyx top and extra heavy lower shelf, at $35; regularly $60.

BLANKETS and Quilts Three Very Good Values

One of the leading mills made to our order a large lot of splendid blankets that we are selling at an exceptionally little price. They are of white wool on light spool cotton. Not finished as finely as some blankets, but they are soft and warm and serviceable—thoroughly good. They've been named "The Physicians' Favorite." Size 60x80 in., weight 4 lbs., at $3.75 a pair; 70x82 in., 5 lbs., at $4.50 a pair; 76x86 in., 6½ lbs., at $5 a pair.

Here's a lot of extra large and extra fine blankets that are reduced in price. These are all wool—called "Overbrook." Size 84x88 in., at $12, instead of $16; size 90x90 in., at $14, instead of $18.

One hundred and fifty down quilts—our own make, but the last of their kind, and in style to be discontinued, are $4, though $5 was their price yesterday. Pure odorless down, figured sateen covering, both sides; 6 ft. square.

Third floor.

Some Items of Especial Interest in The Under-priced Store

The offerings are all attractive in this Basement Store—always. Some are unusually so. For instance:

12½c Black Dress Goods at 6 1-4c—
There were 60,000 yards of these yesterday morning. There's considerably less to-day, but still enough for those who come promptly. They are brilliant black armures, soft in finish, like Henrietta cloth, the weave similar to that of sateen; deep black, with six small figured designs; cotton only, but looks as if it were something more. At 12½c it would be moderately priced. It came to us so that we can sell it at just half.

Corsets at Reduced Prices—
The fine imported Lillian, of coutil and of sateen, with real whalebone, at $3.50 each, though $5.25, the regular price, is low for so superior a corset. The "C. P." that sells regularly at $1.50, at $1 each.

Doilies, Scarfs and Center Pieces—
At one-half and two-thirds prices. The doilies are from Japan; regularly $3 a doz.; now $1.50. Also some Mexican hand-drawn doilies, scarfs and center pieces at one-third less than regular prices.

Good Values in Hosiery for Men and Women—
Men's fast black cotton half hose with gray and unbleached soles; also in natural color or tan merino, seamless. Both sorts worth 25c a pair. Now 3 pairs for 50c.
Women's fast black cotton stockings; imported; regular made and fashioned; value 25c a pair. Price, 3 pairs for 50c.

Framed Pictures at Half Prices—
Facsimile water colors in neat frames, to stand, at 15c; regularly 25c. Platino prints in good frames, at 25c, instead of 50c.

Brooches at Much Less than Regular—
The settings are imitations of turquoise matrices; mountings are gold plated; the prices are 25c and 35c; the values 35c and 50c.

Children's Dresses at About Half Prices—
Some of white lawn or nainsook; prettily made and trimmed, at $1.40; values up to $3. Some of gingham and lawn attractively trimmed, at $1.40; values up to $2.25.

SECRETARY OF WAR SUBMITS HIS REPORT

Army's Work in Philippines, China, Cuba, Porto Rico, and Alaska.

PROGRESS MADE DURING YEAR

Improvement General Under American Rule—Health of the Troops—Army Reorganization.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The annual report of Secretary of War Root is of more than usual interest, owing to its wide scope and the fact that it treats of subjects of such importance as the Philippine insurrection, the Chinese campaign, the developments in Cuba and Porto Rico, and, finally, with the subject of army reorganization.

Some idea of what the army has been doing in the field and at home is conveyed by the Secretary's statement that its operations included the prosecution of the war for the suppression of the Philippine insurrection and the establishment of a government in the Philippines; the rescue of the foreign Ministers in Peking, the preservation of life and the relief of distress in Alaska, and the construction of roads and telegraphs there; the conduct of the Government of Porto Rico, until May 1 last; the conduct of the Government of Cuba; the prosecution of river and harbor works; the construction of seacost fortifications; the garrisoning and maintaining of military posts and fortifications; the discharge of about one-third of the army and the reenlistment of soldiers to take their places, and the distribution of supplies to the scattered forces.

The chapter of the report treating of military operations in the Philippines is a recital of the features of the campaigns that were conducted in the islands during the past year. It is said that the purpose was to pursue the small bands of Filipinos scattered throughout the islands. The effort was successful, and resulted in the further and practically complete disintegration of the insurrectionary bands, in the rescue of nearly all the American and Spanish prisoners, in the capture of many of the leading insurgents, and in the destruction of large quantities of arms and supplies.

Secretary Root says that with the execution of the military plans there, all formal and open resistance to American authority in the Philippines terminated, leaving only an exceedingly vexatious and annoying guerrilla warfare, of a character closely approaching brigandage, which will require time, patience, and good judgment to finally suppress. The Secretary further says that it requires more than 400 different posts in the Philippines, because the Tagalos, who are in rebellion, have deliberately adopted the policy of murdering, so far as they are able, all of their countrymen who are friendly to the United States. He thinks that the most efficient measures for the reduction of the number of posts and of troops in the Philippines will be the construction of roads, making possible rapid communication; the establishment of personal relations between American officers and the people, so that it can be known who are trustworthy sources of information; the gradually growing appreciation of American control and good intentions following good civil government and, finally, the organization of native troops under American officers.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

The progress that has been achieved during the year in the erection of a civil government in the Philippines is made the subject of a special chapter in the report. Beginning with the chaos left by the withdrawal of the Spanish authorities which had always controlled, Secretary Root has shown how the principles of civil government by easy steps were put in operation.

The substantive body of Spanish law was excellent and adequate if it could be applied. The first step was the organization of courts, beginning with the Supreme Court, headed by Chief Justice Arellan, and five of the ablest lawyers of the Islands. The Spanish criminal procedure was reformed, and for the first time there was real protection to the personal rights of persons charged with crime in the Philippines.

The next step was the establishment of municipal governments, placing the entire control of ordinary affairs of government in the municipal authorities. Then the marriage law was modified to legalize civil marriage, the United States patent and trade-mark laws were adopted, the coasting trade was regulated, burdensome Spanish taxes were abolished, the schools were extended and improved, a quarantine law was put in force, the customs and insular revenues were greatly increased, and rigid high-license and early-closing laws were imposed upon the saloons in Manila.

The second Philippine Commission, headed by Judge Taft, is continuing the good work, and, following the ordinary course of legislative procedure, it holds open sessions, takes testimony, and receives suggestions from citizens. It has appropriated money for the construction of roads and bridges, for the survey of a railroad, and for the payment of a Superintendent of Public Instruction. The tariff law has been revised by a special board, and Manila Harbor is to be improved.

The receipts from the customs for the last half of the fiscal year show an increase of $1,785,496, but this will not be enough to prosecute internal improvements and establish schools as rapidly as these undertakings should progress. Therefore Secretary Root recommends that Congress authorize a bond issue for the construction of the railroad, based on the road itself, or that the United States make a loan to the insular treasury, to be repaid from the island revenues.

The Secretary speaks of the serious embarrassment caused by the defective currency system in the Philippines, owing to the fluctuating price of Mexican dollars, and he submits two suggestions—one that the United States coin a special dollar for use in the islands of the same weight and fineness as the Mexican dollar, which shall take its chance with the fluctuation of the market; the other suggestion is that we coin an insular dollar which we undertake to redeem in gold at 50 cents. He inclines, as does the Secretary of the Treasury, toward the second course.

MARCH TO PEKING.

The campaign of the United States troops in China is treated with some length in the report. The Secretary reviews in detail the rapid and effective steps by which the American forces were transferred in a great emergency from the Philippines and from this country to Taku, and how they forced their way to Peking. He included all the interesting dispatches that passed between Gen. Chaffee and the department during that period, which were published by the War Department from time to time, and speaks in terms of praise of the splendid conduct of the troops and of their able officers. In the end it is gratifying to know that the Chinese have returned in great numbers, and there has been a general resumption of business, under the protection of the American forces, in that portion of Peking which was assigned to the care of the United States, and which is still under the charge of the legation guard.

AFFAIRS IN CUBA.

Touching Cuba, the report says the conduct of affairs there during the year has been a continuance of the process of aiding the Cuban people in the development of the Cuban Government in such a way that, when fully organized, it shall be stable and efficient. This has been done by guiding the Cubans in the first step of systematic self-government, and by introducing, mainly through Cuban officers, such reforms in administration as shall serve to put the business of government in fairly good condition when a complete Cuban administration finally assumes control of the Government of the island. The report describes the taking of the census and the beginning of municipal elections. It explains that, in view of the fact that 66 per cent. of the people could not read and write, it was not deemed advisable that absolutely unrestricted suffrage should be established. The report sketches the various steps in the creation of the Government down to the gathering of the Constitutional Convention, which now is in session.

Treating of the subject of education, Secretary Root speaks with pride of the development of the primary branches, showing that in the first six months of the calendar year the number of school rooms was increased from 635 to 3,550, and the enrollment of scholars ran up from 37,995 to 143,120. He says that the pressure for education is earnest and universal, and that the appropriations for this year for that purpose amount to about $4,500,000; but great as the development has been, it will be impossible, with the resources of the island for a long time yet to come, to fully meet the demand for the learning so long withheld.

The report goes into detail as to the methods adopted for the reformation of the old school system and its enlargement on American lines. It also tells of how the charities of the islands have been brought into systematic condition and the hospitals improved. With one exception, there was not a place in Cuba at the time of American occupation to which a patient could go with any reasonable prospect of proper facilities and care. The condition of the insane was particularly distressing. They were confined in jails, filthy and ragged, and treated literally like wild beasts. Now they have all been gathered in one large insane asylum and are cared for according to the dictates of humanity.

The prisons were filled to overflowing with wretched creatures, living in indescribable filth and squalor. The women were obliged to sleep on the floor, and were unable to appear in a body, because they were without clothes to cover their nakedness. Many of these unfortunate inmates had never been tried or convicted. An American Pardon Board promptly released 320 prisoners of this class. The prisons were cleaned, an inspection system established, youths separated from adults, the untried from the convicted, and the intolerable legal delay in trials was ended by the establishment of correctional courts for petty offenses. An order also has been made providing for the writ of habeas corpus, something the Cubans are now quite unfamiliar with. One of the results of these changes is that many of the prisons are now wholly without inmates.

Other things accomplished in Cuba have been in the direction of public works, the erection of lighthouses, the revision of the tariff, the establishment of an independent Treasury. The revenues for the last fiscal year amounted to $17,000,000, as against $7,000,000 for the preceding six months, and the revival of industry continues. The tobacco crop is larger and fine, the sugar cane area is extended; the fruit production is increasing; the mines at Santiago are in full operation, and labor is in demand at good prices. Curiously enough, now that Spanish sovereignty has departed, Spanish immigration is setting in, and before December 50,000 Spaniards will have reached Cuba within the past year. Secretary Root says they are useful and welcome additions to the industry of the island. In concluding his remarks as to Cuba, he says:

"Only doubt as to the stability of the future Government and uncertainty as to the continuance of a market for her products retard the influx of capital and the development of Cuba's extraordinary resources. It is to be hoped the wise action of the present Constitutional Convention will speedily resolve these uncertainties and establish the prosperity of Cuba upon a firm foundation."

CONDITION IN PORTO RICO.

In Porto Rico, where the army controlled up to the 1st of May, its principal function was the improvement of the civil administration, accustoming the people to the exercise of the powers of the Government, and continuing the work of relief made necessary by the deplorable condition in which the island had been left by the great hurricane. Since then the telegraphic system of the island has been reconstructed by the Signal Corps, a census has been taken, and the system of taxation straightened out. The Secretary accepts as his own Gen. Davis's statement as to the creditable manner in which the army discharged the trust committed to it in Porto Rico, and he adds an expression of grateful appreciation of the devotion, good temper, and ability exhibited by Gen. Davis.

REPORT ON ALASKA.

The report treats Alaskan conditions very briefly, the main point of interest in that connection being the recommendation that a modern appropriation be made for the relief of the native Eskimos, who are afflicted by a series of fatal epidemics, and are in danger of extermination. It is said that several hundred white miners, unsuccessful and impoverished, who might have perished during the Arctic Winter, were brought home on Government transports, but the principle is a bad one, and notice is given that the War Department does not intend to furnish transportation again.

A complimentary reference is made in the report to the development of the splendid transport service by the Quartermaster's Department. The plans and specifications upon which the work was done have been sought by the Governments of Great Britain, France, Germany, Japan, and Russia.

The health of the army is said to have improved steadily since the close of the Spanish war, and, now that the Philippine troops are garrisoned in good quarters, it is hoped that the death rate from disease will continue to fall so that it will reach the normal in the United States.

Touching the Military Academy, Secretary Root cordially indorsed the recommendations of the Superintendent, Col. Mills, as to the requirement of a fuller preparation on the part of a candidate in the matter of study.

The subject of army reorganization is treated at some length, but most of the details have been touched upon in the letter of Secretary Root transmitting the Reorganization bill to Congress. He says that the military requirements in the Philippines may be summed up as follows: For the immediate future about 60,000 men. This number may be progressively decreased by the gradual disappearance of real insurrection and the restoration of order and by the substitution of native troops, costing less than half to support. At no distant day the islands themselves will be able to pay for their own police protection. Provision should be made, therefore, for a minimum force of 60,000, with an authorized maximum of 100,000, and with authority to use native troops in place of American soldiers.

The gunboat Manila has left Cavite with a detachment of marines for the occupation of Subig and Olongapo, which temporarily have been transferred to the control of the Navy Department.

The transport Egbert sailed yesterday from Nagasaki for Manila, laden with military supplies which were sent from the Philippines to China in anticipation of protracted operations in that country.

The transport Conemaugh arrived at Manila Nov. 27, and the Copack Dec. 1.

NAVAL OFFICER HALL HURT

The Lieutenant Commander's Skull Crushed by Scantling.

Falling Piece of Wood Struck Him on the Forehead—Accident Happened at Navy Yard.

Lieutenant Commander Reynold T. Hall, Assistant Engineer of the Steam Engineering Department of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, who served under Admiral Dewey through the Asiatic campaign as Chief Engineer of the gunboat Petrel, is lying in the Brooklyn Naval Hospital, on Flushing Avenue, with a fractured skull, having been struck by a falling scantling yesterday while inspecting the new engineering hall in course of erection near the Marine Barracks. Little hope for his recovery was held out at the hospital late last night.

Lieut. Commander Hall, who had been detailed by Commander Smith to inspect the work on the new hall as it progressed, had passed from the boiler room into the machine shop. Pausing, apparently to look upward at some workmen covering a portion of the roof with slate, a piece of scantling, about three feet long and eight inches thick, became dislodged from a scaffold at the apex of the roof, sixty feet above, and falling, struck him full in the forehead, fracturing his skull at the base. Owing to a part of the new roof being of glass, it is thought the glare of the sun partially blinded the officer so that the falling plank was not seen at all by him, and he was ignorant of what struck him. The accident was seen by several passing marines, and workmen, and Dr. Byrnes, the post surgeon, was quickly summoned, and had the injured and unconscious officer removed to Commander Smith's office and afterward to the hospital. His wife, who lives at 126 Greene Avenue, and his parents, living at Merchantville, N. J., were sent for and hurried to the hospital, although up to a late hour Lieut. Commander Hall had not regained consciousness.

Reynold T. Hall was appointed to the Naval Academy from Pennsylvania, and received his commission as Assistant Engineer April 22, 1880. After several years of sea duty he was assigned to the Brooklyn Navy Yard in 1893, remaining there three years. Afterward he was ordered to the battleship Texas. Just prior to the outbreak of hostilities between Spain and the United States, Lieut. Commander (then Lieutenant) Hall was detached from the Texas and ordered to report at San Francisco as Chief Engineer of the gunboat Petrel and proceed with her to join Admiral Dewey on the Asiatic Station.

While lying at Hongkong with Dewey's fleet orders came to proceed to Manila, and, closely following the Olympia, the little Petrel went into Manila Bay with every gun trained on Montojo's squadron and the Cavite forts. The Petrel's part in the battle is well known.

After the American occupation of Manila Lieut. Hall was the first engineer placed in charge of the Cavite arsenal, and he was also detailed by Dewey to locate and treat with Aguinaldo and the other Filipino leaders. His last tour of sea service ended in September, 1899, and he was assigned to duty in the steam engineering department of the navy yard in Brooklyn. He was commissioned a Lieutenant Commander on Jan. 11 last. He is one of the most popular officers at the navy yard, and is a member of a prominent Brooklyn family.

TWO MEN FALL FROM SCAFFOLD.

Stone Masons in Williamsburg Are Probably Fatally Injured.

By the collapse of a scaffold on a new theatre building at Graham Avenue and Debevoise Street, Williamsburg, yesterday afternoon, two men were injured. They were Nicholas Gassol and Tony Ganto, both of whom live in Bleecker Street, Williamsburg. They were stone masons and were working at a height of forty feet when the scaffold parted.

Gassol fractured his nose and two ribs, besides receiving internal injuries, while Ganto's left leg was broken, his right wrist fractured, and he also received internal injuries.

MYSTERY IN THE TRAGEDY.

Man Stabbed by Italians After the Slaying of Tuscani Is Not Gambola, the Supposed Murderer.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Dec. 3.—A curious situation has arisen in the case of the Italian murder here yesterday, and the subsequent attempt to stab to death the man who was supposed to be the murderer. The man in the hospital, it turns out, is not John Gambola, who is alleged to have slain Frank Tuscani, but Pietro Viccio, who claims to have had no part in the affair, and does not understand why he was stabbed by the friends of the murdered Italian. Without knowing that he was supposed to be John Gambola, he made the statement to-day that he believed Frank Tuscani had been stabbed by either John Gambola or by John Gallo.

The fact that Viccio, who is covered with wounds, is still alive causes the doctors and nurses at the hospital to marvel. How he came to be the victim of the avengers of the murdered man is far from clear. Thomas Cappati, one of those who reached Tuscani after he was stabbed and before he died, made the assertion to Coroner Tracey to-day that Tuscani told him that it was Viccio who stabbed him. Other Italians, from whom statements have been obtained, all name John Gambola, and when told the man who was made the victim of the avengers was not Gambola, they seemed surprised and doubtful, and immediately stopped talking.

Viccio's assertion that he was not Gambola was doubted at first by the authorities, but Italians who have their confidence and who know Viccio, were taken to the hospital, and identified him. Meanwhile John Gambola has not been found.

COURT OF APPEALS WORK.

It Is Thought New Calendar Will Be Disposed Of In About a Year.

ALBANY, Dec. 3.—It is expected that next week the new calendar for the Court of Appeals, which goes into effect at the January term, will be ready for publication. The period during which attorneys were allowed to file cases for a place on that calendar expired on Saturday last. There will be 610 cases on the calendar, of which 180 will be preferred and 430 general causes. To these will be added from time to time murder cases, appeals from orders and motions, which are made preferred causes.

It is believed that the court will be able to dispose of this calendar in about one year. This result is believed to be possible in view of the experience of the year about to close—the first under the new system of three extra Justices aiding in the consideration of cases, as provided for in the amendment to the State Constitution made two years ago. Under old conditions it has usually taken over two years to dispose of a calendar of 800 cases. The consequence was that between three and four years elapsed before an appeal filed with the court was argued and decided. That made the time consumed for ordinary litigation to go through the courts of this State from six to eight years.

The effect of the new system is apparent in the rapid disposition of the cases upon the calendar of the court, which will be practically exhausted at the close of the current year. It contained 890 cases, and was taken up at the session of the court in Saratoga in June following the adoption of the new system. Thus the court has been able to dispose of a regular calendar of 890 cases, plus the preferred appeals, of which there were several hundred in a period of about eighteen months.

Accused Bank Clerk Cleared.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Dec. 3.—The Grand Jury has dismissed the charges against Robert Heusler, formerly a clerk in the Dime Savings Bank, and a participant, by his own admission, in the irregularities for which the Treasurer, Charles R. Westervelt, was held mainly responsible. The young man was arrested Sept. 28, on a warrant charging him with forgery in fraudulently altering accounts in the bank. Heusler admitted he made changes in the books, but under the direction of the defaulting Treasurer.

PASSENGER TRAIN WRECKED.

Engineer Killed and Fireman Badly Injured in Rear-End Collision—No Passengers Seriously Hurt.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Dec. 3.—The Central Railroad of New Jersey's fast eastbound express, which left Easton, Penn., (across the river from this place) at 6:05 o'clock this morning, was wrecked at Vulcanite, three miles east of Phillipsburg, by crashing into the rear of a coal train. None of the passengers was seriously injured, but William Miller, the engineer of the passenger train, was fatally hurt, and Benjamin Burwell, the fireman of the same train, had both legs crushed. Both men lived at this place.

The passenger locomotive was thrown from the rails and rolled down a ten-foot embankment. The caboose and two of the coal cars caught fire from the overturning of the stove in the caboose and were destroyed.

Miller died within an hour, after making a statement in which he declared that he saw no danger signal until his train was within 100 feet of the coal train. It was very foggy at the time.

The fault of the wreck seems to lie with the flagman of the coal train, who, from Miller's statement, would seem not to have gone back to flag the passenger train. The flagman is said to have asserted that he went back with flag and lantern, and also put torpedoes on the rails to warn the passengers. He declared Miller either did not see or disregarded his signals and ran past him.

F. C. MARSH IN A SANITARIUM.

The Well-Known Politician's Collapse Brought On by Financial Trouble.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 3.—It is learned that Frederick C. Marsh of this city, who has been missing for three months, is in a sanitarium in New York. Mr. Marsh became involved in financial trouble some years ago, and because of them he began to drink heavily. Recently his friends agreed among themselves to contribute enough money to pay off his debts, which they understood amounted to about $11,000, and give him a fresh start in life. Mr. Marsh refused to accept the offer, remarking that he was not a subject for charity, and appeared to be greatly offended by the proposition. Subsequently his mental condition became such that he was persuaded to go to a sanitarium.

Frederick C. Marsh spent two terms in the Assembly and one in the Senate. He was for six and one-half years Prosecutor of the Pleas for Union County, being appointed by Gov. Werts. He ran twice as Democratic candidate for Mayor of Elizabeth, once against Mayor John E. Rankin, in 1896, and the second time against Mayor William M. Mack in 1898, and each time was defeated.

It is said that in his absence his friends are adjusting his financial affairs so that they will not again become acute.

Frederick C. Marsh is an inmate of the New York Christian Home for Intemperate Men, at 1,175 Madison Avenue. It was said last night by an attendant that he was improving.

HAD PREMONITION OF DEATH.

Burnett Sent for His Brother and Died Soon After He Arrived.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Dec. 3.—Charles Wrae Burnett died of heart disease yesterday at his residence, 14 Baldwin Street, after having had a premonition that death was approaching. He was apparently in good health until one hour before the end came.

Mr. Burnett was a member of the Republican County Committee and an Inspector in the Water Department. He had had a weakness of the heart for some years. Saturday night he spoke of a strange foreboding and sent word to his brother Parke, asking the latter to call the following morning. Parke did so, and shortly after his arrival a paroxysm of pain seized Charles. The sufferer was sure death was at hand, so, at intervals, when the pain eased, he gave directions for the disposition of his property and for the funeral arrangements. Physicians did all they could for him, but he died about an hour after his brother's arrival.

R. A. CARROLL'S DEATH REPORTED

Ex-Assemblyman Said to Have Been Drowned in the Klondike.

PATERSON, Dec. 3.—A report is current here that ex-Assemblyman Robert A. Carroll of this place lost his life recently in the Klondike region, where he went to seek his fortune a few years ago.

The story is that Carroll was drowned from a scow on which he was engaged as Treasurer for a supply company, selling clothing and provisions. The description of the man drowned that has reached here tallies with that of Carroll. None of Carroll's friends have heard from him. Carroll came to Paterson from Baltimore twenty years ago.

TREE CRASHES INTO A SCHOOL.

Children Pinned to Their Seats by Branches, but None Seriously Hurt.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 3.—Several men chopped down a tree in front of the George School this morning, and, as it fell, they lost control of it, and it crashed against the schoolhouse, its branches crushing in a window. Several children were pinned to their seats by the branches, which had to be cut away before they could be released. Glass from the window rained about the room.

The accident caused a stampede, but none of the children was injured, except for the welts caused by the branches striking them.

Champion Letter Writer Eludes Captor.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 3.—Wilfred Grover, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, who lives with his parents at Cranbury, and has a mania for letter writing, has taken to the woods, and several Constables up Cranbury way are looking for him. He is wanted on a charge of threatening the life of Constable Jacob Gordon. Mr. Gordon knows Grover as a neighbor and did not wish to serve the warrant upon him, so he turned it over to Constable Charles Farr. Farr served the warrant yesteday, and with his prisoner was descending the stairs of Grover's home when the young man made a dash and disappeared. Grover, who has been dubbed New Jersey's champion letter writer, has addressed missives to nearly every prominent man in this and other States.

Sat Dead in View of Passers-by.

Persons passing Daniel McAleer's oyster saloon on Spring Street, West Hoboken, early yesterday morning saw the proprietor sitting in a chair apparently smoking a pipe. As the place was not open, they went their way thinking no more about it. When his fourteen-year-old son, who helped in the shop, went to open it he found the place filled with gas. His father was dead. The supposed pipe was the end of a rubber tube which McAleer had connected with a gas jet. He was about fifty years old, and leaves a wife and three children.

Weehawken Millionaires Must Pay.

It is said upon the authority of one of the Commissioners that the stand taken by Assessor John Hannan of Weehawken, in raising the taxes of the millionaire property owners, especially of the Duer and King estates, and also his action in establishing a precedent in the township by taxing the corporations that do business there, will be indorsed by the Commissioners of Appeals. The board will make its report to-day, and in substance will refuse to reduce the assessments as fixed by Mr. Hannan.

NEWS OF THE RAILROADS.

Reduced Rates on Pig Iron and Billets from Pittsburg to the Seaboard.

By a decision of the trunk lines rates on pig iron and billets from Pittsburg to the seaboard will be reduced on or about Jan. 1. The reduction will be about 40 cents a ton, as carload rates on iron and steel products will be 16 cents instead of 18 cents a 100 pounds. Rates on iron and steel for export will, it is said, be also reduced to the lowest point which will permit the railroads a small margin of profit.

The iron and steel producers of Pittsburg have been urging a reduction in these rates for some time. They asked for a cut of 50 per cent. in export rates, which would mean a rate of about $1 a ton to the seaboard. These demands were refused at a meeting of railroad officials some months ago. It was said at the time that the reason for the refusal was the high price of steel rails demanded by the steel manufacturers. Since then this price has been considerably reduced, and consequently a reduction in rates on steel products has been expected. The present rate is $2.80 per ton on pig iron and $2.90 per ton on billets. It is probable that reductions in rates will also be made from other manufacturing centres.

EAST AND WEST BOUND RATES.

Cuts Made Not General, It Is Said—Shipments from Chicago.

Although the demoralization of freight rates continues in New England territory, rates from trunk line territory west bound are said to be pretty well maintained. Chairman Goddard admitted that he had been informed of certain cuts which had been made by some of the differential lines, but he said that they were restricted to certain commodity shipments and were not of a general nature. Out of Chicago rates east bound are reported as fairly well maintained.

In spite of the fact that a holiday reduced last week's business days to the number of five, shipments east bound out of Chicago with the exception of packing house products showed increases over the previous week. There were shipped 995,000 bushels of grain, as against 935,000 for the previous week, of which the Erie secured 214,000 bushels, the New York, Chicago and St. Louis 158,000, the Lake Shore 122,000, and the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago 112,000 bushels. Of flour 46,070 barrels were shipped, as against 40,282 during the week before. Of this amount the Baltimore and Ohio carried 11,375 barrels and the Lake Shore 10,618 barrels. Shipments of packing house products showed a decrease. While the previous week 24,402 tons were carried, there were only 17,993 tons shipped last week, which were pretty evenly divided up among the various roads.

BOSTON TERMINAL IMPROVEMENTS.

New York Central to Spend $2,500,000 on Harbor Property There.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Following the visit of the New York Central Railroad officials, in the course of their tour of inspection of the Boston and Albany Road, came the announcement to-day that the New York Central in the near future will expend fully $2,500,000 in the development of its extensive harbor property here.

Various rumors to this effect were confirmed this afternoon by President Bliss of the Boston and Albany, who stated that plans for improvements had been tentatively prepared, and that as soon as the necessary arrangements for the floating of the required bonds could be made the work would begin.

While the programme has not been mapped out in all the details, it is a settled will include the building of a new 2,000,000-fact, says Mr. Bliss, that the improvements bushel grain elevator of the latest pattern, the erection of a mammoth new storage warehouse, probably of ten stories; the extension of several of the wharves, and the deepening of the docks at which the foreign steamers now discharge.

Brief Railroad Items.

President Callaway of the New York Central went to Boston yesterday afternoon.

If present plans go through Western lines will not issue any complimentary passes for 1901.

The stucco work in the new passenger waiting room at the Grand Central Station is to be decorated. It will be gilded unless present plans are changed.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company was held yesterday at noon in the offices of the company at 621 Broadway. The only matter brought up was the re-election of the Directors. H. H. Vreeland, President of the company, presided. Every one of the present Directors was unanimously re-elected.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Reviews Events in the Philippines and Asks for an Army of 100,000 Men.

Recommends Reduction of $30,000,000 in the War Taxes—Urges Immediate Action to Promote American Shipping and Foreign Trade—Calls Attention to Last Message on the Subject of Trusts.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

At the outgoing of the old and the incoming of the new century you begin the last session of the Fifty-sixth Congress with evidences on every hand of individual and national prosperity, and with proof of the growing strength and increasing power for good of republican institutions. Your countrymen will join with you in felicitation that American liberty is more firmly established than ever before, and that love for it and the determination to preserve it are more universal than at any former period of our history.

The Republic was never so strong, because never so strongly intrenched in the hearts of the people as now. The Constitution, with few amendments, exists as it left the hands of its authors. The additions which have been made to it proclaim larger freedom and more extended citizenship. Popular government has demonstrated in its one hundred and twenty-four years of trial here its stability and security, and its efficiency as the best instrument of national development and the best safeguard to human rights.

When the Sixth Congress assembled in November, 1800, the population of the United States was 5,308,483. It is now 76,304,799. Then we had sixteen States. Now we have forty-five. Then our territory consisted of 909,050 square miles. It is now 3,846,595 square miles. Education, religion, and morality have kept pace with our advancement in other directions, and while extending its power the Government has adhered to its foundation principles and abated none of them in dealing with our new peoples and possessions. A Nation so preserved and blessed gives reverent thanks to God and invokes His guidance and the continuance of His care and favor.

THE CHINESE PROBLEM.

In our foreign intercourse the dominant question has been the treatment of the Chinese problem. Apart from this our relations with the powers have been happy.

The recent troubles in China spring from the anti-foreign agitation which for the past three years has gained strength in the northern provinces. Their origin lies deep in the character of the Chinese race, and in the traditions of their Government. The Taiping rebellion and the opening of the Chinese ports to foreign trade and settlement disturbed alike the homogeneity and the seclusion of China.

Meanwhile foreign activity made itself felt in all quarters, not alone on the coast, but along the great river arteries and in the interior districts, carrying new ideas and introducing new associations among a primitive people, which had pursued for centuries a national policy of isolation.

The telegraph and the railway spreading over their land, the steamers plying on their waterways, the merchant and the missionary penetrating year by year further to the interior, became to the Chinese mind types of an alien invasion, changing the course of their national life and fraught with vague forebodings of disaster to their beliefs and their self-control.

For several years before the present troubles all the resources of foreign diplomacy backed by moral demonstrations of the physical force of fleets and arms, have been needed to secure due respect for the treaty rights of foreigners, and to obtain satisfaction from the responsible authorities for the sporadic outrages upon the persons and property of unoffending sojourners, which from time to time occurred at widely separated points in the northern provinces, as in the case of the outbreaks in Sze-Chuen and Shan-Tung.

Posting of anti-foreign placards became a daily occurrence, which the repeated reprobation of the Imperial power failed to check or punish. These inflammatory appeals to the ignorance and superstition of the masses, mendacious and absurd in their accusations and deeply hostile in their spirit, could not but work cumulative harm. They aimed at no particular class of foreigners; they were impartial in attacking everything foreign.

An outbreak in Shan-Tung, in which German missionaries were slain, was the too natural result of these malevolent teachings. The posting of seditious placards, exhorting to the utter destruction of foreigners and of every foreign thing, continued unrebuked. Hostile demonstrations toward the stranger gained strength by organization.

DANGER INCREASES.

The sect commonly styled the Boxers developed greatly in the provinces north of the Yang-Tse, and with the collusion of many notable officials, including some in the immediate councils of the throne itself, became alarmingly aggressive. No foreigner's life, outside of the protected treaty ports, was safe. No foreign interest was secure from spoliation.

The diplomatic representatives of the powers in Peking strove in vain to check this movement. Protest was followed by demand and demand by renewed protest, to be met with paltering edicts and the opprobrious and evasive and futile assurances from the Tsung-li-Yamen. The circle of the Boxer influence narrowed about Peking, and while nominally stigmatized as seditious, it was felt that its spirit pervaded the capital itself, that the Imperial forces were imbued with its doctrines, and that the immediate counselors of the Empress Dowager were in full sympathy with the anti-foreign movement.

The increasing gravity of the conditions in China and the imminence of peril to our own diversified interests in the empire, as well as to those of all the other treaty governments, were soon appreciated by this Government, causing it profound solicitude. The United States, from the earliest days of foreign intercourse with China, had followed a policy of peace, omitting no occasions to testify good will, to further the extension of lawful trade, to respect the sovereignty of its Government, and to insure by all legitimate and kindly but earnest means the fullest measure of protection for the lives and property of our law-abiding citizens and for the exercise of their beneficent callings among the Chinese people.

Mindful of this, it was felt to be appropriate that our purposes should be pronounced in favor of such course as would hasten united action of the powers at Peking to promote the administrative reforms so greatly needed for strengthening the Imperial Government and maintaining the integrity of China, in which we believed the whole Western world to be alike concerned. To these ends I caused to be addressed to the several powers occupying territory and maintaining spheres of influence in China the circular proposals of 1899, inviting from them declarations of their intentions and views as to the desirability of the adoption of measures insuring the benefits of equality of treatment of all foreign trade throughout China.

With gratifying unanimity the responses coincided in this common policy, enabling me to see in the successful termination of these negotiations proof of the friendly spirit which animates the various powers interested in the untrammeled development of commerce and industry in the Chinese Empire as a source of vast benefit to the whole commercial world.

In this conclusion, which I had the gratification to announce as a completed engagement to the interested powers on March 20, 1900, I hopefully discerned a potential factor for the abatement of the distrust of foreign purposes which for a year past had appeared to inspire the policy of the Imperial Government, and for the effective exertion by it of power and authority to quell the critical anti-foreign movement in the northern provinces most immediately influenced by the Manchu sentiment.

HOSTILITIES COMMENCE.

Seeking to testify confidence in the willingness and ability of the Imperial administration to redress the wrongs and prevent the evils we suffered and feared, the marine guard, which has been sent to Peking in the autumn of 1899 for the protection of the legation, was withdrawn at the earliest practicable moment, and all pending questions were remitted, as far as we were concerned, to the ordinary resorts of diplomatic intercourse.

The Chinese Government proved, however, unable to check the rising strength of the Boxers, and appeared to be a prey to internal dissensions. In the unequal contest the anti-foreign influences soon gained the ascendancy under the leadership of Prince Tuan. Organized armies of Boxers, with which the Imperial forces affiliated, held the country between Peking and the coast, penetrated into Manchuria up to the Russian borders, and through their emissaries threatened a like rising throughout northern China.

Attacks upon foreigners, destruction of their property, and the slaughter of native converts were reported from all sides. The Tsung-li-Yamen, already permeated with hostile sympathies, could make no effective response to the appeals of the legations. At this critical juncture, in the early Spring of this year, a proposal was made by the other powers that a combined fleet should be assembled in Chinese waters as a moral demonstration, under cover of which to exact of the Chinese Government respect for foreign treaty rights and the suppression of the Boxers.

The United States, while not participating in the joint demonstration, promptly sent from the Philippines all ships that could be spared for services on the Chinese coast. A small force of marines was landed at Taku and sent to Peking for the protection of the American Legation. Other powers took similar action, until some four hundred men were assembled in the capital as legation guards.

Still the peril increased. The legations reported the development of the seditious movement in Peking and the need of increased provision for defense against it. While preparations were in progress for a larger expedition, to strengthen the legation guards and keep the railway open, an attempt of the foreign ships to make a landing at Taku was met by a fire from the Chinese forts. The forts were thereupon shelled by the foreign vessels, the American Admiral taking no part in the attack, on the ground that we were not at war with China, and that a hostile demonstration might consolidate the anti-foreign elements and strengthen the Boxers to oppose the relieving column.

Two days later the Taku forts were captured after a sanguinary conflict. Severance of communication with Peking followed, and a combined force of additional guards which was advancing to Peking by the Pei-Ho, was checked at Langfang. The isolation of the legations was complete.

The siege and the relief of the legations has passed into undying history. In all the stirring chapter which records the heroism of the devoted band, clinging to hope in the face of despair, and the undaunted spirit that led their relievers through battle and suffering to its goal, it is a memory of which my countrymen may be justly proud that the honor of our flag was maintained alike in the siege and the rescue, and that stout American hearts have again set high, in fervent emulation with true men of other race and language, the indomitable courage that ever strives for the cause of right and justice.

THE LEGATIONS' PERIL.

By June 10 the legations were cut off. An identical note from the Yamen ordered each Minister to leave Peking, under a promised escort, within twenty-four hours. To gain time they replied, asking prolongation of the time, which was afterward granted, and requesting an interview with the Tsung-li-Yamen on the following day. No reply being received, on the morning of the 20th the German Minister, Baron von Ketteler, set out for the Yamen to obtain a response, and on the way was murdered.

An attempt by the legation guard to recover his body was foiled by the Chinese. Armed forces turned out against the legations. Their barriers were surrounded and attacked. The mission compounds were abandoned, their inmates taking refuge in the British Legation, where all the other legations and guards gathered for more effective defense. Four hundred persons were crowded in its narrow compass. Two thousand native converts were assembled in a near-by palace under protection of the foreigners. Lines of defense were strengthened, trenches dug, barricades raised, and preparations made to stand a siege, which at once began.

From June 20 until July 17, writes Minister Conger, "there was scarcely an hour during which there was not firing upon some part of our lines and into some of the legations, varying from a single shot to a general and continuous attack along the whole line." Artillery was placed around the legations and on the overlooking palace walls, and thousands of 3-inch shot and shell were fired, destroying some buildings and damaging all. So quickly did the balls rain that, when the ammunition of the besieged ran low, five quarts of Chinese bullets were gathered in an hour in one compound and used.

Attempts were made to burn the legations by setting neighboring houses on fire, but the flames were successfully fought off, although the Austrian, Belgian, Italian, and Dutch legations were then and subsequently burned. With the aid of the native converts, directed by the missionaries, to whose helpful co-operation Mr. Conger unweariedly pays the most unstinted praise, the British Legation was made a veritable fortress. The British Minister, Sir Claude MacDonald, was chosen general commander of the defense, with the Secretary of the American Legation, Mr. E. G. Squires, as chief of staff.

To save life and ammunition the besieged sparingly returned the incessant fire of the Chinese soldiery, fighting only to repel attack or make an occasional successful sortie for strategic advantage, such as that of fifty-five American, British, and Russian marines, led by Capt. Myers of the United States Marine Corps, which resulted in the capture of a formidable barricade on the wall that gravely menaced the American position. It was held to the last, and proved an invaluable acquisition, because commanding the water gate through which the relief column entered.

During the siege the defenders lost sixty-five killed, 135 wounded, and seven by disease—the last all children.

A RIFT IN THE CLOUDS.

On July 14 the besieged had their first communication with the Tsung-li-Yamen, from whom a mesage came inviting to a conference, which was declined. Correspondence, however, ensued, and a sort of armistice was agreed upon, which stopped the bombardment and lessened the rifle fire for a time. Even then no protection whatever was afforded, nor any aid given, save to send to the legations a small supply of fruit and three sacks of flour.

Indeed, the only communication had with the Chinese Government related to the occasional delivery or dispatch of a telegram or to the demands of the Tsung-li-Yamen for the withdrawal of the legations to the coast under escort. Not only are the protestations of the Chinese Government that it protected and succored the legations positively contradicted, but irresistible proof accumulates that the attacks upon them were made by Imperial troops, regularly uniformed, armed, and officered, belonging to the command of Jung Lu, the Imperial Commander in Chief. Decrees encouraging the Boxers, organizing them under prominent Imperial officers, provisioning them, and even granting them large sums in the name of the Empress Dowager, are known to exist. Members of the Tsung-li-Yamen who counseled protection of the foreigners were beheaded. Even in the distant provinces men suspected of foreign sympathy were put to death, prominent among these being Chang Yenhoon, formerly Chinese Minister in Washington.

With the negotiation of the partial armistice of July 14, a proceeding which was doubtless promoted by the representations of the Chinese Envoy in Washington, the way was opened for the conveyance to Mr. Conger of a test message sent by the Secretary of State through the kind offices of Minister Wu-Ting-Fang. Mr. Conger's reply, dispatched from Peking on July 18 through the same channel, afforded to the outside world the first tidings that the inmates of the legations were still alive and hoping for succor.

This news stimulated the preparations for a joint relief expedition in numbers sufficient to overcome the resistance which for a month had been organizing between Taku and the capital. Reinforcements sent by all the co-operating Governments were constantly arriving. The United States contingent, hastily assembled from the Philippines or dispatched from this country, amounted to some 5,000 men, under the able command first of the lamented Col. Liscum, and afterward of Gen. Chaffee.

Toward the end of July the movement began. A severe conflict followed at Tien-Tsin, in which Col. Liscum was killed. The city was stormed and partly destroyed. Its capture afforded the base of operations from which to make the final advance, which began in the first days of August, the expedition being made up of Japanese, Russian, British, and American troops at the outset.

RESCUERS ARRIVE.

Another battle was fought and won at Yangtsun. Thereafter the disheartened Chinese troops offered little show of resistance. A few days later the important position of Ho-si-woo was taken. A rapid march brought the united forces to the populous city of Tung Chow, which capitulated without a contest.

On August 14 the capital was reached. After a brief conflict beneath the walls the relief column entered and the legations were saved. The United States soldiers, sailors, and marines, officers and men alike, in those distant climes and unusual surroundings, showed the same valor, discipline, and good conduct, and gave proof of the same high degree of intelligence and efficiency which have distinguished them in every emergency.

The Imperial family and the Government had fled a few days before. The city was without visible control. The remaining Imperial soldiery had made on the night of the 13th a last attempt to exterminate the besieged, which was gallantly repelled. It fell to the occupying forces to restore order and organize a provisional administration.

Happily, no acute disturbances were confined to the northern provinces. It is a relief to recall and a pleasure to record the loyal conduct of the Viceroys and local authorities of the southern and eastern Provinces. Their efforts were continuously directed to the pacific control of the vast populations under their rule and to the scrupulous observance of foreign treaty rights. At critical moments they did not hesitate to memorialize the Throne, urging the protection of the legations, the restoration of communication, and the assertion of the imperial authority against the subversive elements. They maintained excellent relations with the official representatives of foreign powers. To their kindly disposition largely due the successful efforts of Consuls in removing many of the missionaries from the interior to places of safety. In this relation the action of the Consuls should be highly commended. In Shan-Tung and Eastern Chi-li the task was difficult, but, thanks to their energy and the co-operation of American and foreign naval commanders, hundreds of foreigners, including those of other nationalities than ours, were rescued from imminent peril.

AMERICA'S POLICY.

The policy of the United States through all this trying period was clearly announced and scrupulously carried out. A circular note to the powers dated July 3 proclaimed our attitude. Treating the condition in the North as one of virtual anarchy, in which the great provinces of the South and Southeast had no share, we regarded the local authorities in the latter quarters as representing the Chinese people, with whom we sought to remain in peace and friendship. Our declared aims involved no war against the Chinese nation. We adhered to the legitimate office of rescuing the imperiled legations, obtaining redress for wrongs already suffered, securing wherever possible the safety of American life and property in China, and preventing a spread of the disorders or their recurrence.

As was then said, "The policy of the Government of the United States is to seek a solution which may bring about permanent safety and peace to China, preserve Chinese territorial and administrative entity, protect all rights guaranteed to friendly powers by treaty and international law, and safeguard for the world the principle of equal and impartial trade with all parts of the Chinese Empire."

Faithful to those professions, which, as it proved, reflected the views and purposes of the other co-operating Governments, all our efforts have been directed toward ending the anomalous situation in China by negotiations for a settlement at the earliest possible moment. As soon as the sacred duty of relieving our legation and its defendants was accomplished, we withdrew from active hostilities, leaving our legation under an adequate guard in Peking as a channel of negotiations and settlement—a course adopted by others of the interested powers. Overtures of the empowered representatives of the Chinese Emperor have been considerately entertained.

RUSSIA'S PROPOSITION.

The Russian proposition looking to the restoration of the imperial power in Peking has been accepted as in full consonance with our own desires, for we have held and hold that effective reparation for wrongs suffered and an enduring settlement that will make their recurrence impossible can best be brought about under an authority which the Chinese Nation reverences and obeys. While so doing we forego no jot of our undoubted right to exact exemplary and deterrent punishment of the responsible authors and abettors of the criminal acts whereby we and other nations have suffered grievous injury.

For the real culprits, the evil counselors who have misled the imperial judgment and diverted the sovereign authority to their own guilty ends, full expiation becomes imperative within the rational limits of retributive justice. Regarding this as the initial condition of an acceptable settlement between China and the powers, I said in my message of Oct. 18 to the Chinese Emperor:

"I trust that negotiations may begin so soon as we and the other offended Governments shall be effectively satisfied of your Majesty's ability and power to treat with just sternness the principal offenders, who are doubly culpable, not alone toward the foreigners, but toward your Majesty, under whose rule the purpose of China to dwell in concord with the world had hitherto found expression in the welcome and protection assured to strangers."

BASES OF NEGOTIATION.

Taking, as a point of departure, the imperial edict appointing Earl Li-Hung-Chang and Prince Ching plenipotentiaries to arrange a settlement, and the edict of Sept. 25, whereby certain high officials were designated for punishment, this Government has moved, in concert with the other powers, toward the opening of negotiations, which Mr. Conger, assisted by Mr. Rockhill, has been authorized to conduct on behalf of the United States.

General bases of negotiation formulated by the Government of the French Republic have been accepted with certain reservations as to details, made necessary by our own circumstances, but, like similar reservations by other powers, open to discussion in the progress of the negotiations. The disposition of the Emperor's Government to admit liability for wrongs done to foreign Governments and their nationals, and to act upon such additional designation of the guilty persons as the foreign Ministers at Peking may be in a position to make, gives hope of a complete settlement of all questions involved, assuring foreign rights of residence and intercourse on terms of equality for all the world.

I regard as one of the essential factors of a durable adjustment the securing of adequate guarantees for liberty of faith, since insecurity of those natives who may embrace alien creeds is a scarcely less effectual assault upon the rights of foreign worship and teaching than would be the direct invasion thereof.

INDEMNITY AND GUARANTEES.

The matter of indemnity for our wronged citizens is a question of grave concern. Measured in money alone, a sufficient reparation may prove to be beyond the ability of China to meet. All the powers concur in emphatic disclaimers of any purpose of aggrandizement through the dismemberment of the empire. I am disposed to think that due compensation may be made in part by increased guarantees of security for foreign rights and immunities, and, most important of all, by the opening of China to the equal commerce of all the world. These views have been and will be earnestly advocated by our representatives.

The Government of Russia has put forward a suggestion, that in the event of protracted divergence of views in regard to indemnities the matter may be relegated to the Court of Arbitration at The Hague. I favorably incline to this, believing that high tribunal could not fail to reach a solution no less conducive to the stability and enlarged prosperity of China itself than immediately beneficial to the powers.

INTERNATIONAL TREATIES.

Ratifications of a treaty of extradition with the Argentine Republic were exchanged on June 2 last.

While the Austro-Hungarian Government has in the many cases that have been reported of the arrest of our naturalized citizens for alleged evasion of military service faithfully observed the provisions of the treaty and released such persons from military obligations, it has in some instances expelled those whose presence in the community of their origin was asserted to have a pernicious influence. Representations have been made against this course whenever its adoption has appeared unduly onerous.

We have been urgently solicited by Belgium to ratify the international convention of June, 1899, amendatory of the previous convention of 1890 in respect to the regulation of the liquor trade in Africa. Compliance was necessarily withheld, in the absence of the advice and consent of the Senate thereto. The principle involved has the cordial sympathy of this Government, which in the revisionary negotiations advocated more drastic measures, and I would gladly see its extension, by international agreement, to the restriction of the liquor traffic with all uncivilized peoples, especially in the Western Pacific.

A conference will be held at Brussels Dec. 11, 1900, under the convention for the protection of industrial property, concluded at Paris March 20, 1883, to which delegates from this country have been appointed. Any lessening of the difficulties that our inventors encounter in obtaining patents abroad for their inventions and that our farmers, manufacturers, and merchants may have in the protection of their trade marks is worthy of careful consideration, and your attention will be called to the results of the conference at the proper time.

In the interest of expanding trade between this country and South America, efforts have been made during the past year to conclude conventions with the southern republics for the enlargement of postal facilities. Two such agreements were signed with Bolivia on April 24, of which that establishing the money order system is undergoing certain changes suggested by the Post Office Department. A treaty of extradition with that country, signed on the same day, is before the Senate.

TRADE WITH BRAZIL.

A boundary dispute between Brazil and Bolivia over the territory of Acre is in a fair way of friendly adjustment, a protocol signed in December, 1899, having agreed on a definite frontier and provided for its demarkation by a joint commission.

Conditions in Brazil have weighed heavily on our export trade to that country in marked contrast to the favorable conditions upon which Brazilian products are admitted into our markets. Urgent representations have been made to that Government on the subject, and some amelioration has been effected. We rely upon the reciprocal justice and good will of that Government to assure to us a further improvement in our commercial relations.

The convention signed May 24, 1897, for the final settlement of claims left in abeyance upon the dissolution of the commission of 1893, was at length ratified by the Chilean Congress and the supplemental commission has been organized.

It remains for the Congress to appropriate for the necessary expenses of the commission.

The insurrectionary movement which disturbed Colombia in the latter part of 1899 has been practically suppressed, although guerrillas still operate in some departments. The executive power of that republic changed hands in August last by the act of Vice President Marroquin in assuming the reins of government during the absence of President Sal Clemente from the capital. The change met with no serious opposition, and, following the precedents in such cases, the United States Minister entered into relations with the new de facto Government on Sept. 17.

It is gratifying to announce that the residual questions between Costa Rica and Nicaragua growing out of the award of President Cleveland in 1888 have been adjusted through the offices of my American engineer, Gen. E. P. Alexander, as umpire to run the disputed line. His task has been accomplished to the satisfaction of both contestants.

A revolution in the Dominican Republic toward the close of last year resulted in the installation of President Jimenez, whose Government was formally recognized in January. Since then final payment has been made of the American claim in regard to the Ozama Bridge.

THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

The year of the exposition has been fruitful in occasions for displaying the good will that exists between this country and France. This great competition brought together from every nation the best in natural productions, industry, science, and the arts, submitted in generous rivalry to a judgment made all the more searching because of that rivalry. The extraordinary increase of exportations from this country during the past three years and the activity with which our inventions and wares had invaded new markets caused much interest to centre upon the American exhibit, and every encouragement was offered in the way of space and facilities to permit of its being comprehensive as a whole and complete in every part.

It was, however, not an easy task to assemble exhibits that could fitly illustrate our diversified resources and manufactures. Singularly enough, our National prosperity lessened the incentive to exhibit. The dealer in raw materials knew that the user must come to him; the great factories were contented with the phenomenal demand for their output, not alone at home, but also abroad, where merit had already won a profitable trade.

Appeals had to be made to the patriotism of exhibitors to induce them to incur outlays promising no immediate return. This was especially the case where it became needful to complete an industrial sequence or illustrate a class of processes. One manufacturer after another had to be visited and importuned, and at times, after a promise to exhibit in a particular section had been obtained, it would be withdrawn, owing to pressure of trade orders, and a new quest would have to be made.

The installation of exhibits, too, encountered many obstacles and involved unexpected cost. The exposition was far from ready at the date fixed for its opening. The French transportation lines were congested with offered freight. Belated goods had to be hastily installed in unfinished quarters with whatever labor could be obtained in the prevailing confusion. Nor was the task of the commission lightened by the fact that, owing to the scheme of classification adopted, it was impossible to have the entire exhibit of any one country in the same building or more than one group of exhibits in the same part of any building. Our installations were scattered on both sides of the Seine and in widely remote suburbs of Paris, so that additional assistants were needed for the work of supervision and arrangement.

AMERICAN SUCCESS AT PARIS.

Despite all these drawbacks the contribution of the United States was not only the largest foreign display, but was among the earliest in place and the most orderly in arrangement. Our exhibits were shown in 101 out of 121 classes, and more completely covered the entire classification than those of any other nation. In total number they ranked next after those of France, and the attractive form in which they were presented secured general attention.

A criterion of the extent and success of our participation and of the thoroughness with which our exhibits were organized is seen in the awards granted to American exhibitors by the international jury, namely, grand prizes, 240; gold medals, 597; silver medals, 770; bronze medals, 541, and honorable mentions, 322—2,476 in all, being the greatest total number given to the exhibit of any exhibiting nation, as well as the largest number in each grade. This significant recognition of merit in competition with the chosen exhibits of all other nations and at the hands of juries almost wholly made up of representatives of France and other competing countries is not only most gratifying, but is especially valuable, since it sets us to the front in international questions of supply and demand, while the large proportion of awards in the classes of art and artistic manufactures afforded unexpected proof of the stimulation of National culture by the prosperity that flows from natural productiveness joined to industrial excellence.

Apart from the Exposition, several occasions for showing international good-will occurred. The inauguration in Paris of the Lafayette Monument, presented by the school children of the United States, and the designing of a commemorative coin by our mint and the presentation of the first piece struck to the President of the United public, were marked by appropriate ceremonies, and the Fourth of July was especially observed in the French capital.

RELATIONS WITH GERMANY.

Good-will prevails in our relations with the German Empire. An amicable adjustment of the long-pending question of the admission of our life-insurance companies to do business in Prussia has been reached. One of the principal companies has already been readmitted and the way is opened for the others to share the privilege.

The settlement of the Samoan problem, to which I adverted in my last message, has accomplished good results. Peace and contentment prevail in the islands, especially in Tutuila, where a convenient administration that has won the confidence and esteem of the kindly disposed natives has been organized under the direction of the Commander of the United States naval station at Fago-Pago.

An imperial meat-inspection law has been enacted for Germany. While it may simplify the inspections, it prohibits certain products heretofore admitted. There is still great uncertainty as to whether our wellnigh extinguished German trade in meat products can revive under its new burdens. Much will depend upon regulations not yet promulgated, which we confidently hope will be free from the discriminations which attended the enforcement of the old statutes.

The remaining link in the new lines of direct telegraphic communication between the United States and the German Empire has recently been completed, affording a gratifying occasion for exchange of friendly congratulations with the German Emperor.

GREAT BRITAIN FRIENDLY.

Our friendly relations with Great Britain continue. The war in Southern Africa introduced important questions. A condition unusual in international wars was presented in that, while one belligerent had control of the seas, the other had no ports, shipping, or direct trade, but was only accessible through the territory of a neutral. Vexatious questions arose through Great Britain's action in respect to neutral cargoes, not contraband in their own nature, shipped to Portuguese South Africa, on the score of probable or suspected ultimate destination to the Boer States.

Such consignments in British ships, by which alone direct trade is kept up between our ports and Southern Africa, were seized in application of a municipal law prohibiting British vessels from trading with the enemy without regard to any contraband character of the goods, while cargoes shipped to Delagoa Bay in neutral bottoms were arrested on the ground of alleged destination to enemy's country. Appropriate representations on our part resulted in the British Government agreeing to purchase outright all such goods shown to be the actual property of American citizens, thus closing the incident to the satisfaction of the immediately interested parties, although, unfortunately, without a broad settlement of the question of a neutral's right to send goods not contraband per se to a neutral port adjacent to a belligerent area.

ALASKA BOUNDARY.

The work of marking certain provisional boundary points, for convenience of administration, around the head of Lynn Canal, in accordance with the temporary arrangement of October, 1899, was completed by a joint survey in July last. The modus vivendi has so far worked without friction, and the Dominion Government has provided rules and regulations for securing to our citizens the benefit of the reciprocal stipulation that the citizens or subjects of either power found by that arrangement within the temporary jurisdiction of the other shall suffer no diminution of the rights and privileges they have hitherto enjoyed. It is however necessary such an expedient may have been to tide over the grave emergencies of the situation, it is at best but an unsatisfactory makeshift, which should not be suffered to delay the speedy and complete establishment of the frontier line to which we are entitled under the Russo-American treaty for the cession of Alaska.

In this relation I may refer again to the need of definitely marking the Alaskan boundary where it follows the one hundred and forty-first meridian. A convention to that end has been before the Senate for some two years, but as no action has been taken I contemplate negotiating a new convention for a joint determination of the meridian by telegraphic observations. These, it is believed, will give more accurate and unquestionable results than the sidereal methods heretofore independently followed, which, as is known, proved discrepant at several points on the line, although not varying at any place more than 700 feet.

CLAIMS OF AMERICANS.

The pending claim of R. H. May against the Guatemalan Government has been settled by arbitration, Mr. George F. B. Jenner, British Minister at Guatemala, who was chosen as sole arbitrator, having awarded $143,750.78 in gold to the claimant.

Various American claims against Haiti have been or are being advanced to the resort of arbitration.

As a result of negotiations with the Government of Honduras in regard to the indemnity demanded for the murder of Frank H. Pears in Honduras, that Government has paid $10,000 in settlement of the claim to the heirs.

LYNCHING OF FOREIGNERS.

The assassination of King Humbert called forth sincere expressions of sorrow from this Government and people, and occasion was fitly taken to testify to the Italian nation the high regard here felt for the memory of the lamented ruler.

In my last message I referred at considerable length to the lynching of five Italians at Tallulah. Notwithstanding the efforts of the Federal Government, the production of evidence tending to inculpate the authors of this grievous offense against our civilization, and the repeated inquests set on foot by the authorities of the State of Louisiana, no punishments have followed. Successive Grand Juries have failed to indict. The representations of the Italian Government in the face of this miscarriage have been most temperate and just.

Setting the principle at issue high above all consideration of merely pecuniary indemnification, such as this Government made in the three previous cases, Italy has solemnly invoked the pledges of existing treaty and asked that the justice to which she is entitled shall be meted in regard to her unfortunate countrymen in our territory with the same full measure she herself would give to any American were his reciprocal treaty rights contemned.

I renew the urgent recommendations I made last year that the Congress appropriately confer upon the Federal courts jurisdiction in this class of international cases where the ultimate responsibility of the Federal Government may be involved, and I invite action upon the bills to accomplish this which were introduced in the Senate and House. It is incumbent upon us to remedy the statutory omission which has led, and may again lead, to such untoward results. I have pointed out the necessity and the precedent for legislation of this character. Its enactment is a simple measure of previsory justice toward the nations with which we as a sovereign equal make treaties requiring reciprocal observance.

While the Italian Government naturally regards such action as the primary and, indeed, the most essential element in the disposal of the Tallulah incident, I advise that, in accordance with precedent, and in view of the improbability of that particular case being reached by the bill now pending, Congress make gracious provision for indemnity to the Italian sufferers in the same form and proportion as heretofore.

In my inaugural address I referred to the general subject of lynching in these words:

"Lynching must not be tolerated in a great and civilized country like the United States; courts, not mobs, must execute the penalties of the law. The preservation of public order, the right of discussion, the integrity of courts, and the orderly administration of justice must continue forever the rock of safety upon which our Government securely rests."

This I most urgently reiterate and again invite the attention of my countrymen to this reproach upon our civilization.

JAPAN'S DEVELOPMENT.

The closing year has witnessed a decided strengthening of Japan's relations to other States. The development of her independent judicial and administrative functions under the treaties which took effect July 17, 1899, has proceeded without international friction, showing the competence of the Japanese to hold a foremost place among modern peoples.

In the treatment of the difficult Chinese problems Japan has acted in harmonious concert with the other powers, and her generous co-operation materially aided in the joint relief of the beleaguered legations in Peking and in bringing about an understanding preliminary to a settlement of the issues between the powers and China. Japan's declarations in favor of the integrity of the Chinese Empire and the conservation of open world trade therewith have been frank and positive. As a factor for promoting the general interests of piece, order, and fair commerce in the Far East, the influence of Japan can hardly be overestimated.

The valuable aid and kindly courtesies extended by the Japanese Government and naval officers to the battleship Oregon are gratefully appreciated.

Complaint was made last Summer of the discriminatory enforcement of a bubonic quarantine against Japanese on the Pacific Coast, and of interference with their travel in California and Colorado under the health laws of those States. The latter restrictions have been adjudged by a Federal court to be unconstitutional. No recurrence of either cause of complaint is apprehended.

DEALINGS WITH MEXICO.

No noteworthy incident has occurred in our relations with our important southern neighbor. Commercial intercourse with Mexico continues to thrive, and the two Governments neglect no opportunity to foster their mutual interests in all practicable ways.

Pursuant to the declaration of the Supreme Court that the awards of the late Joint Commission in the La Abra and Weil claims were obtained through fraud, the sum awarded in the first case, $403,030.08, has been returned to Mexico, and the amount of the Weil award will be returned in like manner.

A convention indefinitely extending the time for the labors of the United States and Mexican International (Water) Boundary Commission has been signed.

THE HAGUE CONFERENCE.

It is with satisfaction that I am able to announce the formal notification at The Hague, on Sept. 4, of the deposit of ratifications of the convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes by sixteen powers, namely, the United States, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Italy, Persia, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Siam, Spain, Sweden, and Norway, and the Netherlands. Japan also has since ratified the convention.

The Administrative Council of the Permanent Court of Arbitration has been organized and has adopted rules of order and a constitution for the International Arbitration Bureau. In accordance with Article XXIII. of the convention, providing for the appointment by each signatory power of persons of known competency in questions of international law as arbitrators, I have appointed as members of this court, the Hon. Benjamin Harrison of Indiana, ex-President of the United States; the Hon. Melville W. Fuller of Illinois, Chief Justice of the United States; the Hon. John W. Griggs of New Jersey, Attorney General of the United States, and the Hon. George Gray of Delaware, a Judge of the Circuit Court of the United States.

DISPUTE WITH NICARAGUA.

As an incident of the brief revolution in the Mosquito district of Nicaragua early in 1899, the insurgents forcibly collected from American merchants duties upon imports. On the restoration of order the Nicaraguan authorities demanded a second payment of such duties on the ground that they were due to the titular Government, and that their diversion had aided the revolt.

This position was not accepted by us. After prolonged discussion a compromise was effected, under which the amount of the second payments was deposited with the British Consul at San Juan del Norte in trust until the two Governments should determine whether the first payments had been made under compulsion to a de facto authority. Agreement as to this was not reached, and the point was waived by the act of the Nicaraguan Government in requesting the British Consul to return the deposits to the merchants.

Menacing differences between several of the Central American States have been accommodated, our Ministers rendering good offices toward an understanding.

THE INTEROCEANIC CANAL.

The all-important matter of an interoceanic canal has assumed a new phase. Adhering to its refusal to reopen the question of the forfeiture of the contract of the Maritime Canal Company, which was terminated for alleged non-execution in October, 1899, the Government of Nicaragua has since supplemented that action by declaring the so-styled Eyre-Cragin option void for non-payment of the stipulated advance. Protests in relation to these acts have been filed in the State Department and are under consideration. Deeming itself relieved from existing engagements, the Nicaraguan Government shows a disposition to deal freely with the canal question either in the way of negotiations with the United States or by taking measures to promote the waterway.

Overtures for a convention to effect the building of a canal under the auspices of the United States are under consideration. In the meantime, the views of the Congress upon the general subject, in the light of the report of the Commission appointed to examine the comparative merits of the various trans-Isthmian ship canal projects, may be awaited.

I commend to the early attention of the Senate the convention with Great Britain to facilitate the construction of such a canal, and to remove any objection which might arise out of the convention commonly called the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

The long-standing contention with Portugal, growing out of the seizure of the Delagoa Bay Railway, has been at last determined by a favorable award of the tribunal of arbitration at Berne, to which it was submitted. The amount of the award, which was deposited in London awaiting arrangements by the Governments of the United States and Great Britain for its disposal, has recently been paid over to the two Governments.

A lately signed convention of extradition with Peru, as amended by the Senate, has been ratified by the Peruvian Congress.

Another illustration of the policy of this Government to refer international disputes to impartial arbitration is seen in the agreement reached with Russia to submit the claims on behalf of American sealing vessels seized in Bering Sea to determination by Mr. T. M. C. Asser, a distinguished statesman and jurist of the Netherlands.

Thanks are due to the Imperial Russian Government for the kindly aid rendered by its authorities in Eastern Siberia to American missionaries fleeing from Manchuria.

NEW TREATY WITH SPAIN.

Satisfactory progress has been made toward the conclusion of a general treaty of freindship and intercourse with Spain, in replacement of the old treaty, which passed into abeyance by reason of the late war. A new convention of extradition is approaching completion, and I should be much pleased were a commercial arrangement to follow. I feel that we should not suffer to pass any opportunity to reaffirm the cordial ties that existed between us and Spain from the time of our earliest independence, and to enhance the mutual benefits of that commercial intercourse which is natural between the two countries.

By the terms of the treaty of peace the line bounding the ceded Philippine group in the southwest failed to include several small islands lying westward of the Sulus, which have always been recognized as under Spanish control. The occupation of Sibutu and Cagayan Sulu by our naval forces elicited a claim on the part of Spain, the essential equity of which could not be gainsaid. In order to remedy the defect of the treaty by removing all possible ground of future misunderstanding respecting the interpretation of its third article, I directed the negotiation of a supplementary treaty, which will be forthwith laid before the Senate, whereby Spain quits all title and claim of title to the islands named as well as to any and all islands belonging to the Philippine archipelago lying outside the lines described in said third article, and agrees that all such islands shall be comprehended in the cession of the archipelago as fully as if they had been expressly included within those lines. In consideration of this cession the United States is to pay to Spain the sum of $100,000.

A bill is now pending to effect the recommendation made in my last annual message that appropriate legislation be had to carry into execution Article VII. of the treaty of peace with Spain, by which the United States assumed the payment of certain claims for indemnity of its citizens against Spain. I ask that action be taken to fulfill this obligation.

The King of Sweden and Norway has accepted the joint invitation of the United States, Germany, and Great Britain to arbitrate claims growing out of losses sustained in the Samoan Islands in the course of military operations made necessary by the distubances of 1899.

SETTLEMENT BY TURKEY.

Our claims upon the Government of the Sultan for reparation for injuries suffered by American citizens in Armenia and elsewhere give promise of early and satisfactory settlement. His Majesty's good disposition in this regard has been evinced by the issuance of an irade for rebuilding the American college at Harpoot.

RECIPROCITY

than $50,000, and 103 with capital of $30,000 or more.

It is worthy of mention that the greater number of banks being organized under the new law are in sections where the need of banking facilities has been most pronounced. Iowa stands first, with thirty banks of the smaller class, while Texas, Oklahoma, Indian Territory, and the middle and western sections of the country have also availed themselves largely of the privileges under the new law.

A large increase in National bank-note circulation has resulted from the provision of the act which permits National banks to issue circulating notes to the par value of the United States bonds deposited as security instead of only 90 per cent, thereof, as heretofore. The increase in circulating notes from March 14 to Nov. 30 is $77,888,570.

The party in power is committed to such legislation as will better make the currency responsive to the varying needs of business at all seasons and in all sections.

GROWTH OF FOREIGN TRADE.

Our foreign trade shows a remarkable record of commercial and industrial progress. The total of imports and exports for the first time in the history of the country exceed two billions of dollars. The exports are greater than they have ever been before, the total for the fiscal year 1900 being $1,394,483,082, an increase over 1899 of $167,459,780, an increase over 1898 of $261,069,752, over 1897 of $343,489,526, and greater than 1896 by $511,876,144.

The growth of manufactures in the United States is evidenced by the fact that exports of manufactured products largely exceed those of any previous year, their value for 1900 being $433,851,756, against $339,592,146 in 1899, an increase of 28 per cent.

Agricultural products were also exported during 1900 in greater volume than in 1899, the total for the year being $835,858,125, against $784,776,142 in 1899.

The imports for the year amounted to $849,941,158, an increase over 1899 of $152,702,356. This increase is largely in materials for manufacture, and is in response to the rapid development of manufacturing in the United States. While there was imported for use in manufactures in 1900 material to the value of $378,765,972 in excess of 1899, it is reassuring to observe that there is a tendency toward decrease in the importation of articles manufactured ready for consumption, which in 1900 formed 15.17 per cent of the total imports, against 15.91 per cent. in 1899, and 21.09 per cent. in 1896.

URGES TAX REDUCTION.

I recommend that the Congress at its present session reduce the internal revenue taxes imposed to meet the expenses of the war with Spain in the sum of $30,000,000. This reduction should be secured by the remission of those taxes which experience has shown to be the most burdensome to the industries of the people.

I specially urge that there be included in whatever reduction is made the legacy tax bequests for public uses of a literary, educational, or charitable character.

AID TO MERCHANT MARINE.

American vessels during the past three years have carried about 9 per cent. of our exports and imports. Foreign ships should carry the least, not the greatest, part of American trade. The remarkable growth of our steel industries, the progress of shipbuilding for the domestic trade, and our steadily maintained expenditures for the Navy have created an opportunity to place the United States in the first rank of commercial maritime powers.

Besides realizing a proper National aspiration this will mean the establishment and healthy growth along all our coasts of a distinctive National industry, expanding the field for the profitable employment of labor and capital. It will increase the transportation facilities and reduce freight charges on the vast volume of products brought from the interior to the seaboard for export, and will strengthen an arm of the National defense upon which the founders of the Government and their successors have relied. In again urging immediate action by the Congress on measures to promote American shipping and foreign trade, I direct attention to the recommendations on the subject in previous messages, and particularly to the opinion expressed in the message of 1898.

"I am satisfied the judgment of the country favors the policy of aid to our merchant marine, which will broaden our commerce and markets and upbuild our seacarrying capacity for the products of agriculture and manufacture, which, with the increase of the navy, mean more work and wages to our countrymen, as well as a safeguard to American interests in every part of the world."

The attention of the Congress is invited to the recommendation of the Secretary of the Treasury in his annual report for legislation in behalf of the Revenue Cutter Service, and favorable action is urged.

TRUSTS AND COMBINATIONS.

In my last annual message to the Congress I called attention to the necessity for early action to remedy such evils as might be found to exist in connection with combinations of capital organized into trusts, and again invite attention to my discussion of the subject at that time, which concluded with these words:

"It is apparent that uniformity of legislation upon this subject in the several States is much to be desired. It is to be hoped that such uniformity, founded in a wise and just discrimination between what is injurious and what is useful and necessary in business operations, may be obtained, and that means may be found for the Congress, within the limitations of its Constitutional power, to supplement an effective code of State legislation as to make a complete system of laws throughout the United States adequate to compel a general observance of the salutary rules to which I have referred.

"The whole question is so important and far-reaching that I am sure no part of it will be lightly considered, but every phase of it will have the studied deliberation of the Congress, resulting in wise and judicious action."

"Restraint upon such combinations as are injurious, and which are within Federal jurisdiction, should be promptly applied by the Congress.

PROGRESS IN THE PHILIPPINES.

In my last annual message I dwelt at some length upon the condition of affairs in the Philippines. While seeking to impress upon you that the grave responsibility of the future government of those islands rests with the Congress of the United States, I abstained from recommending at that time a specific and final form of government for the territory actually held by the United States forces, and in which as long as insurrection continues the military arm must necessarily be supreme. I state it my purpose, until the Congress shall have made known the formal expression of its will, to use the authority vested in me by the Constitution and the statutes to uphold the sovereignty of the United States in those distant islands as in all other places where our flag rightfully floats, placing to that end at the disposal of the army and navy all the means which the liberality of the Congress and the people have provided. No contrary expression of the will of the Congress having been made, I have steadfastly pursued the purpose so declared, employing the civil arm as well toward the reconstruction of pacification and the restitution of local Governments within the lines of authority and law.

Progress in the hoped-for direction has been favorable. Our forces have successfully controlled the greater part of the Islands, overcoming the organized forces of the insurgents and carrying order and administrative regularity in their footsteps. What opposition remains is for the most part scattered, obeying no concerted plan of strategic action, operating only by the methods common to the traditions of guerrilla warfare, which, while ineffective to alter the general control now established, are still sufficient to keep insecurity among the populations that have felt the good effects of our control and thus delay the confinement upon them of the fuller measures of local self-government, of education, and of industrial and agricultural development which we stand ready to give them.

By the Spring of this year the effective occupation of the archipelago by the United States will be complete, and thus opening the door for the extension of a stable administration over much of the territory of the archipelago. Desiring to bring this about, I appointed in March last a civil commission composed of the Hon. William H. Taft of Ohio, Prof. Dean C. Worcester of Michigan, the Hon. Luke I. Wright of Tennessee, the Hon. Henry C. Ide of Vermont, and Prof. Bernard Moses of California. The aims of their mission and the scope of their authority are clearly set forth in my instructions of April 7, 1900, addressed to the Secretary of War, to be transmitted to them:

THE COMMISSION'S ORDERS.

"In the message transmitted to the Congress on the 5th of December, 1899, I said, speaking of the Philippine Islands: 'As long as the insurrection continues the military arm must necessarily be supreme. But there is no reason why steps should not be taken from time to time to inaugurate governments essentially popular in their form as fast as territory is held and controlled by our troops. To this end I am considering the advisability of the return of the commission, or such of the members thereof as can be secured, to aid the existing authorities and facilitate this work throughout the islands.'

"To give effect to the intention thus expressed, I have appointed the Hon. William H. Taft of Ohio, Prof. Dean C. Worcester of Michigan, the Hon. Luke I. Wright of Tennessee, the Hon. Henry C. Ide of Vermont, and Prof. Bernard Moses of California Commissioners to the Philippine Islands to continue and perfect the work of organizing and establishing civil government already commenced by the military authorities, subject in all respects to any laws which Congress may hereafter enact.

"The Commissioners named will meet and act as a board, and the Hon. William H. Taft is designated as President of the board. It is probable that the transfer of authority from military commandors to civil officers will be gradual and will occupy a considerable period. Its successful accomplishment and the maintenance of peace and order in the meantime will require the most perfect co-operation between the civil and military authorities in the island, and both should be directed during the transition period by the same executive department. The commission will therefore report to the Secretary of War, and all their action will be subject to your approval and control.

"You will instruct the commission to proceed to the City of Manila, where they will make their principal office, and to communicate with the Military Governor of the Philippine Islands, whom you will at the same time direct to render to them every assistance within his power in the performance of their duties. Without hampering them by too specific instructions, they should in general be enjoined, after making themselves familiar with the conditions and needs of the country, to devote their attention in the first instance to the establishment or municipal governments, in which the natives of the islands, both in the cities and in the rural communities, shall be afforded the opportunity to manage their own local affairs to the fullest extent of which they are capable and subject to the least degree of supervision and control which a careful study of their capacities and observation of the workings of native control show to be consistent with the maintenance of law, order, and loyalty.

"The next subject in order of importance should be the organization of government in the larger administrative divisions corresponding to counties, departments, or provinces, in which the common interests of many or several municipalities fall within the same tribal lines, or the same natural geographical limits, may best be observed and the common administration. Whenever the commission is of the opinion that the condition of affairs in the islands is such that the central administration may safely be transferred from military to civil control they will report that conclusion to you, with their recommendations as to the form of central government to be established for the purpose of taking over the control.

"Beginning with the 1st day of September, 1900, the authority to exercise, subject to my approval, through the Secretary of War, that part of the power of government in the Philippine Islands which is of a legislative nature is to be transferred from the Military Governor of the islands to this commission, to be thereafter exercised by them in the place and stead of the Military Governor, under such rules and regulations as you shall prescribe, until the establishment of the civil central government for the islands contemplated in the last foregoing paragraph, or until Congress shall otherwise provide. Exercise of this legislative authority will include the making of rules and orders, having the effect of law, for the raising of revenue by taxes, customs duties, and imposts; the appropriation and expenditure of public funds of the islands; the establishment of an educational system throughout the islands; the establishment of a system to secure an efficient civil service; the organization and establishment of courts; the organization and establishment of municipal and departmental governments, and all other matters of a civil nature for which the Military Governor is now competent to provide by rules or orders of a legislative character.

"The commission will also have power during the same period to appoint to office such officers of the judicial, educational, and civil service systems and in the municipal and departmental governments as shall be provided for. Until the complete transfer of control the Military Governor will remain the chief executive head of the islands, and will exercise the executive authority now possessed by him and not herein expressly assigned to the commission, subject, however, to the rules and orders enacted by the commission in the exercise of the legislative powers conferred upon them. In the meantime the municipal and departmental governments will continue to report to the Military Governor and be subject to his administrative supervision and control, under your direction, but that supervision and control will be confined within the narrowest limits consistent with the requirement that the powers of government in the municipalities and departments shall be honestly and effectively exercised and that law and order and individual freedom shall be maintained.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENTS.

"All legislative rules and orders, establishments of government, and appointments to office by the commission will take effect immediately, or at such times as they shall designate, subject to your approval and action upon the coming in of the commission's reports, which are to be made from time to time as their action is taken. Wherever civil governments are constituted under the direction of the commission such military posts, garrisons, and forces will be continued for the suppression of insurrection and brigandage and the maintenance of law and order as the military commander shall deem requisite, and the military forces shall be at all times subject under his orders to the call of the civil authorities for the maintenance of law and order and the enforcement of their authority.

"In the establishment of municipal governments the commission will take as the basis of their work the governments established by the Military Governor under his order of Aug. 8, 1800, and under the report of the board constituted by the Military Governor by his order of Jan. 20, 1900, to formulate and report a plan of municipal government, of which his Honor Cayetano Arellano, President of the Audiencia, was Chairman, and they will give to the conclusions of that board the weight and consideration which the high character and distinguished abilities of its members justify.

POWERS OF MUNICIPALITIES.

"In the constitution of departmental and provincial Governments they will give especial attention to the existing Government of the Island of Negros, constituted, with the approval of the people of that island, under the order of the Military Governor of July 22, 1899, and after verifying so far as may be practicable the reports of the successful working of that Government they will be guided by the experience thus acquired so far as it may be applicable to the condition existing in other portions of the Philippines. They will avail themselves, to the fullest degree practicable, of the conclusions reached by the previous commission to the Philippines.

"In the distribution of powers among the governments organized by the commission, the presumption is always to be in favor of the smaller subdivision, so that all the powers which can properly be exercised by the Municipal Government shall be vested in that Government, and all the powers of a more general character which can be exercised by the Departmental Government shall be vested in that Government, and so on through the governmental system, which is the result of the process, the central Government of the islands, following the example of the distribution of the powers between the States and the National Government of the United States, shall have no direct administration except of matters of purely general concern, and shall have only such supervision and control over local Governments as may be necessary to secure and enforce faithful and efficient administration by local officers.

NATIVES TO SELECT OFFICERS.

"The many different degrees of civilization and varieties of custom and capacity among the people of the different islands preclude very definite instruction as to the part which the people shall take in the selection of their own officers; but these general rules are to be observed: That in all cases the municipal officers who administer the local affairs of the people are to be selected by the people, and that wherever officers of more extended jurisdiction are to be selected in any way, natives of the islands are to be preferred, and if they can be found competent and willing to perform the duties, they are to receive the offices in preference to any others.

"It will be necessary to fill some offices for the present with Americans which after a time may well be filled by natives of the islands. As soon as practicable a system for ascertaining the merit and fitness of candidates for civil office should be put in force. An indispensable qualification for all offices and positions of trust and authority in the islands must be absolute and unconditional loyalty to the United States, and absolute and unhampered authority and power to remove and punish any officer deviating from that standard must at all times be retained in the hands of the central authority of the islands.

"In all the forms of government and administrative provision which they are authorized to prescribe the commission should bear in mind that the government which they are establishing is designed not for our satisfaction, or for the expression of our theoretical views, but for the happiness, peace, and prosperity of the people of the Philippine Islands, and the measures adopted should be made to conform to their customs, their habits, and even their prejudices, to the fullest extent consistent with the accomplishment of the indispensable requisites of just and effective government.

"At the same time the commission should bear in mind, and the people of the islands should be made plainly to understand, that there are certain great principles of government which have been made the basis of our governmental system which we deem essential to the rule of law and the maintenance of individual freedom, and of which they have, unfortunately, been denied the experience possessed by us; that there are also certain practical rules of government which we have found to be essential to the preservation of these great principles of liberty and law, and that these principles and these rules of government must be established and maintained in their islands for the sake of their liberty and happiness, however much they may conflict with the customs or laws of procedure with which they are familiar.

SOME INVIOLABLE RULES.

"It is evident that the most enlightened thought of the Philippine Islands fully appreciates the importance of these principles and rules, and they will inevitably within a short time command universal assent. Upon every division and branch of the government of the Philippines, therefore, must be imposed these inviolable rules:

"That no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law; that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation; that in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation, to be confronted with the witnesses against him, to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense; that excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted; that no person shall be put twice in jeopardy for the same offense, or be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself; that the right to be secure against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated; that neither slavery nor involuntary servitude shall exist except as a punishment for crime; that no bill of attainder or ex-post facto law shall be passed; that no law shall be passed abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the rights of the people to peaceably assemble and petition the Government for a redress of grievances; that no law shall be made respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, and that the free exercise and enjoyment of religious profession and worship without discrimination or preference shall forever be allowed.

CHURCH'S TITLE TO PROPERTY.

"It will be the duty of the commission to make a thorough investigation into the titles to the large tracts of land held or claimed by individuals or by religious orders; into the justice of the claims and complaints made against such landholders by the people of the island or any part of the people, and to seek by wise and peaceable measures a just settlement of the controversies and redress of wrongs which have caused strife and bloodshed in the past. In the performance of this duty the commission is enjoined to see that no injustice is done; to have regard for substantial rights and equity, disregarding technicalities so far as substantial rights of parties, and to observe the following rules:

"That the provision of the treaty of Paris pledging the United States to the protection of all rights of property in the islands, and as well the principle of our own Government, which prohibits the taking of private property without due process of law, shall not be violated; that the welfare of the people of the islands, which should be a paramount consideration, shall be attained consistently with this rule of property right; that if it becomes necessary for the public interest of the people of the islands to dispose of claims to property which the commission finds to be not lawfully acquired and held, disposition shall be made thereof by due legal procedure, in which there shall be full opportunity for fair and impartial hearing and judgment; that if the same public interests require the extinguishment of property rights lawfully acquired and held due compensation shall be made out of the public treasury therefor; that no form of religion and no minister of religion shall be forced upon any community or upon any citizen of the islands; that, upon the other hand, no minister of religion shall be interfered with or molested in following his calling, and that the separation between State and Church shall be real, entire, and absolute.

EDUCATION AND TAXES.

"It will be the duty of the commission to promote and extend, and, as they find occasion, to improve, the system of education already inaugurated by the military authorities. In doing this they should regard as of first importance the extension of a system of primary education which shall be free to all, and which shall tend to fit the people for the duties of citizenship, and for the ordinary avocations of a civilized community. This instruction shall be given in the first instance in every part of the islands in the language of the people. In view of the great number of languages spoken by the different tribes, it is especially important to the prosperity of the islands that a common medium of communication may be established, and it is obviously desirable that this medium should be the English language. Especial attention should be at once given to affording full opportunity to all the people of the islands to acquire the use of the English language.

"It may be well that the main changes which should be made in the system of taxation and in the body of the laws under which the people are governed, except such changes as have already been made by the military Government, should be relegated to the civil Government which is to be established under the auspices of the commission. It will, however, be the duty of the commission to inquire diligently as to whether there are any further changes which ought to be delayed, and, if so, they are authorized to make such changes, subject to your approval. In doing so they are to bear in mind that taxes which tend to penalize or repress industry and enterprise are to be avoided; that provisions for taxation should be simple, so that they may be understood by the people; that they should affect the fewest practicable subjects of taxation which will serve for the general distribution of burdens.

"The main body of the laws which regulate the rights and obligations of the people should be maintained with as little interference as possible. Changes made should be mainly in procedure, and in the criminal laws, to secure speedy and impartial trials, and, at the same time, effective administration and respect for individual rights.

"In dealing with the uncivilized tribes of the islands the commission should adopt the same course followed by Congress in permitting the tribes of our North American Indians to maintain their tribal organization and government, and under which many of those tribes are now living in peace and contentment, surrounded by a civilization to which they are unable or unwilling to conform. Such tribal governments should however be subjected to wise and firm regulation, and, without undue or petty interference, constant and active effort should be exercised to prevent barbarous practices and introduce civilized customs.

AMERICA'S OBLIGATION.

"Upon all officers and employes of the United States, both civil and military, should be impressed a sense of the duty to observe not merely the material, but the personal and social rights of the people of the islands, and to treat them with the same courtesy and respect for their personal dignity which the people of the United States are accustomed to require from each other.

"The articles of capitulation of the City of Manila on the 13th of August, 1898, concluded with these words:

"'This city, its inhabitants, its churches, and religious worship, its educational establishments, and its private property of all descriptions are placed under the special safeguard of the faith and honor of the American Army.'

"I believe that this pledge has been faithfully kept. As high and sacred an obligation rests upon the Government of the United States to give protection for property and life, civil and religious freedom, and wise, firm, and unselfish guidance in the paths of peace and prosperity to all the people of the Philippine Islands. I charge this commission to labor for the full performance of this obligation, which concerns the honor and conscience of their country, in the firm hope that through their labors all the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands may come to look back with gratitude to the day when God gave victory to American arms at Manila and set their land under the sovereignty and the protection of the people of the United States."

Coincidently with the entrance of the commission upon its labors I caused to be issued by Gen. MacArthur, the Military Governor of the Philippines, on June 21, 1900, a proclamation of amnesty in generous terms, of which many of the insurgents took advantage, among them a number of important leaders.

GENEROUS LAWS FOR FILIPINOS.

This commission, composed of eminent citizens representing the diverse geographical and political interests of the country, and bringing to their task the ripe fruits of long and intelligent service in educational, administrative, and judicial careers, made great progress from the outset. As early as Aug. 21, 1900, it submitted a preliminary report, which will be laid before the Congress, and from which it appears that already the good effects of returning order are felt; that business interrupted by hostilities is improving as peace extends; that a larger area is under sugar cultivation than ever before; that the customs revenues are greater than at any time during the Spanish rule; that economy and efficiency in the military administration have created a surplus fund of $6,000,000, available for needed public improvements; that a stringent civil service law is in preparation; that railroad communications are expanding, opening up rich districts, and that a comprehensive scheme of education is being organized.

Later reports from the commission show yet more encouraging advance toward insuring the benefits of liberty and good government to the Filipinos, in the interest of humanity and with the aim of building up an enduring, self-supporting, and self-administering community in those far Eastern seas. I would impress upon the Congress that whatever legislation may be enacted with respect to the Philippine Islands should be along these generous lines. The fortune of war has thrown upon this Nation an unsought trust which should be unselfishly discharged, and devolved upon this Government a moral as well as material responsibility toward these millions whom we have freed from an oppressive yoke.

I have on another occasion called the Filipinos "the wards of the Nation." Our obligation as guardian was not lightly assumed; it must not be otherwise than honestly fulfilled, aiming first of all to benefit those who have come under our fostering care. It is our duty so to treat them that our flag may be no less beloved in the mountains of Luzon and the fertile zones of Mindanao and Negros than it is at home, that there as here it shall be the revered symbol of liberty, enlightenment, and progress in every avenue of development.

The Filipinos are a race quick to learn and to profit by knowledge. He would be rash who, with the teachings of contemporaneous history before him, would fix a limit to the degree of culture and advancement yet within the reach of these people if our duty toward them be faithfully performed.

PUBLIC LANDS IN PORTO RICO.

The civil Government of Porto Rico provided for by the act of Congress approved April 12, 1900, is in successful operation. The courts have been established. The Governor and his associates, working intelligently and harmoniously, are meeting with commendable success.

On the 6th of November a general election was held in the island for members of the Legislature, and the body elected has been called to convene on the first Monday of December.

I recommend that legislation be enacted by the Congress conferring upon the Secretary of the Interior supervision over the public lands in Porto Rico, and that he be directed to ascertain the location and quantity of lands the title to which remained in the Crown of Spain at the date of cession of Porto Rico to the United States, and that appropriations necessary for surveys be made, and that the methods of the disposition of such lands be prescribed by law.

EVENTS IN CUBA.

On the 25th of July, 1900, I directed that a call be issued for an election in Cuba for members of a Constitutional Convention to frame a constitution as a basis for a stable and independent government in the island. In pursuance thereof the Military Governor issued the following instructions:

"Whereas, the Congress of the United States by its joint resolution of April 20, 1898, declared "'That the people of the Island of Cuba are, and of right ought to be, free and independent.'

"'That the United States hereby disclaims any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction, or control over said island except for the pacification thereof, and asserts its determination, when that is accomplished, to leave the government and control of the island to its people';

"And whereas, the people of Cuba have established Municipal Governments, deriving their authority from the suffrages of the people given under just and equal laws, and are now ready in like manner to proceed to the establishment of a General Government, which shall assume and exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction, and control over the island:

"Therefore, it is ordered that a general election be held in the Island of Cuba on the third Saturday of September, in the year 1900, to elect delegates to a convention to meet in the City of Havana at 12 o'clock noon on the first Monday of November, in the year 1900, to frame and adopt a constitution for the people of Cuba, and as a part thereof to provide for and agree with the Government of the United States upon the relations to exist between that Government and the Government of Cuba, and to provide for the election by the people of officers under such constitution and the transfer of government to the officers so elected.

"The election will be held in the several voting precincts of the island under, and pursuant to, the provisions of the electoral law of April 18, 1900, and the amendments thereof."

The election was held on the 15th of September, and the convention assembled on the 5th of November, 1900, and is now in session.

In calling the convention to order, the Military Governor of Cuba made the following statement:

"As Military Governor of the island, representing the President of the United States, I call this convention to order.

"It will be your duty, first, to frame and adopt a constitution for Cuba, and when that has been done to formulate what in your opinion ought to be the relations between Cuba and the United States.

"The constitution must be adequate to secure a stable, orderly, and free government.

"When you have formulated the relations which in your opinion ought to exist between Cuba and the United States, the Government of the United States will doubtless take such action on its part as shall lead to a final and authoritative agreement between the people of the two countries to the promotion of their common interests.

"All friends of Cuba will follow your deliberations with the deepest interest, earnestly desiring that you shall reach just conclusions, and that by the dignity, individual self-restraint, and wise conservatism which shall characterize your proceedings the capacity of the Cuban people for representative government may be signally illustrated.

"The fundamental distinction between true representative government and dictatorship is that in the former every representative of the people, in whatever office, confines himself strictly within the limits of his defined powers. Without such restraint there can be no free constitutional government.

"Under the order pursuant to which you have been elected and convened, you have no duty and no authority to take part in the present government of the island. Your powers are strictly limited by the terms of that order."

When the convention concludes its labors I will transmit to the Congress the constitution as framed by the convention for its consideration and for such action as it may deem advisable.

CABLE TO MANILA.

I renew the recommendation made in my special message of Feb. 10, 1899, as to the necessity for cable communication between the United States and Hawaii, with extension to Manila. Since then circumstances have strikingly emphasized this need. Surveys have shown the entire feasibility of a chain of cables which at each stopping place shall touch on American territory, so that the system shall be under our own complete control. Manila once within telegraphic reach, connection with the systems of the Asiatic coast would open increased and profitable opportunities for a more direct cable route from our shores to the Orient than is now afforded by the transatlantic. Continental, and transasian lines I urge attention to this important matter.

AN ARMY OF 100,000.

The present strength of the army is 100,000 men—65,000 regulars and 35,000 volunteers. Under the act of March 2, 1899, on the 30th of June next the present volunteer force will be discharged and the regular army will be reduced to 2,447 officers and 29,025 enlisted men.

In 1888 a Board of Officers convened by President Cleveland adopted a comprehensive scheme of coast-defense fortifications, which involved the outlay of something over $100,000,000. This plan received the approval of the Congress, and since then regular appropriations have been made, and the work of fortification has steadily progressed.

More than $60,000,000 have been invested in a great number of forts and guns, with all the complicated and scientific machinery and electrical appliances necessary for their use. The proper care of defensive machinery requires men trained in its use. The number of men necessary to perform this duty alone is ascertained by the War Department, at a minimum allowance, to be 18,420.

There are fifty-eight or more military posts in the United States other than the coast-defense garrisons.

The number of these posts is being constantly increased by the Congress. More than $22,000,000 have been expended in building and equipment, and they can only be cared for by the regular army. The posts now in existence and others to be built provide for accommodations for, and if fully garrisoned require, 26,000 troops. Many of these posts are along our frontier or at important strategic points, the occupation of which is necessary.

We have in Cuba between 5,000 and 6,000 troops. For the present our troops in that island cannot be withdrawn or materially diminished, and certainly not until the completion of the labors of the Constitutional Convention now in session and a government provided by the new constitution shall have been established and its stability assured.

In Porto Rico we have reduced the garrisons to 1,636, which includes 379 native troops. There is no room for further reduction here.

60,000 FOR THE PHILIPPINES.

We will be required to keep a considerable force in the Philippine Islands for some time to come. From the best information obtainable we will need there for the immediate future from 45,000 to 60,000 men. I am sure the number may be reduced as the insurgents shall come to acknowledge the authority of the United States, of which there are assuring indications.

It must be apparent that we will require an army of about 60,000, and that during present conditions in Cuba and the Philippines the President should have authority to increase the force to the present number of 100,000. Included in this number authority should be given to raise native troops in the Philippines up to 15,000, which the Taft commission believe will be more effective in detecting and suppressing guerrillas, assassins, and ladrones than our own soldiers.

The full discussion of this subject by the Secretary of War in his annual report is called to your earnest attention.

I renew the recommendation made in my last annual message that the Congress provide a special medal of honor for the volunteers, regulars, sailors, and marines on duty in the Philippines who voluntarily remained in the service after their terms of enlistment had expired.

I favor the recommendation of the Secretary of War for the detail of officers from the line of the army when vacancies occur in the Adjutant General's Department, Inspector General's Department, Quartermaster's Department, Subsistence Department, Pay Department, Ordnance Department, and Signal Corps.

The army cannot be too highly commended for its faithful and effective service in active military operations in the field and the difficult work of civil administration.

GROWTH OF POSTAL SERVICE.

The continued and rapid growth of the postal service is a sure index of the great and increasing business activity of the country. Its most striking new development is the extension of rural free delivery. This has come almost wholly within the last year. At the beginning of the fiscal year 1899-1900 the number of routes in operation was only 391, and most of these had been running less than twelve months. On the 15th of November, 1900, the number had increased to 2,614, reaching into forty-four States and Territories, and serving a population of 1,801,524. The number of applications now pending and awaiting action nearly equals all those granted up to the present time, and by the close of the current fiscal year about 4,000 routes will have been established, providing for the daily delivery of mails at the scattered homes of about three and a half millions of rural population.

This service ameliorates the isolation of farm life, conduces to good roads, and quickens and extends the dissemination of general information. Experience thus far has tended to allay the apprehension that it would be so expensive as to forbid its general adoption or make it a serious burden. Its actual application has shown that it increases postal receipts, and can be accompanied by reductions in other branches of the service, so that the augmented revenues and the accomplished savings together materially reduce the net cost. The evidences which point to these conclusions are presented in detail in the annual report of the Postmaster General, which, with its recommendations, is commended to the consideration of the Congress. The full development of this special service, however, requires such a large outlay of money that it should be undertaken only after careful study and thorough understanding of all that it involves.

NAVY RECOMMENDATIONS.

Very efficient service has been rendered by the Navy in connection with the insurrection in the Philippines and the recent disturbances in China.

A very satisfactory settlement has been made of the long-pending question of the manufacture of armor plate. A reasonable price has been secured, and the necessity for a Government armor plant avoided.

I approve the recommendations of the Secretary for new vessels and for additional officers and men which the required increase of the Navy makes necessary. I commend to the favorable action of the Congress the measure now pending for the erection of a statue to the memory of the late Admiral David D. Porter. I commend also the establishment of a National naval reserve and of the grade of Vice Admiral. Provision should be made, as recommended by the Secretary, for suitable rewards for special merit. Many officers who rendered the most distinguished service during the recent war with Spain have received in return no recognition from the Congress.

PUBLIC LANDS.

The total area of public lands, as given by the Secretary of the Interior, is approximately 1,071,881,662 acres, of which 917,135,880 acres are undisposed of, and 154,745,782 acres have been reserved for various purposes. The public lands disposed of during the year amount to 13,453,887.96 acres, including 62,423.09 acres of Indian lands, an increase of 4,271,474.89 over the preceding year. The total receipts from the sale of public lands during the fiscal year were $4,379,758.10, an increase of $1,309,620.76 over the preceding year.

The results obtained from our forest policy have demonstrated its wisdom and the necessity in the interest of the public for its continuance and increased appropriations by the Congress for the carrying on of the work. On June 30, 1900, there were thirty-seven forest reserves, created by Presidential proclamations under Section 24 of the Act of March 3, 1891, embracing an area of 46,425,529 acres.

During the past year the Olympic Reserve, in the State of Washington, was reduced 263,040 acres, leaving its present area at 1,023,840 acres. The Prescott Reserve, in Arizona, was increased from 10,240 acres to 423,680 acres, and the Big Horn Reserve, in Wyoming, was increased from 1,127,680 acres to 1,180,800 acres. A new reserve, the Santa Ynez, in California, embracing an area of 145,000 acres, was created during this year. On Oct. 10, 1900, the Crow Creek Forest Reserve, in Wyoming, was created, with an area of 56,320 acres.

PENSIONS AND PATENTS.

At the end of the fiscal year there were on the pension roll 993,529 names, a net increase of 2,010 over the fiscal year 1899. The number added to the rolls during the year was 45,344. The amount disbursed for army pensions during the year was $134,700,597.24, and for navy pensions $3,761,533.41, a total of $138,462,130.65, leaving an unexpended balance of $5,542,768.25 to be covered into the Treasury, which shows an increase over the previous year's expenditure of $167,077.70. There were 684 names added to the rolls during the year by special acts passed at the first session of the Fifty-sixth Congress.

The act of May 9, 1900, among other things provides for an extension of income to widows pensioned under said act to $250 per annum. The Secretary of the Interior believes that by the operations of this act the number of persons pensioned under it will increase and the increased annual payment for pensions will be between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

The Government justly appreciates the services of its soldiers and sailors by making pension payments liberal beyond precedent to them, their widows, and orphans.

There were 26,540 letters patent granted, including reissues and designs, during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900; 1,660 trade marks, 682 labels, and 93 prints registered. The number of patents which expired was 19,988. The total receipts for patents were $1,358,228.35. The expenditures were $1,247,827.58, showing a surplus of $110,400.77.

SCHOOLS FOR ALASKA.

The attention of the Congress is called to the report of the Secretary of the Interior touching the necessity for the further establishment of schools in the Territory of Alaska, and favorable action is invited thereon.

DEVELOPMENTS OF HAWAII.

Much interesting information is given in the report of the Governor of Hawaii as to the progress and development of the islands during the period from July 7, 1898, the date of the approval of the joint resolution of the Congress providing for their annexation, up to April 30, 1900, the date of the approval of the act providing a government for the Territory, and thereafter.

The last Hawaiian census, taken in the year 1896, gives a total population of 109,020, of which 31,019 were native Hawaiians. The number of Americans reported was 8,485. The results of the Federal census, taken this year, show the islands to have a total population of 154,001, showing an increase over that reported in 1896 of 44,981, or 41.2 per cent.

There has been marked progress in the educational, agricultural, and railroad development of the islands.

In the Territorial act of April 30, 1900, Section 7 of said act repeals Chapter 34 of the Civil Laws of Hawaii, whereby the Government was to assist in encouraging and developing the agricultural resources of the republic, especially irrigation. The Governor of Hawaii recommends legislation looking to the development of such water supply as may exist on the public lands, with a view of promoting land settlement. The earnest consideration of the Congress is invited to this important recommendation and others, as embodied in the report of the Secretary of the Interior.

THE LAST CENSUS.

The Director of the Census states that the work in connection with the twelfth census is progressing favorably. This National undertaking, ordered by the Congress each decade, has finally resulted in the collection of an aggregation of statistical facts to determine the industrial growth of the country, its manufacturing and mechanical resources, its richness in mines and forests, the number of its agriculturists, their farms and products, its educational and religious opportunities, as well as questions pertaining to sociological conditions.

The labors of the officials in charge of the bureau indicate that the law of March 3, 1899, requiring the completion of the four important and most desired subjects, namely, population, agricultural, manufacturing, and vital statistics, will be completed within the prescribed limit.

The field work incident to the above inquiries is now practically finished, and as a result the population of the States and Territories, including the Hawaiian Islands and Alaska, has been announced. The growth of population during the last decade amounts to over 13,000,000, a greater numerical increase than in any previous census in the history of the country.

Bulletins will be issued as rapidly as possible giving the population by States and Territories, by minor civil divisions. Several announcements of this kind have already been made, and it is hoped that the list will be completed by Jan. 1. Other bulletins giving the results of the manufacturing and agricultural inquiries will be given to the public as rapidly as circumstances will admit.

The Director, while confident of his ability to complete the different branches of the undertaking in the allotted time, finds himself embarrassed by the lack of a trained force properly equipped for statistical work, thus raising the question whether in the interest of economy and a thorough execution of the census work there should not be retained in the Government employ a certain number of experts, not only to aid in the preliminary organization prior to the taking of the decennial census, but in addition to have the advantage in the field and office work of the bureau of trained assistants to facilitate the early completion of this enormous undertaking.

WANTS REAPPORTIONMENT.

I recommend that the Congress at its present session apportion representation among the several States as provided by the Constitution.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

The Department of Agriculture has been extending its work during the past year, reaching further for new varieties of seeds and plants; co-operating more fully with the States and Territories in research along useful lines; making progress in meteorological work relating to lines of wireless telegraphy and forecasts for oceangoing vessels; continuing inquiry as to animal disease; looking into the extent and character of food adulteration, outlining plans for the care, preservation, and intelligent harvesting of our wood lands; studying soils that producers may cultivate with better knowledge of conditions, and helping to clothe desert places with grasses suitable to our arid regions. Our island possessions are being considered that their peoples may be helped to produce the tropical products now so extensively brought into the United States. Inquiry into methods of improving our roads has been active during the year; help has been given to many localities, and scientific investigation of material in the States and Territories has been inaugurated. Irrigation problems in our semi-arid regions are receiving careful and increased consideration.

An extensive exhibit at Paris of the products of agriculture has made the peoples of many countries more familiar with the varied products of our fields and their comparative excellence.

The collection of statistics regarding our crops is being improved and sources of information are being enlarged, to the end that producers may have the earliest advices regarding crop conditions. There has never been a time when those for whom it was established have shown more appreciation of the services of the department.

ALIEN CONTRACT LAW.

In my annual message of Dec. 5, 1898, I called attention to the necessity for some amendment of the alien contract law. There still remain important features of the right-ful application of the eight-hour law for the benefit of labor and of the principle of arbitration, and I again commend these subjects to the careful attention of the Congress.

CIVIL SERVICE.

That there may be secured the best service possible in the Philippine Islands, I have issued, under date of Nov. 20, 1900, the following order:

"The United States Civil Service Commission is directed to render such assistance as may be practicable to the Civil Service Board, created under the act of the United States Philippine Commission, for the establishment and maintenance of an honest and efficient civil service in the Philippine Islands, and for that purpose to conduct examinations for the civil service of the Philippine Islands, upon the request of the Civil Service Board of said islands, under such regulations as may be agreed upon by the said board and the United States Civil Service Commission."

The Civil Service Commission is greatly embarrassed in its work for want of an adequate permanent force for clerical and other assistance. Its needs are fully set forth in the report. I invite attention to the report, and especially urge upon the Congress that this important bureau of the public service, which passes upon the qualifications and character of so large a number of the officers and employes of the Government, should be supported by all needed appropriations to secure promptness and efficiency.

HALL OF RECORDS.

I am very much impressed with the statement made by the heads of all the departments of the urgent necessity of a hall of public records. In every department building in Washington, so far as I am informed, the space for official records is not only exhausted, but the walls of rooms are lined with shelves, the midd

THE WORLD OUTSIDE.

The Philippine policy of the President, restated in his message, was made known to the people during the campaign. In his letter of acceptance Mr. McKINLEY embodied a large part of his instructions to the Taft Commission, and in that way and by further formal declarations he communicated to the electorate a knowledge of his views and his intentions. That communication was a pledge, a covenant, to deal unselfishly with the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands, having regard for their interests and their advancement as rapidly as their capacities and the maintenance of our authority would permit toward the condition of self-support and self-administration. Having confidence in the good faith and in the wisdom and fidelity of the President, the people renewed their grant of authority to him by re-electing him to the office of President. The issue of the Philippines had been made sharp and clear in the minds of the people by the challenges of Mr. BRYAN and his supporters, some of them men of great ability, sure of a hearing from the American people whenever they spoke. The decision of the people was distinct and conclusive. No doubt remained of their confidence in the President and their willingness to leave the question of the Philippines to his wise discretion until such time as their representatives in Congress should assume jurisdiction by determining the political status of the Filipinos under the stipulations of the treaty of cession.

The message renews and emphasizes the pledges of the letter of acceptance. President McKINLEY evidently has in mind the near coming of the time when Congress will take under consideration the question of the Philippines. He impresses upon the legislative branch the necessity of adopting a policy that shall proceed along the generous lines of a purpose to assure "the benefits of liberty and good government to the Filipinos in the interests of humanity and with the aim of building up an enduring, self-supporting and self-administering community in those Far Eastern seas."

The irreconcilable anti-imperialists will find it hard to keep up an organization for the purpose of opposing this policy. There is somewhere in this country the mournful remnant of a society that denies the legitimacy of the present royal house of England and formally sighs for a Stuart restoration. Its cause is not more hopeless—and scarcely more amusingly unreal—than the principles of learned anti-imperialism after the reelection of Mr. McKINLEY and his message to Congress, when, made bold and reckless by his new lease of power, he certainly would have uncovered his imperial designs if he had had any to uncover.

Of the other topics treated in the message, besides those of China and the Philippines, that lie outside the domain of our immediate domestic concerns, the isthmian canal is the most important. Americans who are sensitive about the honor of the Nation will note with satisfaction the President's recommendation that the Senate early give its attention to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. He might without impropriety have devoted more space and have given a more serious emphasis to this subject. We are not free to proceed with the canal until this convention is concluded. Any arrangement we may have under advisement with Nicaragua must be conditioned on the honorable abrogation of those provisions of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty that stand in the way of our independent action.

Many Presidents have recommended that the Federal courts should be authorized to take jurisdiction of crimes, now punishable only under State laws, against the persons or property of aliens, cases in which the responsibility of the Federal Government, under its treaties, to the government of the victim is clear, and yet can neither be openly avowed or honorably disclaimed. There ought to be some more decent way of dealing with mob outrages on Italians and Chinese than by semi-surreptitious gifts of money by Congress to the relatives of the victims. Foreign Governments cannot and ought not to be required to understand the delicate balance of powers between the States and the Federal Government. When the United States makes a treaty it ought to be in a position, by the exercise of its own authority, to punish crimes committed in violation of its agreements, without waiting for the action of the courts in States where possibly a loose and Populistic disregard of obligations may prevail. President McKINLEY renews the recommendation for Congressional action to correct this anomalous and evil condition.

THE PRESIDENT ON TAXATION.

The President is able to make a most remarkable showing of the condition of the finances and the business prosperity of the country. He could claim with entire accuracy, though he does not, that a great part of that prosperity would not have come to us had not his party taken the right side of the currency issue four years ago, and successfully maintained it before the people, and had not the certainty that the party would stand by the gold standard secured a renewal of success in the late election. That fact, while it is creditable to Mr. McKINLEY and to his party, also imposes a certain responsibility as to the policy of the Administration and the use to be made of the marvelous resources that taxation has accumulated in the Treasury.

At the present moment the net available balance in the Treasury over and above the gold reserve of $150,000,000 is, in round numbers, $140,000,000. The surplus revenue during the last fiscal year, ending June 30, 1900, was $80,000,000, and the estimated surplus for the current year, ending with next June, is as much more. That is to say that the taxes paid by the people in two years will have exceeded the needs of the Government by $160,000,000. Unquestionably that shows a degree of prosperity in the land that it would not be easy to match anywhere else in the world. But it does not show a rational adjustment of burdens. Taxes that are needed and needed for the very best of purposes are, nevertheless, taken from the earnings of the people, and are a definite drain on their productive capacity. But taxes that are not needed are inexcusable, and should be reduced at the earliest moment consistent with what are the likely legitimate demands of the Government. It is in this reduction and readjustment that the mind of the statesman is useful and can render the greatest service to his country. We are sorry to have to say that in our judgment the President neither recognizes the full obligation of the Government to ease the burden of taxation; nor, in the degree that he does recognize it, does he make reasonable recommendations as to the taxes to be taken off.

The President concludes his message as follows:

> In our great prosperity we must guard against the danger it invites of extravagance in Government expenditures and appropriations, and the chosen representatives of the people will, I doubt not, furnish an example in their legislation of that wise economy which in a season of plenty husbands for the future. In this era of great business activity and opportunity, caution is not untimely. It will not abate, but strengthen, confidence. It will not retard, but promote, legitimate industrial and commercial expansion.

This admonition to economy is, unfortunately, accompanied by an urgent recommendation to pass the Ship Subsidy bill, which is in itself an extravagant use of the public funds, and which is, moreover, a diversion of those funds from public ends to private advantage. It is a measure that, under the cloak of protection to American industry, imposes on the producers of the country a tax for which they can receive no direct return and of which the effect will be rather to increase than to diminish the cost of transportation of their products. It is also a measure for the benefit of an industry that is already in a most prosperous condition, and that needs only the stimulation of open competition to develop indefinitely. Surely, this is an illogical and inequitable employment of the surplus contributions of the taxpayers.

Nor can we find the mind of the President more clear as to the lines in which the burden of taxation should be reduced. He is much impressed with the tendency of American trade to expand, and he devotes an earnest passage of his message to the principle of reciprocity, but when he comes to the reduction of taxes it is the internal revenue taxes that he would remove and not the import duties which have for their avowed purpose and their inevitable effect the restraint of mutual commerce. To continue the taxes on raw material, to shut out the products of foreign lands and restrict arbitrarily the choice of markets for our merchants and manufacturers, is not a good way to promote expansion of commerce or of production. It is plain that Mr. McKINLEY does not even yet appreciate the enormous vigor of the American Nation or its capacity to get on without the swaddling clothes of protection which now can only impede its growth.

OUR POLICY IN CHINA.

The President does not err in devoting the first and largest division of his message to the Chinese question. It is at the moment the most burning question in the whole round of our foreign, including our colonial, relations. And it is very much the most extensively misunderstood. To those Americans who have followed it with care, very much of the foreign misunderstanding appears to be willful. But there is a great deal of domestic misunderstanding also. And this is not for the most part willful, but the result of ignorance arising from inattention. When the troubles became acute last Summer, and our legationers, as well as our missionaries, were in actual danger of murder, the current dispatches were indeed eagerly read. But very few of those who read them took the trouble to inform themselves about the origin of the troubles, and few have carefully followed the course of negotiation since. And so, although the President, in telling the story from the beginning, undoubtedly lapses into some trivialities of detail, it was well worth his while to tell the story, as it is worth that of his countrymen to hear it told.

Certainly the vindication of our own action in China was not superfluous, considering the shower of unfriendly criticism upon that action at home, and even more abroad. It is a fact that our course with respect to China has been entirely consistent since and before the circular of July 3. We have insisted upon such reparation as the Government of China was able to make, but we have insisted that it was not to our interest to make demands with which that Government could not comply without forfeiting its own existence and leaving us to deal with anarchy. We have insisted that we were not at war with China, and that we should avoid all behavior which might imbitter against us the Chinese Viceroys and populations which had remained friendly. For our own part, we have avoided such things. After the sacred and indispensable work of rescue was accomplished we withdrew all our troops, except such as were required to guard our remaining representatives, and we have forbidden these to engage in offensive operations. We continue to insist that China shall make every reparation in her power, but we do not pretend to know exactly the limits of her power. In any event, we are at one with Lord SALISBURY upon the impossibility of our attempting to govern China, instead of leaving it to be governed by the Chinese. And, as with revenge, so with reimbursement. Let China pay all she can of the just demands of the Western world. If she cannot pay it all, that is a striking suggestion in the message that she should make up the balance by opening her gates far more widely than they have ever been opened to the trade of the world. That might be easier for her to grant than to pay the full amount of the claims against her. And it would be far more valuable for the United States to obtain.

THE SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC.

The presence in a great and crowded city of enough cases of a highly contagious disease like smallpox to constitute an incipient epidemic is a matter of grave public concern. To exaggerate the danger to be apprehended from it would be a crime against the public interest; scarcely less so is it to underrate these dangers or deny their existence. It is not reassuring to know that the discovered cases are not entirely confined to the congested tenements of one locality. Public conveyances and places of public assembly bring all classes together to such an extent that only the recluse can feel quite safe, and not even the recluse if ministered to by servants who visit friends in the infected districts. It could easily become formidable under present conditions; that it is not likely to is due chiefly to the fact that the early prejudice against vaccination has to a great extent disappeared, and that most of our population are thus immuned to what, under other conditions, might very well become a sweeping epidemic. With a well-defined centre of contagion established in one of the most populous neighborhoods of New York it is proper that all classes of our citizens shall be vaccinated unless advised by their physicians that it is unnecessary. This is not only a wise measure of personal precaution, but it is a public duty which every citizen owes to those with whom he comes in daily contact.

Of the medical staff of the Health Department, upon whom devolves the exigent duties of checking the spread of the disease, we have pleasure in saying that they are capable, vigilant, fearless, and loyal to every responsibility. They do not get the credit they deserve. In this as in previous instances of imported contagion, they are doing all that can be done to check the spread of the disease and limit the number of secondary cases, and they appear to be doing it successfully. They are entitled to the active co-operation of all good citizens in whatever is necessary to the success of their work. They are quite capable of dealing with resistance, but their best efforts are paralyzed by apathy and indifference.

It is not probable that smallpox will wholly disappear from New York before next Spring. It is a Winter disease in this climate, but although it asserts itself earlier this year than is customary, it is not likely to get beyond control.

THE NEW ARMY.

The Army bill prepared under the direction of Secretary ROOT, and virtually approved in the President's message, undoubtedly represents the "assembled wisdom" of the army itself, so far as it can be gathered. It is an old saying that it is very hard to get at. The reason assigned is that every officer looks at a new scheme for reorganizing the army as it affects his personal interests, including his chances of promotion, and decides upon it from that restricted point of view. We have thus individual opinion, or at most the opinion of corps or arms, but not what can be called the opinion of the army. Even retired officers, it is found, retain the prejudices of their active service.

The most striking feature of the present bill is the breaking down of the distinction between staff and line. It is of course unreasonable, and we have found by experience that it is positively dangerous, to foster a permanent staff, excepting for purely technical purposes, such as engineering and ordnance, and there is much to be said in favor of making even the ordnance, so far as it is not a department of supply, an appendage to the artillery. Our system of military education, which we believe to be sound, does not contemplate any further specialization than is demanded by the exigencies of actual service. A graduate of West Point is supposed to be capable of commanding a company of infantry, a troop of cavalry, or a battery of artillery. Doubtless that training makes him a better officer, to whichever arm he may afterward be attached. And the chief trouble with a "permanent staff," with headquarters at the National capital, is that its members may become more politicians than soldiers, with special interests of their own, and also with special methods of pursuing those interests. The danger, as we have discovered, is not illusory; it is a danger to the morale of the army; and Mr. ROOT's proposals seem well adapted to dispel it.

In the same way his very cautious and moderate introduction of the principle of selection, not as opposed to seniority, as a means of promotion, but in connection with seniority, is aimed at another besetting temptation of the military career, the temptation to fall into routine. If an alert, diligent, and studious officer is to get no more by those qualities than an officer who confines himself to doing his routine duties in a routine and perfunctory way, then human nature will make the majority of officers mere routine performers. Not in active service, and in time of war—there it is impossible to keep out the principle of selection—but in time of peace. Guarded as the Secretary's proposal is, we should expect it to be approved by all officers except those who feel that under any mode of selection for fitness they would have no chance. And the promotion of even such officers would not be defeated, but only somewhat retarded, to the benefit of the service in general.

The President confines his comments almost entirely to enforcing the necessity of a standing army of 60,000, with the increase to 100,000 maintained for the present. Whether this increase is maintained by calling the additional troops regulars or volunteers may not very much matter. But it evidently matters that as large a proportion as possible of the garrisons of our dependencies should be drawn from the inhabitants of those dependencies. When we read that half the garrison of Porto Rico is composed of Porto Ricans it is impossible to avoid the conclusion that if we could do on a large scale what we have done on a small, and compose half the garrison of the Philippines of Filipinos, we should have gone far to dispose of the Philippine question. What Mr. ROOT has to say on this subject, as indeed what he has to say on every subject within the scope of his report, is very well worth the consideration of Congress.

THE TAX ON HIDES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES's editorial in protest against the bad policy of retaining the tax on hides must meet the approval of any fair-minded American who has followed recent tariff experiments and attempts at taxation adjustment. The tariff on hides was never demanded by any one except a few political leaders hostile to the interests of the New England manufacturers. It did no good, after it was enacted, in protecting the interests of those in the hide-producing industry, which cannot prosper in this country no matter how much tariff is imposed upon the imported product. It is a failure as a revenue-producing measure, for it places the products of the shoe and leather industries out of competition with the markets abroad that their competitors hold, and thus prevents the importation of the raw material.

The hide industry can flourish only in thinly-populated counties, where waste land is so broadly spread that it is unprofitable for other uses than grazing, and where cattle do not fatten for the meat trade, but grazers kill them for their hides only, and leave the carcasses to rot without burial. Places like the broad steppes of lower South America are the proper homes of such an industry. To block the importation of hides is to drive us to the quest of a new material for footwear.

Without considering the matter of closing foreign markets to American shoe and leather merchants, it is a sufficient cause for shudders among economic students when they see our highly-esteemed regulators of taxation and trade legislation attempting on the one hand to subsidize an industry like that of American merchant ships, which would soon build itself up if given the opportunity, and on the other hand, checking the growth and expansion of a great industry already established, producing one of the necessaries of life, and bravely struggling for room in which to develop. Verily, it seems as though the proposers of such schemes had collected all the taxation theories, good and bad, that they could find in the minds of all kinds of men; had shaken them all up together in a bag, and were publishing them indiscriminately in the order in which they fly out of the bag.

It tripped so light in the olden days
That lie behind, link by link.

The scarlet strand of a ribbon, worn
And faded by passing time;
It glowed so warm at her snow-white throat
When life was a joyous rhyme.

A kerchief dantily edged in lace—
A bit of a spotless thing;
What subtle sense of a dying love
Its delicate odors bring!

What treasures dear of the days agone
Are these which I cherish now!
What loves they tell of the withered past—
Of many a careless vow.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL

An American Farce and a New Comic Opera Produced.

"The Sprightly Romance of Marsac" at the Theatre Republic—Minor Changes of Bill—Stage Gossip.

"The Sprightly Romance of Marsac," a three- act farce, written by Mollie Elliot Seawell and William Young, was performed for the first time in this city last evening at the Theatre Republic, to the seeming enjoyment of a relatively large number of persons. The scene is laid in Paris, and the principal personages are those two historic and traditional impecunious young men of countless other and many livelier farces, one buoyant, inventive, and cheerful in the face of adversity, the other sentimental, disconraged, and habitually bewildered.

They dwell in a garret and their landlady, laundress, tailor, (though they have few and poor clothes,) and other creditors persistently worry them. One is in love with a rich man's daughter. The other pretends to be a woman hater, but, of course, falls in love with the first pretty girl he meets after the curtain rises. The buoyant young man invents and gets into a print a yarn that his chum has fallen heir to millions. Then, their little world, which has sneered at them, for a time fawns on them, but they are presently involved in new difficulties. The piece is all farcical, however, and it is acted from first to last in the manner of burlesque.

The lack of novelty in the plot need not be dwelt upon disapprovingly, as it is less objectionable than the deficiency of wit in the dialogue, and the lack of constructive skill shown in the development. The interest is permitted to flag, and there are not half a dozen really smart speeches in the first two acts. Wherefore, "The Sprightly Romance of Marsac" is less sprightly than might be desired.

In the performance the best work is done by Edward Abeles, who acts the meek and sentimental young man with the needful moderation and gravity to make what humor there is in his pictured experiences effective, and Miss Elliott Paget, who treats her wretchedly conventional and preposterous rôle as the villainous landlady with abundant skill. W. J. Ferguson, in a less important character, is as droll as possible, and does his drunken scene well enough.

But the "star," Mr. Maclyn Arbuckle, a large comic actor with a small comic nose, is entirely out of place as a volatile French romancer even in a farce. He is not volatile or buoyant; he is not a bit Gallic, and his histrionic ability is about sufficient for an end man in a minstrel show. Blacked up and provided with a good selection of jokes, he would doubtless be very amusing. But in his portrayal of Marsac, even the mock illusion of farce is lacking. He and most of his associates, excepting the tree named above, shout too much. Yelling is rarely diversion for the listeners, though at a football game it may be fun for the yellers.

However, if Mr. Arbuckle (whose present fame was secured last year in Mr. Broadhurst's "Why Smith Left Home," and was due largely to the skill of Mr. Broadhurst in fitting him with a part,) were a genius in comedy, he could not do much for a piece so inept, unsophisticated, and tedious as this.

MANHATTAN THEATRE.

Miss Lulu Glaser Appears in a New Operetta.

Habitual theatregoers in this city will remember Miss Lulu Glaser, who for several seasons was the chief assistant of Francis Wilson in his funmaking. This young lady came to the conclusion some time ago that she had attained sufficient celebrity to appear as an independent star, and last night she revealed herself in this new capacity at the Manhattan Theatre. The operetta, in which she appeared is called "Sweet Anne Page." The book is by Louis de Lange and Edgar Smith and the music by W. H. Neidlinger. It is not necessary to subject the work to severe examination. Its purpose is amiable and not altogether easy of accomplishment. To write an operetta in which Miss Glaser could hold the central interest was by no means easy, for her limitations are well known and narrow.

The librettists have done as well as could be expected of them. They have shown some ingenuity in the construction of their plot, though they have employed such an old motive as the desire of a guardian to marry his ward to a dissolute nobleman in order to share the fortune. Of course the girl loves a villager, who is beneath her station. She joins a band of strolling players in order to escape the hateful nuptials, while the village lover is sent on a secret mission to William of Orange, hoping thereby to win rank and fortune. It requires no great knowledge of stagecraft to see in what direction and to what issue such a book must move. The strolling players, taking their cue from the young lady's name, produce "The Merry Wives of Windsor," and into the midst of their rehearsal of the fairy scene Anne is projected in the disguise of a Pierrot. However, the story moves briskly. There are plenty of action, many pretty stage pictures, pretty costumes, and attractive scenery. No comment need be made on Mr. Neidlinger's music. It is of the most commonplace order, and is full of reminiscences. But as operettas go in these days, "Sweet Anne Page" is not bad.

Miss Glaser acts Anne with her accustomed vivacity and boisterous style, which the part has been made to fit. She was received with great cordiality by last night's audience, and was heartily applauded. Of the members of her company no especial mention need be made. They worked hard and knew their parts. There was a fairly good chorus, and the orchestra was tolerable.

Two Operas at the Metropolitan.

At the Metropolitan Opera House last night "Lucia di Lammermoor" and "Pagliacci" were performed, the first-named work being shorn of its last act in order to bring the entertainment to an end at a reasonable hour. The opera of Donizetti gave Miss Ingeborg Ballstrom, who has hitherto appeared only as Fiilna in "Mignon," the opportunity to display herself as the unhappy heroine. Miss Ballstrom has a light voice of pretty quality, but it cannot be said that her singing is distinguished by brilliancy or even accuracy in the delivery of ornamental passages. Mr. Barron Berthold, who was the Edgar, sang the music of his part in a declamatory manner, which robbed it of its fluent melody. Mr. Mertens was the Ashton and Clinton Elder the Arthur. Mr. Eckhold conducted.

The cast of "Pagliacci" was the same as it was at the previous performances, except that Winifred Goff was the Tonio and Richard Ridgeley the Silvio. It cannot be said that these changes added anything to the general effectiveness of the performance. Mr. Seplili conducted.

"PUNCHINELLO" PLAYED IN BOSTON.

E. S. Willard Presents Barron's Play—Scores a Personal Success.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—"Punchinello," a play in four acts, by Elwyn A. Barron, was given its first performance on any stage at the Tremont Theatre this evening by E. S. Willard and his company. The play was well, but not overenthusiastically, received, possibly owing to its being first night and the edges just a bit ragged.

Mr. Barron has made his character Punchinello, or Andrea Della Corna, a strolling Italian player, whose wanderings for the time of the play are in the vicinity of Verona and Florence. Punchinello, besides being an entertainer and a mountebank, is also a patriot and a follower of Garibaldi.

There is little plot to the play beyond the time honored wrongly accused lover and the heartbroken maiden who runs away at a critical moment, and all because another woman, and a jealous one, told lies.

There are lines in the piece that are strong, and yet there are places where they fail to run smoothly. Mr. Barron incidentally has Punchinello give a very fervent defense of plays and players. And the same mountebank, after he has become a soldier and a hero, tells the Italian people in much the same strain why they are good and why they are bad.

Mr. Willard played the title rôle, and on him falls a great deal of the burden, because the play is much more lines than action. All that there was in the part Mr. Willard brought out fully, rage, good-humor, tenderness, sympathy, heroism. It was another character success. Miss Maud Hoffman more than ably sustained him, and the supporting company was very good.

Proposed New Theatre for Newark.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Dec. 3.—Harry Hyams, local manager of the Empire Theatre for Hyde & Behman, discussed with several capitalists to-day a plan to purchase a site on Broad Street. The property in view is understood to be two lots now occupied by part of Hahn & Co.'s store. Mr. Hyams refuses to talk about the matter, but admitted that he was backed with abundant capital. From the tone of his remarks, it would appear that Hyde & Behman are alone in the enterprise.

THEATRES AND MUSIC HALLS.

DEWEY THEATRE.—Robert Manchester's Burlesquers presented two burlesques.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—In "The Girl from Maxim's" the patrons of the west side theatre were treated to an excellent and amusing farce.

HARLEM OPERA HOUSE.—Richard Mansfield was seen last night in "King Henry V." This is his last week in this city in the rôle of the youthful King.

EDEN MUSEE.—New series of moving pictures were shown yesterday. They included special subjects recently received from Paris. New wax groups were also on exhibition.

DALY'S THEATRE.—Daniel Frohman announces that in consequence of changes and improvements in the play of "The Man of Forty," the curtain now rises at 8:30 and the performance ends at 11 o'clock.

HUBER'S MUSEUM.—Mme. Victorine, the woman sword swallower, and Healy and Dubois, the racing cyclists, were the leading attractions yesterday. Mlle. Gracie's birds and the Neapolitan Four are other important attractions. In the theatre a double vandeville company is seen.

AMERICAN THEATRE.—Augustus Thomas's play "In Mizzoura" was successfully revived last night in the presence of a large audience, that applauded with great vigor the acting of Ralph Stuart as Jim Radburn, Isabelle Evesson's Kate Vernon, and the other leading members of the stock company.

MURRAY HILL THEATRE.—The stock company appears this week in one of the most interesting attractions that it has been the pleasure of the patrons of this house to witness in some time. The company has appeared in much more amusing plays, but "The Late Mr. Castello" probably fits the capabilities of the company better than anything they have revived recently.

PROCTOR'S FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.—Della Fox made her reappearance at this house, and in addition to her on the long programme were the Russell Brothers, who were seen in a new piece, "A Romance of New Jersey"; George W. Monroe, McAvoy and May in a little nonsense, Elizabeth Murray in songs and stories, Review Comedy Four, singing comedians; Alcide Capitaine, fearless gymnast; Binns and Binns, musical tramps, and a score more.

HURTIG & SEAMON'S MUSIC HALL.—The vaudeville entertainment offered last evening was headed by Bessie Bonehill, who never sang better than she did last night, and the audience showed due appreciation of that fact. The remainder of the bill is made up of clever vaudeville attractions, including Stanton and Modena in their farce "For Reform," the Sohlkes and their five little novelty dancers, Seely and West, musical comedians; Brothers Denim, the acrobats; Eldora and Norine, jugglers, and many more.

PROCTOR'S PALACE.—Splendid vaudeville specialties were presented yesterday, headed by Marie Wainwright in "Lady Di's Escapade." Juan Caicedo showed his skill on the bounding wire, and the other features were Gus Williams, the German comedian; Foy and Clark in the farce "The Spring of Youth," Louise Gunning in Scotch ballads, Ferrell and Starck, comedy bicyclists; Evans and White, singers and dancers; Losh and Huff, eccentric comedians; James and Bonnie Farley, and the Craigs.

PROCTOR'S ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIFTH STREET THEATRE.—The vaudeville novelties at this Harlem house were Eleanor Falk and her eight Jersey lilies, a novel singing specialty; Mark Sullivan, the mimic; La Petite Elsie; Gray-Stephens's Landseer dogs in a thrilling dog drama, Louis Simon and company in the comedietta "The Coachman," Frank and Don, talking comedians; Lou Wells, musical tramp; Leon and Adeline, novelty jugglers; the kalatechnoscope's newest moving pictures, and a score more.

PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET THEATRE.—Large audiences enjoyed yesterday's entertainment, which consisted of McIntyre and Heath in a new farce, "The Man from Montana"; Lottie Gilson, who chanted several new songs; Three Yoscarys, clever acrobats; Harrigan, the unique tramp juggler; Wilson and Waring, farcical acrobatic skits; Newell and Sheve, bar performers; Musical Kleists, novel instrumentalists; Charles Ulrick in clever trick jumping; Billy Link, the monologuist, and Sheridan and Flannigan, black-faced singers and dancers.

KOSTER & BIAL'S MUSIC HALL.—The leading feature in this week's programme is given to Jennie Joyce, the ex-comic opera singer who made her début in vaudeville yesterday. The really interesting number of the programme was Gussie McLee and her chorus of jockeys, who presented a specialty called "A Day at the Races," which elicited hearty applause from the audience. The remaining part of the entertainment included James and Bonnie Thornton, Canaro and Bailey, cake walkers; the Van Aukens, Pauline Hall, and numerous others.

KEITH'S UNION SQUARE THEATRE.—Patrons of this house, at both the afternoon and evening performances had a varied bill for their entertainment. The chief headliner is Jessie Bartlett Davis, who appeared to much better advantage than during her last week's engagement and with a new collection of songs. Henry Lee, another retained from last week, was well received with his changed répertoire of impersonations. Isabelle Urquhart and her company presented a one-act comedy, entitled "Even Stephen," which was cleverly acted; an acrobatic act, Howe, Wall and Walters, and Sager Midgely made up the remaining part of the bill.

LIABILITY OF THE STATE.

Suits for Damages Sustained Through Representatives' Negligence Void Without Its Consent, Decides Justice Gaynor.

Justice William J. Gaynor, in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday decided that the State cannot be sued without its own consent to recover damages sustained through the negligence of its officers. This decision was given in denying a motion for a new trial in the suit of Catherine Peaty, administratrix of the estate of her husband, Robert C. Peaty, who was a lineman in the employ of the Fire Department of New York, and who was killed by the breaking of a pole upon which he was at work. Mrs. Peaty sued for $20,000 damages, alleging that the pole should have been inspected and kept in repair. The Justice in his decision said:

"The negligence charged is that the defendant failed to have the pole inspected. Even so, the plaintiff cannot recover. It may not be easy in the conflict and variation of decisions in this State to state the principles of this, but it is settled by an authority that the State cannot be sued without its consent for any negligence or omission of its officials or liability created by them. And the rule that sovereignty cannot be sued in its own court prevented counties and towns in the State from being sued, for they were only subdivisions of the State Government. They could be sued only in such cases when it was expressly permitted by statute. This is the common law as we get it from England."

DE CASTELLANES' INCOME

Gould Estate Trustees May Pay the Countess $20,000 a Month.

Counsel Charges that They Have Made an Agreement to Defeat the Creditors.

By an arrangement made between counsel the Countess de Castellane will be able to draw a little over $20,000 a month from her interest in the estate of her father, Jay Gould, pending the hearing of the cases against her now before the Supreme Court here. The argument for making permanent the injunction restraining George J., Edwin, Howard, and Helen M. Gould, trustees under the will, from paying her any of the income pending the action on the part of Anton Dittmar to recover $377,290.26 on drafts, payable to Asher Wertheimer, a bric-à-brac dealer in London, which had been assigned to Mr. Dittmar, was to have been heard yesterday by Justice Leventritt. Ex-Judge John F. Dillon, Charles A. Gardiner, and Col. E. C. James appeared for the Gould interests, while Samuel Untermyer appeared for Mr. Dittmar.

When the case was called Col. James asked that an adjournment be taken.

"We will not consent to that unless you appear for the Count and Countess de Castellane, as well as for the trustees," said Mr. Untermyer.

"We will not do that," replied Col. James.

Finally an agreement was reached by which the hearing was adjourned to Dec. 17, and then if both sides are not ready it will go over two weeks longer.

The question of allowances then came up. Under the injunction granted by Justice Fitzgerald the Countess can draw no funds from the Gould estate. Col. James asked that this order be modified. He said that at present the trustees could pay nothing for the support of either the Countess or her children. At the same time, he pointed out, the papers in the injunction proceedings set forth that the Countess ought to have $250,000 out of her $900,000 annual income for the support of her children.

When Justice Leventritt said that any application for a modification of the injunction ought to be made to Justice Fitzgerald, Col. James replied that there was nothing to show the justness of the plaintiff's claims.

"There is," replied Mr. Untermyer. "These defendants have all banded together to get the best of the creditors of the de Castellanes."

Later in the day the following stipulation was given out by Mr. Gardiner as having been agreed to:

> Pending the hearing and determination of the injunction motion, the trustees of the estate of Jay Gould are to be permitted to pay to the Countess of Castellane one-twelfth of $250,000 per month, on the first day of each month, beginning with the 1st of December, 1900; and except as thus modified, the injunction order is to remain for the present as originally granted by Judge Fitzgerald.

Mr. Gardiner also gave out a copy of the affidavits of himself and George J. Gould which were the basis for the request for an adjournment. These state that the affidavits of the Count and Countess de Castellane are required in the case.

NAVAL ARCH PLAN DROPPED.

Perpetuation Committee Definitely Decides to Disband.

By a vote of 10 to 3, the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Committee for Perpetuating the Naval Arch, or Dewey Arch, as it was originally called, yesterday decided to disband and to return to the subscribers the money collected for the project. The abandonment of the plan is due to the lack of interest displayed by the public.

The meeting was held in the offices of the committee, in the St. Paul Building. Those present were: William C. Church, Chairman; Louis Windmuller, Vice Chairman; J. Edward Simmons, Treasurer; Charles H. Nicoll, Secretary; John D. Crimmins, William F. Havemeyer, E. Ellery Anderson, Robert M. Thompson, E. W. Bloomingdale, James T. Woodward, William H. Parsons, Henry L. Burnett, and Edward R. Jolmes.

Before voting to disband, the committee considered and rejected three propositions which had been submitted. One of these was from the Henry-Bonnard Bronze Company, which made an offer to build the entire arch on its own responsibility under the supervision of the committee. The funds necessary to carry on the work would be collected by the firm under a special contract with the committee. As compensation the firm wanted 10 per cent. of the money collected other than the amount which had been raised by the committee. This commission was to be paid to the firm at the time the additional subscriptions were paid over to the committee's Treasurer. The firm offered to relieve the committee of all financial responsibility. It was estimated that to build the arch of granite—the idea of building it of marble and perpetuating the avenue of columns having been long ago abandoned—would cost $360,000, without the figure sculpture work. This latter work would cost about $150,000 additional. It was the consensus of opinion that, as the committee itself had not been able to raise the money necessary to carry on the work, a private firm would not be able to do so.

One of the members of the General Committee suggested that miniature models of the temporary arch be molded and sold at $1 each; these models to be made from the material of the arch itself. It was argued that enough money could be raised in this way to build the proposed permanent memorial. This was also frowned upon by the Executive Committee. Vigorous opposition greeted a proposition that the arch be built of terra cotta instead of stone. This it was said could be done with the money already collected. The committee then voted on the proposition to disband, and this was carried, it having been decided to return dollar for dollar the money which had been subscribed.

At this point Rear Admiral Barker, Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and Capt. Taylor appeared before the committee and urged that in returning the money to the subscribers the committee suggest that they transfer the amount of their subscriptions and pledges to the club for enlisted men in the navy which is situated near the navy yard. Miss Helen M. Gould has shown great interest in this club and has given liberal sums toward its support. The committee agreed to this, and the belief was expressed that the majority of those who had subscribed to the fund to perpetuate the arch would transfer the money in accordance with the request made by the naval officers.

It was said after the meeting that the name of Admiral Dewey had not been mentioned once by any committeeman.

Chairman Church, Treasurer Simmons, and Secretary Nicoll were appointed to audit the accounts of the committee and wind up its business. It will take this committee about one month to complete its work. Speaking of the project, Mr. Nicoll said:

"We began work on Nov. 1, 1899. We have raised $65,000 in cash and have pledges for $135,000, which would have been paid upon demand. We had 100 sub-committees of six members each in the different trades, but it was impossible to raise the money necessary to complete the work. At first the subscriptions came in all right, but after the marriage of Admiral Dewey they began to drop off, and after the 'house incident' they ceased almost altogether. Not a single subscription has been received by the committee in four months."

Mr. Nicoll added that the expenses of the committee would amount to $6,000. It is said that this is covered by the amount of money received from benefit performances.

GERMAN TROOPS MENACED

Detachment Said to be in Danger West of Pao-ting-Foo.

Attache of Chinese Legation at St. Petersburg Says Expeditions Into the Interior Are Useless.

TIEN-TSIN, Dec. 2.—Four companies of German troops are reported to be seriously menaced thirty-five miles west of Pao-ting-Foo.

Eight companies of French troops, with three days' rations, have started for their relief.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—A dispatch from Count von Waldersee sent from Peking under date of Dec. 1, says that after hoisting the German flag at the Ming Tombs and punishing several neighboring villages for the murder of Christians, the late Col. von Yorck's detachment, commanded by Gen. Gayl, returned to Peking in four columns.

The Kalgan expedition, the dispatch also says, was very successful. Several thousand Chinese regulars, under the command of two Generals, were driven in wild flight from the Province of Pe-chi-Li to Shan-Si.

The body of Col. von Yorck has arrived at Peking.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 3.—Kwan-Chang, an attaché of the Chinese Legation here, in a formal interview to-day said:

"It is futile for Field Marshal von Waldersee to send into the interior expeditions, the presence of which only irritates the natives and increases their animosity toward the Europeans. The Emperor will not return to Peking as long as foreign troops, beyond the legation guards, are there. Should it be necessary, the Emperor will fly further than Shan-Foo."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—While the United States Government has not seen fit to make any formal protest against the continuance of the punitive expeditions being sent out from Peking from time to time, it has managed to convey to the powers its belief that the further prosecution of this policy is indiscreet, and will tend to greatly delay the return of the Chinese authorities to Peking and the final settlement toward which all efforts are now directed.

It is believed that these intimations have been taken in good part by the various foreign offices, and that a restraining influence will soon be exerted upon the military officers in China.

POWERS MUST STOP BICKERING

Significance of Mr. McKinley's Intimation that Otherwise America Will Support Russian Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The State Department is again confident that the powers will reach an agreement on the situation in China, but the Government is not relaxing its efforts to make sure of it. The President played a strong card in his message to Congress when he pointedly indorsed the Russian proposition that "In the event of protracted divergence of views in regard to indemnities," the subject be referred to the Court of Arbitration at The Hague. This Russian proposition was made a good while ago, and the President's indorsement of it in a message to Congress at this time is extremely significant.

The explanation of it which is given in an authoritative quarter is that this is a plain notification of the President to the powers that they had better agree. Great Britain and Germany do not want this subject referred to the Court of Arbitration, or to any other tribunal but the envoys at Peking. If they do not come to an agreement, however, they are warned that Russia and the United States will submit the matter to the arbitration tribunal. In plain language, the President is holding a club over the discordant powers to make them listen to reason.

In reviving this old Russian proposition at this time the President is trying to make it is as plain as possible that the United States is not playing politics, but means business. Of course Russia and the United States could not compel the other powers to agree to such a proposition, but the alternative would be a break-up of the concert, which is also something that Great Britain and Germany do not want. There is very little expectation that the proposition thus indorsed by the President will ever be put into effect. The powers are expected to come to an agreement at Peking. The utterance in the message, however, is by no means a "bluff." If the powers still hold out, the President will keep his word.

The agreement which the State Department now expects will be reached is one which will comply with the American requirements. In other words, it will exact only what China can agree to without endangering either her territory or Government, and this applies to the questions both of indemnity and punishment. Progress is steadily being made toward agreement, and the President's warning is expected to complete the work.

LONDON PAPERS' COMMENT.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Comment upon President McKinley's message to Congress is chiefly devoted to the references to the China policy of the United States. The Daily Graphic says:

"The policy of the United States regarding China is not heroic, but it is certainly practical, and there is ample reason to believe that it will prevail."

The Times says:

"The message makes it clear that on the vital point of insisting upon punishment for the outrages Mr. McKinley remains firm. We are glad to see that on the subject of guarantees for Christian converts the President makes a new proposal in advance of any put forward elsewhere. In regard to the indemnity question he is in agreement with some of the best opinion in England."

The Times's editorial concludes with the expression of a hope that Mr. McKinley's second term may be marked by a "satisfactory settlement of all outstanding questions between Great Britain and America."

The Daily News says:

"The message contains nothing new and nothing very illuminating on matters that are old. It will be very closely scanned for its references to China. It looks as though the American formula were that the powers are to specify the culprits and the Chinese Government is to specify the punishment. On such terms a speedy settlement would undoubtedly be possible, but would it be effective or durable?"

THE SHAN-SI MASSACRE.

Terrible Details Reach Berlin—Many Foreigners Killed Personally by the Governor.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—A special dispatch from China to the Cologne Volks-Zeitung reports a fearful massacre of foreigners in the Province of Shan-Si.

The first victims, the dispatch says, were a Catholic Bishop and his Coadjutor, and four Franciscan priests, Italian and French. The Governor invited them to his house, pretending to give them better protection, but when they arrived their hands were tied. Then the Governor himself pounded them all.

Next the Governor went to the Bishop's residence with a number of soldiers and seized six Marseillies Sisters. He promised them money and distinguished husbands if they renounced Christianity, which they unanimously rejected. Thereupon the Governor pounded them, and also a number of Chinese priests, thirty Chinese Sisters, and 200 orphans from three to sixteen years of age.

Fifteen Seminarists, who had hidden themselves in a cistern, were, the dispatch adds, tied to stakes and forced to drink the blood of the first victims. They were then killed.

A Chinese priest and two Christians who attempted to escape were caught and put in a small hut, to which they were burned.

ENVOYS MEET AGAIN TO-DAY.

PEKING, Dec. 3.—All the foreign envoys have now heard from their Governments regarding the joint note to the Chinese plenipotentiaries, and a meeting will be held to-morrow. The envoys are not communicative, but enough is known with reference to the objections of different Governments to make it seem doubtful whether the meeting will have a satisfactory conclusion.

Prince Ching and Li-Hung-Chang both say that they are anxiously awaiting the demands of the powers. They declare that China desires peace at any price commensurate with the dignity of an independent nation; but they point out that, so long as a large foreign army occupies the Province of Pe-Chi-Li, the problem will be harder to solve.

The missionaries and others who went through the siege protest bitterly against any suggestion of leniency. They urge particularly that those who are high in office and who were really responsible for the outrages to foreigners should be executed, and they insist also that a sufficient force should be kept in China to guarantee order and to keep foreigners independent of the Chinese, declaring that if this is not done a repetition of the troubles is inevitable.

Czar Ordered Return of Railway.

TIEN-TSIN, Dec. 2.—It is by the imperative order of the Czar that the Russians are handing over the Shan-hai-Kwan Railroad to the Germans. The necessary documents were signed this morning.

For Native Christians in China.

The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church reports the following contributions to the fund for the relief of the native Christians in China: Women's Presbyterian Board of Missions of the Northwest, $330; other contributions making a total of $989.08; previously acknowledged, $9,497.20.

BELIEVE TURKEY WILL SETTLE.

Said in Washington There Is No Reason to Doubt a Cruiser Has Been Ordered from the Cramps.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The officials of the State Department decline to make any statement for publication regarding the announcement from Constantinople that the Turkish Government had arranged to pay the American mission claims under cover of a contract with the Cramps for a warship. Nevertheless, there is reason to believe that the report is well founded, and that the claims are in a fair way to be paid.

It is the expectation that the Cramps, instead of undertaking to deal directly with the claimants, will turn over to the State Department the amount of the claims, in the neighborhood of £23,000, and that the department will disburse the money to the claimants. While in this way there will be no direct dealing between the United States and Turkish Governments, the end in view, namely, the collection of the money, will be effected, and there is no disposition to be captious as to the form taken in the payment.

The settlement in this matter will permit the battleship Kentucky to proceed on her way to Manila, or to return over her route far enough to pick up the American Consul at Tangier, and assist him, morally, in the collection of the indemnity demanded in the Eszegat case. The State Department prefers the use of an imposing craft like the Kentucky, rather than a cruiser, but if the former cannot complete her original mission in season, then recourse can be had to the Dixie for use in the Moorish case.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—Charles H. Cramp, head of the Cramp Ship and Engine Building Company, said to-day he had no reason to doubt the authenticity of the cable dispatch from Constantinople last night, which announced that Hassan Pasha, Ottoman Minister of Marine, and Gen. Williams, representing the Cramp Company of Philadelphia, have signed a contract for the construction of a cruiser for the Ottoman Navy, the price to include £23,000, as indemnity for losses sustained by the United States during the Armenian massacres.

Mr. Cramp says he has not been officially informed regarding the reported contract, and expressed himself as far from certain that the indemnity statement was correct.

"This award, if it has been made," continued Mr. Cramp, "means nothing more than the single order. The Turkish Government will not build any large vessels on account of certain existing treaties. The vessel we will build is to be a fast protected cruiser of about 3,000 tons, corresponding in class to the Raleigh and the Cincinnati. The plans were submitted to the Turkish Government some three or four months ago, and they include the furnishing of the ten 4.7-inch guns. The cruiser, finished and armed, is to be delivered in eighteen months."

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

Little Public Interest in the Proceedings—Speaker Gully Re-elected Unanimously.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The opening of the initial session of the Fifteenth Parliament of the reign of Queen Victoria took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It was a formal affair, and of little public interest. A small crowd assembled to see the Beefeaters, who carried out the usual search for possible conspirators in the vaults beneath the Houses of Parliament, with the customary ceremonial, and with the customary result. There was likewise the usual competition of zealous members of Parliament to be first on the scene, and J. C. Macdona, Conservative, member for the Rotherhithe Division of Southwark, easily secured the choice of seats, arriving in the House at midnight.

Although the only business before the House was the election of a Speaker, the attendance of members was good, in spite of the absence of the Irish members. The Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, the Government leader in the House and First Lord of the Treasury, and the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, arrived promptly at 2 o'clock, and were cordially welcomed by their supporters. Sir William Vernon-Harcourt and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the latter the Liberal leader in the House, were similarly greeted from the Opposition benches.

Gen. Sir Michael Biddulph, the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, (the officer of the House of Lords who summons the Commons whenever their attendance is required in the House of Peers,) appeared a few minutes later and summoned the members to the upper house to hear the reading of the Queen's commission, directing the election of a Speaker. This did not occupy any length of time, as there was no opposition to the re-election of the Right Hon. William Court Gully for a third term. Congratulatory speeches followed the unanimous vote of the Commons.

The House eventually adjourned until 2:15 P. M. to-morrow.

To-morrow and Wednesday will be mainly devoted to swearing in members. The real work of the session will begin on Thursday with the reading of the Queen's speech and the debates on the reply to the address from the throne in both houses.

Only a handful of peers attended the opening of the House of Lords, the dusky surroundings of which, however, were brightened by the presence of a number of ladies. The Lord Chancellor, the Earl of Halsbury, promptly dispatched the Black Rod to summons the Commons. On their arrival the royal commission was read, and the Lord Chancellor directed the Commons to return to the House and elect a Speaker.

When this brief ceremony was over, the House of Lords suspended business.

JUDGE SCORES GRAND JURY

Queens County Inquisitors Criticised from the Bench.

Told that They Have Not Been Active in Investigating Democratic Convention Methods.

Judge Harrison S. Moore created a sensation yesterday in the Supreme Court in Long Island City by calling the Grand Jury which is now in session before him and giving the members a severe scoring for having failed to investigate the bribery charges that have been made in connection with the Democratic nominations at the recent elections.

The gravest charge made was that an attempt had been made to extort several thousands of dollars from County Clerk John H. Sutphin in return for a renomination. Mr. Sutphin has held the office for thirty-three years, but he will retire at the end of his present term. He was not renominated by his party, Magistrate Luke Connorton being named, and Mr. Ingram, the candidate on the Republican ticket for County Clerk, was elected.

After the jury had filed into the courtroom, in response to the Judge's summons, with Foreman James E. Quinlan at their head, Judge Moore addressed them as follows:

"Gentlemen, when you were empaneled three or four weeks ago I gave you specific instructions regarding certain charges of bribery that had been made by certain newspapers in this county. As yet nothing has been done by you in regard to these charges, and I have reason to believe you have no intention of doing anything with them. I had expected that a thorough investigation would be made. The people of this county demand that some action be taken in this matter. I have been expecting for the past three weeks that you would make some presentation on the subject, but I am reliably informed that you have no intention of making such presentation. I now charge you again to make a thorough investigation of these charges."

At the conclusion of the Judge's remarks the jury again retired to their room. The court room was crowded with politicians and the Judge's remarks caused a decided sensation.

The Grand Jurymen remained in session for several hours, and then returned to court with a presentment, the nature of which was not disclosed. When the clerk asked Foreman Quinlan if the jury had any presentment to hand down, the foreman replied in the affirmative and presented a document to the Clerk, at the same time saying that, with the permission of the Judge, the jury would like to have it read in open court.

The Judge, glancing at the presentment, again addressed the jury. He stated that he had had no intention of censuring the Grand Jury for what they had done, but that he could not accept the presentment as drawn. He said the language used by him in addressing the jury had been carefully selected, and he had had no intention of reprimanding the jury.

Foreman Quinlan, responding for the jury, said that he and his colleagues had considered the remarks of the Court in the light of a censure and had drawn up the presentment accordingly. He said that at no time had the jury not been willing and anxious to investigate all matters brought before it.

Judge Moore then handed the presentment to the foreman, remarking that the members of the jury were there merely as jurymen and were expected to perform their full duty. Foreman Quinlan said that the presentment would be amended and the jury retired for the second time.

The Grand Jury adjourned at 5:30 without further action. One of its members said last night that it would reassemble this morning and finish up all other business, and then go on with the convention scandal, which would be probed to the bottom. The juror said there were no specific charges made against any one, and that the allegations were so sweeping that they had been unable to get down to a point where they could handle facts. The whole matter would be sifted, however, even if it took to the first day of the year with daily sessions.

It is reported that a few days ago District Attorney Merrill in the Grand Jury room lectured the jurymen and told them they might as well go home for all the progress they were making. Mr. Merrill is said to have tacitly accused the jury of lukewarmness in the investigation.

FUNERAL OF OSCAR WILDE.

Only a Few Friends of the Poet Attend the Services in Paris.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—Funeral services over the body of Oscar Wilde were held this morning at 9 o'clock in the Church of St. Germain des Prés, one of the oldest in Paris. The ceremonies were of the most modest character, and only a few friends, mostly literary people, attended.

The body was removed from the hotel where Wilde died, followed by five carriages. The cortège proceeded to the church, where the casket was placed before the Chapel of St. Joseph, behind the main altar. Many flowers covered the coffin. Mass was celebrated and absolution was given. Wilde embraced the Roman Catholic faith three weeks ago.

The burial was in the Cemetery de Bagneux, on the outskirts of Paris.

Among the littérateurs present were De Witty, Ernest Lajeunesse, Paul Faure, and Henri Duseroy.

THE HENRY-REINACH TRIAL.

Hearing of Libel Suit Brought by Col. Henry's Widow Begun.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—The hearing of the libel suit brought by Col. Henry's widow against Joseph Reinach, who, in articles published in The Siècle, accused Henry of being the real traitor in the Dreyfus case and said Esterhazy was his accomplice, opened today in the Assize Court. The audience was small, and the arrival of former Minister of War Cavaignac and Gens. Mercier and Roget, who are among the 500 witnesses, did not lead to any incident worth noting.

It is said that M. Reinach has summoned Dreyfus as a witness. The trial has been frequently postponed for various reasons.

At the outset of the hearing to-day the Public Prosecutor submitted that the Assize Court was not competent to try the case, and asserted that the Correctional Court was the proper tribunal.

Maître Labori, for M. Reinach, explained that the latter desired an immediate trial, not a postponement until amnesty was enacted.

The Court decided it was competent to try the suit, whereupon the Public Prosecutor announced he would appeal to the Court of Cassation against its competence.

It is a High Church in its forms, Mrs. Sarah Titus Zabriskie of New York, a Newport cottager, who gave it in memory of her mother, making it a condition that it should always be kept as such. EDWARD B. QUINN DEAD.

Plunged Into Bath of Scalding Hot Water at Delevan House.

Edward B. Quinn, editor of Successful Americans, died last night from the effects of a scalding bath that he took by mistake in the Delavan House four days ago. On Friday evening he entered the hotel, asked for a room, and was assigned to No. 30. Going up stairs, he prepared for bed, but just as he was ready to turn out the gas he espied a bathtub in one corner of the room and decided to take a plunge. He turned on what he thought to be the cold water, and when the tub was full, jumped in suddenly.

With a scream he tried to get out of the almost boiling water, but the shock had been so great that he could not rise. After he had cried aloud for several minutes a maid who happened to be in a neighboring hallway heard him and opened the door. When she saw that he was unclad she hastily closed the door again and called to him from the outside that she would come in and see what he wanted if he would cover himself. Then he screamed anew. The maid finally ran off and returned after a little while with a bath towel, which she threw to him through a crack in the door. When he had with the greatest difficulty thrown this around his shoulders she went in and aided him to get out of the tub.

Since then he had been under the care of the hotel physician, but his condition became so serious yesterday afternoon that it was necessary to send him to the hospital, where it was found that almost all the skin on his body had been badly scalded. Until he died, early last evening, however, the hospital surgeons thought that he would recover.

TO DROP CITY EMPLOYES.

Many Employes in City Hospitals to Lose Places To-day.

A meeting of the heads of the city hospitals will be held in the office of Charities Commissioner Keller to-day. Many employes will be dropped from the city pay rolls and salaries will be reduced. Commissioner Keller made this announcement yesterday. He also said that the Board of Estimate allowed him a certain sum of money for salaries, and that if he did not keep within the allowance of the board he was liable to indictment. It was said yesterday that over 300 would be discharged.

Commissioner Keller said in regard to the proposition made by the Charter Revision Commission to place some city hospitals under the control of a board of seven physicians:

"This will make a seven-headed commission and will divide the responsibility for the control of the hospitals. I do not approve of abolishing the Commissioners of Charities for the Boroughs of Brooklyn and Richmond. These officials are very much needed. I was not consulted by the Charter Revision Commission in reference to the proposed changes in the Charity Department." Deputy Commissioner Fanning of the Department of Corrections said that he was not consulted about the proposed changes. He says he thinks it is a great mistake to do away with the Correction Department, as much good has been accomplished during the last three years.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE BAZAR

Notable Gathering in Madison Square Garden Concert Hall.

Reception to Octogenarians a Feature of the Opening—Some Well-Known Old-Time Suffragists.

The first National American Woman Suffrage Association Bazar, which opened in the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall last evening, had many of the features of an old-fashioned sewing bee. There was not much sewing, except in the various booths, where household articles were sold, but there was a great deal of bee. Everybody knew everybody else; old friends met for the first time in years, and two or three generations of suffrage workers all talking together made such a big buzz that it took two boys to manage each horse sold down in the Garden proper.

A reception to octogenarians was the feature of the evening, and "Aunt Susan" B. Anthony was queen bee of the reception and the entire bazar. There was a round of applause when she first entered the hall—a fine looking woman, tall and dignified in her velvet gown and handsome purple velvet coat, with its black thread lace trimmings and white satin lining. A number of chairs were arranged under the platform for the guests of the evening.

On a raised dais Miss Anthony took her seat, followed a little later by Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker. Mrs. Anna C. Field of Brooklyn, the founder of the Brooklyn Woman's Club, and other prominent organizations, occupied a third chair. Mrs. Charlotte Wilbour was another of the pioneer suffragists in line with the Rev. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, and John W. Hutchinson, the last of the old Hutchinson family of singers.

The crowd around the aged pioneers became so dense that the girls who acted as ushers formed a barrier, taking hold of hands and standing back so that only a single line could pass in front of them. Aunt Susan sat in a big chair like a Queen, with a rich point lace bertha upon her velvet gown, held in place by a big amethyst pin in the centre and other jeweled pins, the white satin lining of her cloak making a fine background. Mrs. Hooker stood most of the time after her arrival, a dainty little lady, with the long ends of white lace down the front of her black gown, a light feather boa around her throat, and a pretty, soft lace cap, with little flowers of purple above the soft bands of her white hair.

Mrs. Wilbur wore a handsome white brocaded silk waist with a diamond brooch and earrings, and Mrs. Field and Mrs. Blackwell both wore black gowns with white lace at the neck and down the front.

Assisting in the reception was Mrs. Carrie Chapman-Catt, President of the Association; Mrs. Marianna Chapman of Brooklyn, Mrs. Russell Sage of another generation of suffragists, as far as work is concerned; Mrs. Henry M. Sanders and Mrs. Gaffney, President of the National Council of Women. Mrs. Sanders represents the workers of 1893-94, the days before the Constitutional Convention of New York State, when there was such an upheaval for and against woman suffrage as there never had been before in society's ranks.

The reception broke up early in the evening, as those looking after the guests of honor were anxious for the welfare of their charges. Mr. Hutchinson later sang some of the old songs. There was "Come Let Us Part," the last song sung by the Hutchinson family together, and "The Old Granite State," which gives the history of the family in verse.

"But you did not sing 'Hurrah for New England,' Brother John," said Miss Ellen Miles, as the old gentleman, who is in his eightieth year jumped easily from the platform.

For the bazar proper the booths were prettily decorated and did a good business all the evening. The doll that Mrs. McKinley dressed attracted a great deal of attention, and so did a genuine fifteen-pound wedding cake, with a pair of clasped hands upon it. There are some antiques for sale, old plates and glasses, and a mahogany cradle over one hundred years old.

BILLIARD TOURNEY BEGUN

C. G. Schmitt of Chicago Won First Game in Amateur Contest.

HIS SCORE 300 TO LOSER'S 224

Attendance Small at Opening of Competition in K. A. C.'s Theatre—Two Games Set for To-day.

Contest for the National amateur billiard championship in Class B was begun last night in the theatre of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club's Madison Avenue house, where in a cleverly played game, Charles G. Schmitt, the champion of the Chicago Athletic Club, defeated Isaac A. Mannes of this city by a score of 300 to 224. The tournament, which is the third annual event of its kind, is held under the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union, and, as in the past two years, under the auspices of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club. For the convenience of spectators the theatre of the clubhouse has been transformed to a quadrangular arena, capable of seating 50 persons.

The capacity of the arena, however, was not taxed last night, as the qualifying round of the tourney being played this week is in a sense only preliminary to the real struggle for the championship which will be fought out next week in the final games. Seventy-five or more billiard enthusiasts nevertheless formed an interested gallery, and were generous in their applause at the difficult shots of both contestants.

Schmitt, on the strength of his previous record, was slightly the favorite among the prophets before Referee W. R. Bracken called the game last night. Within the past two weeks he had defeated Charles Threshie, last year's Class B champion, in a practice game at the Boston Athletic Association; had lost a 300-point game to Fred Eames, the professional expert, by a margin of only 15 points, and had run 89, 73, and 68 points at practice. Mr. Mannes's ability had been less tried, but he was remembered as one of the best referees in the 1899 tournament.

The game was begun promptly at 8 o'clock, and Mr. Mannes led off with a narrow miss. His bad luck pursued him for a dozen innings or more, and his natural inclination to nervousness became steadily a more severe handicap. In the open table play, at which he is most brilliant, several rather easy cushion shots were misjudged with disastrous effect upon his score.

Mr. Schmitt on the other hand gained in confidence as the game progressed, and after the ninth inning found his form. He then began a wonderful exhibition of close play, including some of the prettiest slow draws yet witnessed in Class B tourneys, and the twentieth inning found him with 133 points to his opponent's 10.

The twentieth inning furnished the best of the game. Schmitt's play. He then ran 23 points. This run, while not remarkable in its length, was most spectacular. Abandoning his close style of play for a time, the Chicago expert attempted some of the most difficult open shots, banging the balls about the table in swift succession of play and seemingly with the utmost carelessness.

Mr. Mannes did not reach his true form until after the twentieth inning had passed, and he had been left nearly 100 points behind his opponent. Then he began to play an up-hill game with splendid determination, and succeeded in making two runs which exceeded Mr. Schmitt's best efforts. The first of these came in the thirty-fifth inning, when by careful nursing 29 points had been scored. Then he resumed his more characteristic open play, and ran 38 points in the inning. Mr. Mannes's next high run was 40 points.

The two long runs reduced Mr. Schmitt's lead to 79 points at the fortieth inning, but as the score then stood 279 to 198, the game was practically secured for the Chicagoan. Only five innings more were played. Mr. Schmitt brought the game to a close in the forty-fifth inning, however, by a brilliant unfinished run of 21 points.

The scores in detail follow, the play being at fourteen-inch balk-line, with the anchor nurse allowed:

Schmitt—0 1 8 10 1 0 1 0 9 12 0 3 19 1 11 12 3 2 8 23 10 6 1 6 7 0 7 2 11 11 0 18 8 14 4 19 5 3 3 1 1 0 0 21. Total, 300; average, 6 30-45; high runs, 21 and 23.

Two games of the qualifying round will be played to-day. A. D. Ferguson will meet L. A. Servatius at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and Frank Billiter will play Samuel G. Estabrook at 8 o'clock this evening.

GANS AND LEWIS WINNERS.

Two Interesting Games in the Novice Billiard Tournament.

Albert Gans and J. E. Lewis were the winners yesterday in the two scheduled games of the novice billiard tournament now in progress at Maurice Daly's academy. Gans defeated Frank Tobias in the afternoon match by a score of 200 to 162. Tobias held a good lead up to the thirtieth inning, when his play grew ragged as rapidly as that of his opponent improved. Throughout the remainder of the game Gans steadily increased his lead. Tobias rallied only once, at the sixty-first inning, when he ran 24 points, the highest single run made in the tournament up to that time. The scores follow, a fourteen-inch balk line governing:

Gans—0 1 11 0 3 0 0 0 0 1 0 1 2 4 2 2 5 0 1 0 0 0 2 0 1 6 4 1 2 1 0 0 1 3 5 4 2 0 1 0 6 8 1 1 0 0 4 0 1 6 0 5 1 1 1 3 0 1 1 0 1 0 1 0 1 2 3 2 9 1 6 3 2 6 2 2 1 1 0 3 2 2 2 4. Total, 200; average, 2 42-78; high runs, 16, 11, and 11.

Tobias—0 3 0 5 0 2 1 0 1 4 5 9 2 0 1 0 10 3 0 0 0 6 0 0 1 7 5 0 0 1 0 1 1 2 1 0 1 1 4 1 1 0 0 0 1 0 2 1 2 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 4 1 0 3 0 7 0 0 0 1 0 9 1 0 0. Total, 103; average, 2 5-79; high runs, 24 and 12.

Lewis won handily from Harry Graham in the evening game by a score of 200 to 162. Graham played considerably under his usual form, but succeeded at the forty-fourth inning in running 24 points, thereby equaling Frank Tobias for the highest run of the tournament. The score:

Lewis—1 0 2 0 3 0 5 0 1 0 5 4 0 4 1 9 6 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 2 0 8 0 13 1 0 0 9 3 1 0 1 4 13 1 2 2 3 0 5 0 6 2 0 3 0 1 4 0 12 5 10 1 0 0 0 4 0 0 1 5 3 1 0 0 1 0 0 2 0 0 1 5 3 5 0 1. Total, 200; average, 2 42-78; high runs, 16, 11, and 11.

Frank Tobias will play J. E. Lewis this afternoon, and Charles Roder will meet Raoul Pietet to-night.

Honors for Annapolis Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 3.—Superintendent Wainwright and the members of the Naval Academy football team have received a large number of congratulatory messages for the victory over West Point on Saturday last. A few were so notable that they were made the subject of an order which was read at supper formation this evening. Superintendent Wainwright gives the text of a message from Secretary Long as follows: "Give the Cadets my hearty congratulations on their well-earned victory." Assistant Secretary Hackett sent his congratulations. A message from the Asiatic Squadron, with headquarters at Cavite, Philippine Islands, was, "Congratulations." The last, from the battleship Kentucky, was also "Congratulations," dated from Smyrna.

HARNESS HORSES AT AUCTION.

Low Prices the Rule and Bargains Many at the "Old Glory" Offering.

The attendance at the Fasig-Tipton Company's "Old Glory" sale of light harness horses, in Madison Square Garden, drew but a light attendance yesterday, and prices as a rule were small. The dealers and bargain hunters took full advantage of the opportunity, and, though the quality of the animals offered was not remarkably high, the shrewder buyers picked up a number of well bred and promising young horses at figures which promised a wide margin for profit.

In the afternoon the highest price paid was $1,000 for the six-year-old trotter Ward, record 2:17¾, on a half-mile track, R. Roberts of Brooklyn securing him.

Rand, 2:18½, and Carrie Belle, 2:22, brought $800 each. Daisy Bell, 2:19¼, went for $500, and Gagnant, 2:15¼, brought $600.

C. J. and Harry Hamlin, owners of the Village Farm, at East Aurora, N. Y., who sold The Abbot last week, have presented to T. W. Lawson of Boston the wagon which The Abbot drew when he made the world's record to wagon, 2:05½. Mr. Lawson, through an agent, made the first bid for The Abbot, $26,000. Fire Commissioner John J. Scannell then securing the famous horse for $26,300.

The horses that brought the best prices, the buyers, and the prices paid were as follows:

FAST SPORT ON THE SPEEDWAY.

Amateur Reinsmen Tried Out Roadsters in Lively Brushes.

Close brushes were in order on the Speedway yesterday afternoon, when a series of fast brushes took place on the lower stretch between the chestnut pacer Spinx S., (2:09¾,) driven by E. E. Smathers; the chestnut pacing mare Laura W., driven by Dr. H. H. Kane, President of the Road Drivers' Association, and James Murphy of Chicago, driving the handsome little pacer Amie Wilkes. The start of the first heat was a poor one, but before the first quarter had been covered all these horses were about on even terms. Spinx S. finally drew ahead and held the lead close to the finish, when Laura W., on being touched with the whip, made a spurt that carried her across the line half a length ahead of Spinx S. and an open length in front of Amie Wilkes. In the second heat Spinx S. set a pace that called for every bit of speed his opponents could summon to keep within a length of him. Nearing the post, Spinx S. had about two lengths to the good, with Laura W. second and rapidly picking him up.

So much speed did Laura W. show that with 300 yards of the post she placed herself into the running with Spinx S. To the majority of spectators it looked as though she beat him out, but Dr. Kane admitted that he had been beaten, and proposed another heat. It was evident that Laura W. was tired out by the way she behaved in this heat, for Spinx S. took the lead after the first quarter, and was never headed. Coming down the stretch Laura W. fell back to third place and then a pretty race followed, but Spinx S. was a trifle too fast for Amie Wilkes, who lost the heat by a head. In a final brush Amie Wilkes broke half way down the stretch, and Spinx S. crossed the line a length in front of Laura W., who made a desperate effort to make one of her famous finishing spurts, but failed, although she was under the whip.

The trotting gelding Cobwebs, 1:12, known as the king of the Speedway, did some fast work with Nathan Straus handling the ribbons. After several warming jogs up and down the stretch he was finally turned to a good start with the bay gelding Belle Esprit, 2:12½, driven by Charles Reilly. For quarter it was a nip and tuck race, but after that Cobwebs had things all his own way, and came home a winner by a couple of lengths. Honor Bright, driven by John F. Cockerill, had a very lively go with Crystal Chimes, having a trifle the best of the brush. C. R. Jarvis, driving The Dude, beat L. P. Deffan's new green horse, Zeke B., and the big, brown gelding Zarco, 2:21¼, by Artillery, fell a victim to the speed of Cobwebs, 2:12. A very pretty three-cornered brush took place between The Dude, Hindoo Boy, driven by John Rogers of Brooklyn, and Hattie Walters, 2:22¼, driven by George Coleman. They finished in the order in which they are named. The last brush of the afternoon was between Zarco, 2:21¼, and Hattie Walters, 2:22¼. A very fast quarter was covered nose and nose, but after the post had been passed Zarco took a lead of a length, and held it to the finish. Among the many on the road was Elmer Stevens, driving Harry L.; B. Zahn, driving the bay mare Dunders, 2:23¾; Mr. Kennedy behind Ambidexter, 2:11¾, and Charles C. Bauman behind his team of black pacers.

League of Amateur Drivers.

The officers of the newly organized National League of Amateur Driving Clubs have been announced as follows: President—Harry K. Devereaux of Cleveland, Ohio; Vice President—Harry Darlington of Pittsburg, and Secretary and Treasurer—T. L. Quimby of Boston. Pittsburg, Boston, Toledo, Chicago, Cleveland, Syracuse, Boston, and New York are already represented in the league, and the driving clubs of other important cities will be asked to join. The league has acted in the matter of defining what shall constitute an amateur driver, and has ruled that an amateur driver is one who has never driven or trained horses for hire. It was further decided that in future no driver shall retain his privileges as an amateur after he competes in a race against a professional driver.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 3.—Milton Young has purchased in England the noted sire and race horse, Sauceret, a son of the $100,000 Ormonde and Crucible, to be placed at the head of McGrathiana Stud in place of the dead Hanover. He has sold to English breeders the Hanover-Keepsake horse Handball, which he bought recently to place in the stud. The prices were not stated.

Trotting Board Meets To-day.

The annual meeting of the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association will begin at 10 o'clock this morning at the Murray Hill Hotel and will continue two or three days. The board will not have an unusual amount of business to transact, but decisions on some rather complicated cases in connection with light harness racing will be asked for, and it is not improbable that the reviewing body will put in even more than three days of work.

The cards were made up to-day and the results announced. Mr. Sammis scored 99 points out of a possible 100 at the Zettler ring target, 75 feet range, 22-calibre rifle. The other scores were: Henry E. Four Gunners Killed Straight.

Four of the thirty men who faced the traps at the regular monthly trap shooting tournament of the Sheepshead Bay Rod and Gun Club yesterday at the club ground, The Cedars, killed "straight," and divided first money. They were William Van Pelt, Judges James B. Voorhies, W. Boyle, and Daniel J. Heffner. Gerrittson Morris and R. J. Smith got second money, with but a bird less apiece, and seven of the contestants, Henry Koch, John J. Pillion, Frank Lundy, Ira McKane, Paul Suss, Henry J. Montanus, and Hans Kronika tied for third place, each with eight birds out of the allotted ten. In an extra event at three live birds per man, Pillion, F. Lundy, W. Lundy, Morris, I. McKane, and Van Pelt killed all and Kronika, G. McKane, and Boyle two birds each.

Capt. Brewer Wants a Match.

Capt. John L. Brewer, the veteran trap shooter, is seeking a match at live birds. "I bar no one," he said. "All I want is a chance to shoot against Fulford, Elliott, Heikes, Marshall, or any other at 100 live birds per man for as much money as they care to risk, and all I ask is that Hurlingham rules prevail, the loser to pay the cost of the match and for the birds. I don't want to appear dictatorial, and am willing to shoot anywhere, but I will pay expenses to have the match shot on the grounds at Foundry Street and the Plank Road, Newark, N. J."

J. P. MORGAN & CO.

OFFICE OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.
St. Paul, October 31st, 1900.

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & CO., New York:

Dear Sirs: Referring to the Northern Pacific Railway Company's St. Paul-Duluth Division Mortgage, dated June 15, 1900, given to secure an issue limited to $20,000,000 of 4 per cent. gold bonds, I beg to state as follows:

The railroads covered by the mortgage comprise what was formerly the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad and branches, together with leases of the Minneapolis & Duluth and Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroads, extending between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, comprising about 238.09 miles of productive railroad, besides the valuable terminals at the head of Lake Superior.

Title to the entire property has been acquired directly by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and the St. Paul-Duluth Division bonds are secured by a purchase-money mortgage upon the property above mentioned, subject only to existing bonds and car-trust obligations aggregating $5,283,000 par value, to retire which a corresponding amount of the new bonds is reserved. The Bonds are DIRECT OBLIGATIONS OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY and secured by a first lien upon the mortgaged premises, subject only to the existing bonds and car-trust obligations above mentioned.

Out of which there has been issued in payment for St. Paul and Duluth Railroad property, rights, and franchises, including the liquidation of all unfunded obligations, and including funds placed in trust for the retirement of the outstanding preferred and common stocks and scrip	9,216,000.00
Balance	$10,785,000.00
Which has been reserved for the following purposes, viz.:
For retirement at maturity of the outstanding obligation of the St. Paul and Duluth Railroad and its proprietary lines	$5,283,000.00
For improvements to existing property	502,000.00
For extensions and additional branches, terminal properties, and to double-track existing lines	5,000,000.00
	$10,785,000.00

The lands included in the Land Grant of the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad Company, estimated to be worth about $4,000,000, and which were not covered by the old mortgages of that Company, are to be sold and the proceeds applied to the purchase of the new St. Paul-Duluth Division bonds at not exceeding 105 per cent. and accrued interest; or, if bonds cannot be purchased at that price, then to betterments, improvements, or additions to the mortgaged premises or the purchase of equipment for use therson.

It is hardly necessary to refer to the large surplus of earnings of the Northern Pacific Railway Company over all fixed charges, which will be applicable to the payment of interest on these bonds, but for convenience of reference the following statement of the earnings and expenses of the Company for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, is appended:

Gross earnings were	$30,021,317.72
Operating expenses were	14,394,628.31
	$15,626,689.41
Less taxes	850,690.09
Leaving	$14,776,099.32
Add dividends, interest on securities owned, and interest on deposit	685,521.30
	$15,461,620.62
Deduct—
Interest on bonds	$5,864,950.00
Rental of leased lines	112,851.86
Surplus over all fixed charges	$9,483,818.76

No charges have been made to Capital Account other than for additional equipment, the construction of branch lines and purchases of real estate, all expenditures for improvements having been made out of the year's income.

The foregoing statement does not include the operations of the St. Paul and Duluth Railroad.

By the acquisition of this property the Northern Pacific Railway Company's system has been strengthened by the addition of 238.09 miles of productive railroad, the Company becomes sole owner of valuable terminals at the head of Lake Superior, in which before it had only a joint interest, and is relieved of the risk of having in these terminals a partner whose interest, should it become adverse or competitive, could incalculably damage its business.

The absorption of this property has resulted in large economies, and justifies the belief that the purchase will prove of great value to the system.

A contract has been made with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company for the use of the St. Paul & Duluth line between St. Paul and the head of Lake Superior, for ninety-nine years from October 1, 1900, which gives the business of that Company to said line exclusively.

Overtures have been received from other companies, looking to a similar use of the line.

Yours truly,
C. S. MELLEN, President.

INSURANCE DECISION.

Premium Notices Required Only on Business Done in This State.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Justice Brewer rendered an opinion in the United States Supreme Court to-day in the case of the Mutual Life Insurance Company against Cohen, coming to that court from the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth District.

The question involved in the case is whether the premium notices required to be sent out by the State of New York apply to policies issued on business done outside the State of New York. The opinion reversed the decision of the Court of Appeals, and held that these notices are applicable solely to business done in the State of New York.

NOTES OF INSURANCE INTERESTS.

The following changes in the standing committees of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange have been made for the month of December: Arbitration Committee—Mason A. Stone to succeed George B. Edwards; Brokerage Committee—Peter Q. Deyo to succeed Graham Scott; Executive Committee—Paul E. Rasor to succeed T. D. Belfield.

The formal merger of the Eastern Insurance Company and the Northern Insurance Company of New York, under the title of the latter, which was effected last week, with an aggregate capital of $250,000, is reported in insurance circles as likely to give the amalgamated company in the coming annual statement a surplus upward of $170,000.

GRANT BROTHERS' FAILURE.

Petition in Bankruptcy Filed—Charges Against Mr. Van Sickle.

A petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed in the United States District Court yesterday against Frederick Grant, Charles F. Grant, and John K. Van Sickle, composing the firm of Grant Brothers, stock brokers at 45 Broadway, who failed on Nov. 13, by the following creditors: Theodore L. Herrmann, $110,927; Philip L. Foster, $32,935, and Clarence C. Nash, $3,998. The claim of Mr. Herrmann is balance due for money loaned and advanced to the firm, and the claims of Messrs. Foster and Nash are for money due on the purchase and sale of stocks and bonds and for money received to use of the petitioners.

It was alleged that the defendants are insolvent and committed an act of bankruptcy on Nov. 13 by making an assignment to Ernest G. Steadman; also that Mr. Van Sickle while insolvent has within four months past transferred his property or some part thereof to his father-in-law, George H. Kline, for an antecedent debt the validity of which the petitioners do not admit, with intent to prefer Mr. Kline. Mr. Van Sickle is a resident of Elizabeth, N. J.

When a copy of the petition was shown to Mr. Steadman he said that he had nothing to say for publication at this time.

Mr. Steadman, assisted by an expert, has been at work on the books of Grant Brothers for some days, and he says that in all probability he will issue a statement of the assets and liabilities of the firm about the latter part of the week.

ARGUING BROOKLYN TAX CASE.

Rapid Transit Company Contending for Reduction of Taxes.

ALBANY, Dec. 3.—In the Appellate Division this morning arguments were heard reviewing, on a writ of certiorari, the action of the Controller of the State in assessing the property of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. The question is on the proper amount which should be used as a basis for computing the amount of the tax to be imposed.

The brief submitted by the attorneys for the company says: "The controverted question of law arises by reason of the facts that the total authorized capital stock of the company was increased Feb. 15, 1899, from $20,000,000 to $45,000,000, and all but $2,000,000 of the additional amount was issued from time to time during the year 1899, so that the total amount in the early part of the year was $20,000,000, and in the latter part $43,000,000, and therefore the total amount during the year ended Oct. 31, 1899, was $20,000,000. The relator has never paid any dividends."

Upon these facts as a base they claim that the Controller should have based his computation of the tax upon $20,000,000, on which the tax, at .0015, would be $29,810.47. A second claim made, in case the first should not hold good, is to the effect that the Controller should have based his computation on the average value of the stock employed during the year, which would be $35,217,672, on which the tax would be $52,826.50.

COUPON BONDS, IN THE DENOMINATION OF $1,000 EACH, WITH PROVISION FOR REGISTRATION.

MORTON TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE.

THE UNDERSIGNED WILL RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE ABOVE BONDS AT 104½ % AND ACCRUED INTEREST TO DATE OF DELIVERY.

THE SUBSCRIPTION WILL BE OPENED AT 10 O'CLOCK A. M. ON FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7TH, 1900, AND WILL BE CLOSED AT 3 O'CLOCK P. M. OR EARLIER ON THE SAME DAY, THE RIGHT BEING RESERVED TO REJECT ANY APPLICATIONS AND TO AWARD A SMALLER AMOUNT THAN APPLIED FOR. BONDS AWARDED UPON SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE TO BE PAID FOR ON DECEMBER 14TH.

The following are some of the salient points of a letter addressed to us under date of November 26, 1900, by Mr. H. H. Vreeland, President of the Third Avenue Railroad Co. and of the Metropolitan Street Railway Co.:

THE THIRD AVENUE RAILROAD CO. OWNS OR CONTROLS, through the ownership of stock, a total system of street railroads AGGREGATING 269.09 MILES in its charter, obtained in 1853, is unlimited as to duration, and is one of the most valuable and comprehensive street railway franchises granted by the City of New York; it owns real estate of great value in various parts of the City of New York and elsewhere. The bonds of the present issue are secured by a mortgage upon the franchises, lines, equipment, and all other property of the Third Avenue Railroad Co., (including real estate,) subject only to the existing mortgage of $5,000,000, (to be eventually retired,) and also by the pledge and deposit with the Trustee of the Third Avenue Railroad Company's entire holdings of stock of the Forty-second St., Manhattanville and St. Nicholas Ave.; the Dry Dock, East Broadway and Battery; the Kingsbridge; the Union; the Southern Boulevard; the Tarrytown, White Plains and Mamaroneck; the Westchester Electric, and the Yonkers Railroad Companies, with provision for ultimately bringing all of the properties of the controlled Companies directly under the mortgage, subject only to the liens of the existing outstanding bonds, amounting to $8,443,000. Bonds of the par value of $13,443,000 have been reserved in the bands of the Trustee for the retirement or acquisition of all such outstanding Bonds, both of the Third Avenue Company and its controlled Companies, thus making provision for ULTIMATELY ASSURING TO THE FIRST CONSOLIDATED MORTGAGE AN ABSOLUTE FIRST LIEN ON ALL OF THE COMPANY'S PROPERTIES, INCLUDING THE CONTROLLED COMPANIES. Of the total authorized issue of $50,000,000, there have been issued and sold by the Company $35,000,000 for retiring the unfunded debt and for new equipment, improvements, construction, and additions; of the balance, $13,443,000 Bonds are set aside for retiring all outstanding Bonds of other issues, the remainder being reserved in accordance with the provisions of the mortgage.

THE FIXED CHARGES OF THE THIRD AVENUE COMPANY AND ITS CONTROLLED COMPANIES, INCLUSIVE OF THE ISSUE OF $35,000,000 OF THE ABOVE BONDS, AMOUNT TO $2,095,680; THIS WILL BE REDUCED BY $165,000 BY THE REPLACEMENT OF THE EXISTING FUNDED DEBT WITH THE NEW 4% BONDS RESERVED FOR THE PURPOSE. IT IS ESTIMATED THAT AFTER THE COMPLETION OF THE ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT NOW IN PROGRESS, AND WITH THE ADVANTAGES AND ECONOMIES RESULTING FROM THE CLOSE CONNECTION WITH THE METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY CO., THE ANNUAL NET EARNINGS OF THE THIRD AVENUE RAILROAD COMPANY WILL BE AT LEAST $3,000,000, WHICH, TOGETHER WITH THE SURPLUS EARNINGS OF THE METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY, (AFTER DEDUCTING ITS OWN FIXED CHARGES,) ON THE BASIS OF THE RESULTS OF THE LAST FISCAL YEAR, WOULD PROVIDE NET EARNINGS OF NEARLY $6,500,000 TO MEET FIXED CHARGES, AMOUNTING, AS ABOVE STATED, TO ABOUT $2,000,000 IN ALL, INCLUSIVE OF THE ENTIRE ISSUE OF THE NEW 4% BONDS.

THE METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY CO. GUARANTEES UNCONDITIONALLY BY INDORSEMENT THE PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST OF THE THIRD AVENUE R. R. 4% BONDS, AND HAS LEASED THE THIRD AVENUE RAILROAD, INCLUDING ITS CONTROLLED LINES, FOR 999 YEARS ON THE BASIS OF A DIVIDEND GUARANTEE ON THIRD AVENUE STOCK, WHICH, BEGINNING AFTER FOUR YEARS, WITH THE RATE OF 5% PER ANNUM, RISES AFTER TEN YEARS TO THE PERMANENT RATE OF 7% PER ANNUM.

THE CAPITAL STOCK OF THE THIRD AVENUE RAILROAD CO. IS $16,000,000. THE OUTSTANDING CAPITAL STOCK OF THE METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY CO. IS $45,000,000, ON WHICH IT IS PAYING DIVIDENDS AT THE RATE OF 7% PER ANNUM. AN ADDITIONAL $7,000,000, INCREASING THE CAPITAL STOCK TO $52,000,000, HAS BEEN AUTHORIZED. WITH THE THIRD AVENUE RAILROAD SYSTEM, IT CONTROLS THE ENTIRE SYSTEM OF SURFACE TRACTION LINES IN THE BOROUGHS OF MANHATTAN AND BRONX.

THE RESULTS OF OPERATION OF THE METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY FOR THE LAST FIVE FISCAL YEARS ENDING JUNE 30, 1900, HAVE BEEN AS FOLLOWS:

Gross Earnings	15,073,534.55	13,525,524.25	11,076,021.02	9,706,597.05	8,173,331.72 showed gross figures of $2,608,200, a gain of $255,200, and net of $1,052,800, an increase of $47,800, as compared with the same month a year ago. From April 1 to Oct. 31 a surplus of $3,264,520 is reported. The West was a buyer of the stock. The other Grangers held well in sympathy.
Operating Expenses	7,104,607.15	6,408,711.02	5,620,484.49	5,090,016.

PACIFIC MAIL was one of the features of the market, opening up at 46—as compared with the closing price of 43¾ on Saturday—and later rising at one time above 49, an advance of 6 points. The reports from Washington telling of the intention of the Republican leaders to endeavor to secure the early passage of the Ship Subsidy bill, the President's reference to it in his message, and the belief that were the measure to be passed the position of Pacific Mail would be materially improved, were the factors influencing to the advance.

⁂

BALTIMORE AND OHIO'S weakness was on selling following upon the announcement of the commencement of the suit brought by John D. Crimmins asking for a legal interpretation of the dividend rights of the common and preferred stocks.

⁂

SOUTHERN RAILWAY stocks were again steadily absorbed by the same banking interests which lately have been conspicuous as buyers. There was no new news concerning the stocks.

⁂

In connection with the movement in the Atchison stocks officials of the road were quoted as saying that the profits of the system by reason of the handling of the California fruit crop this season would be very considerable. A meeting of the Directors of the company is scheduled for to-morrow.

⁂

Concerning the affairs of Chicago and Alton it was stated on what was said to be official authority that if there is a quorum of the Directors to-day a dividend will be declared on the preferred stock at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum.

⁂

Call money ran up as high as 6 per cent., and as a consequence pessimists were declaring that the long-predicted money squeeze was at hand. Bankers, however, expressed no concern over the situation and said that nothing but ordinary rates is likely for some time, though there may be temporary flurries. The rise to 6 per cent. did not last long. Most of the day's loans were made at 4 per cent.

⁂

A feature of the present trading is the strength and activity of the bond market, bond houses reporting good demand for the low and medium priced issues. Yesterday the dealings were on a large scale and some good advances were scored. Atchison issues, Chicago and Alton 3½s, and Reading 4s were well bought.

LINSEED OIL'S CAPITAL.

It was announced yesterday that the committee appointed to decide upon a plan for increasing the working capital of the American Linseed Oil Company will probably meet in this city early next week. No definite plan of action has yet been decided upon.

COAL RATES MAY ADVANCE.

It was reported in Wall Street yesterday that on the 1st of April next the freight rates on soft coal, advanced last April 30 cents per ton, will be further advanced—probably to the extent of 20 cents a ton.

WALL STREET TOPICS.

November output of the Dominion Coal Company amounted to 173,000 tons, and shipments to 147,000 tons.

Increase of $91,859 in St. Paul's gross earnings for the fourth week in November.

Chicago advices that the constantly increasing traffic of the Chicago and Alton has compelled the company to enlarge the freight yards at Brighton Park and commence the construction of new yards at Joliet.

THE LONDON MARKET.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Money was much more plentiful and easier to-day, though there was a good demand, owing to the consols settlement and considerable repayments being due the Bank of England to-morrow. A million in India bills must be paid for against half a million maturing.

Business on the Stock Exchange here was moderately active. There was a feeling of relief at the fact that Mr. Krüger is not going to Berlin. Consols were firmer, and there was more disposition to support home rails, especially Northeasterns and Caledonians deferred. Following New York, Americans opened dull, except Southerns and Readings. After a slight decline they closed with a good tone. Grand Trunks were quiet; first and seconds were harder. Kaffirs were higher on the Krüger news.

Consols, for money, 97 9-16, ex interest; consols, for the account, 97 15-16, ex interest. Canadian, 91; Atchison, 41; St. Paul, 136¾; Illinois Central, 128¼; Louisville, 80¼; Union Pacific preferred, 84½; New York Central, 147; Erie, 14¾; Pennsylvania, 73½; Reading, 19¾; Erie first preferred, 41½; Northern Pacific preferred, 85¾. Grand Trunk, 6½; Anaconda, 10¾; Rand Mines, 40½.

The amount of bullion withdrawn from the Bank of England on balance to-day was £200,000.

Money, 2 per cent. Rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 3 15-16@4 per cent. and for three months' bills, 3⅞@3 15-16 per cent.

In Continental Centres.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—Prices opened strong on the Bourse to-day, owing to considerable speculative buying. Subsequently, international were weaker on realizations. Then they rallied again, under the influence of a continued demand for rentes, finishing firm. Kaffirs improved on London buying, due to Emperor William's refusal to receive Mr. Krüger. Later, certain industrials were pressed for sale. Rio Tintos were firm, eased on being offered, and recovered on reported favorable copper statistics. Banque de Paris and Credit Lyonnaise were weaker. The closing was generally irregular.

Three per cent. rentes, 101f 57½c for the account. Exchange on London, 25f 10c for checks.

Spanish 4s closed at 70.17½.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Home funds and internationals were maintained on the Boerse to-day. Spanish 4s were harder, in expectation that the 4 per cent. interest will be preserved. Argentines were in demand. Chinese had a better tone and locals fluctuated, closing firmer.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 41½ pfennigs for checks. Discount rates: Short bills, 4 per cent.; three months' bills, 4⅛ per cent.

MADRID, Dec. 3.—Spanish 4s closed to-day at 77. Gold was quoted at 33.32.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Boston had a good market in the general list, although lacking animation in mining stocks. Trading was active in Sugar, and the new unlisted feature, American Woolen, sold to the extent of 2,800 shares in the morning at 22⅞@23½ for the common and 78¾@78¾ for the preferred. Old Dominion was the only active mining stock, falling 1⅞, to 29. Tamarack rose 5, to 300, and Calumet sold at 820, ex dividend. Utah yielded ½, to 34½. Pullman was up 4, at 204½, and was bought well. Bonds were in good demand. The market weakened to-day as the afternoon wore on. Butte fell 3½, to 85, rallying to 86. Cochiti receded ⅜, to 9⅝; Centennial ¾, to 16½; Parrot ½, to 49.

At the Clearing House money between banks loaned at 2½ per cent., and New York funds were still in big demand at 10 cents premium.

Money on call rules from 3½ to 4½ per cent. The general run of mercantile names are quoted from 4½ to 5 per cent. There are comparatively few collateral loans making. The very choicest names and collateral sell as low as 4 per cent. on four to six months. From this figure rates range up to 5 per cent. Year money is in good supply at 4 per cent.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—Except for Cambria Steel and Reading firsts, the Philadelphia market was a listless affair. Some of the ordinarily active stocks were without a quotation. Less than fifty shares of Union Traction changed hands. The absence of business had the usual influence upon prices, but except for a point recession in Pennsylvania Steel the changes were too insignificant to warrant recording. At the opening a spirited demand carried Cambria Steel up 5, to 21, but the gain melted away as quick as it came. Toward the close the tone improved. Consolidated Traction of Pittsburg rose to 26⅝ and Lehigh Valley advanced ¼, to 26¼. Little was done in the specialties. Lake Superior Consolidated was steady at 31, and Electric Company of America was in moderate demand at Saturday's closing, while Marsden shaded off fractionally at the end of the day.

The close was about steady at the following bid and asked prices:

Special Court Calendar Call.

There will be a special call of the calendar for cases in the Special Term of the Supreme Court this morning at 11 o'clock in Part IV. The three Justices sitting in Parts IV., V., and VI. of the Special Term have cleared the calendar up to date, and yesterday Justice Freedman offered the special call of the general calendar of all cases noted at issue during November. This is the first time within two years that such a call has been made.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Trading in the market for outside securities yesterday was large, and the buying orders that appeared in the market were sufficiently important to lead to considerable strength that showed in a number of advances, some of which were substantial. Especially at the opening was the market active, but throughout the whole day transactions were on a much broader scale than on the closing days of last week. An event of interest was the large advance in Standard Oil on transactions that were much beyond the average in this stock. In some issues the declines that occurred late last week seemed to have resulted in a larger demand that led to recoveries. Nearly all the active issues were supplied by the industrial group and one or two of these issues were active beyond any recent record. Traders were active in the market, but they worked as much on one side of the account as on the other, and the general trend of the day's market was due to outside orders rather than to the efforts of traders.

⁂

AMERICAN WOOLEN led the list in point of activity. Trading in the common stock amounted to probably not less than 8,000 shares. It was announced from Boston that the stock had been admitted to the Stock Exchange in that city, and throughout the day houses with Boston connections were active in the stock. Although the common stock was so active, the quotations showed a relatively narrow range. It opened at 22 and sold up to 23¼ and closed at 22⅞ bid, showing a net gain of seven-eighths of a point. Trading in the preferred stock was light. It closed with a net gain of half a point at 77½ bid.

⁂

CONSOLIDATED EQUIPMENT was active, but somewhat weak, and at the close showed a net loss of three quarters of a point. Just at the opening it was strong, and sold up to 14¾, but as the quotation approached 15, the amount of stock that appeared for sale was so large that the price was forced down. About 4,000 shares sold.

⁂

STANDARD OIL made a gain over Saturday's closing price of 50 points, the largest advance which the stock has enjoyed in a single day at any time recently. From the opening, the demand for the stock was good, and the quotation advanced rapidly to 800. The small amount that appeared at that price was soon absorbed, and the stock continued its upward course until 825 had been reached. At this price a number of lots changed hands. During the last half hour of trading the price reached about 10 points, and closed at 807 bid against 776 bid at the close on Saturday.

⁂

PITTSBURG, BESSEMER AND LAKE ERIE sold up to 31 and closed at 28½ bid, which showed a net gain of 2 points. In explanation of the sharp advance it was rumored that the stock would receive a guaranteed 3 per cent. dividend, but no authentic report came to hand during the day.

⁂

INTERNATIONAL PUMP, which closed weak on Saturday, was in good demand, and both issues of the stock closed substantially higher than on Saturday. The preferred sold up to 75 and closed with a net gain of 1½ points. The common sold from 27½ up to 28¼.

⁂

AMERICAN BRIDGE was quite active, and sold up to 43⅞ on transactions in probably not less than 5,000 shares.

⁂

Closing quotations yesterday, compared with those of Saturday, were as follows:

Defense of the Martins.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You have recently noticed the decision against us in the action brought by Mr. Healy. We intend to appeal at once, and confidently expect to reverse it, as it is not supported by the evidence.

It has been made the basis of a scandalously untrue attack upon us in certain newspapers, among which THE TIMES is not included, and we have demanded of them full investigation and retraction. Meanwhile, we ask our friends and the public to suspend judgment until we have had an opportunity to vindicate our good name from charges which are cruelly false.

MARTIN & BROTHER.

New York, Dec. 3, 1900.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

In the following list "mtg" stands for mortgage and "R S" for revenue stamps. The war revenue law provides that stamps shall be placed on all conveyances at the rate of 50 cents for each $500 of consideration. This "consideration" has been held to mean only the equity above the mortgage, except in the rare cases where the purchaser assumes payment of the mortgage. The amount of the mortgage plus 1,000 times the value of the revenue stamps on the conveyances should therefore show the true consideration:

NEW CASES OF SMALLPOX

Victim Found in a West Seventy-second Street House.

The Disease Also Attacks Men Far Up Town and on Third Avenue—Health Board's Work.

After a lull of two days the small-pox reappeared in the city yesterday, and before the afternoon had passed eight new victims had been discovered, and removed to the Reception Hospital. Cases appeared in districts far removed from the vicinity of the "All Nations Block," in West Sixty-ninth Street, to which the Health Department doctors had been strenuously striving to confine the contagion. It is admitted that the situation is serious, although the disease has not yet become sufficiently prevalent to be pronounced epidemic in the city. The new cases are:

BENNETT, EMMA, ten years old, 157 Thirty-sixth Street, Brooklyn.

BENNETT, KATE, five years old, same address.

BRENNAN, MARGARET, forty-five years old, 302 West Sixty-ninth Street.

GAMMILL, JOHN, twenty-seven years old, 1,841 Third Avenue.

MOONEY, ANNIE, five years old, 305 West Sixty-ninth Street.

NASH, JOSEPH, aged about twenty-five years, 222 West Seventy-second Street.

SMITH, GEORGE F., thirty-eight years old, an actor, taken from the Hotel Minot, Eighth Avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Street.

WOODSON, ELMER, colored, twenty-eight years old, 222 West Sixty-fourth Street.

Joseph Nash is a member of the Nash family who occupy the beautiful stone and brick residence at the address given. Every effort was made to keep the facts of this case from the public, and for a time the authorities refused to give the name of the patient or even the precise location of the house in the street. It stands in the very heart of the exclusive residence block extending from Broadway to West End Avenue. The patient was removed before daylight yesterday, but the news spread, and caused great anxiety in the neighborhood. The authorities could not learn where the young man had been exposed to contagion. The Nash family have occupied the house but a few weeks.

The Gammill case caused great anxiety, too, for beside being in a location new to the present outbreak, it is in the heart of a crowded tenement district. Gammill has been out of work for three weeks, and has travelled all over the city seeking employment. There is no clue where he contracted the disease, nor is there in the case of Smith, the actor, though he, like Nash, has daily passed through the district hitherto alone infected.

The little Bennett girls were removed from the nursery of the Kings County Hospital. They were taken to the institution by their mother, who also took another child with her, but neither of the other members of the family have as yet shown any symptoms of the disease. These cases make three that have developed in this hospital within the last three weeks, and all are believed to have started from a negro minstrel who came to the hospital some time ago.

Just before these cases were reported and before leaving the department Col. Michael C Murphy, the President, said: "There is absolutely no danger of contagion. We have the disease under control, and while there are apt to be a few cases here and there we have overcome all danger of a spread of the disease. We have been able to combat it and there has been a great increase in the vaccination."

Dr. Alonzo Blauvelt, Chief Inspector of the Division of Contagious Diseases, said yesterday: "We have a second crop started, and we will probably have a good deal of it before we get through."

"If a citizen should be attacked by the disease, what is the first thing he should do?" he was asked.

"He probably would not recognize it before the rash broke out, but he would very likely be very sick before that. As soon as he knows he has it, we should be notified. We take good care of patients. The smallpox building at North Brother Island is a large brick structure. There are four doctors there who are experienced in the disease and many nurses. Another impression I want to correct. Patients are not taken to Willard Parker Hospital, where there is diphtheria. They do not go within 400 feet of it, but are taken to the reception hospital, and from there are sent to North Brother Island by boat."

Dr. Dillingham, Assistant Superintendent of the bureau, insisted that every case that had been reported had been made public. Of the Nash case he said:

"It was a private family in a private house. All the people there have been vaccinated, their friends knew of it, and the family wished the facts kept out of the newspapers."

Fourteen doctors have been at work for several days vaccinating through the whole section between Sixty-seventh Street and Seventieth Streets, Columbus Avenue and the North River, where the disease seems to have gained the strongest footing, and they report very little objection made. They were finishing it up yesterday in Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues. There was an enormous rush to the Health Department building, at Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, and men and women with little children waited for hours.

A number of policemen in uniform were in line with their arms bared. The officials, while they fear no general epidemic, yet say that the present is the most serious outbreak that the city has known since the Cherry Street plague of eight years ago, and recommend that all residents of whatever part of the city be fortified against contagion by vaccination.

VICTIM IN PERTH AMBOY.

Koch Caught the Disease in New York Upholsterer's Shop.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Dec. 3.—A case of smallpox has been found in this city. The victim is Philip Koch. His home, on the Woodbridge road, has been quarantined, and a yellow flag and a watchman keep people away. The Health Inspector, Dr. W. E. Ramsay, pronounced the case as very severe.

Koch came from New York Nov. 28. While in that city he had been working in an upholsterer's shop. He had been making over old mattresses, and is supposed to have thus caught the disease. The New York authorities have been informed of the address of the shop.

BEAN TAKEN FROM MAN'S EAR.

Abe Harris Accidentally Lodged It There Seven Years Ago.

A black wax bean, half an inch long and one-quarter wide, which had been in Abe Harris's ear for seven years, was extracted yesterday in St. Catharine's Hospital, Williamsburg. Harris is a tailor. While he was going along Graham Avenue yesterday an unknown man struck him on the right side of the head. The pain nearly crazed him, and he went to St. Catharine's Hospital for treatment. Dr. Hoyt took Harris in charge and took the bean out of his ear. Harris told the doctors that he had accidentally shoved the bean into his ear seven years ago, and it never troubled him again until yesterday, when the unknown man struck him. After the bean had been extracted Harris felt much relieved and went home.

CRIED FIRE IN THEATRE.

Drunken Man Causes a Panic at the Payton in Brooklyn.

While the performance of "Young Mrs. Winthrop" was going on yesterday afternoon in the Payton Theatre, at Lee Avenue and Taylor Street, Williamsburg, a drunken man in the top gallery annoyed some men who were sitting around him. They complained to a special policeman, and the latter directed the fellow to be quiet. The man refused, and when the policeman undertook to arrest him he shouted "Fire!" at the top of his voice. There were about 500 women and children in the lower part of the house.

The cry of "Fire!" brought about a panic, and the audience made a mad rush for the street. For a few minutes only shrieks and screams could be heard. Corse Payton, who was on the stage at the time, stopped the performance and called upon the people to be quiet, as there was no fire. He also directed the orchestra to play. It did so, but the music had little effect on the excited people. Half a dozen women and children were knocked down and trampled upon. Meanwhile ward of the panic had reached the Clymer Street Police Station and half a dozen policemen were hurried to the theatre.

The performance, after a short delay, was resumed. The fellow who had caused all the trouble escaped.

ROASTED MAN TO DEATH.

Two Persons Arrested in Dallas, Texas, on Suspicion—Threats of Lynching Made.

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 3.—Screams of agony brought policemen to a saloon in East Dallas to-day. Seated in a chair, unable to move, was a man whose garments were a mass of flames. The police say Eugene Faulkner and J. W. Chapman were standing behind the bar smoking cigars and watching the unfortunate man, who was being roasted to death.

"Bring some water here, quick!" shouted a policeman.

"Get it yourself," the policemen declare one of the men retorted. "Let him die. What's the use of worrying over him?"

One of the wheelmen took off his coat and with it beat out the fire. The man was sent to the City Hospital, where he died later. Soon after his arrival at the hospital the two men were brought before him for identification, when it was discovered that his eyes had been destroyed.

He was Pate Bain, for many years a constable in this county. It is claimed by the police that Bain was drugged, and, as he reclined in a chair unconscious, a quantity of turpentine was poured over him and a match applied. The man was literally roasted alive.

When the heat and pain had partly revived him he called piteously for help, and when none came he screamed and attracted the policemen. When news of the outrage became widespread the greatest indignation was expressed. The two suspects were put in the city jail and guarded by deputies.

Shortly after 10 o'clock to-night a mob of fifteen or twenty men called at the jail and demanded the prisoners. The jailer swore that they were not in his possession. They had been taken to Fort Worth early in the evening, he declared.

"Well," said the leader of the mob, "if we catch them we will burn them."

Faulkner and Chapman refuse to talk, and no motive is known for the crime.

SOCIAL FEATURES OF SUNDAY.

Visits and Dinner Parties Deplored by Dr. Jefferson—Man the Tempter of Woman.

Dr. Charles E. Jefferson of the Broadway Tabernacle began his address at the sixth annual meeting of the Woman's National Sabbath Alliance, at which Mrs. Darwin R. James presided, in the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, yesterday afternoon, by remarking that there was nothing a minister could tell such a body of women upon the subject of Sabbath observance, and ended by giving them a plain, practical talk.

"The greatest danger in this whole question," said Dr. Jefferson, is the attitude of women to the Sabbath. Eve tempted Adam in the garden, but in the cities now it is the men who are tempting women, and they yield to their influence. Men to-day are driven like pack horses, and when the lovely, broad expanse of a Sabbath stretches out before them they cannot resist the temptation to make use of it. A man cannot attend to social duties and do business. So on Sunday, when he is at leisure, he makes his social visits. His wife and daughters say: 'Poor man, we ought to do what we can to make this one free day pleasant for him.'

"Now, you can't have much social life without eating. The meals that are necessary to preserve human life are very simple, but with the advance of civilization dinners have become more elaborate, and that means more work in the kitchen. If there is a big dinner on Sunday night, that means staying away from evening service, and how can a woman give her attention to the service in the morning with a big dinner on her mind? I am more afraid of these social features than anything else.

"We must snatch away Saturday afternoon from the duties of business. What is machinery for, if not to give us leisure? The wage earner should have his Saturday afternoon holiday and the professional man should have it as well. Then, with Saturday afternoon and evening, the big dinners need not be given on Sunday."

Dr. Jefferson closed by describing seven pamphlets he would like to see printed, showing the necessity of a day of rest, from moral, mental, physical, political, civic, and other standards.

BOUTELLE TO GIVE UP SEAT?

Plan to Place Him on Navy Retired List with Rank of Captain.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Post to-morrow will say:

"A plan is in contemplation to place Representative Charles A. Boutelle of Bangor, Me., nominally Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, on the retired list of the navy, after which he would resign his seat in the House of Representatives.

"A bill to accomplish that has already been prepared, and will probably be presented in the House within a few days. It will propose that he be placed on the retired list, with the rank of Captain, in view of conspicuous service which he rendered as a volunteer officer of the navy during the civil war."

Doesn't Think Farmer Was Robbed.

Capt. McClusky says he does not believe that W. F. Farmer, the sporting man of 332 East Eighty-fourth Street, was robbed at all. Farmer claims to have lost $3,070 in cash and $3,000 worth of diamond jewelry Saturday night or Sunday morning at his home. "Mrs. Goehler, as he called the landlady," said Capt. McClusky, "is his wife. They were secretly married May 30 last. Farmer says he had $3,000 in a strong box, but nobody but him ever saw the strong box."

WORK AMONG THE NEEDY.

Annual Report of the Association for Improving Condition of the Poor.

The fifty-seventh annual report of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor has just been issued. The department of relief spent $26,600 for material relief, the principal items of expenditure being for food supplies, rent, coal, shoes, meals, and lodgings, and labor in the sewing bureau and workrooms. The total number of persons who benefited by this expenditure is set down as 19,513, made up of 3,704 families. In all, 845 women were provided with work through the sewing bureau and workrooms; work outside was obtained for 166 men and women; 6,500 new and second-hand garments were distributed.

To deal with applications the relief department maintains a corps of thirty trained workers, one-half of whom pass their entire time in the tenements. The fresh-air work of the association is one of the largest in the city. Last Summer, 1,[illegible] mothers, children, and babies were kept at Sea Breeze, the association's property at Coney Island, for an average stay of thirteen days; 17,814 were taken for a day's outing.

Commissioner Kearney asked for $52,000 to run the new city bath, in Rivington Street, during the year 1901, and has been allowed $35,000 for that purpose. At the peoples' baths, 131,000 baths were taken during the year; the operating expenses were $5,775, and the receipts were $6,203, leaving a credit balance of $428. The charge is 5 cents, including towel and individual piece of soap. The capacity of the people's baths is twenty-six baths; that of the Rivingston Street bath, seventy-seven baths. Thus it will be seen that Commissioner Kearney asked for nine times what it cost to run the people's baths, and has received an appropriation of six times as much, the difference in capacity being less than 3 to 1.

The settlement work at Hartley House covers fifty different classes and clubs, with 1,300 young men and women and children attending. During the year 25 lectures were given and 93 miscellaneous entertainments.

In the report of the Board of Managers, President R. Fulton Cutting says:

Of some 5,600 cases investigated, cared for, passed upon, and closed during the year, the cause of distress in 1,941 instances is set down as lack of work, in 1,198 instances as sickness. The other causes operating were shiftlessness in 245 cases, intemperance in 312, old age in 307, desertion in 221.

The expenditures for general purposes exceeded the income by about $9,000, and the association has issued an urgent appeal to its contributors and the public for support. The sum of $60,000 is asked in voluntary contributions to carry on the work this year.

Killed in Tunnel Excavation.

James Russell, a stationary engineer of 121 West One Hundred and Thirty-fifth Street, had his neck broken and was instantly killed early yesterday by falling into the rapid transit tunnel excavation, where he was employed, at Lenox Avenue and One Hundred and Eleventh Street. The man's duty was to report at 6 o'clock each morning and get up steam in his engine. He was seen shortly after that hour by Night Watchman John Austin, descend a ladder into the excavation. The body was found lying at the foot of the ladder near his engine, on some jagged rocks, and in about two feet of water. It was removed to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Police Station.

St. Matthew's Church Election.

The annual election was held at St. Matthew's Church, Eighty-fourth Street and Central Park West, yesterday, and the following Wardens and Vestrymen were elected: James H. Falconer and Dr. Howard Reed, Wardens; Edward Berry, Augustus W. Kelley, Ira Bliss Stewart, John P. Sutpher, Walter B. Tufts, W. A. Merrill, Albert A. Barnes, J. U. Soper, and Robert H. Lockwood, Vestrymen.

HENRY L. CLAPP LOCATED.

Left New York Fifteen Years Ago and Was Supposed to be Dead.

Much surprise has been created among the friends and acquaintances of Henry L. Clapp, formerly a wealthy manufacturer of this city, by the news that after a lapse of fifteen years, during which time nothing was heard of him, word has been received of his living in Malta, well and happy, as the husband of a charming Spanish Senora.

When Mr. Clapp left New York City fifteen years ago he was low in spirits, and in bad health, his state being mainly due, it was said, to his grief over the loss of his wife. Physicians advised him to seek the milder climate of the coasts on the Mediterranean Sea. He departed for those regions, and was never heard from again. A few days ago a former friend of Mr. Clapp received a letter from a friend in England, who had been to Malta on a business trip, and who had there met the long-lost Mr. Clapp, whom he had known in the early eighties. According to the letter, Mr. Clapp has married a wealthy Spanish woman, the widow of an officer, and is living happily in a beautiful villa five miles inland from the seaport of the Mediterranean Island of Malta. Mr. Clapp has, says the writer, no intention of returning to this country, though he would have paid his friends and relatives here a visit were it not for his wife's antipathy to a sea voyage.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH ELECTION.

Opponents of Rector Wasson Are Overwhelmingly Defeated.

Those members of the Vestry of St George's Protestant Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, who were opposed to the rector, the Rev. William A. Wasson, were overwhelmingly defeated yesterday morning at the election held by the congregation. Henry Tompkins was chosen Warden, and received 68 votes. His opponent, Augustus A. James, who sought re-election on the opposition ticket, got 19 votes. George W. Felter and Frederic C. Holmes were re-elected Vestrymen, with 66 votes each, while Howard J. Francis was chosen to the same office by the same vote.

The defeated candidates for the Vestry were George W. Fertain, C. A. Patterson, and Wilfred Smith, each of whom received 21 votes. The only opponents of Mr. Wasson who are now on the Vestry are Hiram Snyder, W. C. Kimball, George A. White, and R. J. Harris.

DIDN'T PASS FOR VANDERBILT.

John Foster of Hyde Park, N. Y., is not at all pleased with the notoriety which has been conferred on him through the efforts of some one with an idea for humor, a sense of news, and a desire to convert these qualities into cash. Some such person hearing that Mr. Foster had succeeded in riding to his home village on a through limited train of the New York Central, conceived and published the story that Mr. Foster had stopped the train at a station where only the slowest locals are scheduled to stop by representing himself to the conductor as Frederick W. Vanderbilt, who owns a country estate near Hyde Park. As a matter of fact, Mr. Foster took no such liberties with the Vanderbilt name. Mr. Foster did board the Detroit Special by mistake at Poughkeepsie, thinking it to be the Hyde Park local.

He did not discover his mistake until the conductor called for tickets, and wanted to collect excess fare. Explanations followed, and the conductor, his train being on time, pulled the bell rope and permitted Mr. Foster to get off. Mr. Foster called yesterday afternoon on Superintendent McCoy of the Hudson Division of the New York Central to offer his apologies and his thanks for the courteous treatment on the part of the conductor.

Mrs. Kennedy Visits Her Husband.

Dr. Samuel J. Kennedy, who was returned from the Sing Sing death chamber, was visited by his wife for the first time since his return yesterday. For more than an hour the two remained in low-toned conversation, after which it was arranged with the Tombs officials that Mrs. Kennedy might see her husband at almost any time except on Sundays and holidays.

THURLOW WEED BARNES SUED.

Court Asked to Make Him Surrender Certain Stocks.

Alfred H. Morris and David H. Morris, the racing men, as individuals and as trustees of a deed executed in behalf of Francis Isabella Barnes, sued Thurlow Weed Barnes in the Supreme Court yesterday to compel him to deliver up 2,500 shares of the capital stock of the Van Nest Land Company, the par value of each share being $100.

Mrs. Barnes secured a divorce from her husband about two years ago. From the evidence in the case yesterday it appears that the deed of trust was executed in 1891, and that the plaintiffs and their brother, John A. Morris, now dead, and Mr. Barnes were the trustees. In 1892, the stock certificate for 2,500 shares was issued in the names of the plaintiffs, but Mr. Barnes held the certificate. He resigned as a trustee in 1898, about the time of the divorce proceedings, but he refused to turn over the certificate.

Mr. Barnes claimed that the resignation had been procured by false representations made to him by the plaintiffs. He claims that Mrs. Barnes was to have reconveyed to him certain properties, including land in Dakota and a house at Nantucket. This was not done, so he refused to give up the certificate.

Justice Russell reserved his decision.

INVASION OF ENGLAND EASY

Gen. Mercier Causes Sensation by Speech in French Senate.

Proposes that Plans for Landing of Troops on English Soil Be Prepared—His Motion Thrown Out.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Gen. Mercier, who was Minister of War at the time of the arrest, first trial, and conviction of Capt. Dreyfus, caused a deep sensation in the Senate today, in the course of the debate on the Naval bill, by pointing out the ease with which Great Britain could be invaded. He demanded that the Government introduce into the plans for the mobilization of the army and navy methods for the rapid embarkation and debarkation of an expeditionary corps.

In the course of an extraordinary speech Gen. Mercier said:

"In view of the possibility of war with Great Britain, the use of the army is not sufficiently taken into account. The times are not the same as they were a hundred years ago. Steam, the navy, the telegraph, and the railroad have rendered the problem of the invasion of England much easier of solution.

"Moreover, England herself is no longer the same. The Transvaal war has shown that the British Army, although brave, is not equal to the task which England expected it to perform. The British Navy is powerful, but it has many coasts to defend.

"France, therefore, is numerically England's equal at certain points, and is even her superior in the instruments of destruction. History furnishes many instances of mutiny in the English Navy at the moment of battle. A landing in England is, therefore, not beyond realization.

"This is not only my opinion, but that also of high naval officials. The British Premier recently expressed significant fears, and, if the principle of landing is admitted, the practical means of execution may be discussed.

"I venture to think that the work I prepared while commanding an army corps could serve as a basis for such a project—which would not be expensive—"

At this point protests were raised, and M. Faillieres, President of the Senate, asked Gen. Mercier not to enter into the details of the scheme.

Gen. Mercier replied that the scheme could be "held over the head of England, like the sword of Damocles," and he proposed a resolution that the Senate should invite the Government to complete immediately preparations for the mobilization of the army and navy by preparing everything necessary to embark and disembark as rapidly as possible an expeditionary corps.

Protests were raised from various benches, and M. de Lanessan, Minister of Marine, followed the President's ruling that the motion was out of order in the debate on the Naval bill by declaring, amid cheers, that the Government could not possibly accept it.

BRITISH PRESS SARCASTIC.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Morning Post seizes the occasion of Gen. Mercier's speech in the French Senate yesterday to criticise the weakness of British defenses, but the papers generally treat Mercier's outburst in a spirit of banter.

"It is an idea worthy of the courageous soldier who perjured Dreyfus into a living grave and who, as Minister of War, sat shivering with terror during a whole night at the Elysée lest Germany should declare war against France," says The Daily Chronicle, and most of the morning papers comment in a similar strain.

The Daily Graphic says:

"We trust that Gen. Mercier's harangue will awaken sober public opinion in France to the dangers the republic is courting by allowing Nationalist firebrands so much license."

The Standard says:

"The incident is rather encouraging to Englishmen who esteem and respect France because it proves that responsible French statesmen are not disposed to deal equivocally with proposals having a tendency to disturb the good relations between the two powers."

ANGLOPHOBE RIOT AT COLOGNE

Demonstration in Front of the British Consulate—The Leaders Arrested.

COLOGNE, Dec. 4.—An Anglophobe demonstration took place to-day in front of the British Consulate here. Mounted police dispersed the rioters and arrested the leaders.

Serenades of and ovations to Mr. Krüger, planned by various societies, have been forbidden in the interest of public safety.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—The press continues a lively discussion regarding Mr. Krüger, and disappointment deepens at Emperor William's refusal to receive him. Nevertheless, many journals admit the political necessity for the Kaiser's act.

According to the Frankfurter Zeitung, Emperor William not only informed Mr. Krüger that he was unable to receive him, but expressed the wish that the Boer statesman would avoid Berlin at present.

Dispatches from Cologne describe Mr. Krüger as very weary. He keeps his room for rest and is unable to resist the German cold.

The crowd that demonstrated before the British Consulate in Cologne tried to tear down the sign.

ANOTHER FIGHT WITH DE WET.

The Boers Are Headed Off by Gen. Knox's Mounted Troops, and Retire.

LONDON, Dec 5.—Gen. Kitchener reports that the mounted troops of Gen. Knox were engaged all day long Sunday with part of Gen. De Wet's forces, north of Bethulie, (Orange River Colony, not far from the border of Cape Colony.)

The Boers, Lord Kitchener adds, were headed off and retired in a northeasterly direction.

VALUABLE DOGS POISONED.

Friar, Mother of a $2,000 Great Dane, One of Many Victims in Harlem.

Residents of West One Hundred and Twelfth Street who own valuable dogs have been heavy losers of late by a system of poisoning which some one in the neighborhood is practicing. Among the most valuable dogs that have been poisoned is Friar, the mother of the Great Dane prize-winner Major McKinley, who was sold for $2,000. Friar was owned by Mrs. George Dobson of 529 West One Hundred and Twelfth Street. Besides this dog, Mrs. Dobson lost two other valuable animals, the one an English greyhound and the other a Gordon setter. Mrs. Dobson said last night that the poisoning cases had been given into the hands of detectives and that they hoped within a few days to land the criminal.

Philip Kennedy of 509 West One Hundred and Twelfth Street has lost three dogs, all of them valuable Irish setters, within the past few months. Two of the dogs were shot with an air rifle, the third was poisoned with strychnine. Mr. Kennedy is an old man who lived all alone with his dogs as his sole companions, and he took his loss seriously to heart.

George Schiette of 527 West One Hundred and Twelfth Street lost the last of a number of valuable dogs last night. Dr. Perpena was present when the animal died and pronounced it a case of strychnine poisoning.

ACCUSES A POLICEMAN.

Policeman William B. Mills of the Mercer Street Station was arrested last night by Detectives Lockwood and Sheehan of the West Thirtieth Street Station on complaint of James Lynch of 105 East Eighteenth Street, an officer in the Ninth Regiment, N. G., N. Y. He charged Mills with robbing him of a watch valued at $250. On Monday night, the complainant says, he and Mills and Frederick Mills, a brother of the policeman, had been drinking in a saloon on the corner of Sixth Avenue and Fourteenth Street until 2 o'clock in the morning.

The three men left the saloon and stood at the corner on the street talking together when, without warning, he says, Officer Mills Grabbed Lynch's two-hundred-and-fifty-dollar watch and dashed off with it. Lynch gave chase and grabbed the policeman, but was struck from behind by Frederick Mills, which allowed the policeman to escape.

Lynch went to the West Thirtieth Street Station, and the two detectives were put on the case, and both Mills and his brother were arrested at 129 West Thirteenth Street.

The prisoners were taken to the Jefferson Market Court, where Percy Ashdown, a music publisher of 3 East Fourteenth Street, appeared to say he had been a witness to the robbery. The prisoners were held in $1,500 bail for Officer Mills on a charge of grand larceny, and $300 bail for Frederick Mills on a charge of assault. The case was adjourned until Thursday at 2 o'clock.

GOV. ROOSEVELT GOING HUNTING

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Dec. 4.—Theodore Roosevelt of New York is coming to Colorado this Winter for a hunting trip. He has notified the hotel at Meeker that he will be there later in the season, and a dispatch from that town says that accommodations have been reserved for Gov. Roosevelt and party the week before the New York Legislature meets.

SKY-SCRAPER FOR PITTSBURG.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 4.—A twenty-story sky-scraper office building, which will be the highest in Western Pennsylvania, and which will cost $2,000,000, will be erected by H. C. Frick on the block bounded by Fifth Avenue, Diamond and Grant Streets and Scrip Alley. This is opposite St. Paul's Roman Catholic Cathedral and alongside the Carnegie office building, which it will overtop by six stories.

Mr. Frick will also erect a mansion for himself on Squirrel Hill, fronting on the Beechwood Boulevard, the construction of which will cost $750,000. Work on both buildings will begin next Spring. It will take fifteen months to erect the office building, which will be of granite. D. H. Burnham & Co. of Chicago made the plans.

BOSTON SALOONS CLOSE EARLY.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—The Supreme Court decided to-day that the law prohibits the sale of liquor in Massachusetts between 11 P. M. and 6 A. M., except by apothecaries, and that on Sunday hotels can supply only guests.

All hotels and cafés have been notified, and everything was locked up tightly at 11 o'clock to-night. The regeers were compelled to go home dry and hungry, and the streets at midnight were deserted.

The enforcement of the law is a great hardship to the hotel men, and a big fight to change it will be made before the next Legislature.

ODD ACCIDENT ON RAILWAY.

Special to The New York Times.

WHEELING, West Va., Dec. 4.—David Phillips, engineer, and Frank Kobaugh, fireman, on the Baltimore and Ohio Cincinnati Express, both of Glenwood, Penn., were the victims of a peculiar accident at Elm Grove this morning. The big high-pressure natural gas main of the Tri-State Gas Company had been broken by a slight slip during the night, and the cloud of escaping gas found vent between the rails near the "T" bridge at Elm Grove.

The train came upon the escaping gas without warning, and the fire in the locomotive ignited the volume of vapor. Instantly the locomotive was enveloped in a cloud of flame that found its way to every nook and crevice. The engineer and fireman were seriously but not dangerously burned. The train was stopped at Elm Grove while they secured medical attention.

Engineer Phillips went on with the train, but the fireman, Kobaugh, was advised by Dr. Storer to remain over for the day. The rapidity with which the train was moving prevented damage other than scorched paint.

J. J. M'CAFFERTY INJURED.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 4.—J. J. McCafferty, the New York turfman, is in a serious condition at the farm of Hiram Scoggan, near this city. He is suffering from three broken ribs, and his physician fears he may be internally injured. While directing the loading of horses at Bennings a few days ago he fell from a car. He did not think his injuries serious at first, and came on to this city, where he had an engagement to look at some yearlings belonging to Mr. Scoggan.

Mr. McCafferty arrived here last night, and, meeting Mr. Scoggan, they went at once to the latter's farm. The New York turfman was suffering such intense pain this morning that he summoned a physician, who found that three ribs had been broken.

Mr. McCafferty was resting easily to-night, but his friends are greatly alarmed over his condition.

Maurice Thompson, the Author, Very Ill

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 4.—Maurice Thompson, the distinguished Indianapolis author, is seriously ill at his home in Crawfordsville. His condition is such as to excite great alarm among his friends. He was stricken several weeks ago, but rallied somewhat. Within the last few days he has grown steadily worse. He is well known as a contributor to magazine literature and has written several books.

FIRE STOPS TROLLEY LINES

Part of Brooklyn Service Suspended When Power House Burned.

THE ELEVATED LINES CROWDED

Cars Stalled on Eastern District Routes —Passengers Huddled In Sheds and Much Inconvenienced.

Traffic on many of the Brooklyn trolley lines was suspended yesterday evening by a fire which destroyed the Ridgewood power house of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, at Myrtle Avenue, Wyckoff and Woodbine Streets. The fire started at 3:45 o'clock, and within ten minutes the entire building was in flames. The power house is located at the city line, half of the building being situated in Kings County and half in Queens County. Ten engines from Brooklyn and the entire volunteer Fire Department of Newtown were quickly on the scene. In a short time the walls of the power house suddenly collapsed, thus diminishing the volume of flame.

The large amount of combustible material in the building, however, continued to feed the fire, and it was another hour before the firemen were able to control it. By that time the power house was a complete wreck, only the tall chimney stacks of the boiler room and remnants of the brick walls on the south side remaining. The dynamos and other valuable machinery were destroyed.

James Dale, Deputy Chief in charge, estimated the damage at least at $50,000, and thought it might reach $75,000.

The fire is believed to have been the result of bad insulation in the maze of wires situated on the first floor of the building, and which feed the main lines running to the street. The burning of the power house caused an almost instant cessation of traffic on the lines which are fed from Ridgewood. Cars were stalled on the Gates Avenue, Union Avenue, Bushwick Avenue, Myrtle Avenue, and Putnam Avenue lines between the power house and the point at which they intersect Broadway. In addition to the lines mentioned, traffic was completely suspended on the suburban lines running to Lutheran Cemetery, Newtown, Flushing, and on the Flushing Avenue extension and the Richmond Hill road. Hundreds were obliged to take the elevated roads to reach home, increasing the congestion thereon, and they were obliged to walk long distances through the rain and mud from such points as were most accessible to their destinations.

Connection was finally made with the Kent Avenue station, and the lines were fed from there, but cars on the city's lines did not begin to run on their regular schedules until after 8 o'clock. Passengers who were destined for places beyond Ridgewood could get home only by means of the Long Island Railroad. Many were not aware of the fact, and waited in the carsheds at Ridgewood, where they suffered much inconvenience. All of the electric lights had been extinguished as a result of the fire, and the only illumination came from a few kerosene lamps. The dampness and rain added to the discomfort of the women and children, and the annoyance was emphasized and increased by the fact that the company did nothing to relieve them, and even refused to furnish any information as to when the cars might be expected to resume their runs. There were many complaints. Inquiry at the office of the Superintendent was met at first with a statement that the cars would be running in half an hour, and the same question repeated a half hour later was met with exactly the same statement. In some cases curt refusal to answer was the only reply that was vouchsafed. At about 8:30 the service on the suburban lines was partly restored, but the cars were running at reduced speed on account of lack of power.

Division Superintendent Goodwin said last night that all of the lines would be running on regular schedule to-day, but that in order to do so connections would have to be made with the southern station and both power houses worked to their full capacity.

THE DEFENDER'S SKIPPER.

Capt. Urias Rhodes, a Native American, Will Sail the New Yacht Against Shamrock II.

Capt. Urias Rhodes, a native American skipper, has been engaged to sail the new defender for the America's Cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, Shamrock II., in the international races next year. This announcement was made yesterday afternoon by W. Butler Duncan, Jr., manager of the new defender. The news of Capt. Rhodes's selection was received with a great deal of satisfaction by yachtsmen last night, for it means that the contest will be international in every sense, and precludes a possibility of the unfavorable comment aroused last year by the selection of Capt. Charles Barr, a naturalized Englishman, as skipper of the Columbia in the races against the first Shamrock.

Capt. Rhodes is a sailing master of ripe experience. He was born on the south shore of Long Island, and during the past twenty years has devoted himself to yachting as a profession. Many of the best known of the older racing craft have been at some time or other under his care. When John E. Brooks was prominent in yacht racing as the owner of unbeaten schooners Capt. Rhodes was his skipper. He took the schooner Lasca, now the property of a German yachtsman, abroad in 1894, making the exceptional record of fifteen and one-half days in the passage from Sandy Hook Lightship to Fastnet.

Perhaps the best known of Capt. Rhodes's commissions was as skipper of the Defender in her trial races with the Columbia last year. His work then was so creditable that W. Butler Duncan, Jr., who managed the Defender, prevailed upon the Columbia's managers to offer Capt. Rhodes a place on the newer boat as associate skipper with Capt. Barr. Capt. Rhodes declined the offer.

It is now believed that Capt. Barr will act as skipper of the Columbia in the new defender's trial races next Summer, and that C. Oliver Iselin will again manage the older boat. Nothing definite, however, has as yet been made public.

The Newport Yacht Racing Association yesterday announced that plans had been made for two series of races off Newport next Summer, which will be open to all classes. The first of these will be sailed on July 18, 20, and 22, and the second series on the week following the annual cruise of the New York Yacht Club. It is hoped that the Columbia and the new defender will participate at least in the first series of these races.

HOLLAND'S ISLAND GOING FAST.

Sea at High Tide Covers All But a Ridge 100 Yards Wide.

Special to The New York Times.

NANTICOKE, Md., Dec. 4.—Holland's Island, on Chesapeake Bay, will cease to play a part in the geography of Maryland unless the inroads made by the tides are soon checked. The island, particularly the ridge, has perceptibly diminished during the past few years in spite of great labor and expense. With the exception of this ridge of not more than 100 yards' width, the entire island is submerged at every high tide, by which the opening and closing of church and school are regulated.

Many of the 600 islanders have already abandoned their homes. Many handsome dwellings have been built on the island, nearly all on the ridge, which is being so wasted away by the bay. Holland's Island has played a prominent part in the oyster industry.

ARRESTED IN GUATEMALA.

R. H. May, Who Secured Big Award Against Guatemalan Government, Not Allowed to Leave Country.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—The steamship Stillwater arrived here to-day from Port Barrios, Guatemala. Her officers and a number of the crew were taken at once before a notary, and made statements relative to an outrage upon an American citizen.

R. H. May, who once served the Government of Guatemala as the contractor for the Northern Railroad, was arrested at the gangway of the steamer and thrown into prison upon the charge of attempting to leave the republic without paying his debts. Mr. Kenner, the British umpire in the arbitration of the case of Mr. May against the Government of Guatemala, recently rendered a judgment in favor of the claimant to the amount of over $140,000 American gold, on a contract which May had with the Government to operate and improve the railroad.

The Stillwater arrived at Port Barrios on Nov. 29. Mr. May, under the requirements of the law, made the necessary arrangements to leave the country. All papers had been secured, together with a passport, from the commandant of the port.

As May walked to the gangplank an officer of the army informed him that orders had been issued for his detention. May exhibited his papers, but the officer was firm. Mr. Fuqua, who was with Mr. May, came as a passenger. He will go to Washington and lay the case before the State Department.

TO JOIN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

PINGREE PARDONS GUARDSMEN.

Gen. White and Gen. Marsh to Pay $5,000 Each in Installments—Governor Scores the Court.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 4.—Gov. Pingree at 10 to-night announced that he had pardoned both Gen. W. L. White, ex-Quartermaster General, and Gen. A. F. Marsh, ex-Inspector General of the Michigan National Guard, who were convicted of complicity in the State military clothing frauds, upon the payment of $5,000 fine by each. One thousand dollars of the fine is to be paid Jan. 1, 1901, and a like sum on the first day of January, 1902, 1903, 1904, and 1905.

Gen. White was committed to Jackson Prison to-day to begin the ten-year sentence imposed upon him yesterday by Judge Wiest, and Gen. Marsh is under bonds pending the result of an appeal of his trial, which resulted in his conviction, to the Supreme Court.

Both Gen. White and Gen. Marsh addressed petitions to the Governor to-day asking executive clemency.

In his appeal Gen. Marsh asserts that he was convicted on the evidence of self-confessed perjurers, and lays stress upon the fact that the Court denied a continuance of the case asked for by his attorney when his principal witness was sick and unable to be present. He asserts that he was forced to trial wholly unprepared to meet the charges preferred against him.

Gen. W. L. White pleaded guilty to fraud and embezzlement. In his petition he asserts that it was a Kalamazoo military supplies firm which conceived the fraudulent transaction, and persuaded him into entering into the scheme.

When he became convinced that the deal was illegal, White says, he wanted to go to the Governor and explain it to him, but the Kalamazoo company assured him that its standing would preclude any investigation being made, and in the event of one being made they would wholly protect him. White then lays stress on the fact that none of the members of the company has been indicted for his part in the transaction.

Gov. Pingree in his announcement of the pardon says:

"These men entered into a conspiracy with the Henderson-Ames Company, a corporation composed of prominent and influential citizens of Kalamazoo, to defraud the State of a large amount of money in connection with the sale and repurchase of military clothing. One Bickerstaff, who was the agent for the Henderson-Ames Company, was, according to his testimony, active in engineering the fraud.

"The Circuit Judge and the prosecuting attorney of Ingham County, who had control of the proceedings before the Grand Jury, made no effort to have the Grand Jury bring all guilty parties to justice, but permitted the seven members of the Henderson-Ames Company and their agent, Bickerstaff, to go free. This ineffectual and one-sided kind of justice is not consistent with my ideas of right and wrong, and has had great weight in determining my action in these cases.

"Restitution has been made to the State by the Henderson-Ames Company and Marsh & White, and the amount which the State lost by the original transaction has been returned with interest. Restitution having been made, my impulse is to place all the guilty ones again on the same footing, and I therefore grant William L. White and Arthur F. Marsh a pardon upon their paying into the treasury of Ingham County $5,000 each."

PAID 5 CENTS, WANTS $5,000.

Because Conductor Threw Pennies in His Face, St. Louis Man Sues.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 4.—Frank G. Moon considers that he has been humiliated to the extent of $5,000 by a St. Louis street car conductor, and he to-day filed suit for that amount against the St. Louis Transit Company. In his petition he states that he paid his fare with five pennies, and the conductor at first took them, but later came back and threw them in his face, while twenty-five passengers looked on, much to his discomfiture and humiliation.

ALVORD'S CARRIAGES SOLD.

Defaulting Bank Employe's Property Brings $3,000 at Auction.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Deputy Sheriffs Jarvis and Stafford of Westchester County sold the personal property of Cornelius L. Alvord, Jr., the defaulting note teller of the First National Bank of New York, at his home, on Chester Hill, in Mount Vernon, this afternoon. The property, which consisted principally of silver-mounted harness and stylish carriages, and cost originally about $6,500, was knocked down to his neighbors for $3,000.

The opera bus which Mr. and Mrs. Alvord used for riding from the railroad stations to their home, and which was the envy of all the commuters, was sold for $590 to J. B. Brewster. It cost $1,300. A brougham which cost $1,400 was auctioned for $660. A four-seated high trap went to W. W. Howland for $435. Its original cost was $700. A silver-mounted cutter sleigh, valued at $200, was purchased for $40. Among the other vehicles sold were a rockaway coupé, a runabout, a three-seated sleigh, a buckboard, a victoria, and a pony cart, which was used by the defaulter's children in their pleasure drives about Mount Vernon and Saratoga. These rigs brought $691.

This auction was held under an order of the Supreme Court to satisfy an attachment secured by the First National Bank.

SAVED BY BREECHES BUOY

Crew of the Oliver Schofield Hauled Ashore in a Gale.

The Wrecked Schooner Pounding to Pieces on the Beach Near Lavalette City, N. J.

CHADWICK, N. J., Dec. 4.—The Oliver Schofield, a three-masted schooner, is pounding to pieces on the coast south of this place, near Lavalette City. She drove ashore about 3 o'clock this afternoon, and her crew were saved by members of Life-Saving Station No. 13, who employed the breeches buoy in effecting the rescue.

The Schofield when first seen was endeavoring to work out into deep water in the teeth of a sixty-mile gale. She was laboring badly, and the life savers at once made ready to aid her. To them it was plain she would never get out after getting so close in. Do what the crew would each effort to drive into the teeth of the gale only worked the schooner further inshore.

About a thousand feet outside the outer bar, as nearly as could be seen from shore, the anchors were let go. One was lost in a minute and the other did little to retard the shoreward progress of the vessel. Every stitch of canvas was taken in or blown away, and fifteen minutes after the anchors were let go the schooner was on the outer breaker line and doomed. It would appear that at this time her last anchor cable parted. It was fortunate for the crew when this took place, for when the last restraint went the vessel shot shoreward rapidly. The outer bar did not hold her for a minute, and she floated into the deep water between the bar and the beach. Seas twenty feet high were rolling over the bar, and the Schofield was lifted on one of these and carried across. She drove broadside on and grounded 350 feet from the beach.

By this time the life savers were ready for action, and they were also assisted by the men from Stations Nos. 12 and 14, who had been summoned. It took several trials with the gun before a line was put over the deck of the schooner and hauled taut, and the crew began the journey to safety. Capt. A. Sprague of the schooner superintended the work, and by 5 o'clock had all the crew off and came ashore himself in the breeches buoy.

Scarcely had he made the trip along the line when the foremast rolled out of the vessel, carrying with it both topmasts and the other sticks. An hour later both the other masts went, and the hull began to pound on the beach. She is rapidly going to pieces, and the beach is strewn with the lumber which formed her cargo. Very little will be left of her by morning.

The crew consisted of six men, in addition to the Captain. The schooner was bound from Norfolk to New York.

ADVANCE IN COAL FREIGHTS.

Rates May Go Up 10 Per Cent. in April —Evidence of the Pennsylvania's Interest in Rival Roads.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—The Record to-morrow will say:

"Probably no more apparent evidence of the interests secured by the Pennsylvania Railroad in the Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Norfolk and Western Railroads and what it signifies both in making and maintaining of rates is the fact that it is the purpose to advance the tidewater freight rates on bituminous coal 10 per cent. on April 1, 1901.

"The Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Norfolk and Western Railroads control the entire output of bituminous coal to tide, and the harmonious relations existing between them by reason of the interests had in each by the Pennsylvania Railroad permit of a concert of action in advancing freight rates especially on bituminous coal and the maintenance of such advance that under other circumstances was scarcely possible.

"For several days rumors of a contemplated advance in bituminous coal freight rates at the beginning of the bituminous year, April 1, 1901, have been current, and these were confirmed by a Pennsylvania Railroad official yesterday, [Tuesday.] He admitted that the question of advancing these rates had been under consideration and that an advance of 10 per cent. over present rates had been practically agreed upon. The bituminous freight rates to tide now in effect, and which it is proposed to advance 10 per cent., are as follows:

"From Clearfield region to Port Liberty, $1.35; to South Amboy, Port Reading, Elizabeth, $1.30; to Philadelphia, $1; to Baltimore, 93 cents; from the Cumberland region to the above points, $1.50, $1.45, $1.15, and $1, respectively; from the West Virginia field, $1.60, $1.55, $1.25, and $1.18; from Chesapeake and Ohio points to Newport News, $1.15, and from the Norfolk and Western fields to Norfolk, $1.15.

"Supply and demand, and the fact that bituminous coal producers have advanced the price of that commodity, are assigned as among the reasons for the proposed advance in the freight rates. Among the bituminous shippers the proposed advance in tidewater rates is not hailed with any degree of delight. The present freight rates, they contend, are higher than they have been for years, and the trade, they assert, is in no condition to admit of a still further increase in freights."

COMMISSIONER PECK'S BILLS.

May Be Asked to Explain $6,000 Spent in Cab Hire and Other Items.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Commissioner General Ferdinand W. Peck, who is to dine at the White House to-morrow night, is likely to have his enjoyment disturbed by considerations of what his enemies in Congress are about to do. The Democrats made a number of attacks on Mr. Peck at the last session, and some of them asked questions about his expenses as Commissioner General to the Paris Exposition. A statement of expenditures has just been sent to Congress by the President, and some of Mr. Peck's Democratic critics are already busy looking over the items for matters of interest.

The total expenditure, according to the statement, which is compiled by Secretary General F. W. Brackett, is $939,465.02 for the year ended Nov. 15, 1900. Mr. Brackett prefaces his statement with the allegation that "it is impossible to fully itemize the expenditures in a report of this character."

The item of cab hire is $6,000. Traveling expenses amount to $52,530.38. Among other interesting entries are the following: Contingent expenses, $20,000; camera, $233.65; photographs, negatives, plates, &c., $3,696.04; newspapers and clippings, $1,839.97; messenger service, $518.53; experts' salaries, $63,765.41; renting of typewriters, $1,310.26; telegraph and cable service, $7,238.63; flags and bunting for decorating exhibit, $7,017.86; stationery, $4,443.93; printing, $5,443.31; official catalogues, $14,060.45; buildings and other constructions, $191,127.48; furniture, $11,990.68; rent, $21,533.64; signs and decorations, $11,990.68; façades constructed around exhibitors' department, $38,989.65; show case construction, $29,683.31, and portfolios, $155.

PLANS TO SPEND THE SURPLUS

Shipping Bill, Nicaragua Canal, and More Liberal Pensions May Get Rid of It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—All conjectures about the surplus for the fiscal year ending next June seem to have been too conservative, according to the report of Secretary Gage. Hitherto the surplus for the year has been estimated at not more than $40,000,000, but the Secretary finds that it will be quite $80,000,000, or a little more than the surplus for the last fiscal year, which was $79,500,000 in round numbers.

As the hungry member looks at these figures he sees something like $150,000,000 available to be used for various public purposes, and the possession of so large a surplus will be referred to as justifying the donation of part of it to shipbuilders who wish to increase the merchant marine fleet. If the Nicaragua Canal bill is passed it will make it necessary for the Government to meet an average expenditure of $20,000,000 a year for ten years to complete the canal for use. The Ship Subsidy bill has been calculated as likely to draw $9,000,000 a year before ten years are out.

Another menace to the surplus is the prediction by the Secretary of the Treasury that the pension expenses are not to shrink, but will increase. The outgo for 1900 on account of pensions was about $140,900,000. He estimates the cost of pensions in 1901 at $142,000,000, and the needs of the Pension Office in 1902 are estimated at $145,245,000. This is in spite of the fact that there has been a natural tendency to a lessening of pension expenses, a tendency that is being counteracted by the legislation enacted to give larger pensions and to loosen the restrictions against pension granting.

It is to be assumed that the Secretary obtained the information upon which he based his estimates concerning pensions from the Commissioner of Pensions, and the report that they are to increase instead of diminish as the pensioners grow older and die in larger numbers is taken to mean that there is to be more "liberal" legislation to keep up the expenditure of money in this way.

ELECTRIC ROADS FOR LONDON.

Representative of American Syndicate Says It Is Ready to Spend £4,000,000.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Daily Express publishes an interview this morning with Frank Hawley, an electrical promoter, who is now in London in the interest of an American syndicate.

Mr. Hawley says the capitalists he represents are ready to expend no less than £4,000,000 in the construction of electric surface railroads in London and the suburbs to a radius of thirty miles. Not a penny of British capital will be asked for. Mr. Hawley expresses himself as confident that the undertaking will be a financial success.

BURGLAR TRAPPED IN BED.

Awoke to Look Into Barrel of a Clergyman's Revolver.

MASSAPEQUA, L. I., Dec. 4.—Tired by the labor of ransacking a house and selecting what he wished to take away, a burglar sought the best bed in it early this morning and lay down to sleep. He was dreaming contentedly when awakened by the muzzle of a revolver being jabbed against his nose. The man behind the gun in this case was a minister. The intruder surrendered, as there were two men behind the man behind the gun.

The house entered was that of Mrs. C. G. Williams. It is vacant just now, and a caretaker goes through it night and day. This morning when the man made his usual rounds he found the burglar asleep in the bed in Mrs. Williams's room. He decided that it would be unwise to tackle the man alone, as he looked big and burly under the covers, so he went for assistance. The first person he encountered was the Rev. William Wiley, rector of Grace Episcopal Church at Massapequa. The clergyman procured a revolver, and together the two men went to the house. Deputy Sheriff Baldwin meanwhile had been sent for, and he reached the house at the same time as the caretaker and the minister.

When they entered the room the minister walked up to the bed and, pointing the revolver at the sleeper, ordered him to get up. The man was in dreamland, and it was not until the revolver was pushed against his nose that he opened his eyes to find himself looking into the barrel of the weapon.

"Throw up your hands," commanded the minister, and the burglar hastily complied. Deputy Sheriff Baldwin told him that he was under arrest, charged with housebreaking, and, yanking him out of bed, took him into custody.

The house had been thoroughly ransacked. Things were turned topsy turvy and clothing and other articles were scattered in all directions. A satchel of silverware and other valuables stood near the bed and there was a bundle of clothing tied up ready to be carried off.

The prisoner was taken to the railroad station and the Deputy Sheriff left with him on the 12:12 train for Lynbrook, where he was arraigned before Justice Hawkins and held.

Mrs. Williams, who is a widow, is staying at the Buckingham Hotel, Manhattan. Her husband was a member of the Floyd-Jones family.

CONVICT LABOR IN LOUISIANA.

State Will Put Prisoners to Work on Its Own Plantations.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—The Board of Control of the Louisiana State Penitentiary to-day practically closed a deal for two immense plantations, and next year over 500 convicts will work them, the crops going to the State. This action was taken under the new law providing for the handling and care of convicts. In this way it is expected to work extensive prison reforms, the convict lease system being abolished.

The plantations are in West Feliciana and Iberia Parishes. On the former cotton will be raised, and on the latter sugar. Louisiana has about 1,000 convicts.

PRESIDENT OF JOHNS HOPKINS.

Trustees May Select the Rev. Dr. E. N. Potter for the Position.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 4.—President Gilman is assisting the other Trustees of Johns Hopkins University in the important work of selecting his successor. Several of the Trustees said to-day that it was necessary to secure a man combining business qualifications with scholarly attainments and executive ability. It is learned that the names of several New York men are under consideration. One of these is the Rev. Dr. E. N. Potter, the brother of Bishop Potter.

It is pointed out that Dr. Potter is a prominent educator, the founder and Chancellor of Union University, was President of Hobart College, and later President of the Cosmopolitan University. Dr. Potter, who is an Episcopal clergyman, has a large circle of acquaintances among wealthy New York families, and it is said that he raised $300,000 for the founding of Union University. Members of the university Faculty say no better man could be selected.

Owing to the fact that the financial condition of the university demands an executive who can increase its material resources, Francis M. Jencks has been suggested. Mr. Jencks is a financier who has his business in New York and a residence in Baltimore.

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL BEFORE THE SENATE

Some Republicans Say Its Passage Will Not Be Easy.

OPPOSITION IS SYSTEMATIC

Democrats to Use Every Method to Retard Progress—Bill's Course in the House Will Be Smoother.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A day ahead of the expected time for taking up the Ship Subsidy bill in the Senate, it was to-day brought forward in advance of the Philippine resolution, in which Senator Spooner has been interested, and the debate was opened with a speech by Senator Frye, who, of all the Senators, is most familiar with the details of the bill, and the history of legislation to advance the merchant marine of the United States by artificial methods.

The prompt advancement of the subsidy measure is in part, and in large part, due to the energy and industry of Senator Hanna, who is commonly regarded as the chief sponsor of the bill. It was asserted at the Senate to-day that the Ohio Senator had been so anxious to have the bill considered ahead of all other legislation that he had taken the precaution to telegraph every Republican Senator in advance, to please be in his seat on the first day of the session to attend to important business, meaning this business.

Notwithstanding that the motion to take up the bill was approved by a majority of eighteen in the Senate to-day, and the bill has been taken up at a very early day in the session, the prediction is made by some on the Republican side that it is not going to be an easy task to pass the bill through the Senate. The Democratic side is preparing to year in subsidies for the carrying ships of [illegible]

[illegible] pointed out that under present conditions it costs the United States from 25 to 30 per cent. more, principally in wages and food, to operate its ships than it costs Great Britain, and about 80 per cent. more than it costs Norway, and yet the United States is forced to compete under such a handicap with the encouraged and protected ships of foreign countries. That was one of the reasons, he said, why the United States was in a humiliating position as to its merchant marine.

At some length Mr. Frye discussed the question of export bounties and discriminating duties, maintaining that export bounties were impracticable, and that in the matter of discriminating duties the United States would encounter no less than thirty-one different treaties. These would have to be abrogated if discriminating duties are enforced. The abrogation of these treaties would be an offense to every nation involved.

"Our relations with European countries to-day," said he, "are most amicable. Do you think it wise to disturb these relations at this time?"

Then Mr. Frye discussed the origin of the pending bill, and referred to the committee of twenty-five prominent Americans which had drafted the original subsidy bill. The pending measure, he explained, had been amended materially and radically by the Committee on Commerce.

None of the original committee of twenty-five had favored free ships, and Mr. Frye said he could see no reason why any man should favor them. In this connection he referred to the ship yards of the United States, and expressed the opinion that a great maritime Nation like this might as well be without a Constitution as to be without ship yards.

Mr. Frye showed how much greater was the cost of building and operating ships under the American flag. If these expenses were not greater, he said, there would be no excuse for the pending bill, and its foundation would fall. He presented, therefore, an array of figures to prove that it cost, not only more to construct American ships, but more to operate them after they were built. His figures indicated that ships of Great Britain had an advantage of from $1.50 to $5 per gross ton over American ships in the expense of construction and operation. He related the incident cited by Mr. Clyde of the Clyde Steamship Company before the Commerce Committee, of the operation of a ship under the Norwegian flag and an exactly similar vessel under the American flag. The expense of operating the Norwegian ship was just half that of operating the American ship between the same ports.

Mr. Frye also referred to the line of vessels run by the late John Roach from New York to Brazil. They came into competition with a line of Spanish ships exactly similar in size and speed to the American ships. The Spanish vessels had a yearly advantage of $120,000 over the American ships, and could make money carrying freight at $5 per ton, while the American vessels, in order to make money, had to charge $7.50 per ton. Mr. Roach was forced to sell the line of vessels, and Mr. Thurber and the other purchasers of the ships eventually lost their entire investment.

Proceeding Mr. Frye took up that section of the bill which provides the amount of subsidy to be paid vessels, and explained how the payment was regulated. He showed that by the terms of the measure a ten-knot vessel out for 175 days would draw $15,000 a year beyond the cost of her coal and handling, and that the amount of the subsidy would in percentage diminish with the increase of the speed of the ship.

Mr. Clay (Dem., Ga.) asked if it were not true that a twenty-one-knot ship would draw under the bill $304,000 a year.

Mr. Frye replied that the amount drawn by such a vessel would be about $22,000 in excess of her coal consumption and handling.

"But," persisted Mr. Clay, "is not the gross amount of the subsidy of the twenty-one-knot ship $304,000 per year under this bill?"

Mr. Frye admitted that it was.

"I understand," said Mr Clay, "that the ten-knot and twelve-knot ships which carry the agricultural products of the country do not receive more than one-third the subsidy of the fast passenger vessels, which carry no agricultural products."

"And I was showing," responded Mr. Frye, "that the low-speed vessels were the ones which received the actual benefits from the subsidy and not the fast passenger ships."

At this point Mr. Frye yielded the floor for the day and the Senate held a brief executive session, after which it adjourned.

MR. HANNA AS A MENTOR.

Sits by Mr. Frye During Subsidy Bill Speech and Tells Senators How to Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—An amusing feature of the Subsidy bill debate to-day was the way in which Senator Hanna appeared as the real "Senator in charge" of the bill. Mr. Frye was "in charge," but Mr Hanna was the guiding spirit of the whole thing, and he demonstrated it in rather unusual ways. He moved up to the front row, taking a seat there for the first time in many months, and sat by Mr. Frye while the latter was speaking, prompting him and giving him hints.

This is not unusual, for when a Senator is in charge of a bill, some fellow-member of his committee frequently sits beside him to supply him with points. But Mr. Hanna's direction was so pointed that finally a simple incident caused a ripple of mirth to run through the Senate.

Mr. Hanna had been giving Mr. Frye points for some time when the Senator from Maine desired to refer to a newspaper clipping. He had mislaid his glasses, and after fumbling around helplessly, he sent a page after them. Mr. Hanna instantly handed Mr. Frye his own. Everybody smiled as Mr. Frye put them on, and murmurs of "He has been seeing it through Hanna's glasses from the first" were heard.

When the vote came and Senator Fairbanks's name was called, he was inattentive, and did not at first comprehend what he was to do. He stammered, "What?" Instantly Mr. Hanna shouted, "Vote aye." "Aye," said Mr. Fairbanks, meekly, and there was a smile. But the smile became a laugh when Mr. Platt of New York was also caught unawares, and did not respond to his name. Turning around in his seat and attracting Mr. Platt's attention, Mr. Hanna called out, "Vote aye." Mr. Platt gave a start, and did so, and the laugh that followed seemed to surprise Mr. Hanna.

AMENDMENTS TO THE BILL.

Mr. Vest Would Give Citizens the Right to Buy Foreign-Built Ships for American Registry.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Just before the adjournment of the Senate, Senator Vest gave notice of an amendment he will offer to the Ship Subsidy bill. The amendment provides for the repeal of such existing laws "as either prohibit or restrict citizens of the United States from purchasing ships built in other countries to be used in the foreign carrying trade of the United States, or which impose taxes, burdens, or restrictions on such ships, when owned by American citizens, which are not imposed on ships built in the United States."

In addition to the repealing provision, the amendment makes it lawful "for all citizens of the United States to buy ships built in whole or in part in any foreign country and have them registered as ships of the United States."

When so registered, these foreign-built vessels are, under the terms of the amendment, to be entitled to all the rights and subjected to the same regulations as those governing ships built in the United States and owned by citizens of this country.

DOES NOT LIKE SUBSIDY BILL.

Mr. Dockery Says Numerous Ships and High Tariff Are Antagonistic.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Governor-elect Dockery, formerly a member of the House, who is here on a visit, called upon the President to-day, and after leaving the White House, talked upon a number of topics, including the pending Ship Subsidy bill. He does not take heartily to the Republican plan of ship subsidies.

"I haven't given the matter much study recently," he said, "but I do know that the theory of numerous American ships on the ocean and a high protective tariff are at war with each other. To make shipping interests pay, vessels must have cargoes each way. The policy of selling to everybody and buying from nobody doesn't help shipping. It sounds nice to talk of American ships taking American goods abroad, but what are those ships going to do for cargoes coming back to the United States, which is surrounded by a high protection wall?

"The cost of building ships has increased immensely; so has the cost of operation. These two things and a high tariff make a strong combination against increasing shipbuilding.

"The English merchant marine was forced on the country by reason of her colonies. Her ships correspond to our Pacific railroads. She was compelled to maintain her ships to protect her colonies. We gave aid to our Pacific railroads. England's merchant marine is run at a loss."

GERMAN PRESS DISPLEASED.

Many Papers Say the Tone of President McKinley's Allusions to Germany Is Cool.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—The German Foreign Office and a section of the press will reserve a final expression of opinion upon President McKinley's message to Congress until the full text is at hand. Many of the papers believe they detect a cooler tone toward Germany than toward Great Britain and France. The Vossische Zeitung says:

"The tone in which President McKinley speaks of the relations of the United States and Germany is strikingly cool. Possibly an explanation is to be found in the allusions of the message to the Meat Inspection bill. As a high protectionist, Mr. McKinley is at least justified in complaining of the hindrances to foreign importations into Germany."

The Berliner Neueste Nachrichten finds the tone of the message toward Germany "in important contrast with that of the previous message, which said that the relations between the two powers continued most cordial, while yesterday's message confines itself, with intentional reserve, to the statement that good will prevails.

"This moderation of language," the paper continues, "is especially striking, since various questions have been satisfactorily settled with the year. The remarks about American meat importations into Germany are not sufficient to explain such cool treatment of America's relations with Germany, which the previous message and the speeches of the United States Ambassador have mentioned so warmly. Therefore we reserve final judgment."

The Boersen Zeitung, which also calls attention to the difference in the language used with reference to France and Great Britain, and that used regarding Germany, resents the imputation that the Meat Inspection bill is to be carried out with discrimination against the United States.

The Lokal Anzeiger, which complains of the "singularly cool tone of the message toward Germany," says:

"President McKinley apparently tries to place at the front the questions in which the political and business interests of the two nations clash. His discussion of the commercial treaties goes to the length of suggesting reprisals."

THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

The Commons Sworn In—Duke of Manchester at Present Barred from the Lords.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The House of Commons, after a visit to the House of Lords, to-day, where royal approval of the reelection of the Speaker, the Right Hon. William Court Gully, was signified, proceeded to the swearing in of the members.

The only interesting feature in the House of Lords was the Lord Chancellor's announcement of the receipt of certificates showing that the Duke of Manchester and Lord Sudeley had been adjudicated bankrupts, thus precluding their sitting in the House.

Decline to Support Rosebery's Policy.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Standard says it learns that Lord Rosebery would resume the leadership of the Liberal Party, but that Sir William Vernon-Harcourt and John Morley decline to pledge themselves to support his policy.

Queen Victoria to Go to Cimiez.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Queen Victoria, it is understood, will go to Cimiez in the Spring.

DINNER TO MARK TWAIN.

The Writer Meets 200 Persons at Aldine Association Dinner.

The Aldine Association gave a dinner last evening to Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) at the rooms of the association, Eighteenth Street and Fifth Avenue. More than 200 members and guests sat down to the dinner, which began at 7:30 o'clock. H. W. Mabie presided, at his right being Mark Twain, and on his left Bishop Potter.

In addition to a speech by the guest of the evening, speeches were made by Bishop Potter, Joseph Jefferson, John K. Bangs, F. Hopkinson Smith, and others.

Among others present at the dinner were Brander Matthews, Laurence Hutton, Nathan Straus, H. Loomis Nelson, Albert Shaw, Charles Scribner, George H. Richmond, Major Pond, Judge Hurd, Edward Bok, R. H. Russell, Richard Watson Gilder, James W. Alexander, Dr. C. C. Rice, Augustus Thomas, E. F. Bliss, and Capt. Joshua Slocum.

CONSUL GEN. STOWE'S VIEWS.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—James G. Stowe, the United States Consul General at Cape Town, landed at Southampton to-day, wearing the identical coat which he wore when the Boers attacked his train while he was on his way to Pretoria on a special mission. A bullet hole in the collar of his coat testified to the narrowness of his escape.

Mr. Stowe, who is taking a long-delayed leave of absence, and who will sail for the United States on Dec. 15 on the St. Louis, compared the guerrilla warfare in South Africa with the closing scenes of the American civil war. He said:

"I give the war in South Africa four months to come to an end. In my opinion, it is bound to be snuffed out during that period. I do not believe Lord Kitchener will do much more than any other General. The present plan of the British campaign is bound to bring about results. Moreover, there are 16,000 Boer prisoners in Ceylon, St. Helena, and Cape Town, all of whom are anxious to have an end of hostilities.

"Shortly before I left there Christian Botha, a cousin of Louis Botha, got up a petition among his fellow-prisoners at Cape Town urging the Commandant General to make peace. A majority signed the petition, which undoubtedly represented the aggregate opinion of the Boer prisoners.

"All this talk about burning farms is tuncombe. The only farms destroyed are those from which shots are fired at the British or those which are being obviously used to shelter the Boers."

Mr Stowe commenced to relate several instances where the British had good excuse for burning farms, but refrained. He said he did not believe the rumors of sedition in Cape Colony would result in much.

"If the American system of representation were followed in Cape Colony," said Mr. Stowe, "the Dutch there would not have a Parliamentary majority. They have equal rights with the British, and I cannot believe that they will be foolish enough to raise a rampus.

"I have friends among the Boers as well as the British. I have been strictly neutral throughout, and I do not believe that the colonists have any intention of cutting their own throats. Splendid commercial opportunities are being opened up in South Africa, of which the United States is only just beginning to take advantage. As soon as the fighting is over South Africa will be one of the best markets in the world, a market where the British themselves admit that we are already outstripping them."

Referring to the services of Adelbert S. Hay, United States Consul at Pretoria, who is expected to return to the United States in the course of a few weeks, Mr. Stowe said:

"Mr. Hay has won golden opinions on both sides, although for a time some unpleasantness existed in his relations with the Boers owing to the assertion that he was a British spy."

Mr. Stowe expressed himself as unable to understand the attitude of Webster Davis, former Assistant Secretary of the Interior of the United States, "considering the fact that Mr. Davis made pro-British speeches while being entertained in Cape Colony."

In Mr. Stowe's opinion Sir Alfred Milner will eventually become Governor General of a great South African confederation, including the Boer republics and Rhodesia. "Milner," he said, "is the man of the hour, a man who in power and resourcefulness might almost be compared to Grant."

MR. SULZER'S RESOLUTION.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Representative Sulzer to-day introduced in the House the following resolution:

Whereas, The war in South Africa has degenerated into a reckless and ruthless extermination of a brave people fighting for their homes and liberty,

Resolved, That the Congress of the United States protests in the name of humanity and civilization against a continuation of war which outrages the feelings of all liberty-loving people, and,

Resolved, That the Congress of the United States, being committed to the principle of arbitration for the settlement of international disputes, urges upon the Government of her Majesty the wisdom of adopting this policy for the purpose of stopping the awful atrocities now going on in South Africa.

SUGAR TRUST STOCKS DROP

Lose Over Six Points on Failure to Increase Dividend.

Directors' Meeting Held at H. O. Havemeyer's Residence—The Sugar Trade Situation.

Wall Street was treated to a surprise yesterday, when shortly after noon it was announced that a meeting of the Directors of the American Sugar Refining Company—commonly known as the trust—had been held at the residence of President H. O. Havemeyer, Fifth Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, and a quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. had been declared on the common stock of the company. The announcement was a surprise, because of the meeting place, and because of the dividend declared. In late years dividend action has always been taken at the offices of the company, 117 Wall Street, and in explanation of the meeting place yesterday it is said that Mr. Havemeyer is indisposed and did not feel equal to the task of a journey to the office. Accordingly the Directors, or enough of them to form a quorum—information as to who were present was refused at the offices of the company—were summoned by telephone.

The dividend declared, 1¾ per cent., is the same as the last quarterly figure. For some weeks there had been persistent reports in the financial district that the dividend would be increased to at least 2 per cent., and, though no official statement could be gotten on the subject, the rumor was so generally credited that Sugar Trust stock on the exchange was advanced over 10 points, until yesterday previous to the announcement it sold a fraction above 135. Following the declaration the stock broke sharply until the low figure of 127⅝ had been reached, with the final quotation but one-quarter higher, marking a net decline of over 6 points—all in about two hours. The trading in the stock was on an extensive scale, over 116,000 shares being dealt in out of the total market transactions of 640,000 shares.

No statement of the company's earnings was given out in connection with the dividend declaration. Dividends paid on the stock since 1891 are as follows: In 1891, 4 per cent.; 1892, 10½ per cent.; 1893, 2¼ per cent.; 1894, to January, 1900, 12 per cent. yearly. This year 1½ per cent. was paid in April, 1½ per cent. in July, and 1¾ per cent. in October, making 4¾ per cent. in all, not including yesterday's dividend. At the meeting the regular dividend on the preferred stock, which pays at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, was also declared.

Lower Wall Street did not yesterday appear to take seriously the action on Monday of the Wholesale Grocers' Association of New York and Vicinity to secure a readjustment of sugar business. At the meeting of the members, who include the leading local grocery jobbers, the question of settling the relations between the association and the sugar refiners was left with the Executive Committee, which will report on a plan of action. Until the report is made the members will take sugar from the refinery which offers the best terms, and sell the commodity at such prices as can be obtained. What are called the "list" prices will be ignored.

The association's action is regarded as tentative and growing out of general dissatisfaction with sugar trade conditions. Its President, G Waldo Smith, has recorded himself in favor of the restoration of the factor plan by the sugar refiners and the readoption of the affidavit system, with a rebate of 20 cents on 100 pounds and the trade discount of 1 per cent.

"Wholesalers," said James H. Post of B. H. Howell, Son & Co. and the National City Refining Company, which took in the Mollenhauer, Doscher, and National Refineries, "have always bought where they pleased, of those with whom they could make the best terms. We are heartily in sympathy with any plan of dealing which would give the wholesalers a profit, but it seems impossible in the present disorganized condition of the trade to devise anything that will give local jobbers a uniform profit in the State. We thought that the present method—15 cents per 100 pounds rebate and 1 per cent. discount—was meeting with fair success. We shall, however, be in a better position to know the attitude of the association when the Executive Committee reports."

"Nothing in it," said an authority on the affairs of the American Sugar Refining Company. "They simply follow the rules of merchandizing, and buy where they find the best advantage. We wish we could make them do differently."

Granulated sugar quotations by the refineries were yesterday: Sugar Trust, 5.34 cents; National, 5.29; Arbuckles, 5.24.

A. C. HOOPER & CO.'S FAILURE.

Reports Caused by Disappearance of Receiver Duffy Denied.

A report was current on Wall Street yesterday that because of the disappearance of Francis Duffy, receiver for A. C. Hooper & Co., who suspended recently, the liabilities of the firm would reach $200,000, with nominal assets of about $50,000 and actual assets very small. At the offices of Marbury & Fox, who have the affairs of the firm in charge, it was said that the disappearance of Mr. Duffy had nothing whatever to do with the liabilities or assets, and that the figures mentioned were wide of the mark.

It was explained that if, within thirty days after the assignment the assignee does not file an inventory and schedules it is optional with the creditors what to do and whether to appoint a receiver or a substitute assignee. In the case of A. C. Hooper & Co., the thirty days do not expire until Dec. 19, at which time it is expected a statement will be ready.

FIFTEEN FAMILIES IN DANGER.

Exciting Escape of Tenants from a Burning House in Market Street.

The fifteen families living in the five-story tenement 20 Market Street were badly scared at 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning by a fire which started in the candy store of Meyer Schein on the ground floor. The flames burned so quickly that they had eaten their way into the hallway before the people up stairs could get down. Max Sokolinsky, the janitor, who lives on the first floor, escaped with his wife and six children. Many of the tenants of the upper floor had to escape by way of the roof over neighboring houses. The loss by fire was $500.

RESCUED FROM A BURNING HOUSE

Families in a Harlem Apartment House Roused Just After Midnight.

Fire in a room on the second floor of the flat at 265 West One Hundred and Thirtieth Street, in the apartments of H. Morris, caused much excitement at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. Mrs. Morris and a friend went visiting Monday night, and did not return until after the fire was out.

Mrs. O. F. Esterhazy, who lives over the apartments of Morris, was awakened by the smoke, and with difficulty escaped, as did some of the other tenants. Mr. George Boswell, who lives on the top floor with his wife and daughter, got out on the roof. Mrs. Boswell was overcome and had to be lifted out through the scuttle. Frederick Mosher, with his family, also lives on the top floor. Mrs. Mosher held her daughter Madeline out of a window, and a fireman reached across from a window in No. 263 and took the child. Policemen Liebers and Evans assisted Mrs. Mosher and Mrs. Wilson, who lives with the Moshers, through the scuttle. The damage was $500. There was neither gasjet nor stove in the room where the fire started.

LEYLAND LINE'S NEW STEAMER.

The Canadian Has Accommodations for Passengers and Stalls for Cattle.

The single screw steamship Canadian, the latest addition to the fleet of the Leyland Line fleet, arrived in port yesterday from Newcastle. The new vessel was built at the Hepburn shipyards of R. & W. Hawthorne Leslie & Co. on the Tyne, and has a gross tonnage of 9,300. It is 550 feet long, 59 feet beam, and has a depth of 47 feet, and has triple expansion engines, capable of maintaining 5,500 horse power at sea.

In the upper works there are stalls for 320 cattle and horses. The vessel is also fitted with a large refrigerating plant for the carrying of fresh meat and dairy products. The Canadian is fitted with accommodations for 110 first-class passengers. The vessel will be used permanently in the Liverpool-New York service.

LEGAL FIGHT FOR A BODY

Funeral Stopped by the Serving of an Injunction.

George Everall's Three Children Trying to Prevent Their Stepmother Taking Charge of His Remains.

Are there any property rights in a human body?

The question will be finally decided in the courts of this State in an action which was started on Monday last in the Supreme Court of this county. The preliminary proceedings stopped the funeral services over the body of George Everall, who died on Nov. 30 last. While the clergyman was reading the services at the home of the deceased, 168 West Sixty-fifth Street, the injunction proceedings restraining a certain disposition of his body were being heard by Justice Blanchard in the Supreme Court. Before the services were completed the injunction had been granted and served at the house. The services were at once stopped.

A modification of the injunction was granted yesterday by Justice Blanchard and by his permission the body of Mr Everall was deposited in the receiving vault at Woodlawn Cemetery, and it will remain there until the Court decides whether the second wife or the children by the first wife have a right to the body. The children have already announced their determination to carry the case to the highest courts in order to determine their rights, and as no legal decisions have as yet been handed down in this State on such a question, the outcome of the fight is being watched with considerable interest by lawyers.

George Everall was President of Everall Brothers, an incorporated company doing a tailoring business at 236 and 258 Fifth Avenue, as well as in various European cities. When he died his wife engaged an undertaker and arranged for the funeral services. She also purchased a lot at Woodlawn, in which the body was to be interred. Three children by Mr. Everall's first wife objected to this plan of their stepmother. There was another plot in Woodlawn which Mr. Everall had purchased, and in which his first wife was buried. On this plot he had erected a monument, and, according to the children, had always expressed a wish to be buried there. When they found out that the second wife had made other arrangements they protested, and finally carried the matter into the courts. Strenuous efforts were made to keep the whole affair secret, and the original injunction granted on Monday was not filed until yesterday. These papers showed that Harry J. Everall, Annie E. Archer, and Florence Mannigan asked for an injunction restraining Mrs. Katherine Everall from disposing of the body of their father.

In the affidavit filed by Harry J. Everall it was declared "that the defendant, in violation of the plaintiff's rights and the wishes and desires of the late George Everall, is threatening to destroy and remove the said remains to a place unknown to the plaintiffs and refuses to allow the plaintiffs to have the custody of the said remains and to bury them in accordance with the directions of the deceased."

Francis W. Aymar represented the children in the argument before Justice Blanchard, while James W. Osborne appeared for Mrs. Everall. The case came up late Monday afternoon, and in his argument Mr. Aymar declared that Mrs. Everall had threatened to have the body cremated and the ashes disposed of in such way that the children could not find them. Mr. Osborne filed no brief, but in a general way denied the allegations. However, the Justice granted the injunction, and there was a rush to the house to serve the papers before the body could be taken away. The restraining order was served in time, and the body remained in the apartments Monday night under guard.

Mr. Aymar came into court again yesterday and suggested the modification of the injunction so that the body could be placed in the receiving vault at Woodlawn pending further litigation. The Justice granted the new order, and the funeral services were continued at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The three children were present, but at no time did they speak to the widow. The children went to the cemetery to see that the court's order was complied with.

None of those directly interested in the case will talk about the matter, yet it is understood that back of the fight over the body there is a question as to the disposal of the estate. The marriage of Mr. Everall to his second wife created somewhat of a sensation at the time. Mrs. Everall the second was much younger than her husband. She was Mrs. Katherine Hayden, the widow of William Hayden, manager of Stuart Robson. The wedding took place on Aug. 6, 1899, in Trinity Church, the only witness being Nellie McHenry, the actress. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Everall sailed for Europe on La Touraine. The three children opposed the marriage, and while they were friendly with their father on his return from abroad they would have nothing to do with his wife. In a business way the father and children were closely related, as Harry J. Everall was Vice President of the Tailoring Company, while the sons-in-law, Norman L. Archer and James A. Mannigan, were respectively Secretary and Treasurer.

Mr. Aymar when seen yesterday declined to discuss the case further than to say:

"Mr. Everall's children propose to see that his body is placed beside that of his first wife as he had repeatedly told them that that was what he desired. They will fight the case to the highest court. As yet there is no positive decision as to whom the dead body of a person belongs, and this case may settle that question."

"What is the value of Mr. Everall's estate?" Mr. Aymar was asked.

"I have nothing to say about that."

"Did he leave a will?"

"That can be answered later."

The widow was at her apartments last night, but she declined to see reporters.

It is generally understood that Mr. Everall left a very large estate, and that there may be a contest over it between the widow and the children.

MRS. A. D. GRAHAM DIVORCED.

Decree Granted in North Dakota to New Jersey Woman.

Special to The New York Times.

FARGO, N. D., Dec. 4.—After a long and bitter struggle in the courts of this State, Mrs. Anna D. Graham of New Jersey, wife of A. S. Graham, has at last secured a divorce. Her marriage to Dr. H. E. Allen, a prominent and wealthy physician of the East, did not take place as soon as the divorce was granted, as was originally intended, for the woman received a telegram saying her father was dying in New Jersey and asking her to come to his bedside. She left this afternoon, and will be married in the East later on.

Mrs. Graham came to North Dakota two years ago and endeavored to secure a divorce at Wahpeton. The petition was denied on the ground of non-residence, so she came to this city and began a new action which she subsequently dropped. Last Spring she renewed the suit, upon the appearance of Dr. Allen. Her father, a wealthy manufacturer of New Jersey, sent her large sums of money. She claimed her father had to pay debts of her husband amounting to thousands of dollars, and this was one of the main reasons she sought a divorce.

PACKING COMPANY LIQUIDATES.

Competition in Chicago Proves Too Great for the International.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Liquidation of the International Packing Company was ordered to-day at a meeting of the stockholders, and to-morrow Chairman John C. Hately will announce a committee of three to represent the shares in this process. The bondholders will name a similar committee of three to look after their interests, and a plan will be arranged, if possible, to discharge the first mortgage lien and leave something for the preference shares. Whether the common stock will get anything is doubtful, and the assets must be handled with great skill to satisfy prior liens.

The downfall of the company is said to have been caused by too close competition, in which the packing companies known as the "Big Three" were arrayed against the International.

The International Packing Company was organized in 1896 to acquire the old International Packing Company, T. E. Wells Company, Allerton Packing Company, J. C. Hatsly, Hately Brothers, and Jones & Stiles. It succeeded the British corporation known as the International Packing and Provision Company. The old preferred and common stock and the first mortgage bonds were exchanged for new stocks of two classes and debenture bonds.

JOHN A. CHANLER ESCAPES

Wealthy Patient Missing from Bloomingdale Asylum.

Has Been Gone for a Week and His Whereabouts Is Unknown—Not Violently Insane.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 4.—John Armstrong Chanler, a cousin of Col. John Jacob Astor and divorced husband of Amelie Rives, the novelist, has escaped from the Bloomingdale Asylum here, and, although it is a week since he disappeared, Dr. Lyon, the Superintendent, this evening said that he had no knowledge as to his whereabouts, and was very anxious to find him. Mr. Chanler has been a patient at the asylum for the last three years. He is very wealthy, and has the utmost liberty enjoyed by any of the inmates of the institution, for his insanity was of a mild type.

He occupied a private ward in the Macy pavilion and kept his own horses and carriages near the asylum, having his own servant to attend to them. He had the freedom of the great estate which surrounds the asylum buildings and was allowed to go and come pretty much as he pleased. The last seen of him was when he walked out of the eastern gateway of the grounds a week ago to-day and strolled down the road leading to Mamaroneck. It was not for several hours thereafter that his absence was remarked. The police of this place were not even notified to look for him, as has been the case in other escapes from the asylum, and knew nothing of the matter until to-day, but Dr. Lyon said to-night that Mr. Chanler was not likely to do injury to himself or any one else. The principal manifestation of his derangement, he said, was undue suspicions of those about him.

"This is the first time he has done anything out of the way since he has been here," said Dr. Lyon. Asked if he expected a cure in the case, he said: "I thought he had great capacity for improvement."

Mr. Chanler's friends have attributed his mental troubles largely to his unhappy marriage with the authoress of "The Quick or the Dead?" The ceremony was performed June 14, 1888, and the union was unhappy from the very first, though prior to that time he had been a happy and ambitious man. She secured the divorce on the ground of incompatibility Oct. 9, 1895, and married Prince Troubetzkoy Feb. 18, 1896.

Since then she, too, has shown evidences of mental trouble, having fled from her home, to be found later wandering in the Virginia mountains.

Dr. Lyon said this evening that no reward had been offered for Mr. Chanler's return so far as he knew, although he had notified his friends in New York of his disappearance.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERS MEET.

Forty-second Annual Session of American Society Is Largely Attended.

The forty-second annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was opened yesterday afternoon at the clubhouse of the society, at 12 West Thirty-first Street. The society has altogether 2,100 members, who are scattered all over the United States. Last night the clubrooms were crowded with over 300 members who had come from all parts of the country. The convention will last until Friday, and it is expected that a large delegation of members from the West will arrive in the city to-day.

President Charles H. Morgan opened the convention last night by reading a paper on the development of the rolling mill. He gave the history of the rolling mill in England and this country, and showed how it would have been impossible to build railroads across the continent if methods had not been discovered to make the manufacture of steel rails a less expensive process than it was fifty years ago. The great West had been developed by the railroads, he said, and the railroads were made possible by the development of the rolling mill.

The first part of the session of the society this morning will be devoted to a business meeting. The following papers will also be read: "Comparison of Rules for Calculating the Strength of Steam Boilers," by H. DeB. Parsons; "A Record of the Early Period of High-Speed Engineering," by Charles T. Porter; "Steam Engine of Maximum Simplicity and Highest Thermal Efficiency," by Robert H. Thurston.

This evening three more papers will be read. They will be "Notes on Centrifugal Plans for Cupolas and Forges," by William Sangster; "Power Plant of the Massachusetts General Hospital," by F. W. Dean; "The Construction of Contracts," by Reginald F. Bolton, and "An American Central Valve Engine," by E. T. Adams.

Republicans Sweep Plainfield.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Dec. 4.—Dr. O. L. Jenkins, the Republican nominee for Mayor, was elected to-day over Col. Mason W. Tyler. Dr. Jenkins had a majority of 355. F. H. Smith, the Republican nominee for Collector, defeated A. T. Gallup, the Democratic nominee, by 900. The four Councilmen elected by wards are all Republicans. They are R. I. Toels, George P. Mellick, B. F. Coriell, and S. B. Randolph. The Democrats to-day ran their ticket under the caption of Commuters, and by a combination of dissatisfied Republicans, expected to carry the city. The election was a lively one, and a pretty full vote was cast.

POLITICS OUT OF REFORM

Rev. Robert L. Paddock Tells How to Remedy Existing Evil.

First Protect the Children—Other Speakers at the Social Reform Club Urge that the Crusade Begin with the Home.

"Existing Conditions in New York—What Are We Going to do About Them?" was the subject of discussion at last night's meeting of the Social Reform Club. The speakers were the Rev. Robert L. Paddock of the Pro-Cathedral, the Rev. F. J. C. Moran, the Rev. W. D. P. Bliss, and Edward King.

"In the movement now going on," said Mr. Paddock, "we are not expecting absolute purity, and we want the public to know we are reasonable in our demands. Three things we propose to do: First, to protect the children, so that they will no longer be the agents of bad men and women, nor have to be thrown in with them; second, to see that these bad characters do not live in the same houses with respectable people, and, third, to insist, as we have a perfect right to do, that vice is not flaunted on the streets. We can only get what we want by the help of the united must be kept out of the question." respectable forces of the city. Politics

Mr. Bliss began by saying that he had no patience with those who said the reforming of this city depended on the reformation of the police. "I have just come back from Europe," he said, "and over there I found just as bad conditions in many cities where the police organization was far more perfect than it is here. We've got to go deeper than reforming the police if we expect to make this city of ours a good city. But the home is where we must strike to find the cause of the present vicious conditions. The bad home is responsible.

"When a young girl goes to her tenement home after working all day, where can she go for fresh air? She must have fresh air. Her home reeks with bad odors. She can't go to the parks or the country. The street is all that is left. Give the girls good homes, improve the tenements—then you will give vice a deadly blow."

Mr. Bliss told of the proposed federation of labor unions and social reform clubs, saying that there were already enough talking organizations in the city, and that he wanted one which would act.

The next speaker was Edward King, who said that all vice had its basis in commercialism. "The spirit of money-making," he continued, "is the leading spirit of the age. There is really little difference between these gambling houses that we talk about and the so-called reputable business men of the day. Even many of our marriages are based on commercialism. There's no denying it. The movement now in progress is going wrong because it has gotten into the hands of juggling politicians of all kinds. There is one kind of a politician worse than a Tammany politician, and of that kind is the man who is not fit to be a Tammanyite. The children can be protected if Tammany wishes them to be, but even that can't be done if Tammany doesn't wish it."

Dr. Moran compared the police with the clergy of the Middle Ages, declaring that the former, like the latter in olden times, are not amenable to civic courts, but to "four Commissioners who want to cover up all the defects of their department." He said that the police, though saying "It will soon be over" to themselves, had been more courteous to civilians of late, and that only within the last month could a visitor obtain considerate treatment at Police Headquarters."

WARNING FROM COL. GARDINER.

Astors, Kernochana, Stuyvesants, and Others Notified of Complaints Against Their Properties.

Notices to several well-known persons and representatives of estates were sent out yesterday by the District Attorney to the effect that affidavits had been made alleging the existence of illegal resorts upon property, the ownership of which the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, after investigation, states is vested in the persons addressed. Those to whom notifications were sent that if the conditions complained of were not remedied criminal action would be brought are as follows:

John Jacob Astor, premises, 279 Bowery; William Astor and wife, 286 Bowery; Malvina and Eugene Kelellas and Mrs. George Peabody Wetmore, 52 Prince Street; the Peter Cooper estate, 327 Bowery; the rector and Trustees of St. Clement's Church, 110 West Third Street; the estate of Hamilton Fish, Jr., 141 East Seventeenth Street; the estate of Pierre Lorillard, 193 Bowery; James J. Kernochan, 186 Chrystie Street; Thomas Cadwalader, 72 Allen Street; J. W. Somarindyck, 133 Bowery; John R. Stevens, 68 Rivington Street; Henry Hart, 81 Park Row; Rutherfurd Stuyvesant, 78 and 110 Third Avenue. All of these addresses were complained of by Superintendent McCullagh.

Of these representatives of the Kernochan, Lorillard, Ketellas, and Stuyvesant estates have already denied through THE NEW YORK TIMES ownership of the premises named. The Stuyvesant estate owns the ground at the numbers stated, but not the buildings. Henry Hart has also denied owning the property 81 Park Row. The Rev. E. H. Van Winkle, rector of St. Clement's Church, indignantly denied that any disorderly resort exists at 110 West Third Street, which number is the church edifice itself.

Assistant District Attorney O'Reilly said yesterday that some of the representatives of the estates named had already assured the District Attorney of their willingness to get rid of undesirable tenants, who would have been evicted long since had the owners known of their character.

SALVATION ARMY HOME.

Place for Unfortunate Women Opened on the West Side.

An industrial home for unfortunate women was opened by the Salvation Army yesterday at 127 West Thirteenth Street, connecting with the army barracks on Fourteenth Street. Mrs. Russell Sage wrote that if the weather is favorable she will attend to-day the bazaar which is now being held at the headquarters, and would bring Miss Helen Gould with her.

The bazaar, which is now open, is for the aid of the children's home which the army is building in Colorado, and which is to be known as the Prairie Home. There was a large crowd present during the day, many of the visitors being officers of the army who are here to attend the annual council, to be held this week.

The home for unfortunate women is the record that the army has opened. In the latest one the women will be taught a variety of trades. Commander Booth-Tucker said yesterday that while the present vice crusade had not had anything to do with the opening of the home, he expected that as a result of it there would be increased applications for admission.

The Committee of Fifteen.

Charles Stewart Smith said yesterday that the Committee of Fifteen would not begin its labors until James C. Carter, who is in Boston, where a relative of his is ill, returns to this city.

Mr. Smith said he was much gratified to hear that the precinct presided over by Capt. Titus was being cleansed. "If the mere fact that this committee is in existence has such a salutary effect," he said, "what may we not have reason to hope for when we get down to work?"

ELOPERS NOT FORGIVEN.

Mrs. Leuner Has Husband of Her 14-Year-Old Daughter Arrested.

While her mother was worrying about her disappearance last night, Edith Leuner, fourteen years old, a tall, pretty girl, who disappeared on Saturday, walked into the house, at Westchester Avenue and White Plains Road, with Daniel Daggart, a motorman on the Union Railway line, who lives at 1,856 Boston Road.

They found Mrs. Leuner weeping. They told her she and Daggart were married Saturday by Father Talbut of St. Augustin's Roman Catholic Church, One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Street and Franklin Avenue, and had come to be forgiven. The mother stopped weeping at once, and cried out:

"You go to your room!" Then, turning to Daggart: "As for you, Sir, I'll see you are cared for. I'll have you arrested."

Daggart tried to reason with her, but the mother compelled her daughter to go to her room, and then calling in a policeman had Daggart arrested. She charged him with abducting her daughter, and the policeman took him to the Wakefield Station House.

JACOB HESS DANGEROUSLY ILL.

Police Commissioner's Condition Causes Apprehension to His Friends.

Police Commissioner Jacob Hess lies dangerously ill at his home, 68 West Sixty-eighth Street. He is suffering from pneumonia and chronic nephritis. While he rallied somewhat yesterday and was slightly better at midnight, his friends are very apprehensive that the end is near.

"Jake" Hess, as he is familiarly known, has long been a prominent figure in the politics of New York City. His friends are legion, and few men are more popular. He was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, fifty-four years ago. He was brought to this country when an infant, and after securing a rudimentary education in the public schools secured a position in the Washington Market. He had barely attained his majority when he branched out in business for himself, and soon became one of the most successful butchers on the east side. He rapidly accumulated wealth and drifted into politics, and while a very young man he became the Republican leader of the old Twentieth District. Gov. Theodore Roosevelt was one of his protégés, and the Vice President-elect frequently referred to Mr. Hess as his "boss." He sent Mr. Roosevelt to the Assembly, and paved the way to his present prominence.

In 1875 Mr. Hess represented the Twentieth District of this county in the Assembly. The following year he was elected Alderman at Large, and left the office to assume the duties of Inspector of Schools by appointment of Mayor W. H. Wickham. This position he retained until 1879. Subsequently Mr. Hess received the nomination for Register against T. W. Loew, and while he was beaten by a few hundred votes on the face of the returns, it was generally conceded he had been counted out below Fourteenth Street. Mayor Edward Cooper appointed him a Commissioner of Charities and Correction, and although the youngest member of the board, he was made its President. He retired in May, 1885, and shortly thereafter was made a member of the Board of Electrical Control, a place he filled until the abolition of the office in 1898. When Thomas L. Hamilton was removed as Police Commissioner, Mayor Van Wyck selected Mr. Hess to succeed him. The Republican organization was somewhat disgruntled, especially when he consented to the removal of John McCullagh and the appointment of William S. Devery as Chief. Commissioner Hess frankly stated the reasons for his act when questioned by the Mazet Committee.

Mr. Hess has failed steadily in health since the death of his son, and only child, Seymour Griswold Hess, in 1897. Mr. Hess is prominently identified with the Masonic and other civic bodies.

Lieut. Hobson Not Out of Danger.

A number of friends sent flowers to the Presbyterian Hospital for Lieut. Hobson yesterday, but none was sent to his room, the physicians forbidding it. No one is allowed to see him. Many messages inquiring about his condition were also sent to the hospital during the day and evening. He seemed to rest last night, but is not out of danger.

Lieut. Commander Hall's Condition.

The condition of Lieut. Commander Reynold T. Hall of the Steam Engineering Department of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, whose skull was fractured on Monday in the new machine shop being built in the yard, was still serious yesterday. The doctors at the hospital said yesterday that it could not be determined until to-day or to-morrow what were Lieut. Commander Hall's chances of recovery.

Actor Faversham a Little Worse.

At the office of Dr. Burke, who is attending William Faversham, the actor, it was said last night that Mr. Faversham was not quite as well and that he was not yet out of danger.

Justice Barrett's Condition.

Justice Barrett's pulse ran between 101 and 99 during the day yesterday, but he had improved last evening, and it was believed he would spend a comfortable night.

CANCER AND ITS TREATMENT.

Physicians Will Discuss the Matter in Chicago Next May.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Dr. Thomas Bassett Keyes, President of the American Psychological Medical and Surgical Society, sent out a call to-day for a "Congress on Cancer and Its Modern Treatment." The subject is to be taken up at the regular meeting in Chicago the first Tuesday in May, 1901. The following questions have been decided upon to be submitted for this discussion:

"What are the most successful methods of treatments? What are the values of antitoxins? What is the cause or the causes of cancer? Why is cancer on the increase? Classification of the varieties of cancer and the most important advances made in the study of their pathology."

The increasing number of deaths from cancer and its continual increase make the movement of great interest. Thirty-five thousand cases of cancer in New York alone are reported.

In addition to Dr. Keyes, Dr. Enoch Mather of Birmingham, Ala.; J. W. Owen of New Bedford, Mass., and C. O. Sahler of Kingston, N. Y., sign the call.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Cornelius Vanderbilt and a party of his friends numbering thirteen occupied two boxes at last night's performance of "Mistress Nell."

Miss Annie Russell may, after she finishes with her present play, "A Royal Family," which will occur some time next year, have an opportunity of appearing in London in a play by Louis N. Parker.

Miss Mary Hampton, the leading actress of the American Theatre stock company, has fully recovered from her recent severe illness, and will appear in the part of the ingenue in "Hands Across the Sea" next Monday.

Haddon Chambers, the English playwright, who is expected to reach New York on Saturday, will bring with him a new play, which is to be produced at the St. James Theatre, London, and which is also intended for Mr. John Drew.

Since Henry B. Sire secured control of the Casino he has been endeavoring to secure a competent man as business manager. The position will undoubtedly go to Edward Rosenbaum, who has been identified with interests of Mr. Sire before.

Manager Maurice Campbell, who has been selecting his company for a second organization to tour this country presenting "Mistress Nell," has contracted with Miss Grace Sherwood to play the title rôle, now being assumed by Henrietta Crosman.

Frederick G. Latham, the business manager for the Bernhardt-Coquelin tour in this country, has completed his arrangements so thoroughly for their appearances in America that yesterday he began the preliminary details for the appearance of the French actress and actor in London. The London engagement will begin on June 3 and continue for six weeks.

Miss Maude Odell, remembered as Miladi in James O'Neill's production "The Musketeers" and as Antoinette de Mauban in "The Prisoner of Zenda," resigned yesterday the position of leading woman with the Imperial Theatre stock company, St. Louis, where she has been since Sept. 23. She will make her début with the Castle Square Opera Company in Chicago on Dec. 24, when she will sing the leading contralto rôle in a revival of "Rob Roy."

The announcement is made by Novello, Ewer & Co. that they have decided to hold a musical festival at Bayreuth again next Summer, when they will give seven performances of "Parsifal," two complete cycles of "Der Ring des Nibelungen," and five performances of "Der Fliegende Hollaender." The performances will commence at 4 P. M. and terminate about 10 P. M., with intervals of an hour between each act.

Dinner Party on the St. Louis.

A dinner was given on board the American Line steamship St. Louis last night by Samuel Bettle, manager of the line, to the officers of the steamer and about fifty guests from this city. The dining saloon was handsomely decorated for the occasion with bunting and flowers. The St. Louis will sail to-day for Southampton.

RIORDAN'S WAR ON DIVVER

Congressman Will Work to Depose the Second District's Leader.

Councilman Foley Has Joined in the Fight Which Will Be Decided at the Primaries.

Open war has been declared upon ex-Police Justice Patrick Divver, Tammany leader in the Second Assembly District, by Councilman Thomas F. Foley and Representative Daniel J. Riordan, who will fight Divver in the next primaries to depose him from the leadership. There has been trouble in the district ever since Riordan was refused a renomination for Congress by orders from Richard Croker and Thomas J. Creamer named. Foley and Riordan are said to hold Divver responsible for Riordan's retirement. Both have resigned from the Divver Association, of which Riordan had been President. Assemblyman James A. Rierdon, a stanch Divverite, was elected to succeed him.

"They took the hint which I gave them," said Mr. Divver last night, "and got out of the club. Both men were disloyal to the organization. That is all there is to the matter."

Creamer's followers declare that Riordan and Foley did not loyally support Creamer at the election. He won by only 173 votes over Richard Van Cott.

Councilman Foley was angry when asked yesterday about the trouble. He said: "So Divver says we were kicked out of the organization, does he? Well, he will be kicked out at the primaries next year. I will show Divver that he cannot lie about me and my friends in this district. I defy Divver or anybody else to prove that I have ever been disloyal. I worked hard for Creamer, and so did Riordan. I resigned from the Divver Club simply because I had made up my mind that the money I gave to its support would do more good if I distributed it among the poor and needy in the district."

Foley started a fight against Divver over a year ago for the leadership of the district, but withdrew at the instance of State Senator Timothy D. Sullivan. It was understood at the time that Sullivan's action was inspired by Mr. Croker.

TO CONTEST CREAMER'S SEAT.

Richard Van Cott Applies for Court Order to Inspect Ballots.

Richard Van Cott, son of the Postmaster, has decided to contest the election in the Eighth Congressional District, in which he was defeated by Thomas J. Creamer by a small majority. Through his counsel, A. R. Conkling, Mr. Van Cott applied yesterday to Justice Leventritt in the Supreme Court for an order to examine the void, contested, and blank ballots which are now held by the County Clerk. In the affidavit submitted by Mr. Van Cott he says that eleven ballots were not counted in the Fifth Election District of the Fifth Assembly District, when as a matter of fact they should have been counted for him, and he further declares that in other election districts there were many ballots thrown out which should have been counted.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Butts opposed the motion on the ground that Mr. Van Cott's affidavit was vague and made only on "information and belief." He said that Mr. Van Cott did not even specify that he was the defeated candidate, and further that an inspection of the ballots would not make any change in the result.

Justice Leventritt said that the question should be treated with the utmost liberality, as the candidates for election should be given every opportunity to ascertain the facts. "If the moving papers," said the Justice, "are so completely defective as is alleged, I shall of course deny this motion, but I shall do so with leave to renew the same upon proper affidavits."

The Justice then reserved his decision on the application, while Mr. Van Cott announced his intention to fight his case to the end.

ATTERBURY AGAIN ELECTED.

Only Four Votes Against Him in the Kings County Committee.

The ticket agreed upon at the conference held at the home of Lieut. Gov. Woodruff on Monday night was almost unanimously elected when the Republican General Committee of Kings County met last night in the Johnston Building to organize for the year. Those opposed to the re-election of Walter B. Atterbury as Chairman were able to muster but four votes.

Mr. Atterbury was renominated by John R. Farrer of the Twenty-third Ward. Bert Reiss, the unsuccessful Republican candidate for Congress in the Sixth District, nominated Col. Andrew D. Baird in a speech in which he attacked the administration of Atterbury as Chairman. Atterbury, he declared, had antagonized many good people in the party and was objectionable to the independent element. Mr. Atterbury received 127 votes to Col. Baird's 4 votes. The other officers elected were: Vice President—Adolph Kiendl; Secretary—Clarence Barrow; Assistant Secretary—Frank Gardiner; Treasurer—John Drescher, Jr.

McKeown for Minority Leader.

The Democratic leadership in the next State Assembly, it was said yesterday, would go to Assemblyman John McKeown of the Second District of Kings County. Mr. McKeown has served six terms in the Assembly, and it is believed that he will have Tammany's support in the caucus.

Official Canvass of Colorado's Vote.

DENVER, Col., Dec. 4.—The official canvass of the Presidential vote in Colorado was finished yesterday. Based on the highest vote received by the electors on each side, Bryan received 122,944 and McKinley 93,141, making Bryan's plurality 29,803.

CZAR ABLE TO SIT UP.

Yesterday's Bulletin Says His General Condition Is Very Good.

LIVADIA, European Russia, Dec. 4.—The physicians of the Czar issued the following bulletin to-day:

"The Czar passed the last twenty-four hours very satisfactorily. Yesterday evening his temperature was 100.6 and his pulse 80. This morning his temperature was 96.6; pulse, 66. His general condition is very good.

"His Majesty is now able to sit in an invalid chair at intervals during the day."

TRIED SUICIDE AT SAME TIME.

Lovers Quarrel, Separate, Take Acid, and Reach Same Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 4.—Anna Lambert, twenty-two years old, of 204 Dorcas Street, and William McGyerck, a teamster, had a sweethearts' quarrel last night, and this afternoon at 3 o'clock each took carbolic acid in separate parts of the city and reached the City Hospital at about the same time. Antidotes were applied, and it is likely that both will recover.

Miss Lambert says that McGyerck had promised to marry her and that he failed to keep his promise, and that she became so despondent that she wished to end her life. McGyerck got to brooding over the matter at the same moment, and with the same kind of poison attempted to take his life, as if each was mutually hypnotized by the other to commit the deed at the same time.

McGyerck swallowed the acid in front of a saloon at Twenty-third and Chestnut Streets, and then declared to his friends that he had killed himself. At the same moment Miss Lambert was pouring the fiery poison down her throat at a friend's home, 700 North Twelfth Street. After taking the dose she informed her friends that she would soon be dead. Both were sent to the hospital.

When the man was being treated in the main division of the hospital the physicians were working with the woman in another part of the building. Both state that they did not take the poison by prearrangement. They are glad they are alive, and to-night are sending messages of well wishes to each other by the nurses.

Western Presidents Meet in Quarterly Conference To-day.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Presidents of Western railroads will be held in the Equitable Building to-day. A large attendance is expected. There was considerable speculation among the representatives of the various roads yesterday as to whether or not the Great Northern and Northern Pacific would be represented at to-day's meeting. These roads held aloof from the last conference because they declared they were opposed to pools. President Jeffery, Chairman of the conference, said yesterday that he had not received any word from these roads as to whether they would attend or not.

At to-day's meetings the sub-committees which were appointed at the last conference in order to facilitate the maintenance of rates will make their first report. It is admitted they will not be able to report much success, as rates in the West, especially in the territory covered by the Kansas City committee, are by no means in good condition. It may become necessary, it was said yesterday, to adopt severe measures with the traffic managers and freight agents who are declared to be responsible for the continued demoralization of rates in that territory. The question of the interchange of passes for employes will also be taken up.

MORRIS AND ESSEX MORTGAGE.

Instrument Showing an Obligation of $35,000,000 Filed at Elizabeth.

A mortgage of $35,000,000 was filed yesterday by the Morris and Essex Railroad Company, which is a part of the Lackawanna system, in the office of the Clerk of Union County at Elizabeth, N. J. The mortgagee is the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of this city, and the mortgage is given to refund the present indebtedness of the company. Revenue stamps to the amount of $18,000 were attached.

The total bonded indebtedness now outstanding is $23,968,000. The difference between this amount and the amount of the new mortgage is to be used in part for improvements of the road. The present indebtedness bears 7 per cent. interest, while the new bonds will pay but 3½ per cent.

New Chicago and Alton Directors.

At a meeting in this city yesterday of the Board of Directors of the Chicago and Alton Railway, James P. Forgan of the First National Bank of Chicago and ex-Gov. David R. Francis of Missouri were elected members of the board. They succeeded Rudolph Brand and Bertram M. Winston of Chicago.

FIREMEN NOW ORGANIZED.

Elect Officers and Discuss the Question of Benefits.

There was a meeting of the New York Fire Department Benevolent Association last night at the headquarters of Hook and Ladder Company No. 20. It was the first regular meeting of the organization which firemen began to form three months ago in opposition to the Firemen's Benevolent Association, of which James D. Clifford is the President. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Chief of Battalion R. W. Callaghan was elected President, Lieut. John W. Walker Vice President, Capt. John King Financial Secretary, Lieut. Patrick J. Graham Recording Secretary, and Chief of Battalion George Farrell Treasurer.

They will serve one year.

Fireman O'Neill said that, in view of articles which had appeared recently in some of the newspapers criticising the Fire Department—

"The assertions made have been without the slightest foundation in fact. It is a matter of record that at the present time and during the past few months there have been less transfers and fewer trials than in any other similar period in the history of the Fire Department. It is a matter of record also that the present administration of the Fire Department has granted to the firemen more time for meals and vacations than the firemen have ever enjoyed before."

A motion was passed providing for the appointment of a committee to wait on the newspapers in question, and lay the facts of the case before them.

Secretary Graham announced that on the 1st of January the amount of benefit on the death of a member would be increased from $300 to $500.

At this point Fireman McNamara of Engine Company No. 3 asked the privilege of the floor to make a suggestion. He said: "Would it not be better to give the men one day a week off and three hours a day out of the twenty-four for meals, and thus prevent the newspapers criticising the Fire Department? I would sooner have one day off a week now than $500 after I'm dead."

The Secretary announced that at this meeting 113 members from Brooklyn had filed their applications and had been admitted to membership. The total membership is now 1,250.

HAS HIS WIFE ENJOINED.

Chicagoan Says She Means to Take Furniture and Marry Another Man.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—An injunction restraining his wife from selling their household property or converting to her own use any of his money has been granted to Warren E. Clasen. The complainant says that his wife showed him a paper purporting to be a license for marriage with another man, and announced her intention to have a second husband. He thinks such an act sufficient cause for divorce, and the injunction is secured as an adjunct to the divorce which is asked in the bill.

No objections are offered against Mrs. Clasen marrying a second time, but the only act which the husband asks the court to prevent is her taking the money and household furniture. The bill states that Warren E. Clasen has been led to believe that Ernest W. Hahn on Nov. 19, 1900, took out a license to marry the woman who is now his wife. She is alleged to have said that she had purchased $10,000 worth of furniture with which to start housekeeping with Hall.

ON LOCAL BOWLING ALLEYS.

First Games in Local Championship Between Harlem League and American National League.

The first bowling games in the local championship series were rolled last night on Thrum & Kahlsdorf's Harlem Palace Alleys, between two picked teams from the Harlem League and the American National League, representing, respectively, the upper and the lower east side clubs. The lower east siders won two of the three matches, thus scoring two points to the upper east siders' one.

The best work for the Harlem League was done by McDonald of the Morris Club, who rolled 258, the highest individual score of the season on the alleys, in the third game. The Harlem League total of 902 in this game is the highest team score of the season on the Harlem Palace alleys. Honors were more evenly divided on the American National team, Koster and Foege scoring over 200.

A return series of three more games will be bowled on the Germania alleys, the home of the American National League, on next Monday evening, and on the combined results of the six matches will be decided not only the east side championship, but the selection of the team to meet a representative west side team in a final contest for the local championship. The scores:

The Wanamaker Store

The CHICKERING And Other Pianos

The holiday gift must be above reproach. Whatever the article selected, one wishes it to be the best of its kind—so pre-eminent in its class that the recipient will know that nothing of higher merit or artistic quality could have been chosen.

In Pianos this Means CHICKERING

For three-quarters of a century the Chickering pianofortes have been the aristocracy of the piano world. Each year their artistic quality has grown. Never entering the field of price-competition; but constantly working for the perfection of harmony, and musical excellence—always far in the front in producing instruments through which can be interpreted the soul of the composer's melody, and the power and fullness that he has dreamed. No other piano has ever won such universal plaudits from the masters of music and song as The Chickering. And to-day it stands at its fullest, ripest attainment of perfection. There is nothing beyond in present piano accomplishment.

But the late Wanamaker-Chickering alliance in New York has facilitated its wider distribution by coupling the best selling methods with this, the world's best piano.

We have now on show and for trial in our Piano Rooms sixteen models of the Chickering Pianos from which to choose. Then we can have the case of any sort finished in any style you wish, to harmonize with other furnishings, if so desired.

We show besides, the Vose, Krell, Haines, Royal and Crown—each with a peculiar excellence in the grade it represents. Fifty-nine distinctly different Pianos, side by side for comparison,—a variety such as is unknown in any other store anywhere. It makes comparison more positive and the selection more satisfying.

Overcoat Excellence

More of the $15 RAGLANS

We have another supply of these popular overcoats. That is, for a short time only. We don't have to urge them to go—on the contrary, we find it extremely hard to keep any here for you. One reason is the extreme comfort they provide for their wearers.

Another is, that in style, material and construction they would justify you in paying us $20 each for them, while we only ask you $15.

A few days ago a visitor in the Clothing Store was overheard to remark: "Wonder if Wanamaker clothes all the men in New York?" No, of course not; a constantly increasing proportion of them.

There are other Raglan Overcoats for you to look at, up to $40.

CLOTHING For Young Men

This should particularly interest every boy who has progressed into long trousers—and that boy's parents. Our Clothing Store devotes a good deal of thought and care to keeping in closest touch with the wishes and tastes of these young men of 15 to 19. And we have succeeded in gaining and holding the confidence of a great many of them. For we give the clothes we make for them a style and character as distinctive as it is excellent.

Judge us, for instance, by the broad choosing offered in the military sack coat suits—so warmly endorsed this year by fashionable custom tailors. They are here in newest fabrics—the popular striped cheviots, in flannel effect, in Oxford mixtures and blue and black cheviots; and at prices, for extremely stylish suits, of $10, $12 and $15.

Then we have just received a Raglan overcoat for sizes 15 to 19 years, of Oxford mixed frieze; extra long—50 inches—and very full and loose. An unusually stylish coat, at $18.

Men's $18 to $25 LOUNGING ROBES at $10

Just thirty of these superb Christmas presents for a man friend. A fortunate purchase—rare indeed just before the holidays. Hardly two alike, making wide variety to meet all tastes. Choose to-day for $10. But be prompt—rain or shine.

Jules Monard WATCHES

Jules Monard makes the finest watches in the world. We knew that long before the Paris Exposition awarded his watches the Grand Prix. His watches did not win because of beauty or show—simply on their perfect adjustments, their accuracy—the long and painstaking care with which each watch is worked over until the balance wheel and hair-spring are adjusted to meet all conditions and positions without affecting their movements. Jules Monard personally attends to the last final adjustment of every watch that bears his name. And that's the secret of the excellence that has no equal in the world.

Fascinating TOYS

Of Practical Utility

We have told you about the marvelous Toy Store across Ninth Street, and its dazzling array of toys—the myriads of dolls of all ages, sizes and complexions, the soldiers, rocking horses, animals, steam-cars, mechanical toys, puzzles, games, and all the rest of it. Yet, at the best, the description falls hopelessly short of the bewildering reality. So to-day we'll limit ourselves to a word about those practical, "really-truly" household toys that are, in fact, miniatures of the things grown-up people use, and which help to bring out and develop the latent motherly and housekeeping instincts in the little women. This large group includes implements for washing, ironing, cooking, sewing, sweeping, and a complete assortment of children's furniture and table appointments.

Sewing-Machines that will sew, $1.50 and $5; Ice-Cream Freezers that will freeze one pint of cream, $1.25; Carpet Sweepers, 25c to $1; Refrigerators which will hold ice and preserve food, $3 and $4; Laundry Sets, to do up Dolly's clothes, 25c, 50c and $1; Sad Irons, 5c, 10c and 25c; Stoves that will cook food, $1, $2 and $3.

About a Perfect Carpet SWEEPER

"A new broom sweeps clean." A Wanamaker cyco-bearing sweeper sweeps cleaner—even when it's old. This superior machine is made by the Bissell Co., and is fully guaranteed. It is a noiseless sweeper—that's owing to the "cyco" bearings. That also makes them run easier and wear longer. The axles are dust proof, preventing any clogging of the wheels' action through thread, hair, etc. There's an anti-raveling collector—a recent most valuable improvement that saves much time and annoyance common to most other sweepers.

We believe no housewife can have preference for any other sweeper, once she knows the "Wanamaker Cyco-bearing." Price $2.50 for the Japanned trimmed; $3 for those that are nickel-trimmed.

FORTY SMALLPOX CASES

Two New Patients Yesterday and Two Deaths from the Disease.

FREE VACCINATION FOR ALL

Health Department Officials Have No Fear of an Epidemic, but They Advise General Vaccination.

Forty cases in the pesthouse on North Brothers Island, two new cases in the infected district on the west side, and two deaths to date, was the condition of the smallpox outbreak as reported by the Board of Health yesterday. None of the officials took any comfort from the fact that but one new case developed yesterday as against eight on Monday, for the smallpox has overleaped the bounds to which they had tried to confine it in the neighborhood of "All Nations Block," in West Sixty-ninth Street, where it started. They are now satisfied that they will have many more cases to deal with.

The new cases were those of Caroline Brandon, thirty years old, of 191 West End Avenue, and Lizzie O'Leary, thirty years old, of 201 West End Avenue. The death reported yesterday was that of Mary A. Holmes, forty-four years old, a domestic servant employed in the apartment house 235 West Seventy-sixth Street. She was removed from the house to North Brothers Island on Nov. 25, being one of the first cases. She died Monday afternoon. The other death was that of a colored infant. It occurred several days ago.

Several of the patients are reported to be in a very precarious condition. It was said yesterday that the young man Nash, taken from the private residence 222 West Seventy-second Street Sunday night, had a very severe attack. There are many other suspicious cases under surveillance.

Fear of the spread of the smallpox has caused the managers of the Stock Exchange to order all employes to be vaccinated, and the operation will shortly be performed.

"Get vaccinated," was the one cry throughout the Health Department yesterday. All comers will be vaccinated free of charge at the Health Department Building, Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, and in the down-town bureau, 68 and Elm Street, where doctors will be in attendance from 9 A. M. until 4 P. M. except on Sunday, and after 12 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

"No one who comes to us need feel that he is an object of charity," said Dr. Alonzo Blauvelt, Chief Inspector of the Division of Contagious Diseases, yesterday, "and no anti-vaccinationist can find anything to quibble at in our methods. Our calves are thoroughly examined by a veterinary surgeon before anything is done with them, and after they are killed they are again examined, and if there is the least thing the matter with them, the pus is thrown out. We furnish a new needle with each vaccination, and the toothpick with which the virus is applied is always thrown away. We will, when there are a number of persons in one place who wish to be vaccinated, send a physician free of charge to them. One doctor to-day went out on such a call to a near-by mercantile house, and when he came back reported that he had vaccinated 110 persons. So great has been the demand for virus that we have had to cut down all druggists' orders in two to-day."

Dr. F. S. Dillingham, Assistant Sanitary Superintendent, said: "There is no need for alarm if people will only be vaccinated. There is an illustration right here to-day in the case of the woman taken from 191 West End Avenue. There the disease showed itself at 190 West End Avenue on Nov. 29. On the same day we sent doctors to the near-by houses, and they reported that several persons in 191 had refused to be vaccinated. Now they are all coming here to be vaccinated."

Dr. Dillingham said that such outbreaks of smallpox as the present seemed to appear in this city in cycles of from six to eight years, and he attributed them to the running out of the safeguarding effects of former vaccinations.

SHOT THE BRIDEGROOM.

William Bent Dying from Wound Received on His Wedding Day.

William Bent, a negro sailor, who, while attached to the cruiser New York, took part in the bombardment of Santiago, is dying in Roosevelt Hospital from a pistol shot wound in his right side which he received during a quarrel in the rooms of his bride, whom he had married two hours before, at 227 West Twenty-seventh Street. Bent's assailant escaped immediately after the shooting. Bent, who is attached to the United States warship Monongahela, came ashore yesterday with a large sum of money and resolved to celebrate. He met a woman known in the neighborhood as "Dolly," and the two promptly decided to get married. They were married early in the evening at a church in West Thirty-seventh Street, and then repaired to the apartment of Mrs. Susan Day, who lives at No. 227. The celebration attracted a number of negroes.

Among those present was Hattie Mason, who introduced a negro as her cousin. This is the man who, it is thought, did the shooting, and whose name those in the party say they have forgotten. A quarrel began soon after the festivities were under way and two shots were fired. One of these went through a window, the other struck Bent in the side. Assistance from the Roosevelt Hospital was summoned, and Dr. Todd, who arrived in an ambulance, pronounced the wound serious.

The police arrested Hattie Mason, Harry Spraggs, a colored man who boarded with "Dolly," and two other colored men, who said they were porters on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and were rooming with Spraggs. Neither the Mason woman nor "Dolly" could give the police much information. Sergt. Byrnes questioned Hattie Mason with a view to ascertaining whether her cousin was not an admirer of "Dolly," and therefore jealous, but the woman denied this.

The detectives later arraigned the four prisoners in the West Side Court before Magistrate Deuel, but told the Magistrate that they were convinced that the men had nothing to do with the shooting and asked for their discharge. They were therefore discharged. The women were held without bail until to-morrow morning.

NEW RECORD FROM HAVANA.

The Morro Castle Clips an Hour from the Time In a Rough Weather Trip.

The new Ward Line steamer Morro Castle, which arrived in port yesterday morning, completing her second round trip from Havana, lowered all records between Havana and New York. The run was made in 2 days 14 hours and 30 minutes, the previous record being 2 days 15 hours and 30 minutes.

The voyage was made in heavy weather, in which heavy seas were encountered, and the Morro Castle's officers believe the vessel can beat this record by three or four hours. The Morro Castle maintained a speed for the first twenty-four hours of 19.56 knots per hour. During the second day an average speed of 18.81 knots was maintained, while during the last day, in which the worst weather of the voyage was encountered, an average of 18 knots was kept up.

A second-cabin passenger, Capt. Peter Cross of Philadelphia, disappeared the first night out. It is supposed that he jumped overboard during the night. He leaves a wife in Philadelphia.

Yellow Fever Victim's Body in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—It is stated that the body of Capt. A. W. Cook, a civil engineer of this city who died recently from yellow fever at Havana, has been found in an undertaking establishment here. The city health officials at once began a rigid investigation. It is said the State Board of Health suspended its rules and permitted the body to be brought home with the understanding that the funeral take place from the train.

New York Indian Commission.

ALBANY, Dec. 4.—Gov. Roosevelt to-day appointed the following committee to investigate the Indian question relative to the abolition of the Indian State reservations, the investigation of the land titles of the Indians and their elevation to citizenship: Philip C. Garrett of Philadelphia, Penn.; Darwin R. James and Oscar S. Straus of New York City, D. C. Miley of Lake Mohonk, N. Y., and the Right Rev. W. D. Walker of Buffalo.

CHIEF CLERK BYRNES GONE.

City Employes Dropped from the Pay Rolls.

The City Record, which usually contains page after page of figures and uninteresting details of the City Government, yesterday printed an item of interest. This item appeared:

John H. Byrnes, Chief Clerk of the Department of Bridges, is discharged owing to charges, and after notice, as provided by the Civil Service Commission's rules.

Chief Clerk Byrnes, after years of patient toil, gained a record as a steady-going, honest, sober, industrious clerk. He was always on time at his desk. He never staid away from his work, and had no entanglements which would lead him from the paths of rectitude. The report therefore that he has been dropped "owing to charges and after notice" came as a surprise.

There are two stories current concerning him. His son was seen last night. He said his father had been sick for five or six weeks with a complication of diseases, and had gone out of the city. He said his father had notified the office where he was employed that he was going away. The son said that he had received a letter from his father on Thanksgiving Day, but when asked where it came from said he could not read the postmark.

The other report is that he left the office without giving notice, and the family was ignorant of his whereabouts.

Bridge Commissioner Shea said yesterday: "A few days after Mr. Byrnes disappeared his wife came to the office. She could give no explanation of her husband's whereabouts. I am inclined to think that he has been overtaken with illness suddenly, and that he is wandering about or is in some hospital. He is a sober and reliable man. Mrs. Byrnes could give no reason for his disappearance, and she was heart-broken over the matter. I hope he will be found."

When asked as to whether Mr. Byrnes would be reinstated if he appeared and could make an explanation of his absence Commissioner Shea said that such explanation would go a long way with the Civil Service Commissioners, and that the Chief Clerk would probably get back his job.

Mr. Byrnes is fifty years old. His salary was $2,000 a year.

PRESBYTERIAN REVISION.

Committee Meets in Washington—Canvass of the Vote Made.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The committee of clergymen and laymen appointed by the last General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church to make a recommendation to the next General Assembly, which meets in May, on the question whether there shall be a revision of the Confession of Faith, assembled here to-night and will continue in session to-morrow until their work is completed.

Dr. William Henry Roberts of Philadelphia, the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly, is acting as the Secretary of the committee. Dr. Roberts laid before the committee a tabulation showing the vote of the Presbyteries on the questions submitted by the General Assembly's Committee on Revision. It made the following showing:

For revision of the Confession, 44 Presbyteries; for an explanatory statement, 10; for a supplemental statement of doctrine, 47; for a revision and a supplemental statement of doctrine, 14; for a substitute creed, 15.

Forty-five Presbyteries voted to dismiss the whole subject, while 43 bodies in this and foreign lands made no response. The total number of bodies reporting aggregated 232.

No definite action was taken by the committee to-night. Three hours were spent in discussion of the results shown by the responses received by the committee, and in an exchange of views as to the recommendation to be made to the General Assembly. This may be determined on to-morrow, to which time the committee adjourned.

SUFFRAGISTS FOR PEACE.

They March in Procession at Madison Square, Carrying Olive Branches.

There was a big peace and arbitration pageant at the Woman Suffrage Bazaar, in the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, last evening, and representatives of all nations in costume marched around the hall and laid olive branches at the feet of the Goddess of Liberty. The units of the procession were, as far as possible, of the nationalities they represented, and even little Chinese ladies were invited to take part. "Women people as well as men people march in our procession," one enthusiastic suffragist remarked. The olive branches were piled up in the outside hall all the afternoon, and in a heap big enough to signify peace for the whole world.

The procession was intended to foreshadow the "good times coming, when guns and bayonets shall be converted into pruning hooks and plowshares."

A big plowshare headed the procession. There should have been pruning hooks. These did not materialize, however, because, unfortunately, pruning hooks have gone out of use, and those to be found, being relics of antiquity, cost $2.50, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Grannis, who was in charge of the pageant, sorrowfully explained. A young Brooklyn woman, Mrs. Alva Halstead, took the part of Miss Liberty.

Every booth has some individual exhibit. Poor Louisiana, whose goods had not arrived Monday, received a small invoice of pecan nuts and pralines yesterday, in addition to the fine molasses and fig preserves, with cotton on the stem, and little "St. Joseph's" to carry in the purse. St. Joseph grants the wishes of the faithful. The little saints sell for "two bits," or 25 cents, as they do in New Orleans.

The Ohio booth has some genuine bargains in eighteen pairs of Jouvin gloves, 6¾ in size, imported from Paris, but a mistake being made in the number, they have been contributed to the bazaar. They sell for $1 a pair, and are in three shades of gray. Maryland has a hundred-year-old mahogany cradle for sale, and Ohio is selling buckeyes. "A sure cure for rheumatism. Carry one in your pocket." Kansas has a large and healthy crop of growing wheat. There was a palm-reading and phrenological seance in the afternoon yesterday.

RELEASED FROM INSANE ASYLUM.

Mrs. Robertson's Husband Said to Have Interest in Having Her There.

Justice Maddox yesterday ordered the discharge of Mrs. Ada E. Robertson of 1,336 Herkimer Street from an insane asylum. The Justice said an inquiry should be made by the District Attorney into the circumstances of her being sent to the institution.

Lawyer Rufus L. Perry represented Charles Thomas, 295 Powell Street, Mrs. Robertson's father, who had a writ of habeas corpus issued for his daughter. Mr. Perry charged that the woman's husband, James Robertson, had her sent to the asylum so he could get control of any property which her father might leave to his daughter. Dr. Charles B. Bacon, Deputy Superintendent of the asylum, in an affidavit stated that on the day after Mrs. Robertson was received there she was examined by the local Commissioners in Lunacy and found to be sane.

MONTFORT DIVORCE CASE.

Goes to the Jury, Which will Bring in Sealed Verdict.

The suit for divorce brought by Prof. Frank K. Montford, Principal of the High School at Bayside, came up before Justice Garretson in the Supreme Court, in Long Island City, yesterday. The courtroom was crowded with friends of the plaintiff and the defendant. Prof. Montford and his wife separated in the early part of last Summer. The professor, in his application for divorce, names Edward Smith and Charles Germinder.

He alleges that his wife had her own private Post Office box in the Post Office at Bayside, and that she was the recipient of many letters from male correspondents. Fifteen letters were offered in evidence.

Mrs. Montfort, on the stand, entered an emphatic denial of any criminal act. Her husband was very jealous, she claimed. He treated her cruelly. When questioned about the letters and the calls of the young man, she said Smith called to advise her relative to her actions in regard to the alleged cruelties of her husband. He was acting as a "sort of counsel."

Smith and Germinder denied that they had been guilty of any wrongdoing with Mrs. Montfort. The case went to the jury late in the afternoon and it was instructed to bring in a sealed verdict.

Chicago Bank Clerk Convicted.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—William B. Dunton, formerly a clerk in the Union National Bank, was to-day found guilty of embezzling $15,500. Sentence was deferred. The defense offered no evidence. Dunton was an intimate friend of Assistant Teller George Forbes, who killed himself when Dunton failed to return money which Forbes had permitted him to take from the bank's funds. Dunton was captured later at Old Point Comfort.

SALOON HAD JAIL PASSES

Visiting Privilege in Brooklyn Granted After Buying Drinks.

Saloon Keeper Atkinson Tells How He Got the Passes—Sheriff Walton Gives Orders to Admit All Hereafter.

Visitors to Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, for several months past have found it easiest to enter the jail by way of the saloon of J. J. Atkinson, corner of Lafayette and Raymond Streets. Atkinson made it a point to keep on hand a bunch of jail passes. How he got the passes is not known.

The system between Mr. Atkinson and some official or officials of the jail was simple. At the jail an inquirer for passes was referred to the saloon opposite with the alternative of going one and one-half miles to the Sheriff's office and obtaining them there. In visiting hours the stranger had only to buy a drink to obtain Mr. Atkinson's permission to enter the prison. Atkinson would reach under the bar and produce his passes.

When a reporter of THE TIMES called at the jail for a pass he was referred to the little saloon on the corner. When he went into Atkinson's place more than forty persons, five of them women, were standing crowded in the room, most of them drinking beer. Outside, in front of the jail, there were 355 visitors awaiting the opening of the doors. The reporter asked a number of drinkers in Atkinson's saloon when the passes would be issued, and was told they would be forthcoming presently, when they arrived from the Sheriff's office just as the doors were thrown open. When the visiting hour arrived, the passes were produced and the room was emptied. Then began a parade of outsiders, who, for want of a pass, had been refused admission after holding their place in line.

"I don't want to go inside that place for a pass," said a well-dressed woman who had stood in line for admission, not knowing a pass would be required.

"Well, give me a nickel to buy a beer and I'll get you one," said a young fellow. The reporter went with the purchaser, and saw the operation, and then bought a beer and a pass for himself. All afternoon business continued, visitors who knew the requirements going immediately into the saloon for a pass and then heading for the jail.

"How do you manage to get so many passes?" Mr. Atkinson was asked.

"Oh, I goes up to the Sheriff's office an' asks for a pass, an' me friend he goes up an' he gets one, an' his frien' gets one, an' they turns them in to me for the commodation of me customers; that's easy, aint it?"

Deputy Warden John J. Wilson said it was news to him that passes had been issued by the saloon across the way or by any source except the proper one. He suggested that the passes were forged.

From the Warden's office the reporter returned to Mr. Atkinson's place, told him his real business, and asked information as to where the tickets were obtained.

"I call it a shame that a man can't be let alone doin' an honest business," he said. "I told you how I gets the tickets. I gets them to please my customers. There is nothing whatever in the story. And now, don't write anything that ain't true. Don't write anything anyway."

Sheriff Walton said: "When I came into office passes to jails were peddled in barrooms. I gave orders that all such passes should be refused at the doors of the jail if it could be shown they had been obtained in that way. The trouble is to prove that. All the passes look alike. Any one has a right to come here and ask for a pass on a visiting day. Atkinson himself may get a pass here, and, as he says, he might get a thousand and one friends to get passes to be turned over to him, and we would have no means of being the wiser. This is the first complaint of this character that has been made to me. I heard of it first last night, and have already investigated. There is no law, my counsel says, under which I might proceed against Atkinson. As to how he got the tickets I do not know. I have given orders that the pass system be abolished. Visiting days will be Sundays and Wednesdays. Visitors thereafter need simply to present themselves, and after being searched will be admitted without further red tape."

FRAUNCES'S TAVERN SITE.

Society for Preservation of Historic Places Would Have City Acquire It.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Society for the Preservation of Scenic and Historic Places and objects held its first memorial meeting yesterday afternoon at the historic Fraunces's Tavern, one of the oldest landmarks in this city. The meeting was in celebration of the one hundred and seventeenth anniversary of the famous "farewell" of Gen. Washington to his fellow-officers after the War of the Revolution.

The Women's Auxiliary was formed last April, and it has now 110 members. Its object is to interest American women everywhere in the preservation of all historical places and objects, and particularly of Fraunces's Tavern, the Morris Mansion, and the Poe cottage. The officers are:

Mrs. M. Fay Peirce, Chairman; Mrs. William Brookfield, Treasurer; Mrs. Edward C. Waters, Mrs. V. P. Humason, and Mrs. James E. Pope, Secretaries.

Miss Vanderpoel, Mrs. S. V. White, Mrs. James W. Henning, Mrs. William Tod Helmuth, Mrs. Washington A. Roebling, Mrs. Abner C. Thomas, Mrs. Frank C. Loveland, Mrs. John C. Marin, Mrs. Helen L. Deas, Mrs. Edwin H. Wootton, and Mrs. John F. Ritter.

On the Advisory Board are Mrs. Robert Hoe, Mrs. Charles R. Flint, Mrs. F. H. Bosworth, and Miss Julia Chester Wells.

The meetings have hitherto been held at the Buckingham Hotel, but it is proposed in future to meet every year on Dec. 4 at Fraunces's Tavern.

Fraunces's Tavern, which is situated at the corner of Broad and Pearl Streets, was about 1762 the most famous public house in New York. During the early days of the Revolution it was the favorite meeting place for the Whigs, and was once fired on by a British warship anchored in the bay.

Two stories have been added to the famous old building, and many other alterations made that have completely robbed the tavern of its old-time characteristic features, and transformed it into a very modern-looking and commonplace lager beer saloon.

This desecration the members of the Women's Auxiliary seek to have stopped. They propose that the city should acquire the entire block, transform the land into a public park, and restore Fraunces's Tavern to what it was in Revolutionary days as a sort of Mecca for American patriotism. A similar suggestion was made two years ago by the Daughters of the American Revolution, but nothing came of it. The present proprietor refuses to sell the tavern, it is said, so the society asks that the city condemn the block and restore the place so that it may become a patriotic museum for educational purposes.

At the meeting yesterday were Mrs. M. Fay Peirce, Mrs. William Brookfield, Mrs. John C. Marin, Mrs. V. G. Humason, Mrs. Charles R. Flint, Mrs. N. L. Zabriskie, Mrs. Payson Merrill, Mrs. E. L. Boas, Mrs. Robert Hoe, Mrs. S. V. White, Mrs. E. E. Waters, Mrs. W. H. Trafton, Andrew H. Green, and others.

Mrs. Emil L. Boas, the organizer of the auxiliary, read a brief history of the tavern, after which Andrew H. Green, President of the parent society, made a few remarks approving the plan for preserving the tavern and suggesting that an appeal to that effect be made to the Legislature. After the discussion the members and their guests partook of tea.

SUES FOR LOST MANUSCRIPT.

Yale Professor Wants $6,000 from a New Haven Newspaper.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 4.—A unique suit has been returned to the Superior Court in this city on issues that are extraordinary. Prof. Horatio W. Parker, Battell Professor of Music in Yale University, and author of "Hora Novissima" and other works of music, sues a local newspaper for $6,000 damages for failure to return a manuscript of his lecture on "Church Music."

Prof. Parker sets forth in his complaint that on April 10, 1900, he loaned the manuscript to the defendant through one of its representatives, with the understanding that it should be returned. It was not returned, according to his complaint, and he is unable to reproduce it. He values the manuscript intrinsically at $1,000 and his loss by failure to fill engagements to lecture on the subject at $5,000.

THE NEWS IN NEW JERSEY

STRIKE IN A SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Teachers Complain to Jersey City Presbytery About the Pastor of a Paterson Church.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 4.—The troubles in the First Presbyterian Church in this city have culminated in a strike of the Sunday school teachers. Twelve of the young women drew up a petition to the Presbytery of Jersey City setting forth their grievances and stating that until the troubles between the pastor, the Rev. Dr. F. E. Miller, and the parishioners is healed they feel it to be their "duty to the cause of Christ and to Presbyterianism" to quit the school.

Of Dr. Miller the young women say: "His efforts are so consumed in an endeavor to bring about the sale of the church property that we fear his devotion to the interests of our Saviour's cause has been blinded." They then condemn "the unjust treatment" given by the pastor to W. A. Arnold, formerly Superintendent of the Sunday school, and conclude their appeal as follows:

And, although we greatly deplore the necessity of this step, we feel impelled to take it by the fact that our efforts are rendered of little effect by the disgraceful proceedings in the church, the pupils frequently interrupting the lesson to inquire about the fight.

And, lastly, we most earnestly and humbly entreat you to bring about a solution of our disturbed affairs and to put an end to the unChristianlike influences that makes our church and Sabbath school the jest of the unconverted and a shame to the converted, to the end that we may return to the church of our choice and labor for the Master there.

LOAN AND BUILDING SOCIETIES.

Banking Commissioner Attributes Three Failures to Excessive Salaries.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 4.—Banking and Insurance Commissioner Bettle filed his annual report with the Governor to-day. It shows there are 360 building and loan associations in the State. This is an increase of two over last year. All but one of the 360 associations made reports. The accounts of the association not reporting were kept by the Secretary, who died during the year, and were not figured out in time to be included. The association, the report states, is perfectly solvent and in good condition.

During the year four associations were placed in the hands of receivers. They were the Empire Loan and Investment Company of Newark, the Merchants and Mechanics' Savings Fund and Building Association, the New Jersey Building and Loan Association of Newark, and the Dime Savings and Loan Association of Jersey City. The failure of three of the associations is attributed by the Banking Commissioner to excessive salaries, while that of the Merchants and Mechanics' Savings Fund and Building Association was due to the depreciation of real estate in and around Bridgeton upon which loans had been made.

Of the 360 associations included in the report, 344 are local, 12 are State, and 4 are National associations.

The total membership of the associations is 129,131, representing 391,803 shares. This is an increase in membership for the year of 7,916 and of 49,832 in shares. The gross assets of all the associations is $51,125,050. The total net worth of the outstanding shares is $47,561,890.

The report shows that, with about eight times as much received in dues and with over three times as many members and three times as many shares in existence, it cost the locals less for salaries and Commissioners than it did the State associations. The report adds:

Economy in administration is a fundemental principle in the scheme of the true building and loan association, and where the opposite conditions exist, more or less injustice to the members is the result. The greater the cost of conducting the business the heavier the burden imposed upon the shareholders, and the smaller their returns. In no other class of institutions are costly methods quite so indefensible and so entirely unessential to the attainments of the object in view.

LOOKING FOR AIR-GUN CRANK.

Unknown Man in Hoboken Shoots Through Windows of Residences.

The Hoboken police are searching for a man who is supposed to be amusing himself with a heavy air gun and firing bullets through windows.

The only person whose life seems to have been endangered is Mrs. Mary Colten of 306 Garden Street. She was sitting at a window at 10 o'clock Monday night when the glass was broken and a bullet passed over her head, burying itself in the wall opposite. Another bullet was fired through a window of 302 Garden Street on Saturday night, but there was no one in the room at the time.

MAN'S DETERMINED SUICIDE.

Tied a Heavy Stone About His Neck and Jumped Into the River.

Early yesterday morning a man ran down to the river at West New York, N. J., and jumped from the end of a pier. He sank immediately. When the body was recovered it was found that the suicide had tied a heavy stone about his neck. In a pocket of his coat was found a card of Duncan Bryan, 328 Washington Street, Hoboken.

Mr. Bryan identified the suicide as Archibald Thompson, who formerly boarded with a family named Seers in Jersey City, but whose last residence he did not know. He said that Thompson had been in poor health and out of work for some months; also that the man has wealthy relatives in New York, but he does not know their address.

JOHN KRIL ACQUITTED.

Was Accused of Being the Thief Who Snatched Woman Cashier's Satchel.

John Kril, who was charged with snatching a satchel containing $1,338 in cash and $330 in checks from Miss Laura Rickerich, cashier of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, Jersey City, as she was entering the Hudson County National Bank on July 17, was acquitted yesterday in the General Sessions Court.

George L. Ruggles and Arthur E. Farrier, who saw the robbery from the bank window, identified Kril as the man, but George Outwater and Samuel Herbert, who were opposite the bank at the time, swore positively that Kril was not the robber. They both pursued the thief, and as he went over the fence of the Reformed Church in his flight were very near to the fugitive. Mrs. Mary Carroll, who also saw the robbery, corroborated these witnesses.

Kril was arrested because he had deposited $290 in the Provident Institution for Savings adjoining the Hudson County National Bank half an hour after the robbery.

The robbery created unusual excitement for the reason that the thief in his flight ran through the hallway of a house on Sussex Street, and an aged woman named Fehring, who saw him, suffered an attack of heart disease from which she died.

MARRIAGE BUREAU COMPLETE.

Even Indispensable Ring Was Forthcoming in Clerk Keubler's Office.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 4.—County Clerk William O. Keubler has often boasted that the machinery of his office was in such excellent order that he could supply off hand any possible demand made upon it. The boast was put to a test to-day, and was upheld.

Daniel Schaeffer of 167 Bloome Street and Dora Samil, thirty years old, of 187 Spruce Street, visited the office and informed the County Clerk that they desired to be married. In a few minutes the County Clerk produced Justice of the Peace Cohen, a book containing blank marriage certificates, Miss Kittie Lovett, and Lloyd H. McKee, employes in the office, and announced that the ceremony might proceed.

Justice Cohen began the ceremony and all went smooth until he asked for the ring. Bridegroom and bride had forgotten to provide one. "Never mind," said Miss Lovett, the bridesmaid, "I have one on my desk that you may have, and welcome." Mr. McKee hastened to Miss Lovett's desk, obtained the ring, and the ceremony went on.

"Can't beat us. All the comforts of home," remarked the clerk as Mr. and Mrs. Schaeffer departed.

ALCOHOL HAD RATTLER IN IT.

Angry Wife Drank the Liquid and, It Is Said, Will Die.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 4.—Mrs. Nellie Dawson is expected to die from the effects of a quantity of alcohol which she swallowed in a fit of anger. She had a quarrel with her husband, and while angered seized a bottle of alcohol in which was a small rattlesnake and drank the liquid.

The husband summoned a physician, who did everything possible for the woman, but it is said she cannot recover.

New Banking Concern for Newark.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Dec. 4.—A movement is on foot in the Roseville section of Newark to organize a banking and trust company. The site selected for the building is said to be the property at 122 Roseville Avenue, owned by Charles Sleight. The movement is backed, it is said, by the Crocker-Wheeler Company, manufacturers of electrical apparatus at Ampu; Justice J. Franklin Fort, and several well-known banking concerns in Newark and East Orange.

Instantly Shocked to Death.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., Dec. 4.—Alexander Hamilton, a baker's employe, was accidently killed here to-night. He was driving his wagon when he noticed a loosened telephone wire lying across the street. He alighted and picking up the wire began to coil it about his arm, when it came in contact with an electric light wire, and the current caused his instant death. He leaves a wife and child.

SOLD A "HOLY HEALING OIL."

Magistrate Cannot Determine What Offense Mrs. Celisei Committed.

Magistrate Deuel, sitting in the West Side Court, yesterday afternoon was in a quandary as to just what complaint he should entertain against Mrs. Rebecca Calisel, arrested for attempting to sell what she called "St. Anthony's Oil" and other articles.

Mrs. Calisel on last Saturday afternoon called on Mrs. Nellie Deppolder of 444 West Fifty-fourth Street, and offered to sell her two bottles containing "St. Anthony's Oil" for $1.75. She said the oil came from Rome, was holy, and possessed wonderful properties. Mrs. Deppolder was assured the mixtures would make straight the eye of her son, which had a "cast." Mrs. Deppolder referred her to her sister, Mrs. Mamie Greene, 827 Tenth Avenue, who is blind in one eye. Mrs. Greene was assured her sight would be restored by the stuff and agreed to pay $1.75 for it.

The sisters told Father Egan of the Church of the Sacred Heart, on West Fifty-first Street, of their discovery. The priest denounced the woman as a fraud and her arrest followed. In court Mrs. Calisel said she believed her preparations had merit One of them, it was learned, contained only cheap olive oil.

Magistrate Deuel held Mrs. Calisel in $300 for examination this afternoon. The woman had not taken money under false pretenses, nor violated the laws relative to medicines. It has not been determined for what offense she will be prosecuted.

HEPNERS IN COURT AGAIN.

Counsel for Actress Asks Leave to Amend Divorce Complaint.

Another stage was reached yesterday in the sensational and thoroughly aired marital troubles of William Hepner, the Broadway theatrical wigmaker, and his actress wife, Louise. In January of this year, it will be remembered, Mrs. Hepner, who had but recently returned from a tour of Australia with "The Belle of New York" company, wrote her husband a long letter, in which she frankly avowed that she was in love with George W. Lesile, and begged that her husband be kind enough to allow her to get a divorce.

Hepner declined, with thanks, the offer of his freedom. Mrs. Hepner last July began suit for divorce, naming Minnie Russell and Florence Lee of this city. On Oct. 9 last Justice Bishop denied a motion for alimony, observing at the time that, in view of Mrs. Hepner's letter to her husband, "her defeat was viewed as established."

An application was made in the Supreme Court yesterday by Howe & Hummel, counsel for Mrs. Henner, to amend the complaint. The application was accompanied by the affidavit of Bertha Oliver of 168 Dearborn Avenue, Chicago, who said that she married Hepner in Milwaukee in 1891 and was divorced by him in 1895. Her affidavit states that Hepner came to Chicago last June and lived with her for two months. During that time he showed her, according to her affidavit, letters from Florence Lee, and told her that he was tired of his wife, and intended to ruin her professionally and otherwise. The application comes up for argument Dec. 10.

Dress Goods Prices Cut in Two!

An extraordinary, we may well say unparalleled, offering that will cause a sensation in Dress Goods circles!

To be perfectly frank about it—we are forced to sacrifice a large lot of our choicest Dress Goods. No store would voluntarily accept such losses if there was another way out of it—but there is no other way.

Xmas is close at hand—room must be had on the Main floor for the display and sale of goods especially procured for the holidays—staple stocks must be condensed into smaller spaces, and here we have a great unwieldy stock of Dress Goods that but for the warm days of October and November would have been sold long ago—blocking our way.

We have but 4 days within which to sell—then the move must be made—and to make sure of the selling we have cut the very life out of prices.

Read of the Five Great Bargain Lots that will go on sale this morning—and never for a moment forget that the offerings concern not a lot of job lots—or undesirable goods—but dress materials of the very first order—the newest of the new—the choicest of the choice—every yard being warranted perfect in dye and weave.

at 75c. a yard, reduced from $1.50.

Jet black English Fancies in neat and beautiful designs, large selection of patterns to choose from.

Pastel Plaids, the newest and richest fabric for waists, made on a double width French Flannel, in real French color combinations. Also embroidered Polka Dot Henriettas, heavy 1½ yards wide Cheviots and Prunellas in popular colors and Coverts, Whipcords, etc., a perfectly grand assortment.

ANOTHER CORNER IN CORN.

Rumors in Chicago that the December Option Is Under Control.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Indications on the Board of Trade are that another corner is hatching in corn, this time in the December option. Conditions are practically the same now as they were in the November options, manipulated by Phillips, with the probability that the local stocks of contract corn will be still further depleted.

The market for December corn was nervous to-day. It opened at 36 cents, advanced to 37⅛, declined to 36, and then rallied again to 36⅞. Contract stocks here are only 1,300,000 bushels, and nearly all of this, it is stated, has found an Eastern market. Receipts show about 1 per cent. of contract grade. Phillips was credited with taking in 500,000 bushels during the day. There is little old corn in the country, traders say, and bad roads make it difficult to bring that to market.

J. W. CROWELL MURDERED.

Claimant to an English Estate Found Dying in His Barn.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Dec. 4.—News of the death of John W. Crowell, who was found dying last night in his barn, aroused great interest among the citizens of Wakefield to-day. He was well known as a trader and as one of the so-called heirs of the Crowell "estate" in England. Medical Examiner Jack of Melrose, assisted by Chief of Police Hallett of Wakefield and others, began an autopsy to-day to determine, if possible, whether Crowell was murdered or committed suicide.

When Crowell was found lying in his barn, with several bullet wounds in his body, by his wife, about 9 o'clock last evening, she understood him to say that some one had gone with his pocketbook. His rambling statement was construed to mean that Crowell had been assaulted, robbed, and shot by some one.

Mr. Crowell was sixty-seven years of age, and was said to be a native of England. He is survived by a widow and a married daughter. He is said to have spent much money in making investigations in regard to a fortune said to have been left in England about 100 years ago by a citizen of Bristol, known as John Crowell. The fortune was estimated by some to amount to as much as $30,000,000, but English bank officials and persons familiar with the chancery courts of England at different times have declared that the Crowell fortune was a myth.

The police later in the day announced that Mr. Crowell's pocketbook, which last night could not be found, was in one of the pockets of Crowell's clothing. It contained $4. After the autopsy Medical Examiner Jack expressed the opinion that the case was one of murder. At least one of the shots was fired from a distance

SECRETARY GAGE'S ANNUAL REPORT

Describes Condition and Work of the Treasury in Detail.

CURRENCY SYSTEM CRITICISED

Its Need for Reinforcement—Remarkable Development in Tropical and Oriental Trade—Growth of Porto Rican Commerce.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Secretary Gage's annual report will be sent to Congress tomorrow. It covers a wide variety of subjects, as the Treasury Department is a department of many bureaus, a number of which have no relation to the currency. The reports of several of the heads of Treasury Department bureaus have been heretofore published, and the references which are made in the Secretary's report to the working of these bureaus are necessarily a repetition.

The important feature of the Secretary's report is his assertion that the present currency system is not satisfactory, being more responsive to the market price of Government bonds than to the requirements of trade and industry. The measures which have been passed by Congress to strengthen the currency system have, he says, produced good results, but need reinforcement in important particulars. While inviting the earnest attention of Congress to the deficiencies of the existing system, the Secretary does not urge immediate legislation.

The Secretary's report starts with a statement of receipts and expenditures of the Government from all sources for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900. This statement is as follows:

Comparison of the state of the Treasury shows an increase of $24,887,093.39 in the available cash balance, exclusive of the reserve of $150,000,000 for this year. The cash actually in the vaults of the Treasury, as distinguished from the deposits in banks and other assets not consisting of money, increased by $6,621,398.14. The most notable increase was in the smaller denominations of paper currency, which are in demand for moving the crops. Of these, the Treasury held $14,062,172 more than last year. The excess of assets over current liabilities was, on June 30, $40,723,017.60 in 1899, and $50,327,-501.70 in 1900.

As the resources of the Treasury became greater than its immediate needs, a series of measures was adopted for restoring the surplus to the use of business. The Secretary details what these measures were. The financial world is familiar with them.

In the year ended Sept. 30, 1900, notes and certificates of the value of $523,192,000 were impressed with the seal of the department, and prepared for issue, as against $362,-412,060 in the twelve months preceding. A largely increased share of the new currency, the Secretary says, was of the denomination of $20 and under. The redemptions of worn paper money in the same periods were $303,219,824 in 1900, and $255,027,980 in 1899.

COINS AND COINAGE.

On the subject of coinage the Secretary says:

The authority to increase the issue of subsidiary silver coin to $100,000,000, which was granted by the act of March 14, 1900, has been a convenience both to the Treasury and to the people. The Department, through the Mint, has been enabled to supply all demands for them, and their circulation increased by Oct. 1, 1900, to $79,432,193.

The receipts and deposits of bullion at mints and assay offices, including redeposits, aggregated $238,755,736.24, of which $203,553,813.88 was gold and $35,201,922.36 silver, classified as follows:

GOLD.

Domestic bullion	$87,458,836.23
Mutilated and uncurrent domestic coin	1,389,096.68
Foreign bullion and coin	41,554,645.75
Old plate and jewelry	3,517,540.93
Total original deposits	$133,920,119.59
Redeposits	99,633,694.29
Total deposits	$203,553,813.88

SILVER.

Domestic bullion	$6,436,173.06

Total original deposits	$13,260,959.84
Total deposits	$35,201,922.36

Silver bullion purchased under the provisions of Section 3,529, Revised Statutes, for coinage of subsidiary silver aggregated 1,290,055.94 standard ounces, costing $908,868.86.

The coinage executed during the fiscal year was:

Silver dollars	18,244,084.00
Subsidiary silver	12,876,849.15
Minor	2,243,017.21
Total	$141,301,960.36

There was coined 50,000 Lafayette souvenir silver dollars, which are not included in the above coinage of silver dollars.

Uncurrent gold coins of the face value of $1,401,454.50 and mutilated silver coins of the face value of $5,261,070.35 were received by transfer from the Treasury and by purchase over the counter. This represents in new gold coin $1,389,096.68, and in new subsidiary silver coin $4,960,070.60.

VALUE OF GOLD AND SILVER.

The balance of silver bullion on hand at the mints and assay offices of the United States for the coinage of silver dollars, subsidiary silver coins and for payment of deposits of silver bullion in fine bars, July 1, 1900, was 83,740,690.96 standard ounces, the cost of which was $68,224,562.31. The net seigniorage on the coinage of silver from July 1, 1878, to June 30, 1900, is given as $102,275,480.12. The report says:

The minor coins manufactured during the year, $2,095,795.54 were from new material and $156,311.67 from old and uncurrent minor coins transferred from the Treasury for recoinage. The total amount of minor coins outstanding July 1, 1900, was $30,181,851.11.

During the fiscal year there were minufactured gold bars of the value of $95,267,169.02, and silver bars, $8,649,307.14.

The highest quotation in the London market for silver 0.925 fine during the fiscal year was 28 9-16d., equal to $0.62612 in United States money per ounce fine. The lowest quotation was 26 ⅝d., equivalent to $0.58365. The average price for the fiscal year was 27⅝d., equivalent to $0.60017.

The bullion value of the United States standard dollar, at the highest price for the year, was $0.48426, and the lowest $0.45141, and at the average price, $0.46419.

The commercial ratio of gold to silver at the average price was 1 to 34.44.

The number of grains of pure silver at the average price that could be purchased with a United States silver dollar was 799.77, equivalent to 1 2-3 fine ounces.

The expenditures necessary to maintain the various institutions connected with the mint service during the fiscal year were $1,703,492.64. The earnings from all sources during the sams period were $10,641,940.60, showing a surplus of earnings over expenditures of $8,038,447.96.

The net exports of gold during the fiscal year were $3,693,575, as against the net imports of $51,429,099 for the fiscal year 1899. The net silver exports were $21,455,973, as against $25,634,-917 for the previous fiscal year.

The value of gold and silver consumed in the industrial arts by the United States during the calendar year 1899 was: Gold, $17,847,178; silver, coining value, $15,677,663, a total of $33,524,841. There were consumed in new material, in the manufacture of bars: Gold, $15,112,193; silver, $13,630,079. The amount of new material consumed in the industrial arts in the world was: Gold, $72,658,500, and silver, coining value, $52,-996,500.

The total metallic stock in the United States on July 1, 1900, was: Gold, $1,034,430,264; silver, $647,371,030.

The estimated production of the precious metals in the United States during the calendar year 1899 was:

	Fine Ounces.	Commercial Value.	Coining Value.

Limited-tender silver	926,800,000
Total metallic stock	$8,659,900,000
Uncovered paper	2,960,100,000
Grand total	$11,620,000,000

NATIONAL BANK DEPOSITARIES.

Of the National Bank depositaries and the manner in which their funds were made available on call the Secretary says:

The monetary transactions of the Government have been conducted through the Treasurer of the United States, 9 Sub-Treasury officers, and 444 National bank depositaries. The amount of public moneys held by the bank depositaries on June 30, 1900, including funds to the credit of the Treasurer's general account and United States disbursing officers, was $98,736,806.93, an increase since June 30, 1899, in amount of holdings of $30,453,151.63. Of the bank depositaries, nearly 240 were specially designated to hold funds deposited therewith temporarily, and the balances held therein will be reduced gradually as the moneys are needed for current disbursements.

In every State except Mississippi and Nevada, and in every Territory except Arizona and the Indian Territory, depositaries were designated. While the surplus permitted, every applicant, wherever located, offering the necessary bonds received the share of deposits desired.

These depositary funds are available for the use of the Government as the convenience of the Treasury may demand. In order to meet the payment for the funded loan of 1891, called May 18, 1900, notices as follows were served on the banks, asking for the transfer to the Sub-Treasuries of a percentage of the funds held by them: On May 23, for the transfer of $4,041,900 on or before June 5; on June 7, for the transfer of $4,966,900 on or before June 20, and again on June 25, for the transfer of $4,945,800 on or before July 16. These funds all reached the Sub-Treasuries at or before the times fixed without the slightest default.

The Secretary calls the attention of Congress to the inconvenience of handling public moneys in Hawaii and prospectively in Porto Rico, resulting from the provision in Section 5,153 Revised Statutes, forbidding the deposits of receipts from customs in National bank depositaries. He says:

At present the Collector of Customs in Hawaii is obliged to send all moneys collected by him on account of duties on imports to the Sub-Treasury at San Francisco, while public moneys required for use in Hawaii may, as a consequence, have to be transmitted by express or otherwise to the islands. Thus a double expense and increased risk and unnecessary delay in the public business may be and is occasioned. There seems to be good reason why customs receipts of Hawaii and other island points should be excepted from the provision of Section 5,153, Revised Statutes, which requires the deposit of customs receipts in a Sub-Treasury. Liberty should be given to Collectors of Customs at the places indicated to deposit receipts with designated depositaries, as is now permitted by law in the case of Collectors of Internal Revenue.

For the most part the Secretary's remarks upon National banks were covered in the report of the Controller of the Currency. He makes some interesting observations upon National bank note circulation. Speaking of the increase of this circulation from March 14 to Oct. 31 of $17,587,038, he says:

This increase is probably no more than sufficient to keep pace with expanding trade. Under existing law, National banks are entitled to take out circulation to the full amount of their capital, which on Oct. 31 was $632,502,395. There is no likelihood that this privilege will be availed of to the fullest extent. The antecedent requirement for the purchase and deposit of United States bonds acts through advance in price upon the issue

ISTHMIAN CANAL REPORT

The President Sends Commission's Findings to Congress.

NICARAGUA ROUTE APPROVED

Estimated Cost, $200,540,000 — Would Accommodate Largest Vessels and Take Ten Years to Build.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The report of the Isthmian Canal Commission, submitted by the President to Congress to-day, gives as the unanimous conclusion of that body that "the most practicable and feasible route for an isthmian canal, under the control, management, and ownership of the United States, is that known as the Nicaragua route."

The commission estimates the cost of this route at $200,540,000. This estimate is much in excess of any heretofore made, and is due to increased dimensions and other features not heretofore considered. The commission also estimates the cost of a canal by the Panama route at $142,342,579, according to one route, or $156,378,258, according to another route.

The report is a document of about 17,000 words, almost as long as the President's message. Although the work of the commission is not yet completed, many of the field parties still being out, it has been sufficiently advanced to make it practicable at present, this preliminary report giving the essential findings. A thorough investigation has been made, not only of the Nicaragua and Panama route, but of other possible routes, the commission keeping in mind the industrial, commercial, and military value of an interoceanic canal, and also the rights, privileges, and franchises necessary to be secured for the construction of a canal under the control, management, and ownership of the United States.

The work of the commission was divided among five committees, with the understanding that they were to report their results and conclusions, with the evidence they had collected to the commission for its consideration and action. These committees were severally authorized to enter upon the investigation of the following subjects:

The Nicaragua route.
The Panama route.
Other possible routes.
The industrial, commercial, and military value of an interoceanic canal.
Rights, privileges, and franchises.

A detailed description is given of the trip over the several routes. Along the Nicaragua route it was found that the short section of partially constructed canal is perhaps in as good shape to-day as it was when the work was stopped. The buildings, however, are all rotten and the dredgers, boats, &c., are worthless. The commission visited President Zelaya and other leading officials of Nicaragua, and found them greatly interested in the project. The occupation of their territory by the United States for canal purposes did not seem to be regarded as a serious obstacle provided the sovereignty of the republic was respected.

Along the Panama route the commission found a large force of workmen engaged upon the canal line, about 2,000 in number, according to the Panama company. The canal had been opened to some extent at both ends. Immense quantities of machinery implements and tools were found along the route. Much of this property, the commission reports, is ill adapted to American methods of work and all of it is now from thirteen to twenty years old, so that no value should be given to the plant now on the isthmus. A visit was also made to President Iglesias of Costa Rica and his Cabinet, and a strong sentiment found to exist for an American canal along the Nicaragua route. Trips were also made along the Darien route.

After going over the several routes, the commission considered the dimensions of the canal to be built. Having in mind the increasing size of ocean-going vessels, it was determined to fix upon a depth of 35 feet at mean low water and a bottom width of 150 feet, with some increase of dimensions at certain points. These dimensions are larger than those proposed for any previous canal scheme. While they may seem excessive to-day, the commission points out that the canal is not likely to be opened within ten years, during which time the increase in maritime dimensions is likely to continue. A width of 150 feet will allow all but the very largest ships to pass each other in the canal, while the depth is more of a dimension to permit even the largest ships afloat to be manoeuvred. The size of locks is 740 feet length, 84 feet width in the clear, with a depth of 35 feet.

THE NICARAGUA ROUTE.

Taking up the Nicaragua route in detail, the commission says that the route adopted follows essentially the lines laid down by the Nicaragua Canal Commission in its report of 1897-9. It begins near Greytown on the Atlantic side, follows the San Juan River, enters Lake Nicaragua, and terminates at Brito on the Pacific side. The distance from ocean to ocean is about 183 miles. Plans are given for the great harbors required at Greytown and Brito.

The most difficult engineering work is the dam across the San Juan River to regulate the waters of the lake. The time required to build the canal hinges almost entirely on the time required for the construction of this dam. The commission says eight years would probably be a reasonable estimate for the time of building it. At least two years will be consumed in preparatory work and one ning a harbor at Greytown, so that if work on the dam should be commenced immediately thereafter, the time required for completing the entire work will be about 10 years.

The salient engineering problems connected with the Nicaragua Canal project, briefly outlined, are as follows:

First—The construction of harbors at the mouth of the canal.

Second—The excavation of the canal prism in the deeper cuttings between Greytown and the Florida lagoon.

Third—The heavy cutting near Boca San Carlos and at Toro Negro.

Fourth—The construction of the large dam at or near Boca San Carlos in connection with the creation of the summit level.

Fifth—The locks.

The commission then submits the following estimated cost of a canal on the Nicaragua route:

Eastern division, from Greytown to Boca San Carlos dam, $82,922,000.
Middle division, from Boca San Carlos dam to Las Lajas, $27,425,000.
Western division, from Las Lajas to Brito, $51,080,000.
Ninety-four miles of railroad, $7,550,000.
Total, $167,117,000.
Engineering, police, sanitation, and general contingencies, $33,423,000.
Aggregate, $200,540,000.

This estimate is for a canal suitable for navigation by the largest ships now in existence, modified in accordance with the terms of the bill pending in Congress. It provides for a double system of locks, so that navigation can be maintained if one system be closed for repairs or renewals. If a single lockage system is provided, the cost will be reduced $19,678,000. Narrowing the bottom one-third will permit a further reduction of $16,940,000. This would bring the estimated cost down to $163,913,000.

THE PANAMA PLANS.

Concerning the Panama route, the commission says its natural attraction lies in the combination of a very narrow isthmus with a low summit. The width of the isthmus is less than 25 miles, while the summit is barely 300 feet above mean tide. After a detailed description of the entire route, the commission gives the following estimated cost of completing the Panama route:

Colon entrance and harbor, $7,234,673.
Harbor to Bohio locks, including levee, $10,-718,288.
Bohio locks, including excavation, $10,982,345.
Lake Bohio, $2,795,349.
Obispo cut, $295,176.
Culebra cut, $44,378,227.
Pedro Miguel locks, including excavation and dam, $8,496,729.
Pedro Miguel level, $1,126,611.
Miraflores locks, including excavation and spillway, $5,729,507.
Pacific level, $4,559,914.
Bohio dam, $8,500,000.
Chagres spillway, $1,121,521.
Channel between the two lakes, $1,448,079.
Chagres diversion, $1,929,076.
Gatun dike diversion, $100,000.
Panama Railroad diversion, $1,267,500.
Total, $115,818,816.
Engineering, police, sanitation, and general contingencies, $27,721,763.
Aggregate, $142,342,579.

This estimate is capable of reduction to $115,941,215 if single locks and a narrow bottom are adopted. An alternative estimate is submitted, based on having the Alhajuela dam built to impound the waters of the upper Chagres. This estimate is $156,378,258.

The commission reports that the value of the French work already done is estimated at $32,934,065, including the stock of the Panama Railroad at par.

It is estimated that the tonnage that would use the canal will amount to 7,039,027 in 1900. Referring to the commercial advantages of an isthmian waterway, the report says:

As compared with Europe, the United States will derive from the canal far greater benefits, both commercially and industrially. The commerce of Europe with the Pacific Coast of North, Central, and South America under existing conditions is somewhat larger than the volume of the present traffic of the United States that may be considered tributary to the canal, but this fact does not indicate the relative advantages which the canal will possess for the trade of Europe and that of the United States. As soon as it has been opened our trade with the west coast of South America will rapidly increase, as will also the volume of our trade with the Orient. The amount of the American commerce through the canal will quickly surpass the total amount of European traffic.

An isthmian canal will strengthen the unity of the National and political interests of the United States, develop its Pacific territory, and promote the commerce and industries of the entire country. The benefits which Europe will derive from the canal will be commercial. In addition to this, ours will be political and industrial.

COMPARISON OF THE ROUTES.

The commission concludes with a careful comparison of the Nicaragua and Panama routes. It shows that distances between Atlantic and Pacific ports are shorter by the Nicaragua than the Panama route. This is in part offset by the increased time in getting through the Nicaragua Canal. The latter route is reported to be more favorable for sailing vessels. The Nicaragua route is also regarded as advantageous through its development of the country through which it passes.

It is pointed out that the Panama concession, now held by the French company, prohibits a cession of rights to any nation or foreign Government. The concession is limited, so that if the United States acquired it there would not be an absolute ownership in perpetuity, as the concession provides that the canal shall pass to Colombia after ninety-nine years.

The final conclusions of the commission are stated as follows:

1. The estimated cost of building the Nicaragua Canal is about $58,000,000 more than that of completing the Panama Canal, leaving out the cost of acquiring the latter property. This measures the difference in the magnitude of the obstacles to be overcome in the actual construction of the two canals, and covers all physical considerations, such as the greater or less height of dams, the greater or less depth of cuts, the presence or absence of natural harbors, the presence or absence of a railroad, the exemption from or liability to disease, and the amount of work remaining to be done.

The new Panama Canal Company has shown no disposition to sell its property to the United States. Should that company be able and willing to sell, there is reason to believe that the price would not be such as would make the total cost to the United States less than that of the Nicaragua Canal.

2. The Panama Canal, after completion, would be shorter, have fewer locks, and less curvature than the Nicaragua Canal. The measure of these advantages is the time required for a vessel to pass through, which is estimated for an average ship at twelve hours for Panama and thirty-three hours for Nicaragua.

On the other hand, the distance from San Francisco to New York is 377 miles, to New Orleans, 579 miles, and to Liverpool 3[illegible] miles greater via Panama than via Nicaragua. The time required to pass over these distances being greater than the difference in the time of transit through the canals, the Nicaragua line, after completion, would be superior in many advantageous of the two to the United States, notwithstanding the greater cost of maintaining the longer canal.

3. The Government of Colombia, in which lies the Panama Canal, has granted an exclusive concession," which has many years to run. It is not free to grant the necessary rights to the United States, except upon condition that an agreement be reached with the new Panama Canal Company. The commission believes that such agreement is impracticable. So far as can be ascertained, the company is not willing to sell its franchise, but it will allow the United States to become the owner of part of its stock. The commission considers such an arrangement inadmissible.

The Governments of Nicaragua and Costa Rica, on the other hand, are untrammeled by concessions, and are free to grant to the United States such privileges as may be mutually agreed upon.

In view of all the facts, and particularly in view of all the difficulties of obtaining the necessary rights, privileges, and franchises on the Panama route, and assuming that Nicaragua and Costa Rica recognize the value of the canal to themselves and are prepared to grant concessions on terms which are reasonable and acceptable to the United States, the commission is of the opinion that "the most practicable and feasible route for" an isthmian canal to be "under the control, management, and ownership of the United States" is that known as the Nicaragua route.

The report is signed by all the members of the commission.

THE HAY-PAUNCEFOTE TREATY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The prospects of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty have changed considerably since the opening of the Congressional session. In the last session the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate stood 9 to 2 against the treaty, the two being Senators Frye (Rep.) and Morgan, (Dem.) The death of Senator Davis, who was against the treaty, left it 8 to 2. But Senators Cullom and Proraker have come over to the Administration, and are now counted on to stand by the agreement. This leaves the committee only 6 to 4 against the bill. Of these six, two are Senators Wolcott of Colorado and Clark of Wyoming.

Mr. Clark has hitherto been counted against the bill, but he now refuses to say whether he is against it or not, which is taken to indicate that he is wavering in his opposition. There are rumors that Mr. Wolcott will not stand out against the treaty. He will be out of politics after March 4, and it is believed that he will not long withstand pressure by the Administration. The outlook is, therefore, that the committee will soon stand either 5 to 5 or 6 to 4 in favor of the bill.

THE CANAL BILL IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The Senate Committee on Interoceanic Canals held a meeting to-day at the instance of its Chairman, Senator Morgan, to consider the status of the Nicaragua Canal bill. The bill is the special order in the Senate for next Monday, but there is a desire on the part of the Republican managers to have it postponed, for a time at least, pending the consideration of the Subsidy Shipping bill and the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. Senator Hanna, who is especially interested in the Shipping bill, sat with the committee, presenting the views of the Republican managers on the relative claims of the various measures to precedence in the matter of consideration.

The committee did not reach any definite conclusion as to the line of action to be pursued. When the committee adjourned, however, the members believed from the expressions of the friends of the Canal bill, and especially from Senator Morgan's attitude as developed at the meeting, that there would be no effort on the part of the friends of the bill to obstruct the Subsidy bill with the Canal bill.

Senator Morgan admitted that if the Subsidy bill should be made the regular order of the Senate, as contemplated, that action would not be delayed for the purpose of displacing the special order. He did not seem disturbed over this fact, but, on the contrary, appeared quite satisfied with the virtual assurances of other members of the committee that the Canal bill should follow the Subsidy measure for consideration. He also expressed his willingness that the Hay-Pauncefote treaty should be acted upon in advance of action upon the Canal bill.

BRITISH COMMENT ON THE CANAL.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Times, referring to President McKinley's allusions to the Nicaragua Canal, says:

"It is a fascinating scheme, but we have some doubt as to whether the canal would be commercially worth cutting. The analogy with the Suez Canal is very imperfect. The Isthmus of Suez lies along one of the greatest trade routes and joins great trading communities. It has no railway rivals. Nicaragua lacks all of these advantages.

"It is rather sad to think that such a striking correction of nature may fail to pay its way, but the objections are serious, and they have not yet received all the attention they merit."

"Great Britain cannot but view with satisfaction the cutting of the Nicaragua Canal," says The Morning Post, "provided it is free to all nations at equal rates in time of peace and is treated as part of the open sea during war. This is the minimum of the British demand. We trust that our neighbors will see that it is just."

The Globe declares that Washington is "not entitled to override our treaty-secured rights in any part of Central America, except with the consent of our Government. The Hay-Pauncefote compromise goes to the furthest in extreme conciliation, and represents this country's very last word, and the United States must either accept the proposal as it stands or abide by the ruling of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, however embarrassing its provisions may be to American imperialism."

The Westminster Gazette says it hopes Great Britain will not drift apart from the United States' sensible China policy, owing to the supposed necessity for supporting Germany's forward policy.

ARMY BILL IN THE HOUSE

Democratic Filibustering May Prove Disastrous.

Opposition to Passage of the Bill Would Delay Return of Volunteers in the Philippines.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The Army Reorganization bill was reported to-day, and Representative Hull (Rep., Iowa,) attempted to get unanimous consent for its consideration to-morrow, but objection was made by Mr. Sulzer, (Dem., N. Y.) This will not greatly delay the Republican effort to shove it through, for Mr. Hull offered a resolution to make it a special order after the reading of The Journal to-morrow, and providing for three hours' debate on each side.

One reason for the Republican insistence upon the immediate passage of this bill is that an ugly problem confronts the War Department. A little parliamentary delay in the passage of the bill will break up the plans for the speedy mustering out of the volunteers. The ordinary amount of parliamentary delay would set at naught all the plans of the department, and a little filibustering will keep the volunteers in the Philippines beyond their term of enlistment.

The Democrats have it in their power, by filibustering against the Army bill, to see to it that the last volunteer does not reach his home until three months after the time prescribed by law for his mustering out. Whether they will care to assume the responsibility of this act, in view of the sentiment which will be excited among the friends of the volunteers, remains to be seen. They cannot delay the bill in the House, but if a little of Mr. Sulzer's spirit extends to the Senate, it is very likely that the Democrats will shoulder the responsibility of making the volunteers stay away from their friends several months after they should be home.

The law provides that the volunteers must be mustered out on July 1. Not one of them can be compelled to remain in the Philippines beyond that date. The War Department has made preparations to send them home, and everything has been arranged so that their mustering out shall not be delayed a day. The War Department is ready to do its part, and the rest depends on Congress. Quartermaster General Ludington has made a schedule by which the return of all the volunteers can be accomplished in thre months, which is about half the time which has been assigned to the task by all previous estimates. By his schedule, starting the regiments home at a given time, the last volunteer would reach American shores to be mustered out on July 1, three months after the first detachment had arrived.

But the War Department has made up its mind that whatever happens the lives and property of the friendly Filipinos must be protected. If the rebellion continues as active and widespread as it now is until next Spring, and the withdrawal of the volunteers is begun at that time, Filipinos who have accepted the sovereignty of the United States and stood by it will be left to the mercy of their rebellious countrymen. Aside from any ethical consideration, the War Department believes that such a course would be absolutely fatal to all prospects of restoring peace in the Philippines with the co-operation of the friendly natives. They would refuse to stand by a Government which abandoned them, and would prefer to co-operate with the rebels.

If in the meantime arrangements are made by which the returning volunteers can be replaced, this danger will be averted But if Congress does not make such arrangements, the War Department, in pursuit of its policy of protection to the friendly natives, will keep the volunteers there as long as possible. They must be mustered out by the end of June, but it is possible to keep them in the Philippines until within a few days of that date and then start them for the United States. The last regiments might be mustered out in the Philippines. A regiment which it is now intended to start for home in March might thus be kept in the Philippines until June. The law provides that they are to be mustered out on July 1, but does not provide that they are to be sent home on Government transports three months before that date.

This is what Democratic filibustering against the Army bill may mean. The War Department will not give a date for the sending home of the volunteers because it does not know what arrangements are to be made by Congress. This must all be decided before the schedule is decided upon.

The Adjutant General's office estimates that it will take six months to recruit the new army, and the bill will have to be passed through as soon as possible in order that the War Department may know where it stands.

The bill reported is the Root bill amended. Most of these changes have been reported. Two sections were added to the bill to-day, the first of which is meant to cover the case of Gen. Shafter, and the second of Gens. Fitzhugh Lee and James H. Wilson. These sections are:

"41. That the President is hereby authorized to select from the retired list of the army an officer not above the rank of Brigadier General, who may have distinguished himself during the war with Spain in command of a separate army, and to appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, the officer so selected to be Major General, United States Army, with the pay and allowances established by law for officers of that grade on the retired list.'

"42. That the President is authorized to select from the Brigadier Generals of volunteers, two volunteer officers without regard to age, and appoint them Brigadier Generals, United States Army, for the purpose of placing them upon the retired list."

Other amendments are that the increase of the officers of artillery shall be in proportion to the increase of the number of men; that the Adjutant General shall have the rank of a Major General during the active service of the present incumbent, and thereafter the rank of Brigadier General; the age limit for appointment to staff positions is stricken out; the Surgeon General is authorized in emergencies to appoint as many contract Surgeons as may be necessary.

PATENT COMMISSION'S REPORT.

Drafts of Three Bills Submitted with It to Congress — Proposed New Trade Marks Law.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The committee appointed to revise the statutes relating to patents, trade marks, &c., to-day submitted a report of its conclusions to Congress. The commission consists of Francis Forbes, Peter S. Grosscup, and Arthur P. Greeley. The changes which they recommend are embodied in three proposed bills, drafts of which they submit with the report. None of the provisions of these bills affects the general provisions of the patent law, but in the matter of trade marks the commission recommends a complete revision of the present law, and a bill which covers the entire question is submitted.

Summarizing the results of the various hearings held by the members of the commission, they reach the conclusion that there is general agreement on the following propositions:

"First, that the international convention signed at Paris in 1883 is advantageous to the people of this country, and that the United States should provide for carrying out its provisions.

"Second, that the treaty relations of the United States, the interests of American manufacturers engaged in domestic trade, and particularly the interests of manufacturers engaged in foreign trade, demand a National trade mark law, which, so far as Congress has power to do so under the Constitution, shall regulate and protect trade marks used in commerce within the United States more satisfactorily than is now possible."

It also was generally agreed that, if the privilege of filing caveats under the same conditions as in the case of United States citizens could not be properly given to residents of foreign countries, the caveat should be abolished, it being generally considered that it is at the present time of little or no importance.

Wants West Point Hazing Investigated.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Mr. Driggs (Dem., N. Y.,) introduced a resolution in the House to-day requesting the Secretary of War to investigate the practice of hazing at West Point, and more particularly the hazing of Oscar L. Booz, formerly a cadet at the academy from the Seventh District of Ponnsylvania, who died yesterday.

PLEADS FOR ARMY OFFICERS.

Gen. Breckinridge Asks that They, on Retiring, Have Same Benefits as Naval Officers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The report of Gen. J. C. Breckinridge, Inspector General of the army, earnestly recommends that the benefits of the law of March 3, 1899, providing for the retirement of officers of the navy, under certain conditions, with the rank and pay of the next higher grade, be extended to include officers of the army. Most of our wars have been fought on land, says the report, and as a matter of simple justice, rewards for army officers should be no less extensive than those enjoyed by officers of the naval branch.

Gen. Breckinridge also touches upon the disadvantages imposed by inferior rank in the army, citing as an instance the China campaign, when Gen. Chaffee, a junior among the international commanders, was advanced from a Brigadier to a Major General to give him the rank requisite to his status as Commander in Chief of the United States forces in China. Gen. Breckinridge also notes that the grade of Brigadier General is abolished in most of the European armies, and is nearly as archaic as the rank of Commodore afloat.

Regarding the question of reorganizing the standing army, the General suggests a standard of 2 soldiers for every 1,000 of population, and submits statistics to show that, in the proportion of soldiers to population, and to the area of the country, and in the war budget in time of peace, the United States is far behind all of the great European nations.

Gen. Breckinridge claims for his department the credit of the discovery of the postal frauds in Cuba. He makes recommendation for additional clerical and messenger assistance in his department, and also earnestly suggests that the War Department provide the various military colleges throughout the country with capable and efficient military instructors.

TRANSPORTS CARRY THE DEAD.

California and Hancock Bring Soldiers' Remains from the East.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Quartermaster General Ludington has received a cable message from Gen. Humphrey, Quartermaster, with the troops in China, saying that the transport California sailed from Taku, China, on the 30th ult. for San Francisco with the remains of seventy-four soldiers and marines who died either of wounds or disease during the recent military operations in China. These remains were disinterred at Tien-Tsin, Pei-Tsang, and Kang-Tsen. All the bodies unclaimed by relatives will be buried in the National Cemetery at the Presidio, San Francisco, with military honors.

The Quartermaster General is also informed that the transport Hancock, which has just arrived at San Francisco, brought the remains of twenty-nine soldiers, marines, and citizens who lost their lives in the Philippines in the service of the Government. In addition, the vessel brought the remains of thirty-six soldiers and one marine who died in Honolulu. In most cases these remains will be turned over to relatives for private interment. All unclaimed, however, will be buried at the Presidio.

CONGRESSIONAL NOTES.

Representative McAleer of Pennsylvania introduced in the House a bill to appropriate $200,000 to establish a military park at Valley Forge.

Senator Fairbanks of Indiana introduced a bill to admit Oklahoma as a State, with two Representatives. The usual provisions for a Constitutional Convention and the grants of lands for State institutions are made.

The resignation of Mr. De Vries of California, who is now a member of the Board of General Appraisers, was laid before the House, as was the resignation of Mr. Babcock of Wisconsin as a member of the Committee on Insular Affairs.

Senator Proctor presented to the Senate a resolution of the Vermont Legislature asking a recognition of and reward for the services of Capt. Charles D. Clark, who commanded the battleship Oregon during the war with Spain. It was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Senator Clay of Georgia introduced bills providing for the admission free of duty of articles controlled by trusts, and for the refunding of the tax collected on raw cotton in the event that the Supreme Court holds to be unconstitutional the law under which the tax was collected.

Senator Pettigrew introduced a resolution in the Senate calling upon the Postmaster General to send to the Senate any information he may have in his possession concerning postal frauds in Cuba. Senator Platt (Connecticut) objection to immediate consideration, and the resolution went over for a day.

The resolution offered by Mr. Chandler on May 25 last to refer the credentials of William A. Clark and Martin Maginnis, appointed as Senators from Montana, to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, was called up by Mr. Carter of Montana. After some discussion the matter went over until to-morrow.

The Speaker announced the appointment of Mr. Hamilton (Rep., Mich.) as a member of the Committee on Insular Affairs, Mr. Overstreet (Rep., Ind.) as Chairman of the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice, and Mr. Davis (Dem., Fla.) and Mr. McDermott (Dem., N. J.) as members of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

The House passed a bill "to assist military instruction in the public schools." The bill authorizes the Secretary of War to detail commissioned officers upon the retired list, not to exceed 100, and non-commissioned officers, not to exceed 300, as military instructors in the public schools of such cities as should adopt military instruction as part of their curriculum.

J. P. Connor of Iowa, elected to succeed former Representative, now Senator, Dolliver, was sworn in in the House. Mr. Hepburn (Rep., Iowa) withdrew the credentials offered yesterday and offered new credentials. Mr. Bailey (Dem., Texas) questioned the form of the new credentials, but said that as a vacancy clearly existed in the district and as Mr. Connor had been duly elected he would make no objection.

The President sent to the Senate a large number of recess appointments. Among them were William D. Bynum of Indiana to be Commissioner to revise and codify the criminal and penal laws of the United States; Jacob Trieber of Arkansas to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Arkansas; William M. Johnson of New Jersey to be First Assistant Postmaster General.

A special order was adopted by the Senate assigning Mr. Dillingham, the new Senator from Vermont, to membership on the following committees: Civil Service, Engrossed Bills, Territories, Transportation Routes to the Seaboard, Additional Accommodations for the Library of Congress, and Indian Depredations. By the same order the following committee assignments were made to Mr. Dolliver, who yesterday took his seat as an Iowa Senator: Pacific Railroads, Agriculture, Education and Labor, Inter-State Commerce, Post Offices and Post Roads, and Improvements of the Mississippi River.

REDUCTION OF WAR TAXES

Committee May Take Off More Than $30,000,000.

Some Senators Are Determined to Fight for the Removal of the Entire Tax.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Since the Ways and Means Committee began discussion of the proposition to reduce the war taxes collected by the Internal Revenue Bureau, and reached the conclusion to lessen direct taxation by some $30,000,000 taken off of some of the businesses now taxed for war purposes, the members of that committee have ascertained that they cannot easily get rid of the determination of Senator Aldrich and other members of the Senate to insist upon a further reduction, possibly the sweeping away of the entire scheme of taxation created to meet the need of the Government during war.

Yesterday, in the House, Representative Babcock of Wisconsin, a State having large brewing interests, was announced as a member of the Ways and Means Committee to take the place of Mr. Dolliver. Today it is learned that the Ways and Means Committee discussed the advisability of making a greater reduction of taxes than was at first proposed, and that if the further reduction is decided upon the brewers shall enjoy a share of it. Members of the committee will not say what reduction will be made in the beer tax, or whether it will be fully as much as the tax added on the war account. From such admissions as could be obtained it was assumed that the brewers were to get not a full dollar reduction, but a pro rata of the additional reduction of taxes.

Senator Aldrich and Senator Allison have declared, and it is understood that stick to their declaration, that when any of the war taxes are taken off all are to be dropped. As the increased revenue from war taxes seems to exceed $100,000,000, some doubt is expressed as to whether it will be possible to dispense with all this revenue. The President and the Secretary of the Treasury agree in recommending the reduction by $30,000,000 and the Ways and Means Committee have taken the President at his word as literally as they did when he recommended that Porto Rico be accorded all the advantages of free trade with the United States.

The theory of Senator Aldrich is that it will be necessary sooner or later to take off all the taxes imposed in 1898, and that it will be wiser and better for business to take them all off now than to remove a part this year and then undertake next year to cut down in another direction. Discrimination in favor of one interest against another will, it is feared, get the committees of the Senate and House in hot water and add difficulty to the task of getting rid of special taxes.

It is not likely that the Ways and Means Committee will remove the tax on hides at this session. When Representative Payne, Chairman of the committee, was asked about the probability of such action he said:

"I was interested in the suggestion of THE NEW YORK TIMES that the tax on hides shall be removed. I agreed with THE TIMES in the opinion that there should be no tariff on hides. It was a good deal easier to put it on than it will be to take it off. When that tariff comes off the tariff will have to come off of other things. When we begin it will be hard to tell where a stop is to be made. I do not think that we shall succeed in taking up that question at this session."

WRECK OF THE YOSEMITE.

One of the Survivors Describes Attempts to Rig Steering Gear—Loss Was Inevitable.

MANILA, Dec. 4.—Two members of the crew of the United States auxiliary cruiser Yosemite, which recently foundered during a typhoon off the Island of Guam, have arrived at Cavite on board the United States transport Alava, which left Guam Nov. 26 with seventy-five marines who had been transferred to Cavite from Guam. The names of the two men of the wrecked vessel are John Barry, a carpenter, who was about to be relieved at the time of the disaster, and Henry Colligan, a hospital apprentice, who came on board the Alava to attend some of the sick marines.

Barry had much to do with rigging up the steering gear and in other attempts to save the Yosemite. A boom fifty feet long and a foot thick, which was rigged over her stern, snapped off when attempts were made to steer with it. By the time a stronger arrangement was effected, what was left of the propeller was almost out of the water, and the steamer was constantly settling lower by the head. No progress was possible, and all on board thought their last moment had come. The discipline on board was good.

After the Yosemite had drifted shoreward from her anchorage, she pounded on a reef The wind shifted with extreme suddenness and terrific force, and carried the vessel outward through such a narrow outlet in the harbor that no one understood how she got through. It was very dark and thick. The spray was blinding and the wind threatened to sweep the men into the water at any moment.

When asked whether there was any criticism among the men of the officers' action in abandoning the ship, the two men interviewed replied that practically every man conceded all had been done that was practicable, and abandonment of the vessel was the only course left. The official reports asserted that the sea valves were opened finally to expedite the sinking. Barry and Colligan said they knew nothing as to that point; but the attempts of the United States collier Justin to tow the cruiser were useless and the Yosemite would have sunk inevitably. The two men said they believed there was some difficulty with the pumps in getting water out of the forward compartment, but the hole in the bottom was so big that the cruiser must have sunk, no matter what had been done.

Several marines who were at Agana, Guam, during the typhoon said that three-quarters of the town was under water, and that all the dwellings were destroyed excepting those having tile roofs. The corrugated iron roofs surmounting the Government buildings and residences were for the most part lifted bodily.

The marines waded about and assisted women and children to places of refuge. The natives, after their losses, made but feeble efforts to repair the damage.

In the judgment of naval officers, the abandonment of the Yosemite was the only course feasible, the feeling being that the Justin might have stood by longer, but that the result would have been the same.

JUDGES FOR THE PHILIPPINES.

Bill Providing for Supreme Court Places Salary at $20.000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—In the Senate to-day Senator Stewart (Rep., Nev.,) introduced a bill creating a Supreme Court for the Philippine Islands, with five Judges, who are to be appointed for life and each of whom is to draw a salary of $20,000 per annum. The bill provides for an appeal or writs of error to the United States Supreme Court in all cases involving more than $20,000 and in those in which the Constitution of the United States is involved.

Speaking of his motive for placing the salary at so high a figure, Mr. Stewart said he had done so in order to secure men of character and professional standing for the office of Judge.

FAVORS MAIMED OFFICER.

Attorney General Says Lieut. Mallison Should Be Promoted.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The Attorney General has rendered an opinion in the case of Lieut. George Mallison, United States Navy, of great interest to naval officers. He says: "There is no reason why an officer, wounded in the service, should not be promoted as well as his fortunate brother, if there are duties in the higher grade which he can satisfactorily and sufficiently perform."

When an Ensign attached to the Olympia in 1895, Mallison was struck by a breaking anchor chain and lost a leg. He has since been unable to perform sea duty, but has rendered satisfactory service on detail duty ashore. Now he comes up under the law and must either be promoted or retired. The Attorney General says he may be promoted.

CONSTITUTIONS FOR CUBA.

Three Are Submitted to the Convention —A Negro General Offers That of the United States.

HAVANA, Dec. 4.—The Cuban Constitutional Convention resumed its sittings today with an afr of business. The first thing done was to defeat overwhelmingly the motion of Señor Gualberto Gomez to discuss Gen. Wood's address at the opening of the convention. This action will probably close the incident.

Three complete constitutions were submitted by Gen. Rivera, Señor de Quesada, and the colored General Morua, respectively. These will be printed and distributed among the delegates, who will discuss them later.

Gen. Rivera's proposed constitution provides for a President, a Senate, a House of Representatives, a Governor for each of the six provinces, a legislative body for each province, and for one member of the House of Representatives for every thirty thousand inhabitants, with election by popular vote. His scheme called also for the election of three electors in each municipal district, whose duty it shall be to elect a legislative body of eleven for the province in which they reside. This legislative body shall elect the Governor and four members of the Senate. Finally, the six Legislatures shall meet and choose the President, who must be a native Cuban. Candidates for Senatorial honors must have incomes of at least $1,500 a year.

Gen. Rivera's idea is to have the power vested in the central Government, and the convention virtually pledged itself to one State Government at yesterday's secret session.

Señor de Quesada's proposal would centralize the Government in a President, Senate, and House of Representatives elected by the people, suffrage being restricted to educational qualifications.

Gen. Morua offered for approval the Constitution of the United States, with the exception that any one who fought in the war might be chosen President. His proposal leaves the question of an army and navy to be decided by Congress.

Señor Zayas offered a clause providing that a judicial body higher than the Supreme Court should be elected by popular vote, and providing that any official removed from office should have the right of appeal to this body.

LAWMAKING IN PORTO RICO.

First Legislative Assembly of the Island Meets in San Juan—Gov. Allens's Message.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 4.—The Porto Rican House of Delegates, which was harmoniously organized yesterday, Señor Manuel F. Rossy being elected Speaker, met to-day in joint session with the Executive Council, the two bodies adopting a resolution to cable greetings to President McKinley.

Gov. Allen's message, consisting of 5,000 words, was well received. After congratulating the people of Porto Rico on the meeting of their first legislative Assembly, the Governor points out that the finances of the island are in a satisfactory condition, showing a balance of $1,5[illegible],495. The receipts from May to October inclusive were $1,041,686. The sum of $200,[illegible]68, the balance due from the customs, will be used to refund the chief revenue customs which cease in 1902

The Governor recommends an equitable system of taxation, including excise, inheritance tax, and a direct tax upon real estate, together with a general valuation of all property and the abolition of municipal taxes. He announces that there are now 800 schools in the island, an increase of 184 during the last year, and recommends that this number be augmented, and that increased appropriations be made for elementary education.

The reorganization of the judiciary and the jury system is also recommended, and an argument is made in favor of simpler forms of municipal government, the suggestion being that municipalities be divided into three classes, according to the population of the towns.

Gov. Allen asks for a repeal of the order giving Alcaldes judicial power, and recommends the establishment of Boards of Supervisors, similar to those in Massachusetts. He praises the insular police, but thinks the force should be increased for all towns having populations under 20,000. More roads are recommended.

The message advises that the United States Congress be petitioned to defend, widen, and clear San Juan Harbor. It calls attention to the fact that there are 650 persons confined in the county jails of the island, and says that additional prisons are needed. It recommends asylums for the blind and crippled, as well as poorhouses and other similar institutions.

The House of Delegates submitted to the Governor a petition for the pardon of all persons imprisoned on political charges since the commencement of the

MR. GAGE'S GLANCE AT THE FUTURE

The report of the Secretary of the Treasury is rather a statement of conditions than of plans or recommendations. In a way this is inevitable, since there is no office in the Government of greater importance and of less influence than his. He has absolutely no voice in the determination either of the amount to be raised or of the way in which it is to be spent. He has some limited control over the management of the debt and the distribution of deposits, but in the essential policy of the Government, as to currency and finance, his part is very small. He is almost compelled to confine himself to a statement of the condition of the Treasury and to advice that is apt to be academic.

The condition of the Treasury is, as we remarked of the reference to it in the message of the President, entirely easy. The only comment to be made upon it is that it is too easy. Following the close of the war with Spain, the revenues have steadily risen from $670,000,000 to $688,000,000 for the current year, with an estimate of $716,000,000 for the next year. The result is that after paying all the expenses of the Government, including the indemnity to Spain, there is a clean cash balance in the Treasury of $130,000,000, a surplus in sight for the current year of $80,000,000, and another for the succeeding year of $80,000,000. In these circumstances it is not at all surprising that the Secretary recommends the reduction of taxation. He limits himself to the amount agreed on between him and the President, $30,000,000 a year, stating that in addition he proposes to renew the contributions to the sinking fund at the rate of $50,000,000 a year. This is, on its face, equivalent to the reduction of the amount available for appropriations by Congress by $80,000,000 a year. But it is by no means certain to work in that way. In the first place, although taxes yielding $30,000,000 may be repealed, the yield of the remaining taxes may easily increase by the same or nearly the same amount. In the second place, the contribution to the sinking fund—the payment of the debt—although mandatory in terms, has always depended on the amount of money in the Treasury, and Congress has not hesitated practically or in terms to suspend it. It may, therefore, be either that Mr. GAGE will have more money at his disposal than he estimates, or that he may have less. What is, however, entirely certain is that there is not the slightest reasonable doubt that the expenditures for the next year or two will be very large; that the condition of the Treasury will remain easy, and that the business of the country will not be greatly affected directly by its operations.

There are two points as to which Mr. GAGE makes suggestions important in themselves, though not likely to attract attention in this session. One is the defect in the gold standard act of March 14. He says, after describing some of the undoubted good that has flowed from that act:

> Nevertheless, the measures referred to, prolific as they have been in good results, will yet need reinforcement in some important particulars. Thus, as to the redemption fund provided for in said act, while the powers conferred upon the Secretary are probably ample to enable a zealous and watchful officer to protect fully the gold reserve, there appears to be lacking sufficient mandatory requirement to furnish complete confidence in the continued parity, under all conditions, between our two forms of metallic money, silver and gold. Upon this point further legislation may become desirable.

This is, in substance, saying precisely what we insisted on during the recent canvass, that the absolute maintenance of the gold standard under the act of March 14, is not provided for, and that it depends on the views of the Secretary of the Treasury and of the Administration to which he belongs. That, clearly, is not a satisfactory situation. There are two changes in the law that are imperative. One is a declaration that all obligations of the United States shall be paid in gold. The other is that all forms of money issued by the United States, including the standard silver dollars and the silver certificates, shall be redeemed in gold at the option of the holder. Had Mr. GAGE recommended these changes at the present session he would not have been listened to, but it is well to keep them in mind, for the country will not be as secure as it should be until they are made.

The second suggestion of the Secretary is more specific. After stating that the addition to the National banknote circulation, under the act of last March, has been about $77,000,000, and that one excellent effect of this has been the reduction of the strain on the money centres at the season of moving the crops, he says:

> As to the currency, while the liberalizing of conditions has, as previously noted, found response in a necessary increase of bank-note issues, there is under our present system no assurance whatever that the volume of bank currency will be continuously responsive to the country's needs, either by expanding as such needs require or by contracting when superfluous in amount. The truth is that, safe and desirable as is our currency system in many respects, it is not properly related. The supply of currency is but remotely, if at all, influenced by the ever-changing requirements of trade and industry. It is related most largely, if not entirely, to the price of Government bonds in the market. Between the needs of trade and commerce for a medium of exchange and for instruments of credit, which a proper banknote furnishes, and the investment price or value of Government bonds, which is at present the most influential factor in determining the currency supply, there is no discernible relation whatever.
> I forbear at this time, in view of the many other important subjects which demand attention during the present short session of Congress, to press these questions for immediate action, but I cannot refrain from inviting the attention of Senators and Representatives to a careful consideration of the matters thus suggested. In the act of March 14 a forward step was taken, to the great benefit of all our material interests. Nothing should prevent timely and well-considered amendments where necessary to solidify and complete the work so well inaugurated.

That is modestly, but clearly and strongly, put, and it deserves the careful attention not only of Congress, but of all intelligent business men.

WATCH THEM.

The project of connecting the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans by a canal across the isthmus has always had its enemies, open or secret. They have been active at Washington, influential and quite successful in preventing favorable action. These influences are still at work.

If the Hay-Pauncefote treaty fails of ratification in the Senate and the Hepburn bill is passed and sent to the President he will be compelled to veto it. That bill rides rough shod over the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, a convention of which the validity has been repeatedly recognized by the Government of the United States during the half century it has been in force, and of which the President and the Secretary of State have recently again formally recognized the binding force by negotiating another treaty to abrogate certain of its provisions. A treaty in force is the law of the land. Congress may nullify a treaty by refusing to appropriate money for executing its agreements. Congress may, indeed, pass laws in direct contravention of treaties, but there is no obligation resting upon the President to sign bills of that kind sent to him by Congress unless in his judgment considerations of public policy make it manifest that the time has come for tearing up a bad treaty that cannot be peacefully abrogated.

The President would not be justified in signing a canal bill that would give provocation for war to a great and friendly nation with which the American people wish to remain at peace. By the terms of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty we agreed not to undertake the construction and control of an isthmian canal. The Hepburn bill provides for the building, control, operation, and protection of the Nicaragua Canal as an exclusively American enterprise. The measure is wantonly offensive, not merely to England, but to all sober-minded and right-thinking Americans, who are shocked at the idea that their country can be guilty of this exhibition of Yahoo international manners.

This Administration is fully committed to the policy of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which it has negotiated and commended to the favorable action of the Senate. The Hepburn bill represents the diametrically opposite policy. It would be amazing if the President should surrender his own matured conclusions and embrace the contrary views of Congress upon a matter of this grave importance. Congress might pass the bill over his veto—that he could not prevent. But he would then be free from responsibility. It would be his duty to veto the bill. We can imagine no conditions under which he could give it his approval save one. The British Foreign Office might agree to a formal abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. That would leave us free to act honorably. It is not at all likely that Great Britain will take that course.

If the treaty fails and the Hepburn bill is sent to the President, therefore, it is extremely likely that the canal project will fail altogether. The President must veto the bill, Congress will not pass it over his veto—at least, it will not do so if he sets forth with vigor his reasons for disapproval—and the construction of the canal will be put off till the Greek kalends.

Is not that what the opponents of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty are driving at? The failure of the canal project will be the necessary consequence of the success of their efforts. They must be supposed to know what they are about. They disguise more or less skillfully their purpose by a great outcry about the American flag, truckling to England, and that sort of thing. They insult the Secretary of State every day or two, and continually appeal to that hatred of England that pervades a certain class of voters. Their campaign bears all the outward aspects of fraud and deceit. They should be watched with some care by the friends of the treaty and of the canal.

THE DEMOCRATS OF BROOKLYN.

There are 110,000 Democratic voters in Brooklyn, twice as many, almost, as in the whole State of Connecticut. There are only twenty-two States in the Union that have a larger Democratic vote than Brooklyn.

Yet the Democrats of Brooklyn have, properly speaking, no organization, no independent political existence. They have no voice, no influence in the conventions of the party. Like the petty and powerless Princes of India they have been stripped of all franchises by the terms of a subordinate alliance. Their representatives sit in the party councils, but they are dumb. They are there only to deliver votes disposed of by a prior contract.

The Democrats of Brooklyn are merely a dependency of the Tammany establishment, not equal, not free, but in thralldom, bought, sustained, and controlled by miserable Tammany appanage. "Give us a good office or two when nomination time comes around," says old Mr. MCLAUGHLIN to Mr. CROKER, "be fair with our boys in the appointments, and you may always cast the Kings County vote in the conventions." CROKER cast the Kings County vote in the last State Convention. Only one delegate refused to be bound by the degrading contract. Brooklyn voted against its own man.

Are the intelligent and self-respecting Democrats of Brooklyn content with their present base condition? They ought to be disgusted with it. They ought to loathe the Tammany vassalage and break their bonds. One hundred and ten thousand held in subjection in order that a hundredth part of that number may get their victuals at the public cost—that is not exactly a condition to cause the bosom to swell with pride. A Brooklyn Democrat who considers the suffrage to be a privilege worth exercising ought to be man enough to rebel against the vile compact by which the party in Kings County is kept in servitude.

Mr. MCLAUGHLIN is an old man. He no longer has the strength or the courage or the will power required of a political leader. His age and his feebleness incline him to take things as easily as possible. He shuns the strifes naturally incident to self-respecting independence. It is far less trouble to make a shameful bargain with CROKER than it would be to maintain a strong and influential organization. The old leader is no longer interested in the principles of the party and no personal scruples stand in the way of the labor-saving arrangement. He is happy so long as he is permitted to go through the motions of leadership in Willoughby Street, and the Kings Democracy, like sheep, submit to the determinations of senile incapacity.

If the Democrats over there, or any part of them, wish to be rid of the Tammany compact they will soon have an opportunity, we should judge. The Tammany organization has made itself detested, and Mr. CROKER's brutality, bad judgment, and propensity for moneymaking have made it certain that an effort will be made to form an organization in the City of New York of Democrats who wish to act with their party, but can no longer put up with the vice and nauseous corruptions of Tammany. We should think the project of a new organization would interest the Democrats of Brooklyn.

THE NAVAL ARCH.

Most New Yorkers will receive with regret the announcement that the committee appointed to take measures to perpetuate the naval arch erected to welcome Admiral DEWEY and his command home from Manila has dissolved, by way of confessing the hopelessness of its undertaking. It is very true that if "most New Yorkers" had shown more interest in the project of which they regret the abandonment, it would not have been abandoned. But the committee must be supposed to be the best judge of its own business. After securing pledges for quite half the amount needed to perpetuate the arch, they report their hopelessness of securing the other half.

It ought not to follow that the project is dead beyond resurrection. It may quite be that it can be revived and carried to completion under other auspices. It is now an open secret that an offer has been made to erect the arch in terra cotta for $250,000. Certainly this offer ought not to be rejected on account of the material proposed to be employed. There are some noble monuments in the world composed of baked clay. Doubtless there are mechanical difficulties in the way of reproducing in it statuary of heroic size. But these difficulties do not seem to daunt the makers, who know better than anybody else just how formidable they are. In fact, it may be said, in general, that the capacity of the makers in this country to produce terra cotta, plastic to all shapes and many uses, has far outrun the capacity of the architects to devise appropriate and characteristic employment for it. Sculpture is entirely a matter of form, and any material is good which possesses a suitable surface and has sufficient durability. But architecture is a matter of form as determined by the mechanical laws of construction. Accordingly, if the arch were to be re-erected in terra cotta, it is to be supposed that the architect would insist upon revising his design with reference to the new material, which is wrongly or ignorantly used when it is used as a mere substitute for stone, but which has special properties of its own that give it both disadvantages and advantages as compared with stone.

One of its advantages is that it offers a means of employing external color in a manner which shall be as durable as the material itself, and the material is durable enough to tell us most that we know of Nineveh. This question concerns the sculpture as well as the architecture. It is known that the masters of all sculpture did not disdain to enhance by color the effect of their forms. A terra cotta monument with terra cotta statuary would be a challenge to the artists concerned in the production of it which it might be the part of discretion, but would not be the part of valor, to ignore. Any one can imagine the employment of different tints and "values" so discreetly and harmoniously done as to add to the intrinsic interest and beauty of sculptural as well as of architectural forms.

And this brings us to another important, if not vital, point. It is to be assumed that the offer to reproduce the arch in terra cotta, for what seems a very moderate sum, must be interpreted as an offer to reproduce it as it stood in plaster. Even for this the materials are no longer available. It has been published that the sculptor's model for the crowning group, which was also the crowning glory, of the arch had altogether disappeared, so that all the work upon it would have to be done over again from the beginning. And there are other groups or figures with which it is to be hoped that their authors are not so well satisfied that they would consent to the reproduction of them in lasting material. For its purpose the arch was a really wonderful success. It had a triumph never equaled in temporary decorations in New York, in the general popular demand that it should be perpetuated, except in the case of the Washington Arch, the proportions of which, as it was originally erected in wood, were so admired that the architect was induced to reproduce it, even though in doing so he was compelled, for mechanical reasons, to change the admired proportions, and changed them much for the better. The triumph of the naval arch as a piece of occasional architecture and sculpture was due, as the President of the Sculpture Society has explained, to the desire of its members to have "some patriotic fun." They gave their services and also the expenses of their studios for this purpose, asking from the city only the actual cost of erecting the arch and of translating the sculpture from plaster into "staff." But it is not to be supposed that those of them whose work needs to be restudied in order to be worthy a permanent form would consent to do this restudy at their own cost, as they did the original; still less that, in such a case as we have cited, they would consent to do the work all over again for nothing.

Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, or only some $50,000 more than the committee already had in hand, in cash or pledges, would thus not have sufficed to perpetuate the arch in a worthy manner. But twice what they had collected would do it handsomely, whether in the terra cotta, which, if the experiment turned out happily, would result in a unique success, or in the white granite, which is scarcely distinguishable from marble in appearance, and is so far superior to it in durability. Any multimillionaire who desires to assure himself of the gratitude of the people of New York has only to duplicate the subscriptions already received in order to insure the attainment of that object. Mr. CARNEGIE observed, the other day, that he desired to be known not as a man who had given largely, but as a man who had induced others to give. It is a worthy ambition, but in this case the "others" have given so largely that, if their gifts can be multiplied by two, there is no question that they would be offered again, since doubling them would achieve their purpose in giving. The result of that would be the reproduction not only in more durable material, but in an improved form worthy of the durable material, of the most conspicuous and monumental ornament of a city disgracefully poor in ornaments of that class. The man who insures the perpetuation of the naval arch is very certain to be remembered as a public benefactor.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

—Some of the Philadelphia papers have been thrown into a state of amusing excitement by a speech made in that city on Sunday by Dr. STANTON COIT. This individual, it seems, is a native of the United States, and he lived here long enough to be graduated from Amherst, but after that he went over to England, where he has remained for the last fifteen years. The object of his present visit is undeclared, but it is imaginable from the fact that he is delivering a course of lectures. The one which created the excitement was addressed to the Philadelphia Society for Ethical Culture, and in the course of it Dr. COIT said many harsh things about America and Americans. He asserted, for instance, that "the American people are a hypnotized, ignorant, sordid, vague, and uncertain people," that "the Tories of all times have always been right," that "the workingman should have no voice in government because he is absolutely stupid," that "democracy is a synonym for corruption, and accordingly democracy is a failure," that "Government should be the mother of the Church," that "a pure contempt for the illiterate masses must be the basis of the new democracy if the new democracy is to be successful," that—but it would be unprofitable to quote any more, as this is enough to give a general idea of Dr. COIT's capacity for increasing the sum total of human knowledge. And just because he ran on in this way for the edification of the Ethical Culturalists, the people of Philadelphia have been solemnly requested to take down their dictionaries and ponder the remarks they find therein under the word "treason." No harm will result, indeed, profit may follow, the careful study of that or any other word in our highly estimable language, but the suggested need of proceeding against Dr. COIT as a traitor, simply because he has divulged his opinion about us and our ways, is really too absurd. Who is he, anyway, and what difference does it make to anybody what he thinks? Folks right here at home who really have been giving "aid and comfort to public enemies" have been contemptuously ignored, so Dr. COIT, who is doing no more than giving expression to a disordered liver, is certainly as safe from the Government as the Government is from him.

—While favoring, in a general way, the Navy Department plan for a Naval Reserve modeled on the English system, The San Francisco Coast Seamen's Journal is apprehensive of two results which it regards as evil. It fears, in the first place, that union sailors, many or most of whom are likely to join the reserve, partly for the pay it will bring and partly to secure preferential employment on subsidized ships, will tend to expect from membership in the reserve the advantages now obtained as a branch of organized labor, with a consequent diminution of interest in and loyalty to their union. Secondly, The Coast Seamen's Journal prophesies that the passage of the Naval Reserve bill will be a signal for boarding masters in every port to induce as many non-union sailors as possible to join the new body, hoping thus to give their favorites the sort of recognition and standing they now lack and thereby gain increased influence over the whole shipping business. The merits of these views must be determined by experts, but it needs no special knowledge to see that there is something in them, as is usually the case with what this particularly intelligent exponent of unionism says. No body of laborers has profited more from organization than the coast sailors of the United States, and if their condition still leaves much to be desired, that fact is not due to the failure of the efforts made in their behalf, but to the profundity of the depths out of which the sailors had to be raised to put them on a level with the followers of other trades. The process of elevation has been a slow one, and it is not yet by any means completed. To lose any of the ground already won would be indeed a calamity, and those who have undertaken to draft the provisions of the reserve bill should exercise the utmost caution lest, while serving the present interests of the navy, they discourage the few real friends the sailor now has, and either delay his slow progress upward or set him on his downward course again. Nothing that injures the sailor can permanently benefit the navy.

—Now that Lieut. HOBSON is, if not seriously ill, at least ill of a serious disease, the memory of his great achievement comes back clear and vivid, while that of his little mistakes, real or imaginary, fades swiftly into dimness and distance. He attained a sudden glory, and of course criticism came with it, for jealousies were aroused in some quarters, and in others the terrible impulse toward logical analysis prompted disquisitions on the relation between heroism and duty and between objects sought and objects gained. Then the Lieutenant made some more history—or it was made for him—and he went away under a sort of a cloud. He returned and talked—or was quoted—and a second cloud formed. He talked again, and that time there was, unfortunately, no question about what he said or about its unwisdom. At present, however, the air is bright again, and we can all see the man of the Merrimac. The rest is a trifle; that alone counts. The great moment came to him, no matter how, and he equaled it. Therefore news from his bedside will be awaited with sincerest interest by every one of his countrymen. We are theoretically anxious about the Czar, but the feeling with which we ask about Lieut. HOBSON is absolutely sincere.

—Zealous as has been the preaching of anti-vaccination heresies by a few benighted or deranged inhabitants of this part of the country, their efforts have attained no measurable degree of success. In England alone, of all lands claiming to be civilized, have the opponents of this immeasurably valuable measure of protection managed to impress their dangerous ideas upon any considerable number of people, and even there the craze seems to be slowly dying out. Here a saving common sense has prevailed in all classes of the population, and smallpox works serious ravages only in remote corners inhabited by out-and-out savages. In contending with the little outbreak which now disturbs New Yorkers of the more timid sort, the health officials encounter some ignorance and a good deal of carelessness, but only in the rarest instances do they report the discovery of a reluctance to submit to the Jennerian operation that is too pronounced to be explained by distaste for the slight and temporary annoyances incidental to it. This is an encouraging phenomenon in a city with residents drawn from every quarter of the earth, and with almost innumerable "colonies," each of which, because of its willful isolation from the common life and interests, is a possible source of serious perils. The evil revealed by the appearance of the abhorrent malady is not a disinclination, but a failure, to be vaccinated. This suggests the propriety of discussing the question whether the mere fact that a person contracts smallpox does not convict that person of reckless, criminal, and punishable incivism. The public has a right, in a community like this, to insist that diseases both absolutely and easily preventible shall be prevented. The excuse for laws penalizing the concealment of smallpox would serve equally well for penalizing the voluntary maintenance of the condition requisite for catching and spreading it among the small fraction of the population that is necessarily non-immune at all times. The city offers free vaccination to all, so there is no reason why even the poorest should be unprotected.

BUSINESS OF BANKS MENACED.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Controller of the Currency in his report just sent to Congress recommends a change in the law regarding lawful money reserve held against deposits of National banks, which has already excited much interest on the part of these banks. In effect the change proposed means that on the basis of National bank reports for Sept. 5, 1900, the "country" banks, outside of "reserve" cities must accumulate about $33,000,000 more lawful money than they then held in their vaults. This cash must be obtained from National banks in reserve cities, indebted to them as reserve agents, about $17,000,000 from New York, Chicago, and St. Louis, and the balance from National banks in the other reserve cities.

Next, the banks in reserve cities (other than New York, Chicago, and St. Louis) must accumulate about $119,000,000 in lawful money more than now held by them, and this must come from the National banks in New York, Chicago, and St. Louis, now indebted to them as reserve agents.

To this $119,000,000 adding the $17,000,000 withdrawn by the country banks we have an aggregate of $136,000,000 in actual money to be withdrawn from National banks in New York, Chicago, and St. Louis. But, as New York banks on Sept. 5 held 77 per cent. of deposits in the three central reserve cities, about $105,000,000 of this great volume of money must be furnished by National banks in New York City.

Enormous as this sum is, it does not measure the loss of business which will fall upon the New York banks if we apply the rule laid down by Controller DAWES himself in his little book on the "Banking System of the United States." In this he maintains that if $150,000 in currency is withdrawn from a New York bank by a bank outside that city the effect on the New York bank will be to shrink its deposits by $600,000, or four times the amount of currency withdrawn, and its loans by $450,000, or three times the currency withdrawn.

If this be true in practice the withdrawal of $105,000,000 of lawful money from the National banks in New York would mean a shrinkage in their deposits of $420,000,000 and a contraction of their lending capacity by the sum of $315,000,000.

Such results would be a fatal blow to the National banks of New York City, and through them to the banking system of the entire country, for these National banks practically occupy toward the other banks and trust companies of the United States in the matter of reserves the position and relation of the Bank of England toward the banks of England, Scotland, and Ireland.

One argument for this proposed change in the law is the strain put upon the New York banks in time of panic. The record of 1893, the worst panic of recent years, is that during that year only one National bank in New York succumbed to the strain, and that bank, a small one, within a year from its failure had paid its depositors in full, principal and interest, without the need of an assessment on its shareholders.

WILL NEW YORK DO ITS DUTY?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will those whose duty it is to provide for the schools under the new charter dare to be as liberal as they ought? Major Hewitt has suggested that the rich have not been doing their share in establishing institutions to supplement and aid the schools; and he is probably just; but it is the special pride of America that she does not depend upon private donations to do the one thing needful. The schools at all sacrifice must be supported.

There are two ways in which the intelligent citizen may aid the public school. One is to send his child to it. The influence of the child of the very rich would probably be as enervating as it is in private schools; but the child who has intelligent care at home, whether rich or poor, does far more good in disseminating ideals and culture than he can possibly receive harm from children of lesser opportunity. These are the children who at present aid in teaching manners and customs, while the children of the very poor teach their neighbors industry and the value of opportunity. With his child in the school, the intelligent parent must make sure that the school is not too crowded, that the teacher has not more work and pupils than she can attend to properly, and, above all, that she is a lady. Other qualifications the school management can deal with more adequately; but it would be most grateful for a public sentiment which demands more schools and more teachers. Only the interest of the parent felt publicly can effect the next great pedagogical advance—more individual attention to the individual pupil by a teacher not overworked. Too small a class has its own dangers, in loss of inspiration to student and teacher and in loss of the sense of community essential to citizenship; but the number of pupils now forced upon one teacher makes it impossible for the average boy, not to speak of him below the average, to receive due attention. At present Principals, instead of being proud of a small class in a large room, are ashamed to show an empty seat. Will the public demand that the new school regulations furnish more schools and more teachers? The high schools, with nearly ten thousand eager young people, are now crowded into old ill-ventilated buildings which would discourage any but an invincible set of students and teachers.

And the intelligent citizen should demand that the teacher of his children be a cultured, gentle woman! Does he realize that the average salary paid to teachers in this city is several hundred dollars less than that of the average salary of a policeman, and that even this average is raised by the only fair salaries of the comparatively few men in the profession. What woman who has had the expense of a thorough education can be content with the salary offered in the lower grades? Most single women who have taught some years have some one dependent upon them. Can these women have the leisure for culture and training, which should accompany their work, and which is the very safeguard of our city? Statistics say that $1,200 will not to-day buy what $1,000 would buy four years ago. Rents in New York are enormous. Yet teachers to be what we wish them to be to children should be able to live at least in the plain, simple fashion of real gentlewomen. Many a teacher is made fierce and aggressive by the struggle to live. Many a teacher who goes home to financial anxiety also goes home to gather shoes and clothing for the poorest children in her classes. The expense of living in New York is so much greater than elsewhere that the comparison of salary rates is most fallacious. The need for cultured women in the schools is so much greater, because of the foreign element in the schools, that expense should not be considered in attaining this end.

More schools, more teachers, more culture; then, with present ideals, examinations, and supervision the schools of New York ought to do even more for the city than they are at present doing.

AN INTERESTED CITIZEN.

New York, Dec. 2, 1900.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As to municipal ownership of public utilities, as advanced by some of the "Citizen Unionists," take the power of appointing to places, or "indorsing," as it is called in political life, away from the powers that be, or let every employe lose his vote; then we might imitate London.

No one knows the power of patronage unless he has been an active member of an active political club.

Municipal ownership is the right thing, but not at present; in a city where every one, be he ignorant or educated, has a vote, or where the "hard-up" refined get their living by catering to the ignorant scum.

When we can divide our people into first, second, and third classes, and allow our first and second classes to vote, who, for the good of the city, will throw self-interest to a great extent aside, then you can have municipal ownership, as in London. Do it now, in the condition politics is in to-day—divided into two organizations, the bulk of whom will not split from State or United States politics—and you build up a power that nothing but a vigilance committee or a small revolution would break. In this country municipal ownership will come when the good of one is the good of all, through clean streets, small parks, kindergartens, &c. Then people of low thought will have been raised from their dirt and squalor so that clean people can meet them without losing caste. BROOKLYN.

OWNERSHIP OF FRANCHISES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the question of municipal ownership of franchises, which you characterize as a fad, have you forgotten the vote of the people on the seven questions submitted to them in November, 1894, the only chance which they have had in recent times of expressing their views on public questions? It was a remarkable vote, especially as an answer to the charge that the people vote on such questions blindly and like a lot of sheep, following their leaders. You will see that the question whether the city shall own the underground railroad was adopted by a vote of more than three to one, while the approval of the legislative apportionment was carried by only 867 votes in a total of 134,049. The entire vote shows the utmost discrimination, and I venture to say that because of the agitation which the question has received in recent years, if the matter of the city acquiring the street railroads was submitted to the people, it would be carried by a vote of at least 4 to 1.

The voice of the people is the voice of the Gods, and you had better post yourself a little better, Mr. Editor, as to what the people are thinking about before describing municipal ownership as a fad. Here is the popular vote on questions submitted November, 1894:

	For.	Against.
Rapid transit construction by city	132,647	42,916

KRUEGER IN FRANCE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the Socialists and Communists of France had been treated as the English were under Krüger, Paris and Marseilles would long ago have seen blood and flame again. In Pretoria they would have been the very first to blow the place up. No one pretends that their present ebullitions are any real testimonial to freedom.

Seeking always an opportunity to slap the face of England, and afraid to do it with their own hands, they welcome a technicality in their favor and think that it can be safely done if they used the paw of Krüger.

As to Krüger himself, fêted in safe and luxurious exile, it is easy to tell the Transvaal farmers to fight until they drop. With all his grand talk, he has taken very good care of himself throughout. And it is all but certain that if he finds the climate of Holland, social and otherwise, too cold for him and sighs for the old place, he will not venture back except under absolute guarantees of immunity.

If even now he would go bravely back into the midst of his people and proclaim: "I will share your troubles and stand with you until I have lost every dollar of my ill-gotten gains and am homeless like any of yourselves," in that case he might yet be enrolled among the patriots.

But to live among the Kings in exile and to shout across the seas urging the poor victims of his cupidity and obstinacy to continue a hopeless fight until there is not a farm or a man left is to proclaim himself the very high priest of canting selfishness and the colossal political humbug of our time.

"Freedom and Whiskey Gang Thegither."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have two pictures in my mind, one, as shown in Saturday's issue of THE TIMES, represents Mr. Andrew Carnegie presiding at the banquet of the St. Andrew's Society, holding aloft a bottle of Scotch whisky and quoting from Burns's "Earnest Cry and Prayer" the lines heading this letter. In the other picture I see Mr. Carnegie in the library of the New York Caledonian Club, noting the empty shelves of the bookcases and uttering these words: "Go ahead and fill your shelves with books, and send the bill to me." I need not state which of these I consider the more dignified, and which better represents Mr. Carnegie's character.

No student of the "Scottish Bard" will be misled by Mr. Carnegie's quotation, but to prevent others, less familiar with our poet, from looking upon Robert Burns as an advocate of whisky drinking, I would quote from his immortal poem, "Tam O'Shanter." After describing in his own inimitable style the jovial party, where

> "Tam was glorious, > Ower a' the ills o' life victorious."

he thus moralizes on the pleasures of the social glass:

> Pleasures are like poppies spread:
> You seize the flower, its bloom is shed;
> Or like the snowfall in the river,
> A moment white, then melts forever;
> Or like the Borealis race
> That flit ere you can point their place;
> Or like the rainbow's lovely form
> Evanishing amid the storm.

Seventh Avenue Resident Complains.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would like to call the attention of the city authorities through the columns of your paper to the conditions in Seventh Avenue, between One Hundred and Sixteenth and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Streets, after dark. First, the poorly lighted condition of the avenue; second, the amount of fast and reckless driving. A large number of the residents of the above district are obliged to cross the avenue after dark and are in constant danger of an accident.

Apathy Among the Catholics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Dec. 3, "Pilgrim," writing on the apathy of the churches, states, "We do not hear of apathy among the Catholic churches or of waning attendance on the part of Catholics."

Had Pilgrim attended St. Patrick's Church in Mott Street in March of this year, when a sermon was addressed especially to the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, he would never have penned those words. For upon that occasion one of the foremost priests in New York told his auditors in substance as follows: "We are, my dear brethren, losing thousands of children from our schools every year, and our church attendance is falling off. And, moreover, when the history of the Church for this period comes to be written it will constitute a really shameful chapter, such are the unworthy devices that the clergy have to employ to persuade men and women to church attendance." This admission was part of a discourse which was delivered with intense earnestness by one of the most active and best informed of the Catholic clergy.

Those who are of the opinion that the Roman Catholic Church is holding its own have only to give a little heed to the walk and conversation of their man and their maid servants to receive light on what is now very largely a taken-for-granted subject.

Plea for Physical Training.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In to-day's issue of your esteemed paper "A Teacher" asks for reform in the schools. I consider this as a very timely suggestion. If I am correctly informed, only a small percentage of the boys in the public schools get any physical training worth mentioning. The rest, perhaps 90 per cent., are not forced to have it, and in most cases they are lazy or shivering onlookers while the few are engaged in athletic exercise.

How the 90 per cent. shall get the benefit of bodily exercise is a problem worth pondering upon. The only way I can see is to induce the press to take hold of it, and I for one am very thankful to the teacher who broke the silence in this matter. Three sons of mine have passed through the public schools and two through the High School, so it may be admitted that I can speak from experience.

"Private" Cases of Smallpox.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the recording angels are at work these days they have put down a few items history may comment upon—items of no importance when compared with China and South Africa, but—

Smallpox is almost epidemic. One "private" case has come to light. "It was a private family in a private house. All the people there have been vaccinated, their friends knew of it, and the family wished the facts kept out of the newspapers."

Further on in the same column: A case in Perth Amboy, N. J., a mattress renovator, his house is quarantined, a yellow flag and watchman keep the people off.

What constitutes a "private" family?

Yow—Vengeful? I should say yes. He wrote me a letter regarding the ten I owe him, and there was 2 cents due on the letter.—Syracuse Herald.

Evident.

She—I wonder if there ever was such a person as the foolkiller?

He—Don't ask such nonsensical questions. How do you suppose I know?

She, (sweetly)—Of course, dear, I know you never met him.—Philadelphia Record.

Helpful Child.

Caller—My! what a big girl you're getting to be. You'll soon be able to help your mother about the house.

Ethel—Oh, I do that already. Whenever she says "For goodness' sake, get out of my way," I do it.—Philadelphia Press.

BILLING'S CREEK.

Some folks would think they's fortunate ef they wus fixed like me—
Ef not a Croesus, still as rich as any need to be.
That streak o' luck in reel estate a pilin' fortune brought,
An' yit somehow it's never fetched jest what I think it ought.
My people's l'arnin' city ways an' spreadin' on the style,
With furnitur' in cuarload lots an' cuarpets by the mile;
Electrit lights is in the rooms, an' statuary stuff,
An' things that smell o' money—then ain't hardly fine enough!
But as I set before the grate an' think o' times that's been,
I ha'f-way wush that we wus back on Billing's Creek ag'in.

It's true we hadn't much them days whar most o' life wus spent—
But what o' joy we couldn't buy, it seemed the good Lord lent.
The roarin' fire o' blazin' logs had more old-fashioned cheer
Than looks like now a ha'f-a-ton o' coal can make it here.
The range o' subjects fer our talks wus common-like, I know—
We never dreamed o' whist games nor the operatic show!
But with the children 'round the hearth in one unbroken band,
Their mother darnin' on their socks beside the candlestand—
O' course the memory o' this forever's rushin' in
To keep me wushin' we wus back on Billing's Creek ag'in.

Sometimes I ketch the great bells' chimes, an' as they rise an' swell,
I feel the happy Christmas stir an' hear the village bell;
I see the holly ever'whar, an' dear old nabor-folks
That come to set an' chat awhile an' crack their simple jokes;
An' then I move my cheer among the shadders sneakin'-wise,
So that the fambly won't perceive the redness o' my eyes,
An' dream like some old ninny that, when all at last is done—
The smiles an' sighs, the hopes an plans—the battles lost or won—
A place somewhars beyon' the stars an' all this rush an' din,
May make me feel like I wus back in Billing's Creek ag'in.

'SCUTTLE' POLICY IN CHINA

Correspondent Thinks Powers Will Withdraw from Peking.

Says No Further Yielding Could Make Their Degradation Worse Than It Is Now.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Morning Post, who believes that the powers will withdraw their forces from Peking in order to enable the Court to return, says:

"The policy of scuttle once begun every power would endeavor to be the first to conciliate the Chinese. Europe has already lost her face so utterly that no further yielding could make her degradation worse."

"Native papers report," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Times, "that the Court has decided to issue an edict ordering the decapitation of Prince Tuan and Gen. Tung-Fu-Siang."

SHANGHAI, Dec. 3.—An imperial edict deprives Gen. Tung-Fu-Siang of his rank and titles, but permits him to retain command of the troops. He has been ordered to disband 5,000 men and to withdraw to the Province of Kan-Soo with the remainder.

The edict deprecates his ignorance and roughness in dealing with foreign affairs, but it is not regarded as of serious import.

A recrudescence of the southern rebellion is reported. The "Triads" are said to be getting fresh supplies of ammunition and to be preparing outbreaks in the provinces of Quang-Tung and Kiang-Si.

Native papers express the belief that the Court is preparing to return to Peking, whither orders have been issued to send the rice tribute, instead of sending it to Sian-Foo.

MORE FOREIGN COMMENT.

Criticism in London, Paris, and German Papers of Mr. McKinley's Utterances Regarding China.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—"Mercifully," says The Pall Mall Gazette, "not even the conscientious Reuter has cabled the full fifteen columns of President McKinley's message. This was wise, since no English paper could possibly have printed it, to the necessary exclusion from its pages of arsenical beer and other things that really do stir the great heart of the people. The most interesting section, however, China, is given fully, but it cannot be said that its length is equivalent to its strength."

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Le Journal des Debats says:

"We cannot complain of the manner in which President McKinley expressed himself on Franco-American relations. We certainly are not alone in being well treated in the message, but we head the list, and this flattering position, which is evidently intentional, shows that as much cordiality and coquetry are displayed in Washington's country as in Lafayette's in cultivating traditional good relations."

The same paper is, however, displeased at the Chinese references, and on this subject says:

"The message confirms what has been believed for some days past—that the United States will fall the Western world, in the present grave circumstances, when it should have been one of its principal pillars of strength."

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—The press generally points out that President McKinley's discussion of the China question presents no new matter and no surprises. "The message," says the Kreuz Zeitung, "shows that the purpose of the United States is to act in harmony with the powers."

On the other hand, the Boersen Courier complains that "President McKinley not only wants the open door, but proclaims a free hand for the American State Department and for himself." This journal admits, however, that the President's China policy is in substantial agreement with that of Germany.

The Neueste Nachrichten, which makes the same admission, says:

"Germany's attitude with reference to the punishment of the guilty officials is covered by Mr McKinley's language in announcing the policy of the United States."

The Vossische Zeitung points out that "The United States, like Russia, is determined to spare China's Treasury."

The Boersen Zeitung condemns the President's utterances on China as "incapable of being reconciled with the policy of the United States regarding the punishment of the officials," but it calls his suggestion regarding a reference of the controversies to The Hague Court of Arbitration "a thoroughly sound idea, well worth consideration."

KALGAN EXPEDITION FAILS.

Chinese Evade All Attempts to Engage Them—Boxers Said to Have Killed Twenty Germans.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—A special dispatch from Nan-Kow Pass, dated Nov. 30, says the Kalgan expedition was almost ineffective, the Chinese evading all attempts to engage them. The towns en route were occupied unopposed, and some tolls of skins and silver were levied. The cavalry captured the luggage of the retreating Chinese force at Sven-hwa-Foo, killed thirty of its guards, and secured 20 mules.

Three Mandarins, instigators of the massacre of converts at Tsi-Ming, and twenty-three Boxers were executed, but the Germans generally ignored evidences of anti-foreign activity.

There are continuous disturbances in the interior, where, the dispatch says, a bad impression has been created by the excessive withdrawal of foreign troops and the complacency of the allies. The missionaries anticipate a recrudescence of the outrages.

Dr. Morrison, wiring to The Times on Monday from Peking, says:

"Evidence has been produced proving that Capt. Watts Jones was murdered after four days' inhuman torture eight marches beyond Kalgan."

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4.—It is reported in Tien-Tsin that the Germans lost twenty killed and many wounded west of Paoting-Foo, where they were attacked by 2,500 Boxers.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—A dispatch from Field Marshal Count von Waldersee, dated Peking, Dec. 3, says a considerable force of Chinese regulars has taken up a position at Bang-Cheung, ninety-five kilometers south of Tien-Tsin, and that two detachments of troops from Tien-Tsin, commanded by Col. Dohrscheidt and Major Falkenhayn, are proceeding against it.

THINKS ENVOYS WILL AGREE.

State Department Hopes It Will Be Unnecessary to Refer Negotiations to The Hague Tribunal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Although the foreign newspapers describe the attitude of this country in China as one of obstruction, every effort of the State Department is being bent toward the creation of harmony among the powers, through their representatives at Peking. The department is to-day sanguine that its efforts will be crowned with success. Only a few days ago the outlook appeared very black, but the steady and persistent work of the United States has borne fruit, and the outlook now is that the envoys at Peking will ultimately reach a satisfactory conclusion.

One of the chief drawbacks has hitherto been the attitude of Minister Conger, who has leaned rather to the German policy than to that of his Government, but some strongly worded dispatches sent to the American envoy have, it is believed, produced an effect, and the Minister is now believed to see the importance of carrying out the instructions of the State Department.

In all this the American Government has usually found itself supported by Russia. That country has never laid a straw in the way of the American policy, but has in every case agreed to it, and has sometimes anticipated it by procedure in line with the general policy of the United States. Minister De Giers, although he was one of the sufferers by the siege of the legations, has put aside personal feeling and has worked to carry out the policy of his Government. The United States has, of course, pursued an independent policy, and has not acted with any set of powers, but ever since the relief of Peking the policies of Russia and the United States have coincided, and their diplomatic movements have been almost identical.

Should the efforts of the United States prove fruitless in the end, the President will probably present to the powers in the form of an identical note the Russian proposition to refer the question to The Hague tribunal, indorsed by him in his message to Congress. At the time that plan was proposed by Russia, the United States was the only power except France which approved of it. The other powers took the ground that it was untimely. This objection could hardly be raised after the failure of the envoys at Peking to agree.

It is, however, very unlikely that any occasion will arise for such action by the President. The State Department is now convinced that all signs point to an agreement.

PEKING, Dec. 4.—As was expected, the meeting of the foreign envoys to-day did not result in any definite conclusion, owing to the fact that not all the Governments have notified their representatives as to the form of the preliminary note to the Chinese plenipotentiaries. Mr. Conger, the United States Minister, said after the meeting:

"Apparently it is the desire of all to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion. I believe the next meeting will be the last, but it will not be called until every Minister has received definite instructions covering all contingencies. Personally, I am satisfied with the results of the proceedings to-day."

LONDON, Dec. 5.—United States Ambassador Choate had a long conversation yesterday with the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, the Marquis of Lansdowne, in which the proposed alternatives and amendments in Secretary Hay's recent note and the notes of the other powers were fully discussed. Nothing definite was arrived at.

Lord Lansdowne showed the most friendly spirit, and no differences of any import came up. Mr. Choate is notifying Secretary Hay of Lord Salisbury's views. Further consultations will follow shortly.

Gov. Yuan Now Conciliatory.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Dr. Mumm von Schwarzenstein, the German Minister to China, cables that he has received a conciliatory dispatch from Yuan-Shi-Kai, (Military Governor of the Province of Shan-Tung,) assuming full responsibility for the safety of Bishop Anzer, (the German Bishop of South Shan-Tung,) who is about to proceed to Tsi-nan-Foo (Province of Shan-Tung) to confer with Yuan-Shi-Kai.

Tang Paraded Before Decapitation.

TIEN-TSIN, Dec. 3.—Tang-Wen-Huan, the instigator of the outrages upon the Pao-ting-Foo missionaries, arrived to-day and was paraded through Victoria Road in a cart under a strong German guard, previous to being handed over to the provisional Government for decapitation.

BOGUS PICTURES IN MUSEUMS.

Check on Copyists Insufficient, Says a Correspondent—Some Criticism of the Metropolitan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"A Check on Copyists" is the heading of an item published in the Saturday edition of The Times. This item proves to be of interest to all art critics and amateurs.

The check on copyists described is not, however, valuable as a means "to prevent the perpetration of fraud." What is to prevent the forger from erasing the indelible stamp placed on the canvas and stretcher by the Museum, or, relining the canvas and supplying a new stretcher? The stamping of copies has not proved a bar to fraud. Many of the museums have used such a means of identification, but why is it necessary to stamp them at all? Copying should not be allowed unless for study, and the student should derive as much knowledge as he is capable of while he is copying the original; then the thing should be destroyed to prevent evil influences.

I think, however, that the safest preventive is found in the wretched daubs themselves. I have never known of an instance when a really fine copy has been made in the Metropolitan, and I often wonder why such poor workers are allowed to occupy the space in front of a picture.

Mr. Story is quoted as giving several instances where he has seen or heard of pictures like those in the Museum and which he does not hesitate to pronounce copies. There are two sides to every argument.

There are many pictures in public galleries called replicas or copies by the original artist. For instance, Catalogue No. 291 in the Museum, if not a copy, is a replica, for I have seen at least five of the same subject. Yet there is no reason why a replica should not be "considered a treasure," for it may be the first creation and should always bear the evidence of the handiwork of the artist to whom it is ascribed. The large "Horse Fair," by Rosa Bonheur, has several replicas, the one in the National Gallery in London being among the finest and direct from the studio of the artist. Again, in Europe the galleries are becoming finer all the time by bequests, purchase, and the weeding-out of copies, and it is known that sometimes the museums possess copies of pictures, the originals of which are owned by private collectors.

The item quotes an instance where "one of the big museums of this country owns a copy of a Metropolitan Museum picture which is treasured highly as an original. I have seldom before referred to and consider it very superior to the one in the Metropolitan Museum, and it holds its own in a small collection that is as fine as any in this country. The late owner was a very judicious collector and was aided in his purchases by one of the Trustees of our Metropolitan Museum. I would add, however, that there is a ghost of a chance that another and different picture exists.

A museum is an educational institution and the student is entirely at the mercy of the directors or those who are responsible for the naming or misnaming of objects displayed for their benefit. What kind of an education can be obtained from the study of copies or misnamed pictures? Yet, alas! such is the education of many of our would-be art connoisseurs. In one room of the Metropolitan Museum there are at least four copies and some misnamed pictures. The two large pictures ascribed to Constable are but poor copies. One, named "The Lock on the Stour," is no doubt painted from an engraving. The original is really a masterpiece and considered Constable's best picture. It is called "Opening the Lock," and is owned by Mr. Morrison, one of England's merchant princes. The other is "The Valley Farm," the original of which is in the National Gallery in London, and was presented to Great Britain by Constable himself. Yet the Metropolitan Museum catalogue unfortunately describes the London picture as a copy of the picture in the Metropolitan Museum.

ARTHUR DAWSON.

New York, Dec. 3, 1900.

A COMING PICTURE SALE.

There are now on exhibition at the American Art Galleries 181 modern oils, water colors, and drawings by well-known foreign and American artists, the property of various owners, and which are to be sold there to-morrow and Friday evenings, Dec. 6 and 7, at 8 o'clock. While the collection, like most made-up displays of the kind, is not a notable one, it has a good average of merit, its examples have been well selected, and it contains some more than ordinarily good canvases, especially by American artists. Some of the older American landscapists, notably Jarvis McEntee, A. F. Bellows, J. R. Brevoort, H. A. Ferguson, R. S. and F. R. Gifford, George Inness, David Johnson, H. W. Robbins, A. F. Tait, W. Whittidge, and A. H. Wyant are represented by fair examples, and of the younger men there are some good examples of the dead Eichelberger, "A Road to Sag Harbor"; H. W. Ranger, C. H. Davis, R. W. Von Boskerck, J. H. Twachtman, (an excellent example,) Theodore Robinson, C. Warren Eaton, William Bliss Baker, and Childe Hassam. William F. Chase, Charles F. Ulrich, W. H. Lippincott, Eastman Johnson, Percy Moran, F. Diedman, J. H. Dolph, and Walter Blackman are also represented by good and original work. There is an opportunity here for the collectors of American pictures to add to their collections.

Of the foreign pictures shown there is not much to be said. There are two Bargues of slight importance, a pencil study and a water color; a large and important Lerolle, a single figure of a shepherdess; one of Tissot's early Parisian pictures, "In the Louvre"; four examples of Delpy, and a rich-colored Jettel.

MME. SEMBRICH'S RECITAL.

Carnegie Hall Filled by Lovers of Good Singing.

Mme. Marcella Sembrich gave the first of her two song recitals at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon. The large auditorium was almost completely filled by an audience comprising lovers of beautiful singing and students of the art. Many teachers were present, testifying by their interest to their belief in the perfection of the art of Mme. Sembrich, the leading woman singer of the time. Such an audience and such an attitude toward this incomparable artist were demonstrations of the depth of public appreciation in this town for the best in music, and by going to the hall on such a day as yesterday the audience honored itself in honoring a great singer.

Mme. Sembrich has now arrived at that position in the vocal world occupied by Mr Paderewski in the instrumental. She is the recognized exemplar of the last shade of finish in vocal technique and of the highest level of poetic expression. She stands alone, a leader and a teacher, a giver of untold joy to all who know the inner beauties of song, a benefactor and a minister of loveliness. To sing the programme which she sang yesterday was in itself a tour de force. Here for the sake of the record let the list be given in full:

CLASSICAL AIRS AND SONGS.

"Pur dicesti".....Antonio Lotti, (1667-1740)
"M'ha presa alla sua ragna".....
Pietro Domenico Paradies, (1710-1792)
"Mon petit coeur soupire"....Author Unknown
The Three Ravens, "It was a Lover and His Lass".....Old English
"Das Veilchen".....W. A. Mozart, (1756-1791)

GERMAN LIEDER.

Gretchen am Spinnrade, "Du bist die Ruh'," "Lachen und Weinen".....
Franz Schubert, (1797-1828)
"Wie Melodien zieht es mir," Stanchen..
Johannes Brahms, (1833-1897)
Er ist's, Auftrage..Robert Schumann, (1810-1856)

FRENCH AND SLAVIC PIECES.

Berceuse.....Benjamin Godard, (1849-1895)
"Ouvre tes Yeux"...Wes Massenet, (1842-....)
"Er liebte mich so sehr".....
P. I. Tschaikowsky, (1840-1893)
Romance, (Russian)....M. I. Glinka, (1804-1857)
Mazurka, (Polish)..Ladislas Zelenski, (1837-....)

GERMAN LIEDER.

Nachtlied, Marie, Liebesfeier.....
Robert Franz, (1815-1892)
Ueber's Jahr, Der Schwur..Carl Bohm, (1844-....)
Das Kraut Vergessenheit, "Es liegt ein Traum".....Alexander von Fielitz, (1860-....)

To hear Mme. Sembrich interpret songs is a precious privilege. To commment on the interpretation is not an easy task. Where everything is so admirable, the critic would fain throw down the pen, hurl the analytic pose to the winds, fill his soul full of the divinity of art, and say, "Here at last is a haven of rest where there is only beauty, and that in its most intimate form, the song." But something is due to the cause of art, and the commentator must not lose the opportunity of preaching from the housetop that now is the time to learn. Now is the time for those who love vocal music to hear it as it should be. Here are no cheap accessories of costume, make-up, and action to hide the poverty of vocal resource, in the song recital the singer puts herself to the greatest of all tests, for the song recital is the chamber music of vocal art. The singer must conquer by singing pure and unadorned. And how full are the fruits of the conquest when the art is so glorious as that of Mme. Sembrich.

Of the beauty of her voice, which is so clear, so bell-like in its ringing upper tones, so like the mellow-throated flute in its lower notes, it is not now necessary to speak. But of the perfect poise of every phrase, the apparently inevitable placing of its contours with relation to the structure of the entire melody, the absolute justness of every nuance, the exquisite adaptation of accent, enunciation, tonal coloring, and dynamics to the full and vital exposition of the meaning of the text, it is not possible ever to say enough to do justice to an art which lays every hearer under a debt of sweet gratitude.

From beginning to end yesterday's recital was a revelation of all that goes to make singing the most influential of the branches of music. It seems needless to select anything for especial mention, yet the audience was very quick to recognize the marvelous finish and eloquence of the delivery of the two songs of Brahms, lovely in themselves, the old French song, the three songs of Schubert, and the last song of Von Fielitz. Schumann's "Auftrage," which Mme. Sembrich sang at her recital last season, was again beautifully given, and it delighted her hearers.

At the close of the entertainment there was a scene similar to those enacted at the piano recitals of Paderewski. Most of the audience remained standing and applauding, while many rushed down to the front of the stage and stood there to see at close range the famous singer. The enthusiasm was not easily stilled, but it was a magnificent sight. But it was a sight which must have pleased every true lover of musical art. There is certainly nothing neurotic about Mme. Sembrich, nothing that has the glamor of romance or sensation. She is a frank, hearty, lovable little woman, a born musician, and a worshipper of her art. The admiration which is bestowed upon her cannot be called hysterical. It is perfectly healthy and well earned. May she visit us often to enjoy it.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

Emil Paur, the conductor, went to Boston the other day to conduct a concert in a series organized by a local manager. There was some misunderstanding about the orchestra, and Mr. Paur had to hurry back to New York and engage all the men he could get at short notice. These were supplemented by others picked up in Boston. Nevertheless the eminent director had an immense success. The roughness of the orchestra was noted by the newspaper commentators, but the magnificent vigor of Mr. Paur's readings and the emotion which infused all his work atoned for this shortcoming. Mr. Philip Hale said in The Journal:

"After all there is something more than music in the display of faultless technic. Music is emotional, and this is a neurotic age that courts appeals to emotion. Tschaikowsky, Wagner, and Richard Strauss are the great representatives of the modern feeling in music; and for the full interpretation of their work a conductor of flaming temperament is needed. When Mr. Paur was here as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra he showed that there could be such a thing as technic plus emotion. I do not say that all of his readings reached the high standard of the 'Pathetic' symphony, Strauss's 'Thus spake Zarathustra,' and Rimsky-Korsakow's 'Scheherazade.' There are twenty-four concerts in a year, and even a conductor of flesh and blood has his half hours of commonplace thought and wearisness of spirit. The concert last night showed the strength and the imagination of Mr. Paur; the music stirred the heart and fired the blood."

Mr. Woolf, in The Herald, said of the reading of Beethoven's "Leonore" overture, No. III.: "Effects that have not been heard for years, especially in some of the bassoon passages, came out with a crispness that was not only delightful, but something in the way of a surprise." He also praised the powerful reading of the "Symphonie Pathetique." All the other papers spoke in a similar vein of the concert, and it was plain that Mr. Paur's splendid interpretation had stirred Boston to unwonted enthusiasm.

Mr. Samuel Franko announces that McKenzie Gordon, the tenor, will be the soloist at the second of the symphony concerts of old music at the Lyceum Theatre on Tuesday next at 3:30.

A new organization called the Chorale Society will give its first concert to-morrow night at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, at Fifty-seventh Street and Eighth Avenue. The soloists will be Pauline Johnson, soprano, and Hobart Smock, tenor. The conductor is Alfred J. McLean, and the society is devoted to the cultivation of a capella music.

PEOPLE'S TEMPLE OF MUSIC.

Plan to Raise $250,000 for It by Popular Subscription.

A project has been started for the erection of a People's Temple of Music, to be opened in 1905. The present plans call for the raising of a fund of $250,000 by popular subscription and contribution. The plan was suggested by the success of the people's singing classes and the People's Choral Union.

Ambrose L. Phipps, Thomas Schorske, Henry Danziger, Joseph Oatman, and Walter E. Denmond have been named a committee to further the plan, which has been indorsed by the People's Choral Union.

M. Coquelin Lectures at Carnegie Lyceum.

M. Coquelin delivered a lecture yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Lyceum, under the auspices of the Alliance Française. His theme was a sketch, biographical and critical, of the French poet Béranger. The hall was crowded. In illustration of the evolution of the poet's mind, M. Coquelin recited several specimens of Béranger's verse with fine feeling, which called forth frequent applause.

WILL HEAR JEAN DE RESZKE.

The Tenor to Fill an Engagement Here This Season.

All doubt as to the coming of M. Jean de Reszke to this country to fulfill a season in this city, and possibly Philadelphia, with the Maurice Grau Opera Company was dispelled yesterday, when a cablegram was received at the Metropolitan Opera House from the tenor informing Mr. Grau that he was compelled to change the date of his sailing from Dec. 15 to three days earlier, owing to the accident which befell the French liner Loraine, preventing the boat from taking its departure on the scheduled date. He will sail on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse instead.

M. de Reszke will make his first appearance the night following Christmas in "Romeo et Juliette," with Mme. Melba in the opposite rôle. It is intended to present "La Bohème" the Monday previous, but the appearance of Mme. Melba with Jean de Reszke on the Wednesday night might prevent the carrying out of this programme. The operas for the remaining part of that week, Friday night and Saturday matinée, have not as yet been decided upon.

ACTOR CRANE NOT INJURED.

It Was a Namesake Whose Ankle Was Broken in Accident.

The disadvantage of a similarity in names was never more clearly shown than on Monday last, when an article appeared in THE TIMES to the effect that a party of prominent business men of Baltimore, with William H. Crane of New York as their guest, met with a serious accident on Sunday last by being thrown from a tally-ho coach. It was stated that Mr. Crane received a broken ankle.

It was not long after Treasurer Walters of the Garrick Theatre had opened his box office for the day's business on Monday before the telephone was brought into active use by holders of seats for Monday evening's performance. They asked all kinds of questions, such as "Will Mr. Crane positively appear this evening?" "I should like to have my money refunded if Mr. Crane is incapacitated, is he?" Others wanted their tickets exchanged, while many more said they did not care to journey to the theatre unless they knew positively that Mr. Crane instead of his understudy was going to appear.

All of these and numerous other questions were put to Treasurer Walters, and they were more or less puzzling, as he was in absolute ignorance of any accident having befallen a Mr. Crane, until the actor himself hurried into the business office of the theatre and explained. He said that his name had been confused with that of another one of the six William H. Crane's whose names appear in the New York City Directory.

The actor said that not until he was stopped on his way down town by several acquaintances who made inquiries regarding his broken ankle was he aware that any such accident had happened.

Mr. Crane desired the management to inform the public that his duties of exhibiting "David Harum" nightly and twice a week at matinées prevented him from participating in any coach rides.

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

Andrews—Connally.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The marriage of Miss Mary Curry Connally and Walter Scott Andrews, celebrated to-day at noon at St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, was one of the most beautiful of the many notable weddings in this historic edifice. The floral decoration was confined to the chancel.

Notwithstanding the downpour of rain shortly before noon the church was filled by a distinguished company, which was seated by Elisha Dyer, Jr., Stuyvesant Leroy and Franklin A. Plummer of New York, Paul A. Andrews of Newport, and Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte and Horace Westcott of this city. The music was entirely choral, the vested choir of St. John's meeting the bride at the door and leading the way to the altar, singing "Faithful and True." They were followed by the six ushers and Miss Mary Carlisle, the only attendant maid, who walked alone, directly in advance of the bride and her father, Col. John Kerr Connally, of Asheville, N. C. Frank W. Andrews, Jr., attended his brother as best man. The Rev. Dr. Mackey Smith, rector of the church, officiated.

The bride wore a superb gown of old lace built upon heavy white satin, with a beautiful lace veil, which fell to the bottom of her trained skirt. The veil was fastened by orange blossoms and a diamond ornament, the gift of her mother. Other jewels worn were a diamond crescent, the bridegroom's gift, and a collar of pearls, fastened by a large clasp of pearls and diamonds, the gift of Frank W. Andrews, Jr.

A wedding breakfast at the residence of the bride's uncle, Dr. J. L. M. Curry, former Minister to Spain, followed the ceremony. The bride and bridegroom received the congratulations in a bower of palms in the bay window. Dr. and Mrs. Curry and Mr. and Mrs. Connally also welcoming the guests. A special breakfast for the bridal party was served at the close of the reception.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Andrews, the parents of the bridegroom; the British Ambassador and the Misses Pauncefote, the Austrian Minister and Baroness Hengelmüller, the Minister from Spain and the Duchess de Arcos, the Mexican Ambassador and his daughter, Chief Justice and Mrs. Fuller, Justice Brown, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Gage, the Secretary of Agriculture and Miss Wilson, and the Misses Hitchcock.

Mr. Andrews is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Andrews, formerly of Boston, but now of Palm Beach and Newport. The bride is the youngest of three daughters of Col. and Mrs. John Kerr Connally of Asheville, N. C., and the niece and namesake of Mrs. J. L. M. Curry, under whose chaperonage she made her début in this city less than a year ago. Her engagement to Mr. Andrews was announced early last Spring.

The young couple have started for a six weeks' stay in the South, but will spend the remainder of the Winter with Mr. Andrews's parents in this city. One of the bride's presents is a country home on her father's estate near Asheville, where a part of each year will be spent by Mr. and Mrs. Andrews.

Jones—Gill.

The Rev. Robert Ellis Jones, President of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., and Miss Lottie T. Gill, daughter of the late Charles T. Gill of St. Louis, were married yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Holy Communion by the Rev. Dr. Henry Mottet, assisted by the Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington of Grace Church and the Rev. S. De Lancey Townsend of All Angels' Church. The bride was given away by her uncle, C. W. Brega of Chicago. Miss Mary K. Gill was the maid of honor. Mr. Charles F. Hoffman, Jr., was best man. The ushers were Mr. J. Smith, Prof. Milner of Harvard, Mr. William Hoffman, and Mr. Percy Chubb. After the ceremony there was a reception at the residence of the bride's cousin, C. A. Low, 19 West Fifty-third Street.

Dallas—Jackson.

COLUMBIA'S NEW CAPTAIN

W. R. Morley Elected by the Football Squad for Next Year.

CALIFORNIA GAME ASSURED

Light Work Will Be Done by the Players in Preparing for the Western Trip.

W. R. Morley, the sturdy Captain of Columbia's 1900 football team, has been unanimously chosen to lead the White and Blue eleven next season. The election was held yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the 'Varsity players at the football training quarters, in West One Hundred and Seventeenth Street. Capt. Morley is one of the steadiest players and surest groundgainers that has ever played at Columbia. He was elected to the Captaincy of the 1900 team early last October, to succeed Capt. "Tom" Simons, who was forced to resign because of an injured knee, which kept him out of the game, and proved throughout the past season the right man for the place. The confidence of the entire squad was his, and his example of courage and determination on the field did much to elevate the morale of his team. Morley is also one of the most experienced men on the team. He has played half back on the Columbia 'Varsity for two years, and had previously learned the game at the Pennsylvania Military Academy and the University of Michigan. He is twenty-four years old, a senior in the School of Mines, and hails from Datil, New Mexico. He returns to the university next year for post-graduate work.

With Morley again to lead, there will be little difference in the make-up of Columbia's 1900 'Varsity and her prospective team—unless new candidates appear next Fall whose ability is greater than that of the veterans. "Johnny" Wolff, who played at right end, is the only member of this year's team who will not be back in the university next October.

A game between the Columbia and University of California elevens at San Francisco during the Christmas holidays is now assured. Manager Shoemaker has lately received a letter from the management of the University of California team, repeating the invitation for a visit from the Californians, and the Columbia Faculty Committee has given permission for the trip to be made. All that now remains to be settled is the question of expenses. Manager Shoemaker is now in correspondence with the Californians regarding the guarantee they are willing to make. In the interim light practice two or three times a week may be kept up by the team, and Coach Sanford, who has planned to sail for Europe within the next two weeks, will be unable to accompany the eleven to California.

Columbia's alumni has arranged for a dinner and smoker, to be held at Sherry's on Thursday evening, Dec. 13, in honor of the 1900 football team. A large number of the records of this season's victories will then be presented to the Football Association, and individual souvenirs may be given to the players.

BUILDING THE CHALLENGER.

Elaborate Preparations Going On for the Lifting of America's Cup by Shamrock II.

The conviction among yachtsmen on this side of the Atlantic that Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's Cup carries with it real menace to the continued residence of the famous trophy in this country has grown with the cabled reports from abroad concerning the elaborate preparations being made for the building and tuning up of the new challenger Shamrock II. Among yachtsmen acquainted with the technical side of yacht construction, the announcement that the Dennys, and not the Hendersons, would build the new challenger, is regarded as giving especial cause for trepidation. The reason for this fear is set forth in the following letter addressed yesterday to THE NEW YORK TIMES by Designer Clinton H. Crane of this city:

"The fact that the Shamrock II. is building at Denny's yard at Dumbarton," writes Mr. Crane, "does not seem to have excited the interest of yachtsmen in this country that it should have done, perhaps because it is not generally known that this is the first sailing yacht that the Dennys have ever built, and that the Dennys have the only private model testing tank in the world—two very suggestive facts. Most persons do know that Froude, working for the British Admiralty, has obtained most remarkable results in the Government tank at Greenwich, and that our own Government has recently established such a testing tank at Washington. It is also known that the speeds of warships and merchantmen of unusual model have been predicted with absolute accuracy after experiments in such a tank.

"Froude's laws of resistance are accepted to-day by all naval architects, and, though the problem of testing the model of a sailing yacht is more complex than that of a steamer, it is not one which presents unsurmountable difficulties to the scientific investigator.

"There are decided differences in conditions, but these differences are thoroughly well known, and with the assistance of a first-class yacht designer like Watson there would be no great difficulty in reproducing all the conditions of actual sailing, on a small scale, in the model tank. If Lipton has had these experiments made, and it seems probable that he has, we may have a range difficult proposition to deal with next August than we imagine now."

W. Butler Duncan, the prospective manager of the new defender, when shown a copy of Mr. Crane's letter last night, declined to comment on the comparative thoroughness of the preparations made by the challenger and defenders of the cup. He did not seem worried, however, and smiled in a manner indicating confidence in the ability of the new Herreshoff boat to win out against the joint product of Designer Watson and the Dennys. Thomas Barrie, Sir Thomas Lipton's representative in this city, reiterated his former statement that, in his belief, the Shamrock II. would be built by the Hendersons.

No Novelties in Shamrock II.

GLASGOW, Dec. 4.—Discussing the America's Cup challenger with a noted yacht owner, George L. Watson, the designer of the Shamrock II., said to-day:

"There is not a bit of truth in the reports that the new boat will embody striking novelties. A cup challenger is scarcely the kind of boat a designer would choose for experiments. The Shamrock II. will be like some of the other big boats in existence. Whatever novelties there are will be in construction details."

Manhasset Bay Y. C. Officers.

The annual dinner and meeting of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club, held last night at the Yachtsmen's Club, in West Forty-third Street, was largely attended, in spite of the unfavorable weather.

At the conclusion of the dinner the following ticket of officers, proposed by the Nominating Committee, was unanimously elected to serve during 1901: Commodore—Hazen L. Hoyt; Vice Commodore—M. Roosevelt Schuyler; Rear Commodore—Stephen W. Roach; Secretary—Edward M. MacLellan; Treasurer—W. Forbes Morgan, Jr.; Measurer—Charles D. Mower; Trustees—For three years, George H. Wilson and James Francis; for two years, Augustin Monroe and Julian Rix; for one year, Horatio R. Harper and W. W. Phillips.

The most interesting features of the evening were the presentation of cups and other trophies to the owners of the winning yachts in the club regattas of the past season.

Princeton's Hockey Dates.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 4.—Capt. R. D. Little of the university hockey team has announced that the team will play the Quaker City team at Philadelphia on Dec. 12 and the New York Hockey Club at the St. Nicholas Rink, New York, on Dec. 15. The trip of the hockey team to Pittsburg, which was contemplated earlier in the season, will not be taken.

AMATEUR BILLIARD TOURNEY.

Ferguson and Billiter Won Games in the A. A. U. Event in Progress at K. A. C.

A. D. Ferguson of this city, and Frank Billiter of Minneapolis were the winners of the two games played yesterday in the National Class B billiard tournament now in progress under the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union at the Knickerbocker Athletic Club.

In both games the averages fell considerably below the standard set by Messrs. Schmitt and Munnes in the opening game on Monday night.

In the afternoon game A. D. Ferguson's defeat of L. A. Servatius by the fairly close score of 300 to 277 gave the gallery a mild surprise. Although invariably finishing near the leaders in the previous tournaments in which he has participated, Mr. Ferguson did not have behind him so successful a record in tourney play as his opponent.

Mr. Servatius missed his first shot. A run of 15 points in the fifth inning, however, put the latter temporarily in the lead, with 27 points to his opponent's 16. Then Mr. Ferguson regained his nerve and made 18 points in the next inning. This gave him the lead, which he held throughout the remainder of the game.

The scores by innings follow, the play being at fourteen-inch balk line with the anchor nurse allowed:

Ferguson—2, 1, 4, 9, 0, 18, 1, 1, 6, 1, 9, 6, 0, 1, 0, 12, 11, 4, 4, 0, 8, 0, 4, 8, 0, 7, 3, 4, 3, 9, 0, 9, 8, 25, 4, 2, 0, 1, 0, 1, 2, 0, 0, 0, 11, 8, 0, 17, 21, 0, 3, 0, 4, 2, 0, 0, 7, 1, 1, 1, 7, 0, 1, 5, 4, 11, 1, 0, 5, 0, 0, 2. Total, 300; average, 4 12-72; high runs, 25 and 21.

Servatius—0, 4, 4, 4, 15, 1, 0, 0, 2, 1, 6, 6, 0, 0, 2, 5, 3, 2, 1, 12, 1, 0, 3, 3, 0, 1, 3, 11, 0, 5, 0, 6, 4, 0, 2, 1, 2, 1, 0, 15, 1, 0, 0, 1, 5, 2, 4, 4, 7, 6, 1, 3, 22, 1, 1, 4, 8, 0, 0, 4, 3, 2, 1, 20, 10, 8, 0, 0, 1, 15, 1. Total, 277; average, 3 64-71; high runs 20 and 22.

The evening game brought together Frank Billiter, the champion amateur player of Minneapolis, and Samuel G. Estabrook of this city. Both of them were new to turnament play in New York, but Billiter's practice records made him the favorite. He was credited with having made a run of 127 points during recent practice at Minneapolis, and since his arrival in this city made an average of 10 1-3 points in a 300-point game against Lloyd Jevne, the professional player. Mr. Billiter won his game last night with comparative ease, the score being 300 to 219, but he played far below his practice form. As in the afternoon game, both he and Mr. Estabrook inclined to the open style of play, there being very little to suggest that they were competing in a 14-inch balk-line tournament.

The game was begun shortly after 8 o'clock, Mr. Billiter leading off with two points. Mr. Estabrook's first inning netted him eight points, and at the end of the tenth inning the score stood 38 to 27 in his favor. In the twenty-second inning Mr. Billiter scored his best run, one of 26 points. It was made almost wholly by open play, his position shots proving very effective. Mr. Estabrook followed with a run of 19 in the next inning, and this left the score 108 to 101 in favor of the Westerner. Mr. Billiter then drew steadily away from his opponent. Mr. Estabrook made one creditable run of 26 points in the forty-sixth inning, but his play was erratic the greater part of the time. The game was refereed by Dr. A. G. Miller. The scores:

Billiter—2 4 1 2 0 7 9 0 2 0 6 4 9 1 10 18 2 5 5 0 26, 4 1 1 3 14 2 12 12 25 1 0 14 9 2 1 0 7 2 3 2 15 1 5 3 7 0 20 10 2 1 5 0 9. Total, 300; average, 3 25-33; high runs, 26 and 25.

Estabrook—8 1 5 0 2 6 8 5 0 0 3 0 0 3 5 0 0 14 1 7 3 0 0 19 0 1 2 0 4 9 5 1 0 16 1 2 0 0 2 0 8 0 13 1 1 1 2 0 0 3 0 6 2 1 0 3. Total, 219; average, 4 3-54; high run, 26.

Two more games of the preliminary round will be played to-day. Florian Tobias will meet Isaac A. Mannes at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and William Paffe of Boston will play L. A. Servatius at 8 o'clock this evening.

Tobias Won at Billiards.

Frank Tobias defeated James E. Lewis by a score of 200 to 186 yesterday afternoon in the scheduled game of the amateur novice billiard tournament now in progress at Maurice Daly's Academy. The game was unusually well played for a novice tourney, being run out in sixty-six innings. The score by innings follows, a fourteen-inch balk line governing, with the anchor nurse allowed:

Tobias—4 0 8 3 0 5 2 0 1 0 3 16 0 5 0 11 1 0 0 3 1 0 1 9 0 4 0 0 5 0 0 1 3 4 1 7 1 4 2 0 12 4 0 0 5 3 1 4 8 4 1 0 5 3 0 2 5 5 14 1 10 3 2 2 0 1. Total, 200; average, 3 2-66; high runs, 11, 12, 14, and 16.

Lewis—1 2 4 2 3 4 1 0 0 0 0 11 1 1 1 0 2 3 0 1 1 2 8 8 1 0 4 2 1 3 2 3 6 8 3 0 3 12 11 1 0 0 6 2 2 0 8 3 2 10 2 5 1 2 1 3 2 9 2 2 0 2 14 0 2 1 0. Total, 186; average, 2 54-66; high runs, 11, 11, 12, and 14.

The game scheduled last night between Charles Roder and Raoul Pictet, was postponed. Harry Graham will play Mr. Pictet to-night. No game will be played this afternoon.

DALY DEFEATS TOD SLOAN.

Jockey Lost in a Close Contest by Margin of One Bird.

Special to The New York Times.

QUEENS, L. I., Dec. 4.—A close live-bird contest took place here to-day at the Inter-State Park traps, when Phil Daly of Long Branch met Tod Sloan, the jockey, in a match at fifty live birds per man, inter-State rules, for a stake of $250 a side.

Both men shot in good form. Daly was a trifle the steadier, but Sloan's judgment was fine and he used his second barrel with good effect and in perfect time. It was a fast-shot event from start to finish, and, despite the storm, was witnessed by a number of prominent spectators. Sloan lost eight birds of his allotted fifty, four of which, though hard hit, succeeding in getting over the boundary flags, only to fall dead there. At the halfway mark they were even up, but in the last twenty-five Tod fell behind, and Daly won by a solitary bird, amid cheers. Summary:

Fifty live birds per man, even distances, thirty yards; the for each stake $250 a side, loser to pay for the birds and the expenses of the contest.

National Rifle Association Meeting.

A meeting of the surviving Directors of the old National Rifle Association was held yesterday. There were present Gen. George W. Wingate, Col. Joseph G. Story, Col. George Shorkley, Capt. Samuel E. Allen, Capt. C. H. Eagle, Capt. E. L. Zalinski, and Major J. Fred Ackerman. Gen. B. W. Spencer and Lieut. Albert S. Jones were elected to fill the vacancies on the board. Gen. George W. Wingate presided and Lieut. Jones was elected Secretary.

The purpose of the meeting was to turn over to the new National Rifle Association, which was organized at a convention of riflemen at Sea Girt, N. J., last Summer, the tangible assets of the old association, which are its charter and three trophies which are being contested for annually. The first step toward the consummation of this object was the adoption by the board of the by-laws of the new association, which was carried on motion of Capt. Zalinski. The action taken by the Directors of the old association is yet to be approved by a quorum of the life members to make it legal. With that end in view, a meeting of the life members has been called for Monday afternoon, Dec. 10, at 4 o'clock at the office of Wingate & Cullum, this city.

Cycle Racers in Training.

Charles Miller, the six-day champion of the world, who has been training for next week's team race at Madison Square Garden in Chicago, arrived in this city last night. The racer is in fine shape, and will need only a daily work-out to keep him in condition for the struggle. His partner in the coming affair, "Bobbie" Walthour, will reach town to-day, and the pair will do the rest of their training with the foreigners at Ambrose Park.

Yesterday's inclement weather did not interfere with the preparation of the European pedalers quartered at Ambrose Park. On the contrary, some of the best impromptu contests seen there since their arrival took place.

Entries close to-day for the amateur indoor championship and handicap, which takes place on Saturday night at the Garden. These events precede the two match races. In one Michael and Stinson will battle for fifteen miles behind motors, and in the other "Tom" Cooper and "Major" Taylor, the two fleetest sprinters in the country, will settle the question of supremacy in a match heat race.

TROTTING FRAUDS PROBED

Cases Decided by Board of Review of National Association.

DISHONEST METHODS EXPOSED

Charges Preferred and Sustained Affect Many Owners and Drivers of Harness Horses.

The annual hearing by the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association was begun at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in Parlor H of the Murray Hill Hotel, and through two sessions the reviewing body heard testimony concerning complications, which were chiefly on account of fraud in trotting races decided over tracks under the control of the National Association. The members present were P. P. Johnson of Lexington, Ky., President of the board; George W. Archer of Rochester, N. Y., First Vice President; W. H. Gocher of Hartford, Conn, Secretary; V. C. Blake of Cedar Rapids, representing the Western district; William Palmer Allen of St. Louis, representing the central district; C. D. Palmer of Lowell, Mass., representing the Eastern district; John H. Shults of Parkville, L. I., representing the Atlantic district, and David Bonner of New York. The docket contained 160 cases, and the board will be busy for two or more days going through the matters on hand. In the morning and afternoon the cases that were ready for consideration were heard, and at 6 o'clock in the afternoon decision was announced on a large number of these.

The board issued an order expelling from the privileges of the trotting turf H. A. Pennock of Minerva, Ohio, who was found guilty of ringing the pacer The Scrapper 2:20½, in Harry T. and the pacer Dan S., 2:22½, as Dan D. on Illinois and Ohio race tracks. In the charges made by Amos Heaslip of Williamsport, Ontario, and F. J. Dams, Niagara Falls, N. Y., against Philip Groben of Buffalo, and L. M. Ormsby of Smith's Mills, N. Y., to the effect that Groben and Ormsby had fraudulently raced as alike the mare Susie S., 2:11½, an order of expulsion was issued against Groben and the mare, and the charge against Ormsby was dismissed, the evidence not being sufficient to prove that Ormsby was aware of the imposition. The identity of the mare known as Susie S. is still in doubt, it being alleged that she was formerly raced as Silver Queen. Louis P. Gratiot of Baltimore, Judson and H. M. Palmer, alias P. H. Millvill, owner of the roan gelding P. A. M., a pacer, were expelled for "ringing" the horse as Red Fox in races at Cairo, Balston Spa, and Johnstown, N. Y., on evidence collected by the National Trotting Association. The board had a case against G. W. Holmes in the same fraud, but the evidence not proving Holmes to be connected with the horse, it was proved of the men expelled that they also raced the horse in Massachusetts as Frank T.

The applications for reinstatement to the privileges of the turf by John Hannan, expelled for racing the horse Judge Holt as Hornet at Johnstown, and Fred J. Cameron, alias R. H. Cameron of Cambridge, were denied. James O'Brien, alias James Reed, made a similar application, and said that he was compelled by men who employed him to train and drive the horse Dandy O. to "ring" the animal as Dr. D. and then to impersonate James Reed, the ostensible owner, in collecting money won. His petition met the same fate as the others.

A rather unusual point was raised by Harry K. Devereaux of Cleveland, Ohio, in his application for a decision on the point whether his horse, John McKerron, had a record, and if his performance in matinée races should constitute a bar against him. Mr. Devereaux, who is a leading spirit in the League of Amateur Drivers, contended that no admission was charged to the races at which his horse won, and that though he won a cup, nominally, the cup, a challenge trophy, remained the property of the Piedville Driving Club at Cleveland. The problem proved a knotty one, and no decision has been rendered yet.

Many more cases remain to be heard, among them some very unusual ones. Of these a conspicuous instance is the alleged ringing of the mare Kathleen, 2:13¾, as Fannie L. a Westfield, Mass. According to the testimony, the man who managed the mare mortgaged his home and bet all the proceeds on her in the first race she started in under the new name. He struggled up in her hopples and was distanced. Her owner raised more money and bet on her again in another race, when after she won a heat she was recognized and disqualified. Her owner having become bankrupt over her, now is threatened with expulsion from the turf. The board will meet again to-day.

GOOD AVERAGE FOR TROTTERS.

Prices for Harness Horses Held Up at "Old Glory" Auction Sale.

Prices improved yesterday at the Fasig-Tipton Company's "Old Glory" sale of light harness horses in Madison Square Garden, and though the attendance again was small, all who were present seemed to be there on business. No sensational figures were reached, the bidders appearing to have well-defined ideas of the value of the animals offered, and competing sharply up to fair values. The market made was strictly that of keen horsemen, with the dealers very well represented, the remainder of the crowd being bargain hunters, whom the bad weather could not keep away. The sales were rapid, but the auctioneer fell short of the schedule, and could not get through the catalogue, thus compelling an extension of the offering into another day. The largest price of the day was $1,150 for the promising four-year-old filly Princess Mackay, sister of Oakland Baron, to J. Stewart of New York securing her. Seventy-eight head in all sold for $19,950, an average of $256. The horses that sold for the best prices and the buyers were as follows:

DEMANDS OF AMERICAN LEAGUE.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Negotiations between the National and American Leagues have reached a critical point, according to information gained to-day. It was learned that President Hart has been commissioned by the Circuit Committee of the National League to arrange the details for any possible agreement that might be made between the two organizations.

President Johnson of the American League to-day called on Mr. Hart and had a long conference with the local magnate. Whatever the visit might have accomplished, it is known that important matters were under discussion. Later in the evening Mr. Johnson took a train for Cleveland, where he will meet C. W. Somers to-morrow. He will return about Thursday just before Mr. Hart leaves for the League meeting in New York, and it may be authoritatively stated that Mr. Hart will carry to the meeting in New York a message embodying all the demands made by the American League magnates. Mr. Hart said to-day:

"The National League is willing to be fair, but it will not be trampled upon. The American League has not signed the National agreement for next year, so technically there is absolutely no relation between the two. We could go in and sign every man in the American League not now signed if we wanted to, but we do not care to do business in that way.

"The American League is willing to come in under a new National League agreement, but the League itself will have to bring the question before the National Directors or no action will be taken. Certain alterations in the agreement are wanted by Johnson and his colleagues, but nothing has been changed yet. There the matter stands."

GOLF NOTES OF INTEREST.

P. C. Pulver, who was beaten in the final round for the East Jersey Golf League championship, has won the championship of the Newark Athletic Club in the last competition for its golf honors.

By winning the protested team match against the Newark Athletic Club, the Hillside Club of Plainfield, N. J., secures the team championship of the East Jersey Golf League.

The Park Golf Club of Plainfield, N. J., has closed its competitive season. The final contest was the concluding rubber for the Hyde Holiday Cup, won by Frank Rogers, who defeated W. D. Anderson by 3 up and 2 to play.

The right-handed and left-handed members of the Arlington Golf Club, near Boston, lined up in opposition a few days ago in team competition, four on a side. After a spirited contest the right-handed golfers won by a score of 4 to 2.

The old Lenvers Club course near Boston has been abandoned and next Spring the club will take possession of its new links near Manchester-by-the-Sea. An eighteen-hole course is now being laid out there under the direction of Alex. Findlay.

Henry Chubb has presented a cup to the members of the Nassau Country Club at Glen Cove and the qualifying rounds will be continued until Christmas Day, when the first sixteen will be drawn to compete at match play. The final round will come on the following Saturday.

A. G. Lockwood, the young Boston golfer, who reached the semi-finals in the National championship at Garden City, has been abroad in the Summer, spending a portion of the time playing over English and Scotch links. He returned to Boston a few days ago and has been playing occasionally on the Allston Club links.

HELD AS A BADGER WORKER.

Thomas McCarthy, Charged with Robbery Here, Caught in Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, Dec. 4.—The police of this city to-day arrested Thomas McCarthy, alias George Davis, on the charge of grand larceny. It is alleged that he was implicated with Emma McCarthy of New York in a badger game, in which Charles Guerin of Brazil was the victim. It is stated that the pair got money and $3,000 worth of diamonds. The woman, it is said, has been arrested in Philadelphia.

McCarthy has been here five days, passing under the name of Davis. The prisoner had clippings from New York papers describing the crime. He threw them out of a window while in a scuffle with an officer, but they were recovered. He admits living with the McCarthy woman, but declares they did not rob the Brazilian.

Gaffney Guilty of Manslaughter.

Frank Gaffney was yesterday found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree in the Kings County Court. He stabbed Policeman Charles L. Herne of the Vernon Avenue Station, Brooklyn, on Sept. 30 last.

THE WEATHER.

In addition there were general and in many cases heavy rains in the Atlantic and Middle Gulf States, the Ohio Valley, and lower lake region. J. P. MORGAN & CO.

OFFICE OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

St. Paul, October 31st, 1900.

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & CO., New York:

Dear Sirs: Referring to the Northern Pacific Railway Company's St. Paul-Duluth Division Mortgage, dated June 15, 1900, given to secure an issue limited to $20,000,000 of 4 per cent. gold bonds, I beg to state as follows:

The railroads covered by the mortgage comprise what was formerly the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad and branches, together with leases of the Minneapolis & Duluth and Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroads, extending between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, comprising about 238.09 miles of productive railroad, besides the valuable terminals at the head of Lake Superior.

Title to the entire property has been acquired directly by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and the St. Paul-Duluth Division bonds are secured by a purchase-money mortgage upon this property above mentioned, subject only to existing bonds and car-trust obligations aggregating $5,283,000 par value, to retire which a corresponding amount of the new bonds is reserved. The Bonds are DIRECT OBLIGATIONS OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY and secured by a first lien upon the mortgaged premises, subject only to the existing bonds and car-trust obligations above mentioned.

Out of which there has been issued in payment for St. Paul and Duluth Railroad property, rights, and franchises, including the liquidation of all unfunded obligations, and including funds placed in trust for this retirement of the outstanding preferred and common stocks and scrip	9,215,000.00
Balance	$10,785,000.00
Which has been reserved for the following purposes, viz.:
For retirement at maturity of the outstanding obligation of the St. Paul and Duluth Railroad and its proprietary lines	$5,283,000.00
For improvements to existing property	502,000.00
For extensions and additional branches, terminal properties, and to double-track existing lines	5,000,000.00
	$10,785,000.00

The lands included in the Land Grant of the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad Company, estimated to be worth about $4,000,000, and which were not covered by the old mortgages of that Company, are to be sold and the proceeds applied to the purchase of the new St. Paul-Duluth Division bonds at not exceeding 105 per cent. and accrued interest; or, if bonds cannot be purchased at that price, the to betterments, improvements, or additions to the mortgaged premises or the purchase of equipment for use thereon.

It is hardly necessary to refer to the large surplus of earnings of the Northern Pacific Railway Company over all fixed charges, which will be applicable to the payment of interest on these bonds, but for convenience of reference the following statement of the earnings and expenses of the Company for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, is appended:

Gross earnings were	$30,021,317.72
Operating expenses were	14,394,628.31
	$15,626,689.41
Less taxes	850,590.09
Leaving	$14,776,099.32
Add dividends, interest on securities owned, and interest on deposit	685,521.30
	$15,461,620.62
Deduct—
Interest on bonds	$5,864,950.00
Rental of leased lines	112,851.86
	5,977,801.86
Surplus over all fixed charges	$9,483,818.76

No charges have been made to Capital Account other than for additional equipment, the construction of branch lines and purchases of real estate, all expenditures for improvements having been made out of the year's income.

The foregoing statement does not include the operations of the St. Paul and Duluth Railroad.

By the acquisition of this property the Northern Pacific Railway Company's system has been strengthened by the addition of 238.09 miles of productive railroad, the Company becomes sole owner of valuable terminals at the head of Lake Superior, in which before it had only a joint interest, and is relieved of the risk of having in these terminals a partner whose interest, should it become adverse or competitive, could incalculably damage its business.

The absorption of this property has resulted in large economies, and justifies the belief that the purchase will prove of great value to the system.

A contract has been made with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company for the use of the St. Paul & Duluth line between St. Paul and the head of Lake Superior, for ninety-nine years from October 1, 1900, which gives the business of that Company to said line exclusively.

Overtures have been received from other companies, looking to a similar use of the line.

Yours truly,
C. S. MELLEN, President.

THE LONDON MARKET.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Money is in fair supply, the India bills operation having no appreciable effect. Discounts are steady. It is generally believed that the ease of short loans is temporary. The joint stock banks are taking bills cautiously.

Business on the Stock Exchange was irregular to-day, and there was little doing. Consols were dull, (the money market was distrusted,) and other high class securities were weak. Home rails were supported on the continued decline in the price of coal and the German demand. Argentines led the advance.

Americans opened at parity, were irregular, and closed dull. The feature was the firmness of Erie. Grand Trunks spurted, firsts and seconds rising sharply, the decrease in traffic returns not equaling expectations. Rio Tintos were flat, and Kafirs were irregular.

Consols for money, 97⅝; consols for the account, 97⅝; Atchison, 80⅝; Canadian, 87⅞; St. Paul, 131; Illinois Central, 128½; Louisville, 85¾; Union Pacific preferred, 84¼; New York Central, 147; Erie, 15⅛; Pennsylvania, 73½; Reading, 19¼; Erie first preferred, 48⅝; Northern Pacific preferred, 78¾; Grand Trunk, 6⅞; Anaconda, 8⅝; Rand Mines, 30⅝.

Bar silver steady at 29 11-16d per ounce.

Money, 2 per cent. Rate of discount in the open market for short and three months' bills, 3⅝ per cent.

The amount of bullion withdrawn from the Bank of England on balance to-day was £200,000. Open market premiums are quoted as follows: Buenos Ayres, 130.60; Madrid, 33.32; Lisbon, 37.50; Rome, 5.60. Spanish 1s, 69.

In Continental Centres.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were steady early, but subsequently declined. The feature was the heaviness of Rio Tintos, caused by a rumor that President McKinley is about to declare the necessity for preparing a law against trusts. Russians were in good demand. Near the close there was considerable selling of Industrials and Spanish 4s, while Rio Tintos further receded. Banks were depressed.

Three per cent. rentes, 101f 45c for the account. Exchange on London, 25f 10½c for checks.

Spanish 4s closed at 69.50.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Home funds were steady on the Bourse here to-day. Spanish 4s fluctuated, Americans were dull, Canadian Pacifics were maintained, mines were dull, and banks were firm.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 43¾ pfennigs for checks. Discount rates: Short bills, 4 per cent.; three months' bills, 4¼ per cent.

MADRID, Dec. 4.—Spanish 4s closed to-day at 77.10. The gold quotation to-day was 35.25.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Considerable weakness showed in the market for outside securities yesterday, and at the same time transactions were on a much smaller scale than on Monday. Some stocks were under pressure, and showed substantial losses, while others were only slightly affected, but at the close of the day very few of the active issues escaped some recession from the previous day's closing prices. There seemed to be fewer buying orders in the market than has been the case recently, and profit taking started a downward movement that in some quarters was considerably accelerated by stop orders being reached. The weakness of the Stock Exchange market had a depressing influence, and many issues declined without any specific reason. A few stocks showed much firmness, but practically none ended the day with net gains.

***

STANDARD OIL was watched with much interest because of the very sharp advance in the stock on Monday, but trading in the issue was relatively quiet. At the opening sales were made as high as 820, but the quotation declined steadily, and the last sale was made at 804. The closing bid of 800 showed a net loss of 7 points. Total transactions were much smaller than on Monday, when the price advanced from 7 to 825.

***

CONSOLIDATED EQUIPMENT was irregular, with a downward tendency, and at the close of the day showed a net loss of points. It opened at 13¾ and dropped sharply to 12; recovered fractionally, and then sold down to 11. During the last half hour it rose again to 12, and closed at 11½ bid. Trading amounted to about 3,000 shares. When the stock dropped to 12 some stop orders were reached which caused in part the subsequent decline.

***

AMERICAN WOOLEN was far less active than on Monday, but it retained most of the advance made on that day and was one of the strongest of the active issues. It sold from 23 down to 22½ and back to the opening price, closing at 22⅝ bid. The preferred stock sold at 77⅞, but closed unchanged at 77½ bid.

***

PITTSBURG, BESSEMER AND LAKE ERIE, which had been advanced to 31 on the report that the stock would be guaranteed a 3 per cent. dividend, sold down to 28, and closed with a net loss of over 1 point. It seems that no definite action looking to the guarantee by the Carnegie Company of a dividend on the stock has been taken, and the whole matter is said to be still in an uncertain position.

***

BRITISH COLUMBIA COPPER was traded in to the extent of about 500 shares. It sold from 20¾ down to 20⅜, and closed at the latter figure, with a net loss of a quarter of a point.

***

UNION COPPER shared the general dullness of the copper shares. It sold from 5¼ down to 5, and closed at 5 bid.

***

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

West 117th Street Lots Sold — Other Dealings in Business Property and Dwellings—Lively Day at Auction.

Max Danziger has bought from Dr. M. Allen Starr the plot of eight lots on the north side of One Hundred and Seventeenth Street, 175 feet west of Lenox Avenue, 200 by 100.11.

Bernard Smyth & Sons have sold to Sonn Brothers the plot, 50 by 100.11, on the north side of Ninety-seventh Street, 100 feet west of West End Avenue. A seven-story apartment house will probably be erected on the lots.

John N. Golding has sold for William Therne to a client for about $100,000 the four-story brownstone-front dwelling, with two-story extension, 32 West Fifty-third Street, 25 by 65 by 100.5.

Benedickt Fischer has bought from the Elsworth estate the old buildings 190 and 192 Franklin Street and 373 and 375 Greenwich Street, being the northwest corner, and from George B. Moore and others 371 Greenwich Street, adjoining, making in all a plot 75 by 100.

Charles Griffith Moses & Brother have sold to Mrs. Hannah Devine the three-story dwelling 40 Edgecombe Avenue, 17.6 by 90.

It is reported that George B. Deane has bought the four-story dwelling 279 West Eleventh Street, 25 by 112.

McVickar & Co. have sold for Nicholas Fish, Stuyvesant Fish, and Sydney Webster, executors of the estate of Hamilton Fish, to Mandelbaum & Lewing, the three-story buildings 153, 155, and 157 Ludlow Street, on a plot 50 by 87.6.

Herbert B. Rexer has sold for a client to Camella Sutherland the four-story single flat 308 East Fourteenth Street, 19.6 by 51.8.

Michael G. Pasco has sold for Mrs. Ann Tyrrell, to Errico Cipollaro, for $6,250, the property 354 East One Hundred and Twelfth Street.

Builder Thomas Farley reports that he has sold, from the plans, for $9,000, one of a row of nine two-story brick and frame dwellings, which he is now erecting on the west side of Tinton Avenue, 243 feet south of One Hundred and Sixty-ninth Street.

Regarding rumors that John Jacob Astor will erect a building on the east side of Sixth Avenue, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth Streets, to be occupied by a department store, it is stated that Mr. Astor would carry forward such an improvement if a responsible lessee for the completed structure is assured. The necessary tenant, however, has not been found.

The Auction Room.

Voluntary and partition offerings of small properties attracted a large and business-like crowd to the salesroom yesterday. The East Broadway parcels, sold by Auctioneer Ryan, caused lively bidding among the operators, and satisfactory prices were also realized for the apartment houses 1,785 and 1,787 Madison Avenue and for four flats on Sixty-third Street, just west of West End Avenue. The only disappointing feature of the day came with the offering of Boulevard Lafayette lots near One Hundred and Sixty-fifth Street, prices for which show little or no advance over those realized three years ago for the holdings of the Susan Barclay Ward estate in the same neighborhood.

Auctioneer Wells was also successful with a partition sale of tenement properties on Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Streets, near Third Avenue, belonging to the Meagher estate.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

In the following list "mtg" stands for mortgage and "R S" for revenue stamps. The war revenue law provides that stamps shall be placed on all conveyances at the rate of 50 cents for each $500 of consideration. This "consideration" has been held to mean only the equity above the mortgage, except in the rare cases where the purchaser assumes payment of the mortgage. The amount of the mortgage plus 1,000 times the value of the revenue stamps on the conveyances should therefore show the true consideration.

BROKER HALK ARRESTED

Accused of Evading the War Tax on Sales of Stock.

Action of Government Officials the Beginning of a Crusade Against Violators of the Law.

Joseph Halk, a member of the Consolidated Exchange since April, 1885, and one of the leading operators, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the floor of the Exchange by Deputy United States Marshal McAvainny on the complaint of United States Deputy Collector Taylor, who charged that Mr. Halk had been guilty of evading the war tax.

The arrest, which was made quietly and without any sensational scene, Mr. Halk being called to one of the floor entrances, is understood to be the beginning of an active crusade against a number of brokers, Stock and Consolidated alike, who, if the Federal authorities are correct, are daily cheating the Government out of revenue taxes under the provisions of the act of Congress of July 3, 1898. The technical charge against Mr. Halk, whose offices are in the Exchange Building, 60 Broadway, is failing to make memoranda of sales of stock, thereby evading the internal revenue tax of two cents a share, which, since the passage of the war tax, has been collected. This tax is quite independent of the tax levied in case an actual transfer of the stock occurs, the transfer itself then being taxed.

Following Mr. Halk's arrest he was taken directly to the Federal Building, where he was released under $1,000 bail, his hearing being set by Commissioner Shields for Dec. 14.

The arrest is the outgrowth of an investigation conducted by Col. F. G. Thompson of the Internal Revenue Department, who declares that, to his knowledge, Halk has made fifty or sixty sales of stock, and that in only one instance has the memorandum been properly made and in accordance with the law. Col. Thompson says he has data showing that twenty or thirty other brokers have for some time been carrying on a similar business, and declares that when he commenced this investigation, some months ago, he was appalled at the surprisingly large number of brokers who were evading the war revenue act in one way or another.

"In July of 1899," said Col. Thompson, "I called before me fifty or sixty brokers of the Consolidated Exchange who I had reason to believe were evading the law, and warned them they must cease or be prosecuted. Halk was of that number."

It is understood that much of the information on which this complaint and others to come are founded has been obtained from the books of A. C. Hooper & Co., 52 Broadway, who recently suspended.

At the offices of Mr. Halk inquirers were informed that he had nothing to say, but that he entertained no doubt that he would be fully exonerated. Mr. Halk lives at the Hotel St. Andrew, Broadway and Seventy-second Street.

President Wagar of the Exchange says that no official complaint has been laid with him.

FARMER'S STORY DOUBTED.

Man Who Said He Was Robbed Had a Peculiar Experience When in Business.

Capt. McClusky of the Detective Bureau stated yesterday that he did not believe that William T. Farmer of 322 East Eighty-fourth Street, who reported a robbery of $6,000 in money and jewelry to the police of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station, had ever been robbed at all.

Detective Barry of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station, who was assigned to investigate the case, says that he could find little to show that the house had been robbed. On Monday night, however, the Detective Bureau received the information on which the statement made by Capt. McClusky yesterday morning was based. Robert Reis, a wholesale knit goods merchant at 580 Broadway, called and told him that Farmer had announced that his pockets had been picked of $4,000 last July. Mr. Reis says that he does not believe that Farmer really lost any money in either case.

"The loss that he reported last July came at a very peculiar time," said Mr. Reis. "He had a large number of bills coming due at the time, and made an effort to escape paying them altogether. Last April he started in the gentlemen's furnishing business at 73 Fulton Street. He had about $5,000 in the Wings banks at the time, and on the strength of that secured a great quantity of goods on credit. In July he reported his pockets had been picked."

Mr. Reis says that Farmer owed money to about fifty people at the time, most of them wholesale merchants. Altogether his debts amounted to $6,000. His creditors decided that bankruptcy proceedings should be brought against him. Farmer, however, said that what had jewelry which he could sell for $1,100, and the proceeds of this with the money realized from the sale of his stock paid 80 per cent. to each of his creditors. It was settled in that way.

TENANTS SEEK FIRE ESCAPES.

Forty-second Street Fire Almost Causes a Panic.

A short, sharp, two-alarm fire, which at one time threatened an entire block, was discovered early yesterday morning in the basement of the two-story building occupied by the Pyrogravure Wood Company, 226 East Forty-second Street. The flames were discovered by a citizen, who sent out an alarm from Second Avenue and Forty-third Street. Meantime other citizens rushed into the adjoining buildings and gave an alarm. When the firemen came the fire escapes on the adjoining buildings were crowded with excited tenants, who were clamoring to be rescued, and many of whom were dragging their effects out to throw them into the street.

The flames were spreading with remarkable rapidity, and Battalion Chief Welch sent in a second alarm as the flames were licking the upper part of the building and seemed as if fed with oil. The flames were subdued after an hour's work, having caused a total damage of $5,000.

FUR FACTORY A NUISANCE.

Residents of West Ninety-ninth Street Have the Owner Brought to Court.

Herman S. Bindsell, a furrier living at 5 West Ninety-ninth Street, who maintains a fur-cleaning and dyeing factory at 42 West Ninety-ninth Street, was haled to the Court of Special Sessions yesterday to answer a charge of maintaining a nuisance. The complainants were Mr. and Mrs. Sotheran of 26 West Ninety-ninth Street, opposite the factory.

The Sotherans had many witnesses in court who testified that life in that block in which they live had been one long nightmare of hot stuffy rooms and tainted food in the Summer months. Windows, said Mr. and Mrs. Sotheran, were of necessity closed night and day, as particles of fur flew through them. Fur cleaners cleaned furs and skins on the factory roof on windy days, and when remonstrated with swore at the complainants. Odors inexpressibly bad continually haunted the vicinity of the factory.

Two packages of fur were exhibited by Mr. Sotheran, which he said he had collected in his apartments at 8:15 A. M. Sept. 15, and 3 P. M. Oct. 3, respectively. He was at breakfast when the first bunch drifted in, he testified, and at luncheon when the second wad arrived.

Justices Holbrook, McKeon, and Jacobs reserved decision.

Jamaica Wants Magistrate's Court.

The establishment of a Magistrate's Court in the Jamaica section of Long Island is demanded by the citizens of that region, and action on the matter is now being taken. The Taxpayers' League of Richmond Hill has appointed a committee, of which Capt. Dawson is Chairman, to wait upon the Jamaica Citizens' Association and request that body to appoint a similar committee, with the view of taking joint action at Albany to accomplish the end in view.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN.

"For people who boast of being residents of the greatest manufacturing city in the world, it strikes me that New Yorkers are decidedly slow and behind the age," said Henry Walker of San Francisco, chatting with a party of manufacturers at the Waldorf yesterday. "You New Yorkers take all the business that comes to you naturally and that which may be secured through the old-fashioned methods of drummers, but you don't reach out for it in the newer and better ways. Philadelphia, with its Commercial Museum and allied institutions, seems to be following a more aggressive and sensible course to get new trade. They certainly do get it through that medium. New York will have to come to it, sooner or later. We of the Pacific Coast have reached that conclusion. So we are establishing in our city a Commercial Museum on the Philadelphia plan, with a view of stimulating and getting new markets for our manufactures in the Far East and the islands of the Pacific Ocean. There is a tremendous trade there, and we of the Pacific States are going to keep it from the slow-going people of this city, as sure as the sun will rise to-morrow. We are making an aggressive fight for it, and aggressiveness tells in trade, as in war. If we had not put on solid express fruit trains to the Atlantic seaboard we could never have gotten the citrus and deciduous fruit trade of New York from the South and the West Indies. We simply used modern methods, and the trade is now ours. Neither Florida nor the West Indies can ever get it away from us. They might easily have held it at one time. On the same lines, we propose to get the trade of the Eastern nations now opening their doors to us. If the manufacture of cotton is necessary as an entering wedge, we stand ready to go into that in competition with the South and the East, as a means to the end. Just now it does not seem necessary. We have looked over the field, however, and are ready for the emergency, even at a loss. We expect our new Commercial Museum to bring to the attention of buyers from the markets now opening to this country everything we have to furnish them. In return, we propose to show the raw material and manufactured goods they have to send to our markets—a sort of practical reciprocity treaty without Government intervention. We are to gather, as supplementary to the work of the Consular agents of the Government, all such information as may be useful to our manufacturers and merchants; every possible detail as to what is wanted in the countries we are going to reach and as to how they want it. Then we can meet their wants intelligently. Preconceived notions as to the way those strange people should have things will be cast to the winds through the efforts of this museum in favor of the notions of the consumers, as to packing, coloring, labeling, and all those minor details that mean so much to them and seem so trivial to us. We propose to be essentially practical. If a heathen prefers a yellow label on his goods to a green one, we will teach our manufacturers that fact. You are apt here to refer to Chicago people in a sneering sort of fashion as 'rustlers.' It is the 'rustlers' that are going to get the business in the future, and we propose to be right in the thick of them. Our Commercial Museum, like that in Philadelphia, is to be a museum in name only. As a matter of fact, it will be a trade-grabber for manufacturer and merchant of the Pacific States of the most practical sort, with the museum name as a blind. We are wasting no money on mere curiosity shops, less even than Philadelphia has done. They have struck the right key in their scheme, and are singing a song of prosperity as a result."

Senator "Tim" Sullivan as the reformer pictures him and Senator "Tim" Sullivan as he actually is are two quite different characters. It is said of the Senator as a fact that he never uses tobacco and never drinks a drop of intoxicating liquor. A gentlemanly appearing and well spoken man when he is among others than the "gang" of political heelers he controls, he makes a good appearance when it is necessary for him to do so. Yet he can appear as "swagger" as any of his idolatrous followers when that necessity arises. It is his practical side among his people that makes him a power in his district. Here is one side of it. As a procurer of railroad passes from even the most parsimonious of railroads he is without an equal. He has the ability to get at the right men in the railroad offices where other political leaders stand and kick their toes in the ante-rooms of private secretaries. Here is a little incident of the way in which the Senator works things to the benefit of his constituents who may either want to travel or who have a friend who does and who objects to paying the regular railroad schedule. The Senator handed to the proper party at one of the railroads the other day a list of names of men to whom he wished passes issued. There were about thirty of them in all.

"Oh, I say, Senator, isn't this putting it a little strong?" asked he to whom the list was presented. "There are thirty names here. Our folks won't stand for that many passes in one day, you know. You'd better cut it in half."

"All right, Colonel," cheerily responded the Senator. "Cut it down then."

The list was handed to a clerk with instructions to pare the list down by half, and give the Senator passes for the remainder. The Senator eyed the clerk as he took a big blue pencil and began chopping out the names here and there.

"Hold on a bit," shouted the Senator. "Don't bear on so hard with that pencil or I won't be able to make out the names you have scratched out."

"What difference does that make, Senator?" innocently queried the clerk, as he halted in his work.

"Why, I want that list back, and to-morrow I'll come in and get the passes for those you don't issue them to to-day. See?"

Fruit dealers are having a hard time of it just now. Late California pears are or should be in their prime. But this spell of warm weather is rotting the fruit about as soon as it reaches here. Some consignments arriving this week have been badly damaged in transit so that shippers are sufferers as well. Dealers manage to get a little sound fruit only to have it rot on their hands before they can dispose of it. As a result the retail price of the fruit is higher than it has been in years. Unless pears are disposed of on the day of unpacking they generally prove a dead loss, so rapidly do they decay on such days as we have had this week. Coal dealers, too, are having a hard row to hoe just now. They find less trouble in filling orders than they do in keeping men and teams at work. In short, the unseasonable weather seems to have created a general disposition to growl all along the line among retailers in nearly every branch of business.

Properly qualified teachers of whist are in such demand just now that those known to be competent have more applicants as scholars than they can possibly attend to. While there is still something of a demand for instruction in straight whist, most of the would-be pupils want something more than an initiation to the mysteries of bridge, the latest of the whist innovations. Hearts has been practically replaced by this newer game, which allows of play for as stiff stakes as does hearts, the elements of chance and skill being about equal in each. But bridge has been taken up by fashionable women, and for two years it has been society's pet diversion. At least one of the most fashionable of the younger matrons of the town is so expert and daring at the game that her winnings in the past two seasons, both here and in Newport, have run well up into the thousands of dollars. As she and her husband do not get along very well together, she uses her skill to her financial freedom from the purse of the man whose name she bears. Asked recently if she would not instruct a class of young women of her own set, she politely declined the invitation on the ground that no matter how handsomely they were willing to pay her, she could not afford to waste the time instructing others. She must reap her harvest at the game while the craze was on, she said, before some woman who should prove more expert than she should come to the front. There are many women content to teach the game, however, and of whist and bridge teachers there are said at the Whist Club to be more than 60 in this city alone, who depend on their ability as instructors as a means for earning a living. Expert players among men are in constant demand as teachers, and one of them received $120 for a series of ten lessons he has just completed with a class of young ladies. There is an amateur holding a good position with a business house. Should the necessity arise he could find in his skill at whist and bridge a means to an easy living as a teacher without the necessity of becoming a gamester at bridge. One of the professional whist teachers is said to make an income of about $5,000 a year in his business, and there are several that are reputed to be making half that amount annually.

THE MUNICIPAL ASSEMBLY

Alderman Bridges Wants Streets of Brooklyn Kept Clean.

Effort to Pass Bond Issue for Repaving Streets Fails—Council Votes Funds for Fire Department Sites.

Alderman James Bridges of Brooklyn appeared before the board yesterday as the representative of the Woman's Health Protective League, which is made up of fashionable residents of the Heights and Hill sections of Brooklyn. Alderman Bridges represents the residents of "Cat Hollow," a district teeming with tenement houses down near the Navy Yard gate. There was a laugh when Mr. Bridges proposed an ordinance prohibiting the throwing of paper, rubbish, or street sweepings into the public streets after 8 A. M. A fine attached to the ordinanee is $1, and the maximum penalty five days in jail. It was referred to the Committee on Street Cleaning.

An unsuccessful effort was made to pass the $2,000,000 bond issue for repaving streets.

A word contest occurred over a resolution passed by the Council making it a misdemeanor for any street railroad company to run a snow plow, sweeping contrivance, or other similar instrument without the permission of the Commissioner of Street Cleaning. The matter was referred to the Law Committee.

Alderman Bridges made one of his characteristic speeches over a resolution giving the Brooklyn and Coney Island Railroad Company the right to erect shelter awnings at De Kalb and Franklin Avenues.

"There has been underhand work here," he yelled. "Some people can't fool me."

Alderman McInnes, who represents the "elite" district of Brooklyn, denied that there was any "underground" work; and that the resolution had gone through the regular committee and had been reported favorably. After a heated discussion the resolution was withdrawn and tabled.

The board adjourned after deciding to asphalt a few Brooklyn streets.

The Municipal Council decided yesterday to issue $300,000 of corporate stock for new sites for the Fire Department.

It was also decided to pass a bond issue appropriating $64,000 for the improvement of West Eighty-sixth Street, the work to be done under the direction of the Park Department. There has been complaint from the property owners that the street has been in very bad condition.

The Council passed a resolution requesting the heads of the city departments to close their respective offices on Monday, Dec. 24 and on Monday, Dec. 31. Resolutions authorizing the laying of water mains and for the repaving of streets were also passed.

ALL READY FOR SNOW NOW.

Removal Contract for This Borough to be Signed To-day.

Justice Andrews, by a decision handed down yesterday, has put aside all legal objections to the signing of a snow removal contract for the Borough of Manhattan. The contract will go to De Marco & Kelly at their bid of 36 cents per cubic yard, and will be signed to-day. It was said yesterday that the work would be done by the Uvalde Company, the contractors who did the work last year, as De Marco & Kelly were ready to assign their contract.

The decision by Justice Andrews holds that there was no legal reason for declaring the bid of De Marco & Kelly invalid, and therefore T. W. Clamp & Co., the next lowest bidder, had no rights under the law. The claim by the Clamp firm was that when the contract was signed one of the sureties was a member of the Municipal Assembly, and that the price, 36 cents, had been written over an erasure, and that the bid was not signed by the firm or its individual members.

Commissioner Nagle said yesterday that he was now ready for any kind of a snowfall.

New Entrance to Central Park.

Mayor Van Wyck signed the ordinance yesterday providing for an appropriation of $8,200 to build an equestrian and pedestrian entrance to Central Park at Sixty-sixth Street and Central Park West. The Council passed the ordinance in October and the Board of Aldermen in November.

Buffalo Exposition Banners.

Mayor Van Wyck has signed the resolution passed by the Municipal Assembly giving the authorities of the Pan-American Exposition, to be held at Buffalo, permission to hang banners in this city. Banners will be strung on Broadway near Twenty-third Street and at Park Row and Spruce Street.

Galveston Relief Fund, $120,899.28.

James Stillman, Treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce committee for the relief of the Galveston sufferers, acknowledges the receipt of $1,166 from Nov. 3 to Dec. 4. In the list appears the name of Miss Catherine B. Davis, who contributed $300; Oelrichs & Co., additional subscription made in Bremen, $379.50; Speyer & Co., balance of collection in London, $323.61, and W. F. Gregory, $108.24. The grand total is $120,899.28.

Cigarette Strikers Win.

One hundred men and women who struck in the cigarette factory of Schmast Brothers, manufacturers of Turkish and Egyptian cigarettes at 48 Broad Street, reported yesterday that they had won their strike and are back for work. The strike was against the employment of "learners" instead of regular employes.

Second Attempt at Suicide.

MR. STERN WILL COMPLAIN.

Dry Goods Importer Still Indignant Over Conduct of Customs Officials.

Julius S. Stern, Secretary of the Bamberger-Stern Company, importers of dry goods, an account of whose experience with customs officials was printed in yesterday's NEW YORK TIMES, is preparing a complaint against Custom House men and methods, which will be forwarded to the Treasury Department. Mr. Stern arrived on the steamship St. Louis last Saturday. He declared dutiable goods in his baggage on which the imposts amounted to nearly $300. It is admitted that at no stage of the proceedings was there reason to impute wrongdoing on his part or any necessity for a re-examination.

Mr. Stern talked on the subject yesterday with Col. Dudley F. Phelps of the law division of the Custom House, and intimated that he had not been satisfied with the treatment he had received at the hands of Custom House officers here for several years. Col. Phelps would not talk on the subject, but the story current in the Custom House is that Mr. Stern aims at establishing that Special Treasury Agent W. H. Theobald is responsible for what he complains of. He and Theobald were schoolmates and in after life members of the same congregation. They met in Paris in the Spring of 1899, when Theobald intimated, so the story goes, that he had influence enough to protect Mr. Stern if absent-mindedly he should bring dutiable articles in his baggage. Mr. Stern came to the United States shortly after, and another Treasury agent, after searching his baggage and finding nothing in contravention of law, took him on a steamship, made him strip, and kept him a prisoner for four hours.

Agent Theobald said last night that he had nothing to do with the incident complained of or with the sending of Mr. Stern's baggage to the Appraiser's Stores last Saturday. "I saw Mr. Stern when he returned the other day, that is all."

SERVANT GIRLS MAY STRIKE.

Mrs. Beale Says Domestics Are Ill-Treated, Underpaid, and Even Cheated.

A general strike of servant girls on Manhattan Island is imminent, according to Mrs. St. Justin Beale, who is planning a servant girls' union. Three hundred domestics, she said yesterday, stand ready to stop work as soon as the union is formed and demand better conditions. The union, she says, is to be organized to-night, at the Social Reform Club, 45 University Place, by Herman Robinson, General Organizer for the American Federation of Labor.

"I have always taken a great interest in servant girls," Mrs. Beale said, "and I find that with a few exceptions they are badly fed, badly housed, and overworked. The people who treat the servants worst are the women who are not rich, but ape at being society leaders. They half-starve and underpay the servants, and often cheat them. In hotels it is very bad. I got a position in a hotel once in New York where the servants were fairly well treated, but had to sleep in a damp cellar, where you wouldn't put a dog you cared for."

Mrs. Beale says it is proposed to charge members $1 each for initiation fees and 25 cents monthly for dues. This was to create a fund for maintaining a headquarters, a free labor bureau and reading room, and to give free sacred Sunday concerts.

Mrs. Beale lives at 219 Second Avenue, which is a kind of home for workingwomen. When told that officers of the Friendly Aid Society said that no public meeting to form a servant girls' union would be held to-day at the rooms of the society, 246 and 248 East Thirty-fourth Street, such as was announced by her, Mrs. Beale said: "This is not a public meeting, but a private conference of ladies on the servant-girl question. It will be held, of course. The notification refers to a public meeting."

DIVORCE DEFENDANT HELD.

Goffiot's Wife Charged that He Was Going to Leave the Country.

Louis V. Goffiot, the private secretary of an officer of one of the large life insurance companies, was arrested yesterday. He was subsequently released on $1,000 bail.

The arrest was brought about by Goffiot's wife, who alleges that on Nov. 3 last her husband sent her away from their home on some pretext. She returned unexpectedly and found another woman in the house.

The Goffiots were married in Paris in 1894. It was on the grounds that her husband was about to leave the United States pending her action for divorce that Mrs. Goffiot obtained the warrant of arrest.

JAMES C. LEE ACQUITTED.

Justice Fursman Orders Verdict of Not Guilty in a Murder Case.

James C. Lee, proprietor of the Fordham Hotel, at 4,708 Third Avenue, was acquitted yesterday of the murder of Edward Turpin, a negro Pullman car porter, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, upon the direction of Justice Fursman. Turpin on Nov. 24 of last year, while intoxicated, came into Lee's hotel and interrupted a card game. Refusing to get out when ordered, he was evicted.

The next day he was found dead in front of the place. The autopsy showed death to have resulted from a blow on the head. The evidence at the trial showed that Lee had no part in the man's death.

CLAIMANTS TO RICE ESTATE.

Brooklyn Woman and a Washington Man Declare Their Kinship.

The time for filing objections to the probate of the first will of William Marsh Rice will expire to-morrow. As yet counsel for Albert T. Patrick has made no effort to interpose objections. Even if no objections are made, the will will not be admitted to probate to-morrow, on account of the fact that Nina Bell, a grandniece of the testator, is only ten years old, and it will be necessary for the Surrogate to appoint a guardian for her pending the various complications now existing regarding the various wills.

Meantime there are various heirs coming forward, claiming rights under the different wills. Bridget King of Brooklyn, whose Rice ancestors were born in Ireland, and Frederick A. Rice, a messenger employed in the Weather Bureau at Washington, are making claims that they are entitled to interests under the will.

Mark W. Potter, who has charge of the interests represented under the first will of Mr. Rice, said yesterday:

"The history of Mr. Rice's life has already been published, and those who are really related to him know the facts. He was born at Springfield, Mass., and the line of his descendants and relatives has been clearly established."

FORGED NOTE MISSING.

Accused Man Makes Charges Against Assistant District Attorney O'Reilly.

Testimony which was expected to explain the mysterious disappearance from the District Attorney's office of a two-thousand-dollar note, essential to the conviction of Nathan Musher, charged with forgery, was introduced yesterday in Musher's trial by Isaac Blumberg. This witness swore that Musher while in the Tombs had told him that the note had been taken from the indictment papers at the instance of his lawyer, Abraham Pincus, with the assistance of Assistant District Attorney O'Reilly and the use of $700 among other officials of the office.

Blumberg's evidence was discredited by Assistant District Attorney Cowan, who is prosecuting the case, and by Judge Goldfogle, Musher's counsel, who stated that Musher denied positively ever having had such a conversation with Blumberg. Assistant District Attorney O'Reilly was very indignant when told of Blumberg's testimony, and said:

"I never saw any of the papers in the Musher case, and I think it unjust that accusations of this kind without any foundation can be made against the District Attorney's office or the Judges, as was done in the Spolasco case against Judge Newburger."

Blumberg said that Musher obtained about $70,000 from him by forged notes, and that his complaint was presented to the Grand Jury at the time of Musher's indictment. The affidavit of Dr. Alexander Rosenthal of Pike Street was much stronger, however, and Musher was indicted specifically for forging a note payable to the order of Moe Levy, signed by Solomon Feinberg, and indorsed by Levy. This note came into Rosenthal's possession through Musher.

Lawyer Lind, from Judge Goldfogle's office, had often asked at the District Attorney's office to see the note in order to submit it to expert examination, but was told it was not there. Judge Goldfogle on July 2 moved before Judge Foster that the District Attorney be compelled to produce the note. In an affidavit the District Attorney alleged that the note was missing and could not be found. It was last positively seen at Musher's arraignment, after which the papers were placed in the custody of the Chief Clerk, and are to be seen only by the District Attorney until the defendant is brought to trial.

HORSE FALLS 75 FEET.

Animal Brings Up at Foot of Embankment All Right, but Cart Is Demolished.

Jim Dandy, a big brown mare owned by Thomas Meyer of One Hundred and Seventieth Street and Jerome Avenue, accomplished as much work yesterday as though he had not fallen down a seventy-five-foot embankment with a dirt cart and a load of dirt twenty-four hours previous. Indeed, all there was to prove that the animal had really gone through such an experience were several cuts and scratches on his sides and back. How he escaped instant death is a mystery to his driver, who was obliged to jump from the cart to save himself from going over the embankment.

At One Hundred and Fifty-eighth Street and High Bridge Park there is a large hollow in the high cliff to the west of the Speedway that is being filled in with dirt, broken stone, and rubbish. Meyer was working on the job with Jim Dandy, and about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon backed up to the edge of the embankment to dump a load of dirt. Suddenly the ground gave way under the wheels of the cart, which began slipping down the face of the embankment, dragging the horse with it. Meyer, realizing what had happened, made a desperate leap to save himself, and landing near the edge scrambled to safety just as the slipping dirt and stone broke away completely. The horse turned a complete back somersault and landing on the slanting face of the embankment seventy-five feet below began to roll over and over, still attached to the cart. Finally horse and cart brought up short against a tree.

Nobody who saw the accident had the slightest doubt that the animal was dead, for he lay perfectly still and the cart was smashed to kindling wood. To the great surprise of all, when the workmen began to remove the wreck of the cart, Jim Dandy opened his eyes and began to kick vigorously. The tackle of a derrick which stood on top of the embankment at One Hundred and Fifty-eighth Street was lowered, and, a rope being placed around the horse, he was extricated from the wreck of the cart and the heap of stones and rubbish in which he had fallen by being lifted up in the air.

Mounted Policeman McKnaw had appeared on the scene by this time, and was ready with his revolver to put the horse out of misery. But there was no use for a bullet, for Jim Dandy, reaching the ground again, staggered for a moment and then, bracing up with an effort, was led away to his stable by Meyer.

DECLINED TO ACCEPT LIBERTY.

Murray Struggled When Police Tried to Eject Him from Station.

Alfred J. Murray of 1,907 Second Avenue appeared last night in the East One Hundred and Fourth Street Station before Sergt. Fitzpatrick and asked to be locked up, as he had committed something for which he deserved to be punished. The Sergeant asked what he had done, but Murray refused to say except that he had been guilty of the same offense on other occasions, and decided that what he needed was a dark cell. The Sergeant explained that he could not lock up any one without a sufficient reason, and that he would have to explain himself if he hoped to sleep in a cell. Murray said he would be d—— if he would explain himself, and that he would be locked up just the same, whereupon he was ordered out of the station.

He refused to go and the doorman was ordered to put him into the street. Two officers who were present were detailed to assist the doorman, but the fellow hung on to the rail in front of the Sergeant's desk and yelled that he wanted to be locked up, and that all New York would not prevent him from being locked up. To solve the problem a charge of disorderly conduct was preferred against him, and he was taken to a cell, while Officer Pat Joyce was sent to the address given by Murray to find what was the matter.

At 1,907 Second Avenue, Joyce found a policeman on post at the door, awaiting Murray's return. Investigation showed that Murray had come home from work in a bad humor, and had let it out by beating his wife almost insensible with the handle of a razor strap. The entire neighborhood was up in arms, awaiting Murray's return. Murray had been known in the vicinity as a wife beater, and his wife being ill, his neighbors had decided to teach him a lesson. Murray learned of this in time, and in order to save himself, had himself locked up.

MR. KELLER'S REDUCTIONS.

Pay Roll of the Charities Department Will Be Cut Down and Some Bureaus Merged.

Commissioner of Charities Keller had a conference yesterday with the heads of the bureaus in his department to learn what employes could be spared. All of the chiefs said more employes were needed to do the work effectively. After the conference it was rumored that Mr. Keller had announced his intention of merging certain bureaus and thus doing away with some of the chiefs.

"My appropriation for 1901 for salaries," said the Commissioner, "is $459,316. My pay roll for November, 1900, amounts to $39,516.94. To keep my salary expenditures within the appropriation I must cut down the pay roll $14,911.28 for 1901. I have gone through the salary list of the various departments and see my way clear to do this without recourse to prison labor, which I hope has been stamped out of the Department of Public Charities forever."

PLUM ISLAND DEFENSES.

Government Acquires All the Land and Will Extend Fortifications.

United States District Attorney Pettit is engaged in searching title to the western end of Plum Island. The Government acquired 193 acres of land, upon which three batteries have been emplaced. In order to increase the fortifications and establish a military reservation, the War Department took steps to purchase the entire island.

Negotiations were entered into with ex-Mayor Abram S. Hewitt for the sale of the remaining 647 acres, and Mr. Hewitt, it is said, has sold the land to the Government for $64,700. The work of enlarging the fortifications of the island, guarding one of the waterways to New York City, will be begun soon.

THE McGLORY PLACE OPEN.

Adam Kessel, Alleged Proprietor, Gets Order Restraining Police.

An injunction restraining the police from interfering with the business of Kessel's place, at 313 and 315 West Fifty-ninth Street, was granted yesterday by Justice James A. Blanchard, in the Supreme Court. The Paulist Fathers and the police have been vigilant about this place, and Adam Kessel, Jr., the alleged proprietor, got the injunction, stuck out a big sign with "Opening Night" on it, and hired some musicians and illuminated the place brilliantly last night and waited for business. The police sent four detectives down at once to see what he was going to do.

Acting Captain Frank Kear of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station was served with the injunction early last evening. He at once forwarded it to Chief Devery, who will hand it over to the Corporation Counsel. Kessel obtained an excise license for the saloon Nov. 13.

"Billy" McGlory is popularly believed to be the proprietor of the saloon. His nephew, Campbell, had it first, and the Paulist Fathers, headed by Father Doyle, made strenuous efforts to keep the premises from being rented for a drinking house and a dance hall.

The Baker brothers had it after Campbell, but they did not run it long. Then Joseph Burke got the license, ostensibly. He tried to run a ball there, but it was not a success.

McGlory is supposed to have been behind every man who has got out a license for the place.

Kessel got lawyers to get an injunction for him, and when this was procured he had arrangements made for a dance. Everything was in readiness for the dance at 9 o'clock, except the dancers. The brilliancy did not attract people, however, and few appeared. Detectives Day, Deering, Armstrong, and Donohue moved about the hall. Father Doyle was in Brooklyn last night.

Transport Crook Arrives from Cuba.

The United States transport Crook arrived from Cuba and Porto Rico yesterday with thirty-five cabin passengers and 101 enlisted men, (discharged,) and furloughed soldiers and teamsters. Among the cabin passengers were Capt. A. T. Marix, United States Marine Corps, and Lieuts. Hamilton Foley, H. B. Dixon, and A. E. Williams, all of the Fifth United States Cavalry. The soldiers are Troops E and G of the Fifth United States Cavalry, changing stations.

WAR TAX REDUCTION FIXED

Ways and Means Committee Takes Off Over $40,000,000.

No Stamps on Checks and Telegrams —Beer to Pay $1.60 a Barrel— Favorable Action on the Bill Expected Before Christmas.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Chairman Payne (Rep., N. Y.) of the Ways and Means Committee to-day introduced the bill reducing the taxation under the War Revenue act, after the Republican members of the Committee had agreed on the form of the measure and the articles to receive the reduction of tax. The bill provides an aggregate reduction estimated at $40,000,348. The estimated reductions in detail, as given out by Mr. Payne, are as follows:

Beer, $9,852,712; cigars, $3,180,764. Special taxes (Section 2)—Commercial brokers, $138,281; Custom House brokers, $8,167; circuses, $11,744; theatres, $47,178; exhibitions not otherwise provided for, $84,218; total special tax, $287,589.

Schedule A—Bank checks, $7,000,000; certificates of deposit, $200,000; drafts, inland, $500,000; promissory notes, $3,500,000; postal orders, $602,000; foreign bills of exchange, $100,000; export bills of lading, $100,000; express receipts, $1,200,000; telephone messages, $315,000; bonds of indemnity, $250,000; certificates other than of profits, $200,000; charter party, $100,000; brokers' contracts, $100,000; conveyances, $3,000,000; telegraph dispatches, $800,000; insurance, $3,000,000; leases, $200,000; mortgages, $500,000; passage tickets, $200,000; powers of attorney, &c., $100,000; protests, $25,000; warehouse receipts, $250,000. Total Schedule A, $22,212,000.

Schedule B—$4,548,283, less wines, $600,000, $3,808,283; legacies, charitable, &c., $500,000; grand total, $40,000,348.

The bill provides a discount of 20 per cent. in the tax of $2 per barrel on beer, in lieu of the present 7½ per cent. reduction, making the new rate $1.60 per barrel.

The sections of the War Revenue act taxing commercial brokers, custom house brokers, circuses, theatres, and other exhibitions are stricken out.

The rate on cigars weighing more than three pounds per thousand is made $3, instead of $3.20 per 1,000.

Schedule A retains the stamp tax on corporate stock, bonds, &c., sales, &c., at exchanges or boards of trade, freight receipts, certificates of profits, entry of goods at Custom Houses, and entry for withdrawal of goods from customs bonded warehouses. With these exceptions, the stamp taxes under Schedule A are struck out.

Chairman Payne's statement gives in detail the stamp taxes omitted under Schedule A.

Schedule B, which required stamps on proprietary medicines and preparations, perfumery and cosmetics, chewing gum, &c., is amended so that sparkling or other wines are the only products requiring stamps.

Section 29 of the War Revenue act, relating to the taxes on legacies, is amended by adding at the end of said section the following: "Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to bequests or legacies for uses of a religious, literary, charitable, or educational character, including works of art."

Section 30 of the act is amended as to administrative features, and Sections 10, 11, 18, 19, and 20 are repealed, as they relate to administrative features no longer necessary.

Section 35 of the act is amended to read as follows: "Section 35—That for the purpose of this act, the words 'mixed flour' shall be taken and construed to mean the food product resulting from the grinding or mixing together of wheat, or wheat flour as the principal constituent, with any other grain, or the product of any other grain, or other material except such material, not the product of any grain, as is commonly used for baking purposes:

"Provided, that when the product resulting from the grinding or mixing together of wheat or wheat flour with any other grain, or the product of any other grain, of which wheat or wheat flour is not the principal constituent as specified in the foregoing definition, is intended for sale, or is sold, or offered for sale as wheat flour, such products shall be held to be mixed flour within the meaning of this act."

The bill provides for the redemption of revenue stamps heretofore issued and not used.

The concluding section provides that the act shall take effect thirty days after its passage.

Chairman Payne has called a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee for to-morrow morning, when he expects to have the bill reported to the House. He will then seek to have the bill considered after the Army Oleomargarine and Legislative bills are disposed of, with a view to securing action before the holidays.

Hoped for a Greater Reduction than the 20 Per Cent. Offered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The brewers who came here to secure a reduction of the tax on beer are not satisfied with the rebate of 20 per cent. offered by the House in response to their request that a dollar a barrel be taken off.

According to the statement of the Treasury Department, beer paid $23,400,000 tax in the last fiscal year, and the receipts from beer promise to give a revenue for the current fiscal year of nearly $40,000,000. There has been some increase in the consumption of beer, in spite of the tax, but the brewers insist that their business has not been as profitable as it was a few years ago.

As the Finance Committee of the Senate contemplates making the reduction of internal revenue taxes something like $60,000,000 or even $75,000,000, taking off all the internal revenues that are not to be retained permanently, the brewers have strong hope that they will be relieved of the payment next year of the extra dollar a barrel placed upon beer to meet war expenditures.

Fox Terrier Prevents a Burglary.

A pet fox terrier prevented a burglary at the home of Lawrence T. Gayne, 119 East Fortieth Street, last night. A man who gave his name as James M. Ferry entered the house by the front door and went up stairs. The dog heard him and barked so loudly that the family was aroused and discovered the man. A policeman was summoned and he was arrested.

MINISTER KILLED IN A DUEL.

First Shot His Antagonist Through the Body in a Street Fight.

WILLIAMSON, West Va., Dec. 5.—This afternoon S. Davis Stokes shot and killed the Rev. John W. Wohl in a street duel here. Mr. Stokes being also dangerously wounded. To-night the whole town and even the country districts are greatly excited.

Mr. Stokes, one of the most prominent young lawyers in Mingo County, left his office this afternoon and walked in the direction of the house occupied by the Rev. Mr. Wohl and his housekeeper, Mrs. Levine, Mr. Wohl's family being in Kentucky. Mr. Stokes stopped at the gate to talk with Mrs. Levine, who stood in her doorway. Within a few minutes the minister came out of the house. He seemed to be greatly excited about something, and said to Mrs. Levine as he passed her at the door, "You would be much better at present in the house." She replied that the day was far too nice to be spent entirely within doors, and Mr. Stokes interrupted by remarking: "Yes, don't think of leaving us for the house."

Quick as a flash Mr. Wohl turned and addressed Stokes, saying "Leave the premises." An altercation followed. Both men ran to the sidewalk directly in front of the house. Something was said, almost indistinctly, that drew from Mr. Wohl a sharp retort, and in an instant the report of a revolver was heard. Stokes stumbled, tried to regain his feet, but fell in the street. Wounded as he was, he drew his revolver and covered the minister, now within ten feet of him. Again Wohl fired, and simultaneously with that shot the gun in the hand of Stokes spoke. When the smoke cleared away the two men lay upon the sidewalk. A crowd ran to the scene. Mr. Wohl was dead, shot through the head. His first bullet had entered Stokes's side below the heart and passed entirely through the body.

Mr. Stokes refuses to say anything concerning the tragedy. Mr. Wohl was recognized as one of the most forceful and eloquent of Presbyterian ministers of this State. Mr. Stokes is an ex-President of Virginia University and comes from one of the best families of the Old Dominion.

NEGROES STONE WHITE CHILD.

Rachel Brown's Skull Crushed by Colored Girls at Bridgeton.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Dec. 5.—Stoned by a crowd of colored children, after some childish dispute, seven-year-old Rachel Brown lies dying at her mother's cottage. Her skull is crushed and she cannot possibly recover. The crowd of colored children was led by Anna and Bertha Clark, aged respectively seven and nine years. Bertha to-night cried herself to sleep in the police station, while her mother, with little Anna in her arms, is in hiding somewhere in the swamp near Maurice River.

The negro girls live near the home of Rachel Brown, and until to-day were never known to molest her or any other child. Nobody knows just how the trouble started. It began and ended within three minutes, but not before nearly a bushel of stones and bricks had been thrown at the defenseless head of little Rachel, who was picked up unconscious and bleeding by a passing teamster, who took her to the nearest house, which happened to be her own home.

Dr. Reba Lloyd declared the child's injuries were fatal, and warrants were issued for the arrest of the Clark children. Policeman Smith went to the Clark home, and asked Mrs. Clark for the two children. Her reply was a stinging blow in the face, which knocked him down. Before he could rise she had buried her fingers in his throat, and nearly choked the life out of him. She beat, kicked, and bit him, and finally, springing away from him, caught the youngest girl in her arms, and fled down the river to the swamp. The policeman took the other child to the police station.

BOAR HUNT IN DANBURY.

Huge Animal, Shipped by Express, Escapes and Makes Things Lively Before Being Recaptured.

Special to The New York Times.

DANBURY, Conn., Dec. 5.—A genuine bear hunt furnished Danbury with more excitement yesterday than it has undergone for many a year. The animal, which was a black one, weighing nearly 700 pounds and displaying a set of tusks that protruded from its mouth two inches or more, had been shipped from Ridgefield to Waterbury in a cage which was not half strong enough to restrain it in its efforts to escape.

The animal arrived in Danbury and was transferred from the office of the Adams Express Company to the west-bound train without trouble. Although the boar struggled to escape, it did not succeed in smashing through the side of the cage until it had been placed inside the car. Suddenly it gave a wild lunge and crashed through the side of the cage, sending the railroad employes scurrying through the doors of the car. The bear followed rapidly and plunged out through the open door almost into a crowd of curious bystanders attracted by the unusual spectacle of an animal of such dimensions and ferocity being shipped by express.

The crowd lost no time in scattering. One man climbed a telegraph pole in front of the depot, while the others sought safety within the station. Seeing nobody, the bear started to run along the railroad track toward the hat factory of Lee & Co., over a quarter of a mile away. When it started to run, the express company employes started in pursuit with a vague idea of capturing it. They chased it as far as the factory, but doubled on their tracks when the boar suddenly took a stand and faced them, with its tusks bared for action.

Once more the animal started in its flight and ran as far as White Street, with the crowd, which now numbered fifty or more men, in close pursuit. An expressman was driving through that street at the time and stopped to learn the cause of the excitement. The boar hove in sight just then, followed by the crowd of yelling men, and the expressman's horse took fright and ran away. It was stopped within a short distance, and the owner returned with a rope, which he suggested should be used as a lasso.

At the first attempt to lasso it, the boar charged directly on its would-be captors and succeeded in catching two or three of them. One of them was tossed ten feet in the air, while others received slight tears in their clothing, but no injury. Time after time the expressman cast the rope at the boar, and finally succeeded in placing the noose around its neck. It was hauled taut and the exhausted boar made helpless by binding its legs. It was forwarded to Waterbury on a later train.

THE BENNETT WILL STANDS.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—Judge Hanna to-day, in the Orphans' Court, sustained the validity of the will and codicils of Col. Joseph M. Bennett, a prominent merchant and capitalist, who died here recently.

Col. Bennett bequeathed nearly the whole of his fortune, estimated at $2,000,000, to the University of Pennsylvania and the Methodist Orphanage. Mrs. Imogene E. Bennett Wellens, Col. Bennett's daughter, was cut off without a cent, and contested the will, alleging that the testator was of unsound mind when he executed the document.

The Court refused to send the case to the Common Pleas Court for trial by jury, and dismissed the appeal.

Big Mortgage Filed.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The Westchester Lighting Company has filed a mortgage in favor of the Colonial Trust Company of Manhattan Borough, in the Register's office in West Chester County. It is for $10,000,000, and is to cover the issue of first mortgage 5 per cent. fifty-year gold bonds. There are to be 10,000 of these bonds of the denomination of $1,000 each. The amount of revenue stamps is $1,725.

COL. ASTOR SELLS A BLOCK

East Siders Will Become Their Own Landlords.

Property Is at First Avenue, Avenue A, Fourth and Fifth Streets—Consideration $700,000.

Negotiations have been concluded by which the entire block bounded by First Avenue, Avenue A, Fourth, and Fifth Streets, owned by John Jacob Astor and leased by him to various tenants, will be sold to these tenants. Title to the properties will pass on Dec. 10.

The total consideration for the entire property will probably be in the neighborhood of $700,000. Many of the lots are not of full size, but inquiry of several of the purchasers in the block shows that the avenue corners are selling for about $25,000, the inside avenue lots at about $18,000, and the street lots for $10,000 each.

There are in all about fifty separate parcels in the block—eight on each avenue and seventeen on each street. Almost without exception the tenants have been ready to avail themselves of the opportunity of purchase and in the cases of a few exceptions it is understood outsiders have been ready to take their places in the large transaction.

The ground in this block has heretofore been leased for long terms, usually twenty years, the lessees erecting and owning the buildings. These lessees have been in the majority of cases the small mercantis who carry on their business in the small stores in the three and four story tenements which surround the block. Recent renewals of these ground leases have been at considerably increased rentals—the rental being fixed at 5 per cent. of a fair valuation of the land. Values have naturally increased greatly in that neighborhood in the last twenty years, but even with due regard to these circumstances it seemed particularly arduous to many of the tenants to have their ground rent advanced, for example, from $450 to $1,000 a year.

There would seem to be slight prospect that this increase in value in that section during the last twenty years will be duplicated in the next twenty, which doubtless accounts in large measure for Mr. Astor's willingness to sell, while the tenants, on the other hand, were equally willing to become their own landlords and avoid what many of them regard as excessive ground rentals.

This is the second large sale of Astor leasehold property on the lower east side within the last three years. In July, 1898, Henry Morgenthau acquired from William Waldorf Astor forty-one lots on Avenue A, First Avenue, East Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh Streets for about $850,000. The original contract between Mr. Astor and Mr. Morgenthau provided that the purchaser should remove the old buildings then on the lots and replace them with modern tenements within a year. This provision brought forth such a vigorous protest from many of the tenants that the contract was modified, so that the tenants might, if they desired, acquire the fee of the properties which they had leased for so many years. In this shape the deal was consummated, and many of the lessees at once bought the lots.

All of this property, and much more in the same section, was a part of the old Sowler farm, which has been held by the Astors since 1803.

SAID HE WAS SURGEON GENERAL

Elderly Man Duped Matteawan Priest by an Ingenious Story.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Dec. 5.—This morning a well-dressed elderly man called upon the Rev. T. F. Kelly, pastor of St. Joachim's Church at Matteawan. He said he was M. A. Flannery, Surgeon General of the United States Army, and that he had called on a very pleasant mission. Some months ago a young soldier was stricken with illness in the Philippines. He told his comrades of a young priest, Father Kelly by name, who had been very kind to him. "In case anything happens to me," the soldier was represented as saying, "I have saved some money. I want you to pay my funeral expenses, and the balance I want you to promise to deliver to Father Kelly."

The man then told Father Kelly that it gave him great pleasure to carry out the wishes of the dying soldier lad. The funeral expenses had been $200, and the soldier had $650 left.

He then presented to Father Kelly a draft on Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia for $350. Father Kelly entertained the stranger for a time. He was an interesting talker, spoke three languages fluently, and related many army experiences. Before he started to go, however, he told Father Kelly that he was placed in an embarrassing position. There was a hole in his overcoat pocket, which he showed to the clergyman, saying that through it he had lost his money. If he only had Father Kelly would lend him enough money to get back to New York; he would greatly appreciate the favor. Father Kelly gave him $5, and he went away. Soon after he had gone the clergyman thought he might have been duped. He took the draft to the Matteawan National Bank and directed the officials to find if it were good. Word came back that no such name as Flannery was known to Drexel & Co.

Chief of Police Moshier place the stranger, who had returned to the hotel where he stopped last night, under arrest. At the police station he broke down. With tears streaming down his face, he said that he had been on a spree and spent his money. "My dignity would not allow me, after stopping at a hotel," he said, "to have the proprietor ask me for my bill and not be able to pay it."

He said that he had read of a man working this scheme, and he concluded to try it, pay his hotel bill, and return home, sending the money back to Father Kelly. The latter will not prosecute him, and he will probably be released to-morrow.

LOCKED IN BRIDGEPORT JAIL.

New York Custom House Employe Had Jumped His Bail.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 5.—George P. Fisher, ex-committeeman of the East Port Chester School District, in this State, and now employed in the New York Custom House, was arrested in New York yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Fitzroy and landed in the county jail here on the complaint of his bondsman, W. R. Monroe of Cos Cob Village, for failure to appear in court when the case of the school district against him was called last week.

Fisher has been employed for five years in the New York Custom House, but has kept his residence in Connecticut. During his service as school committeeman in East Port Chester, he is said to have managed affairs as he pleased. His successors refused to pay for contracts he had made, and after much controversy the district brought civil action against him. For nine months Deputy Sheriff Fitzroy endeavored to get possession of his body, and when he finally succeeded in arresting him, Monroe became his surety. The case was called last week, and the ex-committeeman failed to appear. The Deputy Sheriff resolved to take stringent measures to get Fisher back into Connecticut. He went to New York yesterday afternoon, and when Fisher walked out of the Custom House the Deputy Sheriff addressed him.

"I have come to take you to Bridgeport jail," said Fitzroy.

"Where's your requisition papers?" asked Fisher.

"We don't need any," said Fitzroy. "Here's a copy of the bond given by Mr. Monroe, and we'll take you anywhere. Don't be ugly about it, now, for we've come to take you, and that settles it."

Fisher, not wishing to make a scene for fear of losing his position at the Custom House, accompanied the officer without more ado, and the two arrived here late at night. The jailer was finally prevailed upon to admit the slippery prisoner, pending the securing of a mittimus, which was obtained to-day.

NO SALE OF THE CRAMP YARDS.

Reported Purchase by Vickers' Sons & Maxim Is Denied.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—Reports that Vickers' Sons & Maxim, Limited, the great English steel firm, had offered $7,500,000 for the Midvale Steel Works, and had practically concluded negotiations for the purchase of the Cramp Ship Yards of this city were definitely denied to-day by the highest representatives of both the Philadelphia firms. In the absence of President Charles H. Cramp, Edward S. Cramp made the following statement: "We have not sold out, and we do not intend to sell out. The story is not true. This is merely an old story revamped, and it is without foundation. The report was circulated a year ago that Vickers was about to purchase a plant in this country."

Cramp made this statement as he was about to leave for Washington, where Charles H. Cramp already is, and where, it is said, the two Cramps are looking after contracts for new battleships.

In behalf of the Midvale Steel Company, President Charles J. Harah said: "So far as I know there is no foundation for the report. Midvale is not under offer at any figure. I met Albert Vickers, Chairman of the board of Vickers' Sons & Maxim, in London last Autumn, and in reply to my question he stated that neither he nor any of his firm, nor his company as a corporation, had any thought of establishing a plant in the United States. The article published this morning makes pleasant reading and is very interesting."

Vice President James F. Sullivan of the Midvale Company laughed at the story and denied it positively. "You can say for the Midvale Company that nobody has been given an option upon the company's works."

When asked whether any firm or syndicate has attempted to negotiate for the purchase of the company's plant, he said: "I couldn't tell you how many parties have been trying to purchase the plant. In fact, we have been swarming with all sorts of propositions from firms and promoters. Some of these would-be purchasers have been represented by lawyers, others by firms and syndicates directly, and still others by professional promoters."

"To your knowledge has the Vickers' Sons & Maxim Company, Limited, of England made any proposition recently to purchase your plant?" Mr. Sullivan was asked.

"That is a matter I couldn't say anything about, for I haven't heard their name mentioned outside of the newspaper reports," he answered.

William Sellers of the Midvale Directorate said: "I do not credit the statement. Offers have been made repeatedly for the plant, and, in fact, one was made very recently, but the Vickers' Sons & Maxim Company have not, to my knowledge, made any offer, and I think I would have heard of it had any been made. Every well-established plant is frequently in receipt of offers to purchase, but these bids usually come from promoters. I know nothing of the alleged deal."

The report found little credence and no confirmation in the financial district.

"The report," said Henry Seligman of the banking firm of J. & W. Seligman & Co., who is a Director of the Cramp Shipbuilding Company, "is simply untrue. But you can say that there is 'something in the air.' That is all I have to say at this time."

THE DADY CONTRACT TROUBLE.

Havana Commission Says Dady Should Get $564,000—Gen. Wood Says $58,000 Is Enough.

HAVANA, Dec. 5.—The Havana Municipal Council held a special meeting this evening to discuss the sewer project. The Sewer Commission, consisting of one member appointed by the municipality, one by Michael J. Dady, and Señor Villalon, selected by the other two, made its report, recommending the payment to Mr. Dady of $564,000 for being the owner of the project and for expenses entailed since submitting his plans to the old municipality in 1895.

Mr. Dady's engineer put in an estimate of $780,000, the municipality an estimate of $27,000, and Señor Villalon an estimate of $564,000. The award was based on Mr. Dady's estimate of the cost of the sewer, with 6 per cent. interest for five years. Col. Black of the Engineering Department submitted an estimate of $58,000 as a fair award.

The report of the commission was laid on the table. Señor Casuse, who has always been against the Dady project, moved that Col. Black be asked to submit an estimate of the cost of the sewer, and also to inform the council if the plans in the Engineering Department could be considered.

Mr. Dady's plans, as modified, were carried by a vote of 15 against 7. The committee on public bidding reported that Mr. Dady had "tanteo rights," that the plans were his, that the estimated cost of the sewers was $10,600,000, and that all bidders, except Mr. Dady, must deposit 5 per cent. of the cost before bidding, and 5 per cent. before beginning work. This report was laid on the table.

Gen. Wood, who was interviewed on the subject late this evening, said: "It is the intention of the Government to give Mr. Dady a fair allowance for the cost of the original project. The award of the commission is absurdly large. The Government could not sanction such a payment. I consider Col. Black's estimate a fair one."

CORN SHORTS RUSH TO COVER.

Price Advances and Phillips Lets Them Have 300,000 Bushels.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Shorts in December corn having been given a shock by the rumor that George H. Phillips was again in control of the market, to-day showed their alarm by making a rush to cover their outstanding accounts, or at least as much of them as they could at a reasonable figure. As a result there was a little excitement on the Board of Trade during the first hours of the session.

December, in which option the greater part of the interest is centred, opened at from 37¼ to 37½, as compared with 36⅞, the closing price yesterday. At first there were comparatively small offerings and that fact caused further anxiety among the short element. Owing to their efforts to outbid each other within a very short space of time the price was pushed up to 38 cents.

Here Phillips showed that he had a few trumps in his hand by offering freely. Furthermore, he showed that he held practically all trumps, for while the rush was on at the advanced price he let out about 300,000 bushels. And then he stated that he was still long. The corn he disposed of to the crowd to-day was for the most part that which he bought yesterday, and which first started the rumors that he was again in control of the market. He has a lot more he is holding back, he says.

Phillips made a statement to-day that yesterday he sold direct to Liverpool 81,000 bushels of No. 2 Chicago corn that netted him ⅞ of a cent a bushel over the December price in store in Chicago, which shows the healthy condition of the market.

Diamond Ring in a Hog's Stomach.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Dec. 5.—When George Smith slaughtered a five-year-old hog on his farm at Hornby, to-day, he found in the animal's stomach a diamond ring his daughter had lost four years ago while at a husking bee in the barn. Miss Smith immediately upon discovering her loss accused Bertha O'Brien of stealing it. This was denied by Miss O'Brien, but her friends thinking her guilty left her, and the girl soon after disappeared from the village. No trace of her has ever been found.

JOHN MACKELLAR IS DEAD

Deputy Chief of Police Found Unconscious in Street.

Expires Soon After Being Taken to His Brooklyn Home—On the Force Many Years.

Deputy Chief John MacKellar, the second in command of the Brooklyn police, was found unconscious in the street near his home shortly before midnight last night. He died a few minutes later.

He had been ill with asthma and dyspepsia for some time, but it was not thought that he was in immediate danger. He had been on duty at his post as Deputy Chief up to 10 o'clock last night.

John MacKellar's whole life was devoted to police duty. He was born in New York City in 1842. When he was a year old his parents moved to Brooklyn, and since then the greater part of his life had been spent there. As a young man he joined the volunteer fire department in Brooklyn, and in 1863 he became a member of the special police force which was organized to suppress the draft riots at that time. He was assigned to what was known as the Atlantic Dock Squad at that time. This was a squad assigned to protect the warehouses and docks in the Red Hook District of Brooklyn.

In 1864 he was regularly appointed a patrolman on the Brooklyn police force. He was transferred to the Fifth Avenue Station, where he remained until 1872, when he was appointed a Captain. At this time he was transferred to the Sixth Avenue Station, in the Park Slope district of Brooklyn. He remained at this post for eleven years.

1883 he was appointed an Inspector. He was assigned to duty at Police Headquarters in Brooklyn, and had charge of the Detective Bureau there. Patrick Campbell was Superintendent of Police in Brooklyn at the time, and when he was away Mr. Mackellar was acting Chief.

In the latter part of 1897 Patrick Campbell resigned and William J. McKelvey was appointed to succeed him as Superintendent of the Brooklyn police force. During his term in office Mr. Mackellar acted as Deputy Superintendent. Before the consolidation of Brooklyn into the Greater New York McKelvey resigned to become a candidate for the office of Register. Mr. Mackellar was appointed to succeed him.

When the consolidation went into effect he came into the police force of the greater city as Deputy Chief. He was assigned to duty in Brooklyn and was first in command and in charge of the department there. A year ago he was suddenly transferred to the Borough of Queens, and Patrick McLaughlin took charge of the Police Department of Brooklyn. Six months ago Mr. MacKellar was transferred back to his old post, but he was made second instead of first in command.

He felt the set-back very keenly, and those who knew him well say that he never was the same man after his transfer from Brooklyn to Queens. He still remained faithful to his duties, and although failing in health, was at his post every day.

Last night he left Police Headquarters in Brooklyn at 10 o'clock and started off alone to walk to his home. A little before midnight Capt. James Reynolds and Detective Delaney of the Fifth Avenue Police Station were walking down Eleventh Street when they stumbled over the prostrate figure of a man lying on the sidewalk unconscious. They found that it was the Deputy Chief, who had evidently been taken suddenly ill when only a short distance from his own door. They carried him into his house and sent for Dr. John Drechler. Before the arrival of the doctor, however, he had died.

Mr. MacKellar was very popular in Brooklyn, where he was well known, and his transfer to Queens was greatly regretted. During the recent trolley strikes in Brooklyn he took an active part in handling the crowds, and was largely instrumental in preserving order.

He leaves a wife, one daughter, and a brother, ex-Alderman Robert Mackellar.

STANDARD OIL LOSES SUIT.

Nebraska Supreme Court Orders It to Produce Books and Records.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 5.—The Supreme Court to-day sustained the motion of the Attorney General and ordered the Standard Oil Company to produce its books and records for inspection. The court also declared it had jurisdiction to try the case.

The suit against the Standard was begun a year ago by Attorney General Smith, who charged that as a trust it was doing business in violation of Nebraska's anti-trust laws. Senator John M. Thurston, who appeared as the Standard's attorney, contended that, the suit being criminal instead of civil, the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction except on appeal.

Later the Attorney General entered a motion to compel the production of the books and records. To-day's opinions are adverse to the company in each instance, and the taking of testimony to prove it a trust will begin.

MISS ROCKEFELLER'S DEAFNESS.

Vienna Specialists Said to be Growing New Diaphragms in Her Ears.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—That the foremost specialists of Europe are growing new ear drums for Miss Alta Rockefeller, the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, is the remarkable disclosure made in a letter from a young medical student, now in Vienna, to his family in this city. He says:

"One of the most astonishing cases here is that of Miss Rockefeller. She is being treated by one of the greatest doctors in the world. I need not go into a technical description of the case, but it is a mighty strange one. They tell us here that the surgeons are growing new diaphragms—ear drums—in the girl's ears.

"Such a feat has only been accomplished once or twice before, and the whole thing was kept a profound secret here. Miss Rockefeller's defect of hearing resulted from an attack of scarlet fever, years ago. As she grew older the trouble increased, until she was almost stone deaf. It is said that one new ear drum has been completely grown, and the other is well under way."

CASH PRIZES FOR EMPLOYES.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Employes of the Chicago and Alton Railroad are to receive cash prizes for meritorious service. Awards will be made every six months. The prizes are in two classes, one for conductors and engineers, and another for firemen, brakemen, station agents, collectors, and others in similar work. The prizes for engineers and conductors will be $20, and for the firemen, brakemen, station agents, and collectors $10. Prizes will be awarded on each of the two divisions of the road for trainmen, and to the station men for the entire system.

"We believe the cash prize plan will be conducive to better and more consistent work on the part of our men," said an officer of the company. "Medals and other tokens of meritorious service are all right in their way, but we are of the opinion that all men on wages and salaries prefer cash rewards."

Some time ago this company inaugurated a plan for paying part of the premiums on employes' insurance.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 5.—F. M. Drennen, D. M. Drennen, and F. W. Hopkins have organized and incorporated the Palos Coal and Coke Company, and will operate coal mines already opened in Walker County. The incorporators are leading Birmingham capitalists. The capital stock of the new company is $100,000. Its operations will, it is said, be very extensive.

CHARLES A. TOWNE, SENATOR.

Succeeds Cushman K. Davis by Appointment of Gov. Lind.

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 5.—Charles A. Towne to-night said that Gov. Lind had tendered him the United States Senatorship to succeed the late Senator C. K. Davis, and that he had decided to accept the appointment. He has telegraphed the Governor to that effect. Mr. Towne refused to discuss the matter farther, but said he would leave for Washington via St. Paul to-morrow morning.

There is great satisfaction in Duluth over the appointment, as irrespective of party lines, the feeling is general that Mr. Towne is the most prominent member of Gov. Lind's party in the State, and that under the circumstances the honor of going to the Senate should be his.

SCHLEY'S FRIENDS ALERT.

Ready to Fight Bill to Revive Vice Admiral's Rank If It Means the Advancement of Sampson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The calendars of the House and the Senate carry many measures that are expected to provoke heated opposition, but there is a prospect that the number will be increased by at least one more bill. The proposition to revive the grade of Vice Admiral in the navy, made to-day by Mr. Hale (Rep., Me.) in the Senate, and which is understood by naval officers as well as members of Congress to mean the advancement of Rear Admiral Sampson, is one of the troublesome legislative schemes.

The passage of a bill to revive the grade of Vice Admiral, if passed so as to elevate only one officer, is regarded by the friends of Rear Admiral Schley as intended to promote Rear Admiral Sampson over his head. This effort has been once made and thwarted in the Senate. It was then the opinion that as Rear Admiral Schley preceded Rear Admiral Sampson in the Naval Register, and had been commended for his services in the battle of Santiago, having participated in the battle, it was not just to drop him below Sampson, who was not a participant in the battle, but who received commendation for his services with the North Atlantic Squadron.

Unless some sort of arrangement is made by which both Schley and Sampson shall be advanced to the grade of Vice Admiral, and in the order in which they now stand in the list of Rear Admirals, it is probable that neither will reach that distinction before retirement. Both officers are due to be retired next year within a few months of each other. If the Vice Admiral bill is defeated at this session all hope on the part of the friends of Schley and Sampson of their further elevation in rank will have to be abandoned.

HEAVY GALE IN NEW ENGLAND.

Over a Dozen Schooners Wrecked—Crew of One of Them Perished.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—The heavy gale which swept the New England coast last night and to-day created havoc among the large number of schooners which were caught off the north shore of this State and the beaches of New Hampshire and Southwestern Maine. More than a dozen schooners were wrecked, a large number of others were damaged, and several narrowly escaped being dashed to pieces.

The only serious loss of life reported up to early this afternoon was in the wreck of the Gloucester fishing schooner Mary A. Brown off Hampton Beach, N. H., whose crew of five men perished. A schooner was reported on Scarborough Beach at noon and the fate of the crew had not been learned at that hour.

The wind last night along the New England coast attained a velocity as high as seventy-five miles an hour. Thick weather accompanied the blow, making last night one of the most trying for seamen that has been experienced in two years.

SEVERE SNOWSTORM UP STATE.

Thousands of Wires Down and Trains Much Delayed—Damage Is Heavy.

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Two persons were killed in this city this morning by coming into contact with electric wires that had been broken from poles by the storm during the night and hung down to the sidewalks. The snow broke down thousands of wires, and the telephone, telegraph, and car services are badly crippled.

The damage to the electrical systems in this vicinity is the worst on record. Between 300 and 400 city telephones are out of order. It will probably be two or three days before the country circuits in this neighborhood can be restored. The telegraph systems are likewise badly crippled. The fire alarm circuits are practically useless.

SYRACUSE, Dec. 5.—As a result of last night's snowstorm the telegraph, telephone, electric light, and fire alarm wires are in great confusion. Wires broke under the weight of snow and poles toppled. More than 500 telephones are out of order to-night. About three inches of snow fell during the night.

PLATTSBURG, Dec. 5.—From one to two feet of snow fell in Northern New York, and throughout the Adirondack region last night and to-day, making a total snowfall of nearly four feet in less than two days, seriously delaying traffic on railroads in Northern New York. The Adirondack lumber woods are so full of snow that the lumbermen cannot do much of anything. Rabbits, foxes, and squirrels are buried out of sight, and have a hard time getting enough to eat.

ROUGH WEATHER AT SEA.

Hydrographic Office Predicts Frequent Storms During December.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Naval Hydrographic Office has made the following forecast for the weather over the North Atlantic Ocean for the month of December:

"Frequent storm areas along the trans-Atlantic routes moving northeasterly, followed by strong west and northwesterly gales, areas often extending south of Bermuda and the Azores, displacing the trades. Gales frequent north of the thirty-fifth parallel, occasional in latitude 25.35 degrees north. Occasional northers in the Gulf of Mexico. Some fog to the east and northeast of Newfoundland. Ice not probably south of the fiftieth parallel."

WON A BRIDE WITH HIS RIFLE.

Young Farmers in a Bloodless Duel—Victor Marries the Girl.

Special to The New York Times.

CALLENDER, Iowa, Dec. 4.—Because of the accuracy of his marksmanship in a bloodless duel, Charles Mirzena, a young farmer in Clay Township, Webster County, has led in triumph to the altar Miss Minnie Anderson. The young woman asserted she was unable to choose between Mirzena and Charles Alstot. Blood is no longer spilled in Iowa in such affairs, but both young men were known throughout the county for their expertness with the rifle.

A duel without blood was the way out of the difficulty suggested, and the principals and their friends went to a quiet spot back of the barn and targets were set up. Alstot lost his head in contesting for so valuable a stake, and Mirzena won easily, scoring two bull's-eyes, and by the terms of the agreement winning the girl.

They were married yesterday, and the bridegroom is having his faithful rifle gilded to hang in the parlor of his home.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR SAVINGS INSTITUTION

Anglo-American Association's Statement Alarms Stockholders.

ENJOINED BY JUDGE LACOMBE

The Company, of Which Thomas L. James Is President, Admits Its Need of Cash.

Application was made yesterday before Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court for the appointment of a receiver for the Anglo-American Savings and Loan Association of New York. The application was made by three of the stockholders of the association—James N. Carpenter, Martin P. Carter, and Pulaski P. Carter. Judge Lacombe issued an order for the officers of the association to appear before him on Dec. 7, and show cause why a receiver should not be appointed. At the same time Judge Lacombe issued a temporary injunction restraining the association, until further notice of the Court from making any transfers or conveyances of the association's property, or making payments of any kind to stockholders.

The Anglo-American Savings and Loan Association is incorporated under the Federal laws. The officers of the association are: Thomas L. James, President; John D. Vermeule, Vice President; George M. Hard, Treasurer; A. H. Gilbert, Secretary and General Manager. The offices of the association are on the seventh floor of the Home Life Building, 253 Broadway.

The three stockholders who made the application for the appointment of a receiver are residents of Pennsylvania and are shareholders only to the amount of $4,445.56. Their action was anticipatory of the issuance of a statement which had been prepared by the association Directors and which was to have been made public to-day. This statement was of a character that caused the complainants uneasiness about their interests in the association. The statement bears the date of Nov. 20, and is signed by the officers. It is addressed to the stockholders. It says:

The increased number of withdrawals and the necessity of additional cash beyond the available income of the association to safeguard its assets, impel us to lay before you an exact statement of the association's affairs, and to bespeak your aid in carrying out a plan for realizing the full value of the association's assets for the benefit of creditors and stockholders. While we feel well assured of the association's present solvency and of the value of its assets, and believe that if they be judiciously handled the stockholders will receive the full value of their stock, we are equally clear that in order to realize such value the properties of the association must be protected and carried until sales can be made at their fair value, and that unless some suitable plan is at once adopted to this end, the properties will be sacrificed under forced sales at a most serious loss.

Then follows a statement of the assets and liabilities of the association. The assets are placed at $3,013,305.59, and the liabilities, exclusive of the earned dividends and surplus, at $2,967,750. A list of the assets is given. It shows valuable property holdings in Buffalo, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Washington, and Yonkers. The statement continues:

Some of the properties are improved and carry themselves, but a large amount has not yet been improved. A very careful appraisement places the value of these properties at $4,952,374, from which is to be deducted the prior mortgages of $2,457,550.61, leaving the association's equity at $2,494,549.39, or $188,924.51 in excess of their cost values, and in effect adding this sum of $188,924.51 to the schedules of assets.

The proposition advanced by the Directors is the formation of a real estate company to take over all these properties at their book cost value and giving to the association the bonds and mortgages of the real estate company covering the property at 5 per cent. interest. The members are requested to exchange shares in the association for stock in the real estate company. It is stated that this plan of reserving the association from its difficulties was submitted to Frederick D. Kilburn, Superintendent of Banks of New York, and was approved by him.

The complainants in the action against the association demand that the amount of their shares—$4,445.56—be paid them, and they also assert their claim to a pro rata share in the interest, assets, and proceeds of the association, which, they claim, will aggregate $2,500,000.

They allege that the rights and duties of the officers and Directors in the matter of the declaration and payment of dividends are fixed and limited by the articles of incorporation and by the laws of the State. These rights, they say, have been violated by the officers and Directors ever since the association's organization, in 1891, by the method of paying out to withdrawing stockholders and other shareholders dividends, or "pretended" dividends, out of profits, or "pretended" profits and earnings without having legally declared or apportioned dividends on the stock. The complainants further assert their belief that there were no profits or earnings out of which such payments could legally have been made.

The attorneys for the complainants are Russell & Winslow of 233 Broadway. When a call was made at their offices they said they had nothing to add to the papers filed in court until they heard from the officers of the association.

A conference of the officers of the association, at which President James presided, was held in the association's offices late yesterday afternoon. When the conference adjourned Secretary Gilbert said that whatever statement was to be made would be given out by the association's attorneys, Charles A. Deshon and E. L. Schofield. Messrs. Deshon and Schofield made the following statement:

"The proceedings for an injunction and a receiver came as a surprise to us. The company is not insolvent and in no sense bankrupt. We will fight the application. The company has plenty of assets, mostly real estate, but much of it non-productive. If a receiver should be appointed, the assets of the company would be sacrificed, and there is no occasion for this.

"The Directors have for some time past been considering plans for safeguarding the association's assets. They believe they have a plan by which the assets can be realized upon, so that the claims of stockholders and creditors will be fully paid. If, however, the management of the association is turned over to a receiver, they feel that the assets will be sacrificed and the interests of both creditors and shareholders prejudiced. With proper management in closing out the business, every dollar of indebtedness should be paid in full."

NEW TAX LAWS FOR MICHIGAN.

Gov. Pingree Calls Special Session of Legislature to Frame Them.

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—Gov. Pingree to-night issued a call for a special session of the State Legislature to convene in the State Capitol, at Lansing, Dec. 12, for the purpose of enacting taxation legislation along the lines of the Constitutional amendment adopted at the November election.

This amendment permits the taxation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone companies, and other forms of corporate property on their true cash value instead of specifically on their earnings, as was mandatory before the passage of the amendment.

Gov. Pingree's proclamation says that the special session is called to "enact a law providing for the assessment and taxation of all property at its cash value, including that of corporations now taxed and paying specific taxes upon earnings, and providing for the assessment of the property of corporations at its true cash value by a State Board of Assessors, and the levying and collection of taxes thereon under the provisions of the Constitution relative to the taxation of corporations, as amended by the people at the general election on Nov. 6, and for the purpose of considering such other matters as shall be submitted by special message."

Prisoner Sentenced to Dig Stumps.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Dec. 5.—Arthur Blydenburgh of Patchogue has been in jail in default of bonds, for the non-support of his family. Blydenburgh yesterday asked for his discharge. Judge Reeve said: "Sheriff, take this man, who won't support his family, up into the lots and let him dig stumps for a while. Work him good and hard every day. Blydenburgh, if you do good work at stump-pulling from now until Jan. 1 I will consider your case again."

MR. CHANLER STILL MISSING.

General Alarm Sent Out by Chief of Police Devery.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 5.—John Armstrong Chanler is still missing from the Bloomingdale Asylum. Added credence was given to the belief that Mr. Chanler went direct to New York when it was learned to-day that a man answering his description was seen to board a Harlem express train at White Plains at 4 P. M. on that day.

Chanler had lunch at the asylum on Thursday, and then told the attendants he was going for a walk down by the lake in front of the asylum. Instead of following this plan he evidently walked out of the northern entrance of the asylum grounds and then followed the road to the railroad station. He was seen to pass the Orawaupum Hotel, and instead of going through the station he walked down the track and boarded the smoker. At 4:10 several attendants from the asylum were at the station and boarded the 5 P. M. train for Manhattan, but they could get no trace of the patient.

Dr. Lyon, Superintendent of Bloomingdale Asylum, refused to tell what postmark the letter bore which he received from Chanler, and which said, "I have gone away for a few days, but will be back soon. I have gone to look after some business."

"We have not heard a word or obtained a single trace of Mr. Chanler," said Dr. Lyon firmly, "but I expect that he will be back within the next twenty-four hours."

Several detectives have gone to Newport, as Chanler has relatives and friends there, and it is thought he may have gone to that place to hide from the asylum keepers.

At the request of Lewis G. Chanler, the missing man's brother, a general alarm has been sent out in this city. Word has also been sent by Chief Devery to other cities. The following description was furnished to the police:

"John Armstrong Chanler, thirty-eight years old, weight, 170 pounds; wears heavy dark-blue overcoat, dark mixed suit, black shoes; is a lawyer; demented."

SENATOR-ELECT COMPLAINANT.

Says Alice Coutant, His Former Stenographer, Tried to Extort Money.

State Senator-elect Samuel Scott Slater was a complainant yesterday morning in the Jefferson Market Police Court against Mrs. Alice Coutant of 44 West Twenty-sixth Street, whom he charged with an attempt to extort money from him by blackmail. Mrs. Coutant was a stenographer in Mr. Slater's office in this city. She is rather handsome, and in court yesterday wore what appeared to be a fashionable and expensive gown.

According to the story told by Mr. Slater he has known Mrs. Coutant for a number of years. He said that when he first met her she was a Miss Alice Flower. Later she married a man named Ferl. Coutant was her second husband. Two or three days prior to the last election, when Mr. Slater was a candidate for Senator from the Nineteenth Senatorial District, he alleges that Mrs. Coutant went to one of his political agents and said that she had knowledge that Slater had accepted a bribe to vote for a certain bill when it came up for passage in the Legislature at its last session.

She demanded, according to Mr. Slater, a sum of money, saying that if it was not forthcoming she would sell the information to an agent of Tammany Hall. This agent, it is alleged, refused to have anything to do with the matter, and told Mrs. Coutant, it is said, that she could dispose of the information as she saw fit.

Mr. Slater averred that the woman has constantly annoyed him, and so he had her arrested. Mrs. Coutant was paroled by Magistrate Meade in custody of her counsel, Paul Grout, a brother of Edward M. Grout, President of the Borough of Brooklyn, in whose office, 109 Montague Street, Brooklyn, she is employed as a stenographer.

After leaving the court, Mrs. Coutant returned to her place of employment, but was immediately discharged by President Grout. He refused, also, to accept the responsibility his brother had taken, and called a policeman, delivering the prisoner into his care. Mrs. Coutant was taken back to the Jefferson Market Police Court and again arraigned. Magistrate Meade then held her in bail of $500 for her appearance to-day.

MAY ACQUIRE ALABAMA PLANT.

American Steel and Wire Enters Suit Against Ensley Furnaces.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 5.—The American Steel and Wire Company filed a bill in the United States Court to-day against the Alabama Steel and Wire Company of Ensley, Ala., seeking to enjoin the latter from the further use of the McGilvried and Nash patent for the treatment of metals which, it is charged, the defendants have infringed upon at the Ensley plant. The complainants further ask that the apparatus using the process be destroyed and they make a final claim for $100,000 damages.

By many it is suspected that the suit is part of a process to be carried on for the ultimate acquisition of the Ensley plant, which has cut considerable figure in the complainant's former trade territory in the Southwest. The Ensley plant is now operating on double turn and selling its entire output. It was recently reported that the Carnegie interests made an offer for the purchase of the plant, and that the Schuylers, the principal owners, were considering the offer, but the Schuylers have since positively stated that the plant is not on the market.

The Sheet Steel Company's Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

WHEELING, West Va., Dec. 5.—An important meeting of the National Roofing and Corrugating Company and of representatives of the American Sheet Steel Company was held here to-day. While the officials would not talk, it is understood that the American Sheet Steel people may take in the roofing concern. Those attending the meetings were G. E. Needsham of Cleveland, Robert T. Scott of Cambridge, Ohio; R. J. Hyndman of Cincinnati, Edward Langenbach of Canton, and Frank G. Caldwell of Wheeling, officials of the roofing combine, and John A. Topping, Second Vice President of the American Sheet Steel Company, and J. G Battelle, the company's attorney. It was decided to locate headquarters in this city.

Jones Valley Iron Company in Trouble.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 5.—The Jones Valley Iron Company has banked the Williamson blast furnace in this city, operated by it under lease, on account of an accident to the plant and because of embarrassments attending failure of prompt payment of the employes' wages. The employes claim that their wages are overdue and unpaid. Rogers, Brown & Co. take this furnace's output by contract made two years ago. The report that they would hereafter operate the furnace is denied by their local agent. This afternoon the stock of pig iron in the company's yards was attached. Rogers, Brown & Co. entered a counter-claim.

CHINAMAN WHIPS A "GANG."

Policeman Kennell was informed by several excited citizens last night, at Sixty-seventh Street and West End Avenue, that a Chinaman was being murdered at Sixty-ninth Street, and he ran up. He found a Chinaman whipping the "All Nations Block Gang." Chu Fuo, a laundryman, was on top of a man weighing thirty pounds more than himself, and was pummeling him. The man was Patrick McGinness of 256 West Sixty-eighth Street. McGinness was arrested.

Chu Fuo keeps a laundry at 185 West End Avenue. The All Nations gang has made it warm for him, assembling in groups of twenty and thirty to annoy him. He was surrounded by the entire mob last night, but he rolled up his sleeves, and to their astonishment attacked them. He knocked two of them down in a hurry and attacked two more. He beat them off in less than a minute and attacked another. The rest took to their heels.

Kennell took McGinness to the station. Sergt. Wade asked Chu Fuo how he had fought a whole gang and the Chinaman quickly rolled up his sleeves again and rushed at McGinness to show the Sergeant. He was held off. He said he would be in court this morning.

LATE WEDDING NOTICE

Records Show W. L. Beadleston Was Married July 12, 1899.

Alderman Southwick Officiated and Says Judge W. M. K. Olcott Arranged for a Ceremony "Without Undue Publicity."

YONKERS, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The records of the Department of Health of this city contain an entry which shows that on July 12, 1899, William L. Beadleston was married to Emma F. Humphrey in this city by Alderman John H. Southwick. The bride's age is given as twenty-seven and that of the bridegroom as twenty-six. The bride's father is stated to be John J. Humphrey of Pleasantville, N. Y. The witnesses to the marriage are William M. K. Olcott and the mother of Alderman Southwick.

The male witness is former Judge and former District Attorney Olcott of New York County. Alderman Southwick's story of the marriage is that the bridegroom is a son of the wealthy brewer of New York City. The Alderman says that on July 12, 1899, Judge Olcott came to Yonkers and called upon a well-known lawyer and asked whom he could get to perform a marriage ceremony for a client of his and upon whose promise to refrain from talking reliance could be placed and who could be relied upon to file the record without any undue publicity.

The lawyer consulted by Judge Olcott referred him to Alderman Southwick, according to the latter. When Judge Olcott called on him, Alderman Southwick says, he questioned him as to who the parties were in explanation the Alderman says he does not make it a practice to perform marriage ceremonies, as one case involved considerable trouble, and since then he has refrained from exercising his right.

After explanations by Judge Olcott, the Alderman says he consented to break his usual rule, as much out of consideration for Mr. Olcott as anything. The same evening Judge Olcott returned to the Alderman's house, accompanied by the young man and the young woman. Judge Olcott was the only witness the couple had, so the Alderman called in his mother, and the ceremony was performed.

The Alderman says he filed the record a few days later, and it attracted no attention. Mr. Southwick said this evening he thought there was no harm in telling the facts now, as it was so long ago. When asked if he was positive the young man was a son of the brewer, he replied he had the word of Judge Olcott for that fact. The Alderman says he did not kiss the bride.

The Beadleston family refused to see reporters last night and at Judge Olcott's house it was said that the Judge had gone to Clinton, N. Y., and would not return until to-morrow.

THIEF'S CONSCIENCE AT WORK.

Anonymously Returns Part of Plunder to Boston Police and Pays for the Rest in Installments.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Chief Inspector Watts to-day disclosed a mysterious case of awakened conscience, in which he has been acting for nearly a month past. On Nov. 13 an express team brought two large cases addressed to Chief Watts to headquarters. There were no marks to tell where they came from. The cases contained fourteen rolls of flannel valued at $300. In the Chief's mail came this letter:

"Dear Sir: Two boxes were left at your office last evening. They contained part of the contents of three boxes stolen this Summer from the Boston and Maine Railroad by parties acting for others and as their tools. The principal has returned the goods you have, but says that the balance has been disposed of. Please ascertain the amount due for balance and all expenses, and in The Boston Herald of Nov. 12, 20, and 23, insert 'the amount due is —— dollars,' and as soon as possible it will be paid.

"From this you will have realized what they have suffered and what they will suffer."

The letter was written on a plain piece of paper and inclosed in a plain, white envelope, postmarked Boston.

Chief Watts consulted J. N. George, Claim Agent of the Boston and Maine Railroad Company, and learned that the goods were stolen from a freight car at Ballardvale, Mass., in September. The goods were in transit to New York from the Ballardvale Manufacturing Company. The loss to the railroad company was figured up, and on the days named by the unknown writer the following advertisement was inserted in the paper named:

"Boston and Maine Railroad amount is $143.57."

At noon on Nov. 20 another letter was received by the Chief. It read:

"Please acknowledge receipt of $70 in the same paper and same place on Nov. 22 and 24. Balance soon."

In the envelope $70 in bank bills was found wrapped in a piece of a newspaper. The receipt of the money was acknowledged in the manner suggested.

Yesterday afternoon another letter containing the remaining $74 due the railroad reached the Chief Inspector. The letter accompanying it read: "Dear Sir: Inclosed find $74, the balance due in the Boston and Maine matter. Please acknowledge the amount in the same paper, in issue of Dec. 6 and 7."

The request will be complied with.

HOW DIPLOMAS WERE SOLD.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Joe De Barthe, formerly of Baker City, Oregon, made an interesting witness in the United States District Court this morning in the case of James and Thomas Armstrong, charged with using the mails to fraudulently dispose of medical diplomas which were worthless. De Barthe had been attorney and lecturer for the Independent Medical College, which was conducted by the Armstrong Brothers until it was raided by Post Office Inspectors.

De Barthe told how he came here in 1898 and bought a Texas diploma for $100. Armstrong hired him to lecture. "I went to Michigan on a lecture tour," he said, "and there sold a number of diplomas. The first price asked was $150, but I never let a few dollars stand in the way of making a sale, and some said for $25. I was brought back to Chicago as a kind of office assistant, and posed as the attorney. One day Dr. Armstrong, we always called him doctor, came into my office and said that he had a man whom he could not graduate and asked me to see if I could graduate him."

"What do you mean by graduate?" interrupted United States District Attorney Bethea.

"Sell him a diploma," was the quick response. "The man was J. Edwarda Dunkin, who owned the American Hotel in this city at that time. I graduated him without much trouble, giving him a diploma to practice medicine in England, where he said he was going. He paid me $100 in cash and gave me a note for $25. I gave these to Dr. Armstrong, and he offered me $20 as my commission."

Mrs. Jane A. Johnson Dead.

Mrs. Jane A. Johnson, widow of Oliver Johnson, died at Poughkeepsie last night. She was the daughter of John S. C. Abbott, the historian. Born Nov. 15, 1833, at Worcester, Mass., her early life was spent in Boston and New York. Later the family removed to New Haven, where her writing introduced her to Oliver Johnson, to whom she was married in 1863. After that date she lived in this city, where Mr. Johnson was editing The Tribune in association with Horace Greeley.

After Mr. Johnson's death, in 1889, she traveled abroad with her daughter for four years. In 1897, upon her daughter's marriage to Dr. Daly of Binghamton, she went to that city to live. Her death was due to locomotor ataxia. She will be buried beside her husband, at Longwood, Penn., on Saturday.

Forty Miles an Hour for Hudson Boats.

NYACK, N. Y., Dec. 5.—A well-known resident of South Nyack, A. S. Guerber, to-day submitted for public inspection the plans upon which he has been working for months for an express line of steamboats to run on the Lower Hudson at the rate of forty miles an hour. The boats, according to Mr. Guerber's plans, are to be 130 feet long, 15 feet beam, and have a draft of 4½ feet. They will be fitted up for 250 passengers, and will, if his plans prove successful, make hourly trips during the day. Charles D. Mosher, designer of the Ellide and Arrow, has prepared designs of the boats suggested by Mr. Guerber.

BROKER MORGAN ARRESTED

One Victim Said to Have Lost $29,000 Through His Firm.

Police Know of Thirty Victims of This Discretionary Pool System—Morgan Reputed to be Rich.

C. W. Morgan, trading as C. W. Morgan & Co., stock brokers, 71 Broadway, and Michael Hart, his bookkeeper, were arrested yesterday afternoon on charges of conspiracy and grand larceny following an investigation made by Assistant District Attorney Byrne. The men were arrested by three of Capt. McClusky's detectives and locked up in Police Headquarters and later admitted to bail.

The detectives seized all the books and papers in Morgan's office, and also those in the offices of Lewis E. Van Riper and John B. McKenzie, discretionary brokers, of 11 Broadway. Van Riper and McKenzie had both disappeared. It was found that the written matter in their books had been torn out, leading the police to believe that the men had been informed of their coming.

Van Riper and McKenzie seem to have had close connection with Morgan. They did an extensive business throughout the United States and Canada and sent out as many as 100,000 circular letters a week. These letters propose that the prospective investor deposit not less than $200, (preferably $500,) giving McKenzie or Van Riper freedom of direction, free of charge, until the capital was doubled.

Then the investor withdraws, if he wishes, according to the circular, the original deposit, the brokers to resume operations on the profits until the sum again doubles, when the investor has again the privilege of drawing down all profits, giving to the broker one-quarter, his commission on any further deal. An alternative proposition is submitted, in which the broker is to be paid a percentage of profit from the opening of the account.

The circular closes with the suggestion to the investor to select some broker, such as Morgan & Co. or Chester B. Lawrence, Morgan being named in particular as a man of high rating. In no case was the recipient of the letter asked to send money to McKenzie or Van Riper. All these men, the police say, worked together.

The complainant against the prisoners is William D. Bailey, a mill owner of Matawan, N. J. The police say they have thirty others who will testify against the men, one victim admitting that he has lost $29,000 through the scheme. When Capt. McClusky's detectives entered Morgan's office they found a man who was inquiring what had become of his money. This man said he had placed $500 with Morgan and last month made $234, leaving the $500 with him. He said he had been told that his money had been lost in the "decline of sugar." Capt. McClusky refused to disclose this customer's name.

Mr. Byrne says that Morgan was a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange. He opened at 71 Broadway two years ago, and in that time is said to have made $250,000. SEMICOLON CLOSED SALOONS.

Decision Which Affected Bostonians Based on a Punctuation Mark.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—The decision of the Supreme Court, given yesterday, that the law prohibited the sale of liquor by hotels between the hours of 11 o'clock P. M. and 6 A. M., which caused a suspension of traffic at all places in Boston last night, was the subject of much discussion here to-day. It developed that the whole question hinged on a semicolon contained in the statute, the prohibitory clause of which reads:

"No sale of spirituous or intoxicating liquors shall be made between the hours 12 at night and 6 in the morning; nor during the Lord's Day, except that if the licensee is also licensed as an inn-holder he may supply such liquor to guests who have resorted to his house for food or lodging."

In 1885 the "12" was changed to "11." If instead of the semicolon after "6 in the morning" there had been a comma, the decision of the court would have been different. As the law was originally passed in 1875 such a comma was there. The commission appointed to consolidate and arrange the statutes in 1880 reported their consolidation in 1881 and the semicolon appeared. The difference in punctuation was overlooked and the statute with the semicolon instead of the comma was passed.

The retail liquor dealers already have decided to ask the Legislature, which convenes Jan. 4, for legislation permitting hotels and saloons to keep open until midnight.

Coachman Robs His Mistress.

BINGHAMTON, Dec. 5.—Thomas H. Ferry, for twelve years a coachman in the employ of Mrs. Catherine Hemingway, one of the wealthiest women of Binghamton, this morning entered the sleeping chamber of his mistress, wakened her, and at the point of a revolver robbed her and escaped with about $100 in cash.

CITY CLUB'S PROGRAMME

Municipal Affairs to be Discussed in a Lecture Series.

Committees Have Collected Some of the Sayings of Richard Croker and Mazet Committee Testimony—New Charter Approved.

The members of the City Club had one of the largest meetings in its history last night at 19 West Thirty-fourth Street. The Committee on Co-operation and Affiliated Clubs has arranged the following programme for four of the regular Friday evening meetings held under the auspices of the People's Institute in the large hall of Cooper Union:

Dec. 21. Subject, "The City's Water Supply." Speakers—Bird S. Coler, Henry W. Goodrich, and Frederick W. Hinrichs.
Dec. 28. Subject, "Police Courts and the People." Speakers—Messrs. Joseph M. Deuel and James B. Reynolds and Miss Rosalie Loew.
March 22. Subject, "Proportional Representation." Speakers—Messrs. Charles Frederick Adams, John R. Commons, and Edward W. Hatch.
March 29. Subject, "City Government by Purchase." Speakers yet to be arranged.

The Committee on Publication and Records is preparing two publications designed to throw light upon the character of the present city administration. One of these is a recital of some things Richard Croker has said and done; the other is a statement of the more important parts of the testimony before the Mazet Committee.

The Committee on Legislation is preparing for its regular work of scrutinizing bills affecting New York City presented at the legislative session.

The club expressed approval of the acts of the Charter Revision Commission in giving the Mayor full power of removal and providing an indefinite term for appointive officials. It also approves a single-headed Police Commission, the concentration of administrative powers in Borough Presidents, and the localization of responsibility for highways, sewers, and buildings.

The extension, the club says, to teachers and others of the prohibition now effective in the Police and Fire Departments against membership in lobbying organizations or political committees or conventions should commend themselves to citizens generally.

The club declared against a State Constabulary bill, and said: "The Council believes that to relieve either the citizens of New York or municipal officials from responsibility by tying the hands of the city from Albany just as it is rousing itself to cast off one yoke, by 'jamming through' a State police bill as the charter was 'jammed through,' is to offer a remedy only aggravating the disease and to invite the inevitable reaction which four years ago threw New York into the hands of its present rulers.

"A measure singling out New York City or creating a Metropolitan district, or transferring to the State and the political party dominant therein the municipal function of police administration, or divorcing from the municipality the responsibility for public order, would be a serious misfortune to the city. New York can permanently cure its domestic ills only as it is left free to work out its own salvation."

Referring to the anti-vice crusade, the Club Council says: "Previous to his departure for his country residence in England, the real ruler of New York, alarmed by the uprising against police maladministration, made a remarkable exposé of the actual relations of the City Government by himself assuming the place of the Mayor and the function of protector of public morals, and causing the appointment of a committee of the Tammany organization with orders from himself to do what should have been done by the legally constituted city authorities.

"The Fourteenth Street committee, which has been given plenary power of purification by its departed chief, can do its part, if it will, in the moral and civic betterment of New York, not by asking the aid of citizens to help it do the work for which the police are paid, but by investigating its own organization and particularly by calling to public account the 'district leaders,' who, next to the Tammany boss and his city officials, are responsible for vice in New York.

In response to instructions of this committee, vice has been abated in the Twelfth Precinct, to the extent of repressing the most flagrant features of the social evil, by the better police official who has replaced the notorious Capt. Herlihy, who in the meantime has not been suspended from duty, but has been transferred to be the head of the steamboat squad, with new opportunities of levying blackmail upon our commerce and our sailors.

"Mr. Croker has done a public service in the appointment of this committee by showing that the power exists to suppress vice, that Tammany itself holds this power, and that the power which can suppress flagrant evils could long ago have prevented them. But the committee nevertheless presents a new form of public danger because it can be used, without the knowledge of any honest man upon it, as the police are said to have been used, to suppress minor vicious resorts and thus play into the hands of the proprietors of more dangerous places which pay larger and more regular revenue to the powers that be."

The Council deals with the assaults on the colored people in this city last August, and then referring to the responsibility of Tammany, says:

"In 1894 the Lexow Committee demonstrated that much of the vice notorious in New York existed with the connivance of the police, for which payment was exacted. This led the citizens of New York to turn out the party in power and inaugurate a government under which conditions were greatly improved. In 1897 [illegible] among its opponents permitted the same party to regain possession of the city.

"In 1899 the Mazet Committee demonstrated that the conditions revealed by the Lexow Committee were again present, and that the organization having control of the city Government was fully responsible therefor. In 1900 it has required two investigating committees to show that the business of vice and crime has enjoyed protection from the police, while the investigations of the Merchants' Association have demonstrated that the business interests of the city itself are made the prey of corruption by the lax, wasteful, and extravagant manner in which they are administered."

The Council adopted resolutions commending the work of the Charter Revision Commission, opposing any partisan police legislation, declaring that the disgraceful conditions now existing can only be suppressed by the union of all parties and organizations and individuals opposed to Tammany Hall, and that the club will cooperate with and promote union of action among all organizations of citizens seeking better government for New York to the end that at the next Mayoralty election a single ticket may be presented, made up of candidates whose known character and record would guarantee honest, efficient, and progressive municipal administration, standing upon a civic and business platform embodying the principles of municipal administration upon which good citizens are agreed.

The City Club will hold a meeting next week to discuss the report of the Council.

STAMFORD MAN ROBBED.

A Man and Two Women Arrested for Taking His Money.

Gilbert Travis, seventy-six years old, with white hair and beard, came down from Stamford, Conn., on business yesterday. He had himself weighed on a machine which plays coon songs and tells fortunes at the same time, "You will be successful according to your wishes," read the card. Immediately this announcement had gladdened Mr. Travis's heart things began to happen. He got into a hotel on Fourth Avenue, where he met two young girls and a man, who asked him to take a ride. They all got into a cab. When they reached Fifty-ninth Street and Eighth Avenue the new friends got out and left old Mr. Travis minus his bank roll, which contained $100.

When Mr. Travis got out of the cab a policeman took him to the station. The man and the two women were also arrested on suspicion, and the former threw to the winds a roll of bills when he saw no escape.

The prisoners gave their names as John West, 311 West Twelfth Street; Mamie West, 95 Fourth Avenue, and Matilda Rogers, 102 Fourth Avenue.

At the close of the day's business the announcement was made that nothing had been done beyond the discussion of the question under consideration. Ex-President Harrison and Justice Harlan were among those who spoke during the day.

Suicide in Central Park.

David McMahon, an electrician, of 228 East Eighty-second Street, committed suicide last night by taking acid in Central Park while sitting with a friend, William Clark. He stayed away from home for several nights, and his father and he had a quarrel about it last night. He told his folks he would kill himself. McMahon told Clark he intended to commit suicide. Clark thought him joking, but McMahon took a vial of acid from his pocket and drank it. Clark shouted for help, and a Park ambulance was driven up. The doctor worked on the patient, but McMahon died.

AMEN CORNER GREETS THE GOVERNOR-ELECT

As Cosmopolitan Habitues Give a Dinner to Mr. Odell.

The Loyal Follower of Platt, the Democrat, and the Bryan Adherent Feast Together—The Toasts.

AMEN.

For the benefit of all concerned it is made known that the "Amen corner" was so named because it is the gathering spot in the Fifth Avenue Hotel corridor of those who talk politics, music, religion, poetry, art, political economy, statesmanship, office seeking, foreign and domestic finance, international law, constitutional law, police court law, civil discipline law, the quality of cigars, the quality and effect of stimulants, club life, the idiosyncrasies of the Mugwump, Anarchist, Socialist, and Single Taxers, the latest fashion in clothes, the best kind of pipe to smoke, the latest kind of hats, canes, and umbrellas, the newest perfumery, the costumes of every country on the globe, the inquisitiveness of local politicians and civil service reformers, and many other topics. The men who for years have discussed these problems in the "Amen Corner" are doctors, lawyers, politicians, newspaper men, hotel men, men about town, Generals, Colonels, Captains, Majors, high privates and citizens from all parts of the United States and Europe, Asia, and Africa. When all agree as to the solution of a problem under discussion each man says "Amen," and another problem is tackled.

Such is the Amen Corner, the brethren of which last night gave a dinner in the Fifth Avenue Hotel to Governor-elect Odell, who is himself one of the brethren, and who in the days that he was Chairman of the Executive Committee and Chairman of the State Committee sought advice from the habitues of the corner.

When the corner made up its mind to feast its foremost brother, it appointed Eddie Riggs and Charlie Steckler to attend to the preliminaries. A conference with the powers that direct the destinies of the hostelry wherein the Amen Corner is situated brought about a feast in the parlor just above the historic meeting spot, at which, according to ex-Senator Hiscock, the only man that made an exact count, 111 members of the fraternity were gathered. The hotel people took good care that the brethren wanted for nothing, and with what they had provided and the words of wisdom from the guests good cheer reigned supreme.

POLITICAL LINES ERASED.

For the time being political lines and all other lines were wiped out. Dr. Girdner, than whom Mr. Bryan had no more loyal supporter, as the doctor himself asseverated; Edward Lauterbach, the embodiment of machine Republicanism, as he himself called it; Col. Jim Jones, who looks after the Aquarium in Battery Park for Tammany Hall; Willis Holly, whose mission is somewhat the same in Central Park for the same organization; Amasa Thornton, who, strangely enough, sat between ex-Inspector Williams and Police Capt. Price, and many others of every shade and color of political opinion sat around the board, for the time being naught else but brethren of the Amen corner.

In the dining room the portieres were formed of American flags, and right above the guests' table, where sat the elect and the elected, hung a large portrait of Mr. Odell. Eddie Riggs occupied the centre of the board and acted as toastmaster.

On his right sat Ben Odell, as everybody called him, and to his left was Congressman Sherman from up State. Justice Woodward, Justice Hirsch, Chester S. Lord, ex-Senator Hiscock, Justice Stover, Justice Hatch, and Edward Lauterbach completed the list of honor men.

At the long tables where the brethren were gathered were those whom no political differences could sever. Between Justice Stover and Gen. Furlong sat Henry Loewenthal and next to him was the stanch Republican of the collector's office. Right across the board was Fred Gibbs, Lou Payn, Billy Leary, and Collector Bidwell. Postmaster Van Cott, George W. Aldridge, and Barney Biglin, Abraham Gruber sat next to Dr. Girdner, to lend contrast to the scene, it was stated, and so it went down the board.

Even those who had catered to the tastes of the brethren were not forgotten, for among the diners was Col. "Jim" Gray, the Fifth Avenue's head bartender, who, Mr. Odell said, had, as a Democrat, mixed more drinks for organization Republicans than any man alive. Col. "Jim," it was said last night, would move to Albany after Jan 1 and there look after the official buffet in the Capitol.

Contrary to usage Chairman Riggs did not wait for the advent of the coffee and cigars to open the speechmaking. He had not spoken long before he boomed Governor-elect Odell for the Presidency four years hence, and the suggestion was dilated upon during the evening. Mr. Riggs said that the "Amen corner" had given to the country Presidents and Governors, "and who knows," he said, "but that we have another President with us to-night."

"Amen," shouted the members in chorus.

As Mr. Riggs sat down the first strains of the incidental music that was to follow every speech manifested itself. "We Don't Know Why We Love You, But We Do, We Do," blared forth the band, and the negro singers seated in the rear of the hall, and soon the whole room was singing the refrain.

MR. ODELL'S TRIBUTE.

Then Mr. Odell arose and the greeting was enthusiastic. After a murmured "Pax vobiscum" he went on to say:

"As I look into the faces before me I see men who are walking encyclopedias—"

"Amen," came the reply, and he continued:

"The youngest of whose members are able to discuss the most abstruse questions of politics and finance. The word 'Amen' may mean a benediction, it may also mean that we are thankful for what we have received. [Laughter and shouts of 'Amen.' It may mean that we are thankfulness that we have Riggs here—Riggs, whose word is ranked with those of Ruskin and Emerson—"

"And Russell Sage!" shouted a voice.

"And Russell Sage!" repeated Mr. Odell. "And Laura Jean Libby!" added Col. Gruber.

"And Laura Jean Libby!" gravely repeated Mr. Odell. "I am glad to be numbered among the Amen brethren," he went on. "That ought to bring out an earnest 'amen.' It may mean that we are thankful for the prowess of American arms, for prosperity, for the power to gather success according to our own own ability, and now I ask you to drink the health of my fat friend on my left, Eddie Riggs."

All the brethren rose and the toast was drunk long and deep amid cries of "Riggs! Riggs!"

Mr. Riggs then introduced Senator Patrick F. Trainor, who he said, would sing about how they drilled in Albany.

"This," said Mr. Riggs, "will be the obverse side of the battle hymn of the Republic."

In anticipation of the event, the brethren had each concealed under the table a large tin platter, and when Senator Trainor's voice rose in the strains of "Drill, Ye Tarrier, Drill" and he called for the blast, the response on the tin pans would have done credit to a gang blasting for the underground road.

"Here there, McGurk," shouted the Senator as part of the chorus of the song. "Drop that Straats-Zeitung you're reading and wave the flag for the blast."

Bang, bang, crash, responded the brethren on the tin pans, and as the echoes died away the Senator shouted like a boss foreman, "All over," and the brethren subsided.

After the next course had been discussed Mr Riggs introduced "Brother Sherman." Mr. Sherman said he could not sing as well as the senior Senator from the State of New York and therefore he would not try, and as he made the assertion the band struck up, "We Won't Go Home 'Till Morning."

Mr Sherman said something about the Governor-elect "traveling on his shape" at present, but added that two years hence he could "travel on his record."

"To see what is right and to do what is right at all times and under all circumstances," said the speaker, "has ever been your aim."

"Amen!" shouted the brethren.

"Now, will you be good," said Mr. Odell.

"I will," said the Congressman, "and I imagine the way to be good here is to sit down. I might sing the National anthem—"

"Don't do it," shouted Mr Gruber.

"But instead I will take delight," continued Mr. Sherman, "in looking forward to the time when the Amen brethren will take possession of the Executive Mansion in Albany."

"Amen," came the chorus.

"We believe that Ben Odell will carry the keys of that mansion for four years, and at the end of that time we will be marching in an inaugural parade in Washington, of which he will be the objective and central figure."

"Amen," came the chorus.

BRYAN'S FRIEND'S EXCUSE.

Dr. Girdner was introduced with the next course after the band had played "I'd eave my happy home for you." Mr. Riggs asked the diners to "rise and send up a silent prayer for the honored dead, William Jennings Bryan," Col. Jim Jones being the first to respond. The band played the Dead March from "Saul," and as Dr. Girdner, taking the hint, rose to respond, the band came to the front with "I could not stand to see my baby lose."

"I have been spending a month in the political hospital," said Dr. Girdner. "I got mixed up in a casualty that occurred on the 6th of November, and my steering gear got out of order. I do not think it fair, therefore, to expect much of a speech from an invalid.

"As a medical man, I tell my patients to take their medicine regularly, no matter how bitter it be, [laughter,] and I am now practicing what I have so long preached. I have also had occasion to remark on how often and how regularly of late we Democrats have been called on to take our medicine.

"I think this an opportune time to explain some things that may have caused you some concern," went on Dr. Girdner, speaking to Mr. Odell; "for at present I have no means of knowing that you do not intend to appoint me to an office."

"You remember," he went on, ignoring the laughter, "that one day I was ushered into your office rather unceremoniously. It was that time you were talking to that plutocrat, and I could not help hearing that plutocrat say, 'Odell, you're no more interested in this election than I am, but you can't expect me to give up everything I've got, even at that.'

"Then there was another time when there was 'nothing doing' at Democratic Headquarters. I had a talk with 'Eddie' Riggs, and he said he'd see what he could do for me. I had heard before that there were barrels of money in '25,' (Mr. Odell's headquarters.) Well, Riggs went off to see what he could do for me, and I have reason to believe that he did for me. In any event, he never came back. And I want to tell you right here, Mr. Odell, that if you gave Riggs anything that day that I never got any part of it.

"I have heard that Charlie Steckler is to be appointed Commissioner of Public Works. I only want to say that if he is as clever on public works as he is on private works, he'll be a good official. While I am offering suggestions, why not have Abe Gruber as Poet Laureate. He'll take it if you attach a salary to it.

"Nowadays a President must look out for many things. He must see that the crops turn out right, that the sheep, cattle, and hogs increase—"

"Likewise the delegates," put in Mr. Gruber.

"And to see that also for a good round price," went on Dr. Girdner, as if he had not heard the interruption.

ONE WORD FOR BRYAN.

Dr. Girdner said in conclusion that he wanted to say a serious word for the defeated candidate for the Presidency. He said that he had known him well, and that the better he had known him the more he had loved him.

"There is no place in his heart," said the doctor, "for hatred. He is a patriot and statesman such as has not been known in this century, and he stands even to-day as a political John the Baptist calling the people to repentance and baptism."

After the "Amens" had subsided, Dr. Girdner tendered to the Governor-elect his moral support, stating that after Jan. 1 he would be as much the speaker's Governor as that of any Republican. The band then played "If You Love Your Baby, Make Goo-Goo Eyes," and Brother Archie Baxter was introduced as the man who would undertake to down Dr. Girdner, whereupon the band played "Throw Him Down, McCluskey."

Mr Baxter's speech was a running fire between himself and Mr. Gruber, the latter only subsiding when Mr. Baxter came down to a eulogy of the amen corner.

"No man," he said, "ever visited this inn who was too great to sit in that corner. There have set there greater soldiers and greater financiers than ever fought for this country or served it in legislative halls. If their advice was followed there would be neither need of Legislature nor of many high-priced officials."

Edward Lauterbach was then called upon and the band at once struck up "In Lauterbach hab ich mein strumpf verloren," and Mr. Lauterbach went on to explain why it was that he had not spoken during the last campaign, principally, he said, because he didn't want somebody to say, "How about Ramapo," when it was really he who was responsible for the plank in the Republican platform against that company.

Then ex-Senator Hiscock spoke, and after him Gen. Furlong, and after him many others, the oratory flowing on until long after the midnight hour.

BOYS HELP A SUFFERER.

Twelve Chicago Lads Give Up Skin for Grafting Purposes.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Twelve boys lined up to-day at the bedside of little Felix Machuet, bared their arms, and allowed surgeons to slice from two to four inches of skin from their arms directly over the biceps. This was placed on the thigh of Machuet. In all thirty-seven inches of skin were removed from the boys' arms and planted on the wound in Machuet's hip.

A month ago young Machuet had his right hand mangled in a sand-papering machine, the flesh being torn off to the bone. In order to avoid amputation a pocket was cut in the lad's hip and the hand sewed in. In three weeks the hand took on enough flesh to cover the bones and remaining muscles, and an advertisement brought the boys to the operating table to furnish the skin to cover the wound in the hip. The boys were given 8% an inch for the skin taken from their arms.

FOUR AMBULANCES RESPOND.

Charles Thompson, a contractor of 630 East Seventeenth Street, is suffering from a bullet wound of the right leg which he received in a mysterious way yesterday. He was crossing Eighteenth Street when a pistol shot rang out and he fell to the ground with the blood running from a wound in the calf of his leg. His yells attracted a policeman, who discovered that he had been shot. He said that the bullet must have come from a high board fence which surrounds a vacant lot at 623 East Eighteenth Street.

The policeman climbed the fence, but found no one on the other side. An examination of the fence showed that there were no bullet holes in it. The policeman summoned an ambulance from Bellevue Hospital, which appeared on the scene in a few moments. A moment later another ambulance appeared, summoned by some one who had heard the pistol shot. At the same time some one else in the neighborhood sent in a hurry call which summoned a third ambulance to the scene. A fourth ambulance appeared almost at the same time. It was from the Presbyterian Hospital, and was passing in the neighborhood when a man told the driver that an ambulance was needed on Eighteenth Street.

After a bullet was extracted from Thompson's leg he was placed in the first ambulance.

Lieut.-Com. Hall Slightly Improved.

The condition of Lieut. Commander Reynold T. Hall, whose skull was fractured in the new machine shop at the Brooklyn Navy Yard on Monday, was slightly improved last night. The physicians at the Naval Hospital say that the officer's splendid physique is keeping him up, and that with this he has a fighting chance for recovery. The Lieutenant Commander's wife is with him constantly.

Lieut. Hobson's Condition.

There was no change in Lieut. Hobson's condition yesterday or last night. He is still very ill at the Presbyterian Hospital. Hundreds of letters and telegrams arrive for him, but none is sent to his room, the physicians forbidding it. There are also many callers, but none is allowed to see him.

Actor Faversham's Illness.

Actor William Faversham, who is ill at his home, 260 West Fifty-second Street, was said early this morning by his physician, Dr. Burke, to be improving. Mr. Faversham passed a rather bad day, but during the evening rallied considerably. He is not yet out of danger.

Condition of Jacob Hess.

It was said last night at the home of Commissioner Jacob Hess, 68 West Sixty-eighth Street, that he was able to sit up during the afternoon. The ailments from which he is suffering have not become worse.

Justice Barrett Much Better.

Justice Barrett, who is ill with typhoid fever at his home, was much improved last evening. He has grown stronger steadily for the last few days.

FOR CIVIC RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Bishop Potter and Dr. Huntington to St. Andrew's Brotherhood—The Bishop Condemns Indifference.

"Civic Righteousness" was the subject of discussion last night at the monthly meeting of the New York Local Assembly of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, held in the lecture room of the Pro-Cathedral, in Stanton Street. The meeting was presided over by Charles Comfort Tiffany, Archdeacon of New York, who introduced Bishop Potter as the first speaker.

Bishop Potter said that the definition of the word civic marked the essential difference between barbarism and civilization.

"We have passed that point," said the speaker, "where we can overlook the fact that other members of the house, the shop, the street, or the community in which we live have rights which we are bound to consider We must be concerned about what goes on among the men and women in the next house or street or city.

"Therefore, to-night, men and brethren, the thing that New York needs to be most afraid of is not the powers of evil, but the powers of indifference. The powers of good are stronger than the powers of evil if the former are only on their feet and at their work. But the thing that disheartens me most is the note of despair that I hear, as it any situation, even such a situation as exists in this city to-day, were an irremediable situation. That is infidelity, no matter whether the man who sounds such a note of despair is a Christian or not. That is the surrender and abjuration of faith in God, because God is, sooner or later He is to triumph in this world and His righteousness is to be supreme in it."

Bishop Potter was followed by the Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, rector of Grace Parish, who said that the question of civic righteousness was a question of degrees.

"You have two extremes," he said, "the city of Cain—man's city, and the city of God—the holy city. Why did not the city of Cain and other cities survive? The reason is, that there are required three positive qualities, namely, faith, hope, and charity, to preserve cities from decay."

"If you want to redeem New York, plant at regular intervals all over the poorer quarters church settlements. I do not disparage the purely civic method in purifying New York, but we want a positive method as well. Police or repressive measures will never do the whole work. The police of themselves can never purify this city; the Gospel of Christ can."

Robert Fulton Cutting, the next speaker, after defining civic righteousness, said that its bane for the last half century had been the spoils system of government. The citizens should have a better idea of what political life is and enter it for the advancement of civic righteousness.

The meeting closed with an address by the Rev. Dr. Robert L. Paddock of the Pro-Cathedral, who called for volunteers to assist in the work on the east side, and offered to furnish free rooms to young men who would assist in the work.

COMMITTEE OF FIFTEEN.

Movement Started to Make Charles Stewart Smith Chairman—He Would Accept the Post.

A movement is declared to be on foot to make Charles Stewart Smith Chairman of the Anti-Vice Committee of Fifteen, and it is also said that James C. Carter, who is expected to call the first meeting, is trying to induce Mr. Smith to accept the position when the committee is enlarged. Mr. Carter is yet out of town, and in consequence no call has been sent out for the members of the committee to meet. Alexander E. Orr, in speaking yesterday of the possibility of having Mr. Smith serve, said:

"Mr. Smith is the first addition that should be made to the enlarged committee. If I had had anything to do with the framing of the resolution calling for the appointment of the Committee of Fifteen I would have incorporated in the resolution a paragraph that the Chairman of the citizens' meeting at the Chamber of Commerce should be the Chairman of the Committee of Fifteen that he was authorized to appoint. Personally I think that Mr. Smith would make an ideal Chairman."

The statement was also made that several others of the committee would not be averse to having Mr. Smith as Chairman, Mr. Smith said last night that he had heard nothing of the suggestion.

"I have said all along," said he, "that the committee is now out of my hands, and that I have nothing to do with the actions of its members."

In answer to a question, Mr. Smith intimated that he would not be averse to becoming Chairman should the invitation be extended to him.

A CIVIC FEDERATION.

Committee of One Hundred a Feature of the Purification Movement Started by the Rev. Mr. Bliss.

The Committee of Arrangements for the movement started by the Rev. W. D. P. Bliss to organize a civic federation for the purpose of promoting the welfare and morality of New York, announced yesterday that its proposed mass meeting to interest labor men in the movement will be held in Cooper Union on Jan. 1. It was also announced that a committee of 100 is being formed for the purpose of carrying out the proposed reforms. A statement was given out later on behalf of the Committee of Arrangements at its temporary headquarters, Room 9, Bible House, which says, among other things:

"The committee of 100 will form a central council, which will appoint sub-committees to agitate for various reforms and work for them. The driving of vicious people away from the tenements will be an important part of our programme. While it may not be possible at present to drive the social evil out of the city by agitating against the disorderly houses, they can at least be prevented from spreading to the flats and tenements. If we can do nothing more, we can do that, providing we get the right kind of co-operation. We are willing, if we can, to co-operate with Mr. Charles Stewart Smith's Committee of Fifteen. We will also agitate for such other reforms as we think the city needs."

FORT HAMILTON AROUSED.

Citizens' Committee to Investigate Charge that Evil Resorts Exist.

The Bay Ridge and Fort Hamilton Citizens' Association held a meeting yesterday evening at the rooms of the Co-operative Building and Loan Association, at Ninety-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue, Fort Hamilton, to discuss what should be done regarding reports about the existence of immoral resorts in that part of the city.

Capt. Baldwin of the Fort Hamilton police station denied that any such place existed. If any one would present evidence to him, however, he would close such resorts within twenty-four hours or resign his office.

Capt. Hopkins, a prominent citizen, then said that the newspaper reports were founded on facts, and that adjoining his home there was such a place.

Secretary Tully of the Law Enforcement Society offered the services of that society toward securing evidence. A resolution was adopted to investigate the charges and a committee of five was appointed for this purpose. The committee consists of Capt Hopkins, Henry E. Bowns, William Bell, William A. Hatfield, Alderman William Keegan, and James T. Farrell, President of the Bay Ridge Society.

Women to Work for Purity in Homes.

Another conference was held yesterday afternoon in Liberty Hall, 257 East Houston Street, by the east side women who will co-operate with the Committee of Fifteen in the purification of the east side, Leopold Datner presiding. The meeting organized as the Committee on Home Purification, and decided to hold regular meetings for the purpose of hearing reports. Recruits for the committee will be called for.

FAMINE COMMITTEE ADJOURNS.

Body Winds Up Business Connected with Indian Relief.

The Committee of One Hundred on India Famine Relief, which was organized on May 9 of this year, wound up its affairs yesterday. The report of the committee says that the total amount raised was $252,988.42, and estimates the total amount of gifts to India from the entire United States at upward of $1,000,000.

Resolutions thanking all those who extended their aid, and especially the Chairman, William E. Dodge, and John Crosby Brown, the Treasurer, for their services were then adopted, whereupon the committee adjourned sine die.

MOTHER THE COMPLAINANT.

Wants Her Sons Committed for Alleged Theft—Little Fellows Ready for the Court Officer.

A peculiar case, in which an unrelenting mother figured, came before Magistrate Steers in the Grant Street Police Court, Brooklyn, yesterday. Two boys were arraigned on a charge of larceny, the complainant being their mother. The peculiar feature of the case was that the mother was not the person who had suffered the loss.

The boys were Christian and William Frolich, respectively twelve and thirteen years old, both bright-looking lads. The mother of the boys, Mrs. Wilhelmina Frolich of 53 Lott Street, visited the court on Tuesday and made complaint against her two young sons, charging them with stealing $7.40 from William Glencastle of 45 Lott Street. Mrs. Frolich said that the boys had told her that they had taken the money from a table in the hall of Mr. Glencastle's residence, and she thought that for their own good they should be sent to some institution.

When the court officer with the warrant reached the Frolich residence yesterday he found the two boys sitting in the parlor with their hats and coats on waiting for him. The man from whom the money is alleged to have been stolen did not appear in court. It was said that he had refused to make a complaint. The case was adjourned for a week and the boys were placed in charge of Agent Coschina of the Children's Society. He will investigate the case.

POLITICAL SCANDAL IN QUEENS.

Grand Jury Investigating Democratic County Convention Methods.

The Queens County Grand Jury is investigating the scandal connected with the Democratic County Convention last October. Tuesday County Clerk John H. Sutphin, from whom it is alleged $6,000 was demanded for a renomination, was before the jury, and yesterday his son, Harry Sutphin, was before the jury for five hours. District Attorney Merrill issued subpoenas for nearly every prominent Democratic politician in the borough. They were served last night by Sheriff De Bragga's deputies.

When the investigation of the Democratic County Convention scandal is completed, the Grand Jury will investigate the failure of the Department of Buildings, Lighting, and Supplies to provide sufficient light for the County Court House and Jail. Hardly a day passes that fuses do not blow out and cause electric fireworks around the building and darkness in the rooms. District Attorney Merrill says his assistants have had to do their night work in saloons and other places. The electric elevator in the County Court building has been useless for some time. All the trouble has occurred since the private plant formerly operated was shut down.

ISAAC BLUMBERG'S TESTIMONY.

Witness Tries to Connect Detective Drummond's Name with Musher's.

Isaac Blumberg of 17 Pike Street, a witness against Nathan Musher, now on trial in General Sessions, charged with forgery, who testified that Musher told him that with $2,700 a lawyer named Pincus, with Assistant District Attorney O'Reilly's assistance, had abstracted a note from his indictment papers, said yesterday on the witness stand that Musher pointed out A. L. Drummond, the head of the Drummond Detective Agency, as a banker named Coe, who was able to get imported goods into this country without paying the legal tariff.

"In Musher's check book are stubs on which Drummond's name appears for amounts exceeding $20,000," said Blumberg.

Mr. Drummond denied Blumberg's statements. "Blumberg's statements and Musher's, if he made any, are entirely false," said Mr. Drummond. "I never saw Collector Bidwell but once in my life. Blumber was Musher's partner, I believe, and the latter employed us to shadow Blumberg Any checks given to us by Musher were for services rendered."

Lawyer Abraham Pincus, when seen yesterday, denied emphatically Musher's alleged statement to Blumberg that $2,700 had been given him to secure the disappearance of the $2,000 note from the indictment papers.

POLICEMAN POWERS FINED.

Officer Arrested During the Race Riots Escapes Dismissal.

The Police Board arrived at a decision yesterday in regard to the case of Patrolman William E. Powers of the Mercer Street Station, who was arrested during the race riots on the west side last August for being intoxicated and threatening to shoot another policeman. Some time before this he had attracted attention by arresting a child for picking leaves from a bush in an east side park. At that time Chief Devery and Deputy Chief Ebstein had him dismissed. The Police Board yesterday fined him fifteen days' pay.

Powers had been charged with brandishing his pistol and threatening to shoot an officer at the corner of Eighth Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street. He was off duty at the time and had only gone into the neighborhood to watch the fires. He said that a policeman evidently mistaking him for a rioter had clubbed him and that he had drawn his pistol in self-defense. When he showed his police shield he was set at liberty and would not have been held in the West Thirty-eighth Street Police Station, where he was locked up, if he had not insisted on making a complaint against the policeman whom he charged with clubbing him. He denied having been intoxicated.

The Police Commissioners, in deciding the case, dismissed the charge of intoxication and fined the policeman on the charge of conduct unbecoming an officer. Powers has a long record of delinquencies.

Officer Exposed by Devery Punished.

The Police Board yesterday imposed a fine of twenty days' pay upon Patrolman Frederick Wicks of the Macdougal Street Station for intoxication. Chief Devery saw him standing in full uniform trying to keep on his feet by holding to a horse's head. Wicks admitted having taken a drink, but said that his unsteadiness was due to an attack of gastric catarrh, from which he was suffering.

Found Father's Body in Potter's Field.

Eugene M. Southwick of 121 Ellery Street, Williamsburg, has succeeded in finding the body of his father, buried in Potter's Field. The man had dropped dead on Bedford Avenue near Keap Street on the night of Oct. 9. The body was buried as an unknown. Eugene Southwick reported the disappearance to the police, but did not know of his father's death until a few days ago. Southwick had the body disinterred, and yesterday the body was buried in the family plot in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

The addition of water, still or carbonated, to "Canadian Club" Whisky does not affect the delightful flavour and unmistakable aroma peculiar to it, no matter how great the dilution. For this reason a High Ball made with "Canadian Club" is a delightful and satisfying drink.

SAW HIS JEWELRY STOLEN.

Thieves Tied Von Breton's Door and Then Robbed Him.

John Von Breton, the proprietor of a jewelry store at 168 Cherry Street, was robbed of about $200 worth of jewelry Tuesday evening. He was at work inside the store with two assistants when the plate-glass window was broken in by three young men, who began to help themselves to watches and rings. The jeweler tried to get out, but found that the handles of the door had been tied together on the outside, so that it was impossible to open it.

When Von Breton reached the street by going around by a back way the thieves had fled. The police of the Madison Street Station, who were notified of the case, arrested Robert Kelly of 28 Charles Street yesterday in connection with it. He was arraigned in the Essex Market Police Court, where Von Breton identified as his property five watches that were found on the prisoner. He was held for further examination.

Women's SUITS

Handsome High-Grade Low-priced

Here are two splendid lots of stylish suits. There were no more desirable costumes gathered anywhere for this season's selling than these. Yet they're reduced—substantially reduced in prices as noted below. The season's been a bit backward. The prices here demonstrate that we're not when it comes to reducing stocks:

One group from which you may choose at $45—the values run up to $65. These are suits of fine broadcloth and imported cheviots; made with double-breasted fly-front jackets, both in loose and tight-fitting styles. All elegantly made and trimmed. Some with tailored stitching.

The other is a lot from which a selection will coat $70—it would have cost up to $105. These are of very elegant broadcloths—some imported. All in best approved styles. Handsomely trimmed. Silk lined throughout.

Men's OVERCOATS

Perfect Satisfaction Assured

Now and then we hear expressions of surprise at the extensive gathering of high-class clothing shown here. Only now and then. It's pretty generally known and appreciated. Especial pride is felt in this stock of overcoats. We have tried, successfully, we believe, to give better quality, better workmanship, and better values generally into every coat we sell than are usual anywhere else.

Think, for instance, of the best possible overcoat at a little price—if interested in that sort. It's here at $8.50. Or consider this finest genuine Montagnac overcoat—it's $55. Many a tailor, however, thinks $100 a fair price for its equal. There's unexcelled variety between those extreme figures—all proportionately good values. A few more specimens:

$45—Of velour cloth, in dark Oxford mixtures, with faint Herringbone mixture; silk lined; velvet collar. Very dressy.

$40—Of smooth finish cheviot; silver gray—a new shade; silk lined throughout. Decidedly swell.

$38—Overcoats of best American Montagnac; lined with extra heavy silk; edges piped with fine silk velvet. A handsome, stylish, luxurious coat.

$30—Of dark gray Herringbone cheviot, rough faced; silk lined; broad shoulders; night-gown back.

$38—This of genuine Irish frieze, in dark gray mixture; silk lined throughout. Of same goods, made up of satin yoke and wool body lining, at $35.

And then the Raglans. We've been selling them 'way beyond our highest expectations. It has been difficult to get together the sort of assortment and sufficient supply we wished to announce. We can do so now. Splendid, perfectly fitting garments in a wide range of grades. Fifteen dollars for the least expensive—a very good coat for that money.

In the Japanese Store, some Royal Home Chimes—pure and clear-toned like cathedral chimes, are priced at a third below their former values, thus: Full octaves, that were $50, $60 and $75, are now $33.50, $40 and $50. Two sets of Carillon Gongs, deep and pleasant-voiced, are respectively $50 instead of $75, for set of full octave, and $26.75 instead of $40, for set of 5 notes.

Gold Chairs at $4.50. Frames are of hard wood, gilded all over; turned legs and spindles; ornamental spindle back with carved panel in centre; shaped seat frame with silk damask cover; very pretty chairs and just the sort to add a bright spot to the parlor; others at $5, $5.50, $6, $7, $7.50, up to $75. $15 to $20 Suits for Men, now $12. These are all suits which are worth more than their original prices, but they're broken lots. They are of fancy or black cheviots; some of the suits have the new military sack coat. At their new price, $12, they are remarkable bargains.

Crepe de Chine Ribbon, of splendid quality, 6½ inches wide, in light blue, rose pink, cardinal, Nile green and white, is priced at 65c a yard.

Lillian CORSETS

Whether it be in the now everywhere-demanded straight-front models or in a girdle, or in any of the various other shapes,—the Lillian is still the leader. Perfect-fitting, of high-grade materials, and put together in conscientious manner, is every Lillian that comes to us from the European maker. Yet most moderately priced considering that they're imported.

Handsome straight-front corsets at $10,—of fine coutil and whalebone; low bust, long over hips and abdomen; lace trimmed. Some of fancy silk at $12.

A particularly dainty little girdle of satin ribbon, in pink, blue, white and black, at $5.50 each. Second floor, Tenth street.

Hats for Evening Wear

At Half Prices

Toques and dress hats—not many of them—of rich materials, in light colors and beautiful designs. This description is at once the explanation for this sweeping reduction—the colors are too delicate, the materials too fragile, to withstand long the frequent handling to which the hats are of necessity subjected. So, before they pay the penalty of their beauty, we intend that they shall each add grace to some effective toilette; and at their new price it won't take them long.

Hats that were $40, now $20
Hats that were $35 now $17.50
Hats that were $30 now $15
Hats that were $25 now $12.50
Hats that were $20 now $10

Second floor, Tenth street.

Boys' SUITS And Overcoats

No one expects any sort of apparel that a good, live, active boy won't wear out in what sometimes seems to be almost "jig time." But we're making it harder for the boy to destroy his clothing—the kinds we sell. At the same time making it easier for those who have to pay for them

Here are examples in suits and overcoats, both of which combine worthiness and cheapness in marked degree:

Boys' Suits—

$5—Sailor suits for 3 to 12-year sizes; of stylish cheviots and serges; tastefully trimmed. Another grade at $6.50.

$5—Russian blouse suits; for 3 to 8-year sizes; these of cheviots, in red, sage green, tan and blue. Others up to $7.50.

$8.50—A Raglan for boys. A very stylish, at the same time durable, coat; of Oxford gray cheviot. For boys of 4 up to 16 years.

Other splendid Raglans at $13.50 to $18.50.

Second floor, Fourth avenue.

Women's Warm WRAPPERS

Warmth has been the chief thought in the making of these. But some effective thinking was also done in the matter of making the gowns attractive. The task is not finished until the prices are fixed. We think you'll be satisfied with our markings.

There are various groups of pretty cozy flannelette wrappers, in neat stripes and figures on dark grounds; mostly all braid trimmed in new designs. $1 to $2.75.

MARRIED UNDER THREAT OF DEATH, BRIDE SAYS

Mrs. Annie Castka Wants an Irksome Marriage Annulled.

Justice Lawrence Says Ministers Should Not Marry "Weeping Brides Who Are Unwilling Sacrifices."

In the Supreme Court yesterday Justice Lawrence heard the case of Miss Annie Castka, nineteen years old, who sued to have her marriage to Frank Castka annulled because it was entered into under duress. Annie is the daughter of Emil F. Corsari, who is in business in Beekman Street.

Mrs. Castka said that in October, 1899, her father brought Castka to their home, at 1,216 Boston Road. He called repeatedly, but she supposed he was calling on her father. The climax came on Nov. 29, 1899, when Castka asked her to marry him. "I told him," she said, "that I did not love him, but I did love James Chamberlain, so I could not marry him. My father then produced a letter which had been written to me by Mr. Chamberlain. My father became very angry as he read this letter over to Mr. Castka, and then he said: 'Are you willing to marry Mr. Castka?'

"I replied, 'No.'

"'You must,' said he.

"'I will if you insist,' was my reply, 'but I will not live with him.'

"'If you don't marry him I will kill you.' Then my father picked up a shotgun standing in the corner of the room and pointed it at me."

On the night of Nov. 30, about 8 o'clock, Castka came to the house and her father said to Annie:

"Hurry up and go to the church and get married."

Castka with two friends and Annie's father started with her. They went to two Catholic Churches. At one the priest was not at home, and at the other the priest refused to marry the couple. Castka and the girl then started for the Episcopal Church of the Holy Faith. The father did not go, but said to his daughter: "If you come home without being married I will kill you."

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Victor C. Smith. For a short time the unwilling bride lived with her husband. She claimed yesterday that her father had threatened to kill her if she left Castka. Later she left him and went to live with friends at 1,070 Union Avenue. Her mother, who opposed the forced marriage, has since separated from Mr. Corsari. The mother was a witness yesterday, and she corroborated the testimony of her daughter.

Justice Lawrence brought the proceeding to an abrupt close by saying: "I will put this case off until next Wednesday in order that you may subpoena this minister. We shall see why, if it is true, that clergymen unite in marriage weeping brides who give plain evidence that they are being led unwillingly to the sacrifice. The trouble in this city is that people are permitted to rush into the churches and get married without any questions being asked and have to come to the courts to have the mischief undone."

The Rev. Victor C. Smith said last evening: "I remember that wedding very well. There were three women and one young man in the party besides the couple, and all were very hilarious. I questioned the couple, and the girl told me that she was eighteen years of age, and had her father's consent. After making other inquiries, I performed the ceremony, but was obliged to rebuke the party for their hilarity, telling them that it was a very serious matter for at least two of the party. There were no tears; it was nothing but laughter, and if the girl had been forced into the marriage she did not take it very hard. After the ceremony the groom apologized for the party and the lateness of the hour. The groom asked me what my fee was, and when I said $5 he pulled out a big roll of bills and handed me a five-dollar bill." Mr. Smith said he certainly would be in court next Wednesday.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY'S PLANS.

Mr. Kennedy Admits the Possibility of Uniting with the Public Library.

John S. Kennedy, who introduced the resolution at the meeting of the New York Historical Society Tuesday night asking that inquiry be made of the New York Public Library Trustees regarding the possibility of securing the present Lenox Library Building for the Historical Society's new home, said yesterday that the resolution would be presented before the Public Library Trustees at their regular meeting next Wednesday. Mr. Kennedy is one of the Library Trustees, as well as Second Vice President of the New York Historical Society.

Mr. Kennedy yesterday admitted that the value of the Fifth Avenue front of the library property between Seventieth and Seventy-first Streets was probably from $1,500,000 to $1,750,000.

"The land owned by the society on Central Park West, between Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh Streets," said Mr. Kennedy, "cost about $250,000 four years ago. It is probably worth at the lowest $700,000 more now. With $75,000 to $100,000, which the society's building and land at Second Avenue and Eleventh Street ought to bring, and the money already subscribed for the building fund, the Historical Society will have about $500,000 with which to start a new home. The question of securing the Lenox Library has often been mentioned to me, and I simply introduced the resolution as an entering wedge."

The question of consolidating the Historical Society with the Public Library has been another subject of frequent mention, but the more conservative members of the former organization have always refused to admit such a possibility. When this fact was broached to Mr. Kennedy he said:

"The arrangements toward securing the Lenox Library might be such that the Historical Society would become an adjunct of the Public Library, but yet retain its own individuality."

Elaborate Bronzes of Modern Japanese Workmanship Bring Low Prices—Beautiful Cloisonne Vases.

The sale of the collection of Oriental art objects which belonged to the late Joseph W. Sprague of Louisville, Ky., was continued yesterday afternoon at the galleries of the American Art Association. There was a large attendance, many well-known art amateurs being present.

The sale was begun on Tuesday, but it was not till yesterday that any of the more important objects—the objects which made the Sprague collection unique in this country—were disposed of. Toward the end of the afternoon's sale a number of extraordinarily elaborate modern Japanese bronzes were offered. These brought nothing like the prices which would be regarded as commensurate to their size and workmanship, compared with the sums smaller bronzes bring. There is, however, room in few houses for such enormous and unwieldy ornaments, and this is regarded as explaining the lack of keen competition.

The highest price of the afternoon was $800, for a set of statuettes in bronze embellished with gold, silver, and shakudo. They are the work of Sano Tsuchikika, and represent the "Seven Gods of Luck." A large incense-burner and carved pedestal brought $600; a splendid bronze fender, embellished with silver, shibuichi, shakudo, and other metals, $310, and an incense jar ornamented with dragons in bold relief $400. Two statuettes of Japanese warriors, 22 inches high, were sold for $380; a pair of large bronze vases brought $500; an exquisitely wrought bronze statue of a falconer $320, and a pair of temple lanterns $430.

Considerable surprise was manifested over the low prices realized for the last two lots, a pair of immense cloisonné vases—designs of pigeons, plum trees, and peonies on a maroon ground. The vases were sold separately, owing to an accident which had caused an indentation in one of them. The perfect vase sold for $250, and the damaged one for $60. It is probable that one of the Japanese craftsmen in Brooklyn can beat the second vase into shape again and repair the enamel for a very small sum, and then the purchaser will have a pair of vases worth thousands of dollars.

Oriental silverware, Japanese sword guards, cabinet specimens, and miscellaneous objects will be sold to-day.

FALLS DEAD IN A BANK.

Sudden End of Mr. de Queseda, a Prominent Cuban Resident.

Gregorio de Quesada, the father of Genzalo and Dr. Gregorio de Quesada, a prominent Cuban resident of this city, dropped dead in the Bank of the Manhattan Company, at 40 Wall Street, yesterday afternoon. Mr. de Quesada, who had been feeble for some time, was a depositor in the bank and went there to draw some money. He was about to approach the paying teller's window when he sank into a chair standing near by and a moment later rolled on the floor, dead.

A physician was sent for, but Mr. de Quesada died before his arrival. The body was taken to the Old Slip Station and later to his late home, at 208 West One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Street. The cause of death was heart disease.

Mr. de Quesada was born in Puerto Principe, Cuba, seventy-five years ago. He was one of the wealthy planters of the island and a strong adherent of the Cuban cause, which he aided with his means, although he never took a prominent part in the island's politics. He was at one time Alcalde and a member of the Council of Puerto Principe. His son Gonzalo was at one time President and Secretary of the Cuban Junta here. He was sent by this Government some months ago to Cuba to aid the provisional Government to frame its laws.

The elder Mr. de Quesada came to this country in 1876 and was never in business here. Besides the two sons named, he leaves a wife and three daughters. No arrangements for the funeral had been made yesterday.

THE MECHANICAL ENGINEERS.

Officers Elected for the Ensuing Year —May Meet in Buffalo.

At the second session of the Society of Mechanical Engineers, held yesterday, the officers to serve for the coming term were elected. They are:

President—Samuel T. Wellman of Cleveland, Ohio; Vice Presidents—David Townsend of Philadelphia, Jesse M. Smith of New York, James M. Dodge of Philadelphia, Stevenson Taylor of Hoboken, Arthur M. Waitt of New York, Ambrose Swasey of Cleveland, Edgar C. Felton of Harrisburg, Penn.; R. H. Soule of New York, John H. Hashear of Allegheny, Penn.; A. M. Goodale of Waltham, Mass.; Francis H. Boyer of Somerville, Mass.; Alfred H. Raynal of Washington, D. C.; W. F. M. Goss of Lafayette, Ind.; De Courcy May of Scranton, Penn., and D. S. Jacobus of Hoboken; Treasurer—William H. Wiley of New York.

About five hundred members of the society from all parts of the country had registered before yesterday evening. After the reading of three papers on technical subjects the members of the society were shown the workings of automobiles by representatives of various manufacturers. The council reported that a proposition to hold a meeting of the society in Buffalo at the time of the Pan-American Exposition there was being considered. It also named representatives of the society to confer with the management of the proposed Engineering Congress, to be held in Glasgow, Scotland, in August, 1901.

Gus C. Henning was appointed to represent the society at a council meeting of the International Society for Testing Materials, to be held at Zurich, Switzerland.

SERVICES OF DR. NOYES.

Eye and Ear Infirmary Staff Call Attention to His Work.

The Medical Staff of the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary call attention to the services rendered to that institution by Dr. Henry D. Noyes, who died on Nov. 12 last. It was after he returned from Europe in 1859 that Dr. Noyes was appointed an assistant surgeon in the infirmary. He was made a surgeon five years later, and served as executive surgeon of the institution from 1873 until 1898. When his resignation was tendered to the surgical staff last October, he had been a member of the body for thirty-six years.

During these years the growth of the infirmary was marked. In 1859 there were 4,178 new dispensary patients and 144 in the wards, while the corresponding figures last year were 47,684 and 2,257. When Dr. Noyes first went on the surgical staff it consisted of nine men, whereas there are now twenty-three members. In 1859 the institution was simply an eye infirmary; now there are three departments, one each for the treatment of the eye, ear, and throat.

To Dr. Noyes's efforts is due in no small degree the success of the well-ordered hospital of to-day, with its isolated cataract wards, pavilion for contagious ophthalmia, training school for nurses, school for the instruction of graduates in medicine, medical library, and annual issues of volumes filled with scientific transactions. The rules that govern the infirmary are largely the result of Dr. Noyes's study and forethought, and shortly before his death he formulated the new regulations that give increased powers to the executive surgeon.

LONG ISLAND BOER COLONY.

Speculative Scheme to Establish Here South African Immigrants.

Arrangements are being made for the establishment of a Boer colony on a somewhat large scale in Long Island, and a real estate deal was made yesterday whereby a plot of 1,113 acres of land is secured in Nassau County, between Hicksville and Syosset, which will be divided up into farms of five and ten acres each for the Boers who have decided to seek their fortunes in the New World.

The promoters of the colony in this country are members of an organization that has branches in England and on the Continent, and is known as the "Boer Refugee Aid Committee." The American representatives of the organization in New York, so far as could be learned yesterday, are H. P. Townsley, President of an insurance company at Broadway and Thirty-third Street, and a real estate company on East Twenty-third Street. There are said to be other representatives of the organization in Philadelphia, Washington, and Troy.

It is said that twenty-three Boer families will arrive here about Dec. 28, and will take up their homes on this land, where they will begin active truck farming. Other families will come to this country later and take up farms on Long Island. This colonization scheme is purely speculative, it is declared.

Men from Cape Colony Get Papers.

The first Afrikanders to apply for naturalization in the United States District Court here got their first papers yesterday afternoon. They were participants with the Boers in their war with England. They are Hercules David Viljeon and Andreas Jacobus Liebenberg, late residents of Cape Colony. They arrived here on Nov. 26, and are staying at the Union Square Hotel. The papers were made out by John Louis Donovan, a clerk of the United States Circuit Court. They admitted having been with the Boers in their war, and said that they had had enough of exciting times.

PRAISE FOR MRS. SAGE.

Speaks to Children at the Bazaar of the Salvation Army.

The influence of Mrs. Russell Sage pervaded the Salvation Army headquarters yesterday. It was such a beneficent influence that the smallest recruit in the ranks mentioned her name with bated breath and called her "Mrs. Russell." A visitor, inquiring for the bazaar at the newly opened home on Thirteenth Street, was directed to the headquarters on Fourteenth Street by a little girl, who added: "Mrs. Russell will be there." Asking at the bazaar for the officer in charge a young woman private answered in the same awed tone: "Mrs. Russell is coming to conduct."

Mrs Sage did not "conduct," but sat on the platform through a programme of song by the children and the Army singing brigade. Then Commander Booth-Tucker told of the prairie home for orphans in Colorado, for which money is being raised in the bazaar, and a little story illustrating the value of a smile.

"It is with a view of smiling upon us a little that Mrs. Russell Sage is with us this afternoon," he concluded.

"One of our angel spirits," said Mrs. Booth-Tucker, touching Mrs. Sage lightly upon the arm as she rose to speak, "God bless Mrs. Russell Sage."

"Amen, amen!" cried the Army.

"God bless little children; what would the world do without them?" said Mrs. Sage, and the Army repeated, "Amen, amen!"

After a few words to the children Mrs. Sage sat down. Miss Helen Gould, who was expected, was not able to be present.

NEWS OF THE RAILROADS.

Conference of Western Officials Is Well Attended.

Presidents, Vice Presidents, and traffic officials of Western railroads opened their last quarterly conference of the current year yesterday in the Equitable Building. At the conclusion of the session yesterday afternoon none of the business on hand had been definitely disposed of. This was mainly due to the inability of the various committees to reach satisfactory agreements on any of the subjects which had been specially referred to them at the morning session of the conference. This trouble in the committees was largely responsible for a reduced attendance in the afternoon.

One of the interesting features of yesterday's session was the attendance of J. N. Hannaford, third Vice President and General Traffic Manager of the Northern Pacific Railway. This railroad was not represented at the last conference, President Mellen stating that he was not in favor of the organization of pools and traffic committees. The Canadian Pacific, however, and the Great Northern sent no representatives, and, although it was said that the former line would agree to any decision of the conference, and that the Great Northern had promised its support by letter, their absence was not calculated to inspire confidence in the results of the conference.

Another fact which caused comment was the absence of any representative of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, which has heretofore been represented by either its Chairman or one of its members. This was thought to be specially significant in view of the recent investigations regarding pools and freight committees conducted by that commission in Chicago.

On the other hand, the interest in this conference demonstrated by prominent railroad financiers was quite unusual. E. H. Harriman, Chairman of the Union Pacific Board of Directors; Aldace F. Walker, Chairman of the Atchison Board; Roswell Miller, Chairman of the St. Paul Board, and others prominent in the financial world were present at the morning session. There were also in attendance President Burt of the Union Pacific, President Felton of the Chicago and Alton, President Ripley of the Atchison, President Purdy of the Rock Island, President Fish of the Illinois Central, Vice President Stubbs, and Assistant Traffic Manager Hawley of the Southern Pacific, and President Ashley of the Wabash. The conference will meet again to-day at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Brief Railroad Items.

The New York Central has called for contracts for the building of the new line in Pennsylvania and the double tracking of the Harlem line, recently authorized by the Directors.

President J. Rogers Maxwell of the Central Railroad of New Jersey said yesterday that he did not consider the rumors of a consolidation of his road with the Philadelphia and Reading worthy of discussion, and that he had heard nothing of such an alleged plan until rumors of it had been printed by a Philadelphia paper.

The complete abandonment of railroad tickets and the collection by conductors of cash fares for each division traveled over by a passenger is included in a plan proposed by a well-known railroad official for the purpose of defeating the efforts of the scalping fraternity. The printing of tickets involves one of the large expenditures of the passenger departments. Besides, large sums of money are spent in fighting the ticket brokers and traffic associations are maintained at an enormous expense in order to protect the tickets.

GRIEVANCES OF SERVANT GIRLS

Mrs. Beale Tells of Their Woes, but a Union Is Not Organized.

"I'm very sorry that there aren't more ladies present," said Mrs. St. Justin Beale to the twelve servant girls who had come to the rooms of the Social Reform Club, 48 University Place, last night, to join a union that is being projected for them. "But I won't let that deter me from speaking to you." Mrs. Beale recited the grievances of the servant girls in an address of one hour and fifteen minutes, with no stops for breath or emphasis.

"Dat lady certainly can talk 'a blue streak," said one of the twelve, after the meeting. "'Minds me jes' zactly of a 'spress train."

Mrs. Beale said it really was too much to expect the servants to wash the china without breaking it. "That's the mistress's work," she said. "Why, when I lived with my husband I never thought of allowing a servant to handle the bric-a-brac.

"Why, I know a lady in Madison Avenue who don't even know what she is going to have for dinner in the evening. Think of it!

"Why I know a lady who sends her servant out every day for one of those drinks that they serve in little glasses with a cherry in it—what is it they call it?"

"A cocktail," said somebody.

"Yes, that's it. And that woman objects if her servant wants to take a nip of brandy. It's shameful, that's what it is. If a girl wants a drink she has a right to it, just so she don't get drunk and smell of liquor." Twelve heads wagged sympathetically.

"Why," continued Mrs. Beale, "I know a lady who goes to balls and parties and she objects to her servants doing the same. Think of it.

"I come from old England; where we're big eaters and proud of it," continued the speaker, "but I know a lady here who for dinner gave her three servants a pound of steak, a turnip, and four boiled potatoes."

The twelve were visibly shocked. Mrs. Beale then outlined her plan for having the servant girls attend a series of lectures on "The Dignity of Labor," "Cooking, Washing, and Ironing," "Cleaning," "Waiting," and other allied arts.

Hermann Robinson, an organizer of the American Federation of Labor, said that he did not quite see how the trade union movement could be applied to the servant girls' union.

FIRE SERVICE OF RICHMOND.

Borough Residents Petition the Mayor for Aid in Increasing It.

Mayor Van Wyck received a visit yesterday from twenty-five citizens of the Borough of Richmond. The people of Staten Island want five or six fire companies established, and they ask an appropriation for each company.

John A. Kenney of Pleasant Valley told Mayor Van Wyck that his town had a population of 2,500 people and no fire protection. Mr. Kenney said there was one residence in Pleasant Valley worth $18,000. He said there had been twenty-five fires in eighteen months, and the loss had been $37,000. Mayor Van Wyck promised to act promptly.

George Sheridan asked for a charter for the Cherokee Engine Company of West New Brighton. In Westfield is situated Father Drumgoole's institution containing 1,000 children, and whenever there is a cry of fire the people are always alarmed for the safety of the children. Mayor Van Wyck said he would attend to the matter at once.

Snow Removal Contract Signed.

The contract for removing snow from the streets of Manhattan Borough was signed yesterday by Commissioner Nagle and sent to Controller Coler for approval as to sureties. After the awarding of the contract to De Marco & Kelly at 36 cents, it was announced that the firm wanted to transfer the contract to the Uvalde Asphalt Company. Controller Coler will decide whether he will allow the transfer. The Uvalde Company will have to do the work at the lowest bid of 36 cents.

MRS. WEIL'S DIVORCE CASE.

Counsel for Defendant Withdraws and Decree Will Be Granted.

Testimony in the action for absolute divorce brought by May E. Weil against Henry Goodman Weil, the broker, was heard yesterday by Justice McAdam and a jury in the Supreme Court. At the last moment counsel for Mr. Weil withdrew from the case, alleging that a hearing yesterday would be incomplete without witnesses they were unable to produce then.

The Justice and jury held an "inquest" on certain facts relating to the various corespondents. The findings of the jury, which were in favor of Mrs. Weil, will go before a Justice in Special Term, and then her decree will be granted.

THE NEWS IN NEW JERSEY

PRIEST DREAMS OF INVENTIONS

Life-Saving Appliances Revealed to Him in Visions While Ill.

The Rev. Felix Marion Lepore of the Italian Catholic Church of Denver has come East to enlist capital for a number of inventions which he has made. Father Lepore says he is not a genius, and that his inventions are the result of visions.

The priest's story is that three years ago he was ill with fever, and for a long period his life was despaired of. It was during this time that most of the inventions were planned in his mind. They were borne to his mind in dreams and visions, he says, and so vivid were the impressions thus made that he retained them after he recovered and working models could be made from his descriptions.

Father Lepore's list of inventions includes a fire escape, an automatic railroad switch, a life-saving suit for the use of persons shipwrecked at sea, a hospital cot, with mechanical contrivances for lifting and moving its occupant, and a needle that can be threaded by a person with feeble sight.

The life-saving suit is novel. It is made of water-proof material, and in general outline suggests a coffin surmounted by a helmet at the head and encircled by a life-preserver around the section corresponding to the chest of the inclosed body. The visor of the helmet is so contrived that it may be raised at will. The user may draw the suit over his feet after the visor is up. Theoretically one might live for many days at sea in such a suit, as food and water are carried in it. If the occupant feels tired after standing with his head above water for a long time he has only to squeeze a bulb and his feet rise to the surface and his body rides on the surface at full length. This is accomplished by pumping air into the chambers running up and down the sides of the legs. These can be exhausted instantly.

The fire escape is an endless wire ladder running around a drum stationed inside the windows of the building. The weight of the body is sufficient to make the drum revolve and keep the ladder in motion. A wire within reach at all points of the ladder operates a brake by which the speed of the drum can be regulated. Straps fastened to the rungs of the ladder make it possible for a person to fasten children to it and lower them from the building without carrying or accompanying them.

STRIKE IN A RUBBER FACTORY.

Milltown Employes Object to Contract System and Imported Labor.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 5.—The trouble at the Milltown India Rubber Company's factory culminated this morning, when practically all of the employes, headed by Adam Wagner, foreman of the cutting room, went out on strike. Conferences with Superintendent Evans were held through the day, and it is expected that the difficulty will be adjusted to-morrew.

The trouble was caused by the installation of a new plan of operating the cutting room. Nathan Meyer, from Setauket, L. I., took a contract to do a certain amount of work in the cutting room, employing his own assistants, most of whom were from New York. The old hands objected because they did not want the contract system and also because of the importation of labor.

The strike affects practically all of the force except those under Meyer. The old employes say they might as well resign now as to wait until the new-comers have been taught how to run the machines.

Mr. Evans denies that any attempt is to be made to supplant any of the old hands, and says the new arrangements will work to the advantage of all.

GIRL ANNOYED BY A BARBER.

Millhand Is Threatened with a Death Like Jennie Bosschieter's.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 5.—Jennie Cello, an Italian girl of nineteen, told a story today in the Recorder's Court of the annoyance to which she has been subjected by Narcelze Pecci, an Italian barber, who is infatuated with her. Jennie lives at 132 Vine Street, this city, and the barber is her next-door neighbor.

She says he began to pay court to her many months ago. She told him she did not care for him. He followed her to her work, and his attentions were so annoying that she lost her place. When the girl spurned him he began to write letters demanding that she marry him, and others telling her he would give her poison. The last letter scared her, as he fixed a date when he would begin to give her poison. Then he wrote: "I will drug you, the same as McAlister drugged the Bosschieter girl."

Jennie caused the barber's arrest. This morning the girl appeared in court with her brother and a large collection of letters that she had been receiving. The Recorder said he thought the Federal authorities would take hold of the prisoner for violation of the postal laws.

SHUT OFF HIS RESTAURANT.

New York Central Railroad Company Makes Deegan's Place Inaccessible.

Charles Deegan of Weehawken threatens to sue the New York Central Railroad Company as lessees of the West Shore Road. Deegan established a float on the shore front of the company's property and opened a restaurant. On Saturday the company notified Deegan to move his float that improvements might be made. Deegan refused, insisting that the company wanted to drive him away because he interfered with the restaurant established at the railroad station.

The company's agents, on Tuesday, cut away Deegan's bridge, and yesterday built a high board fence across their property, so that Deegan's restaurant can no longer be reached by land. Deegan says he has been paying the company $15 a year ground rent for the privilege of maintaining his float.

WOODBINE FACTORY BURNED.

The Building Was One of the Investments in a Baron de Hirsch Colony.

WOODBINE, N. J., Dec. 5.—The big frame factory building owned by the Woodbine Land and Improvement Company, and leased by Daniel & Blumenthal as a clothing manufactory, was burned this morning. This village was founded with a portion of the Baron de Hirsch Fund. The land company is a side company of the Baron's fund for the betterment of the people of his race. The building was erected by it and the village largely grew around it. The fire is supposed to have started in the basement near the boilers. The loss on the building is about $12,000. That upon the machinery and stock is about $10,000. The insurance will cover the losses.

NEW USE OF BANKRUPTCY LAW.

New Jersey Lawyer Takes Advantage of It to Stop a Foreclosure.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 5.—Dr. G. Clinton Blakelock of 13 North Grove Street, East Orange, has taken advantage of the Federal bankruptcy law to stay a foreclosure of a mortgage. The sale of the doctor's household effects, under a mortgage held by James K. Wakefield of 44 James Street, was fixed for Monday. To prevent the sale Dr. Blakelock, through his attorney, William J. Linihan of this city, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Mr. Linihan also had granted a petition for an order enjoining Wakefield from proceeding with the foreclosure sale and citing him to show cause before Judge Kirkpatrick at Trenton on Dec. 17 why the restraint should not be continued for a year from the date of adjudication or until such time as Dr. Blakelock shall be discharged from bankruptcy.

The petition alleges that Dr. Blakelock originally borrowed from Wakefield $200, giving a chattel mortgage for $250 covering the furniture in his home. Wakefield claims the full principal of the mortgage, but Dr. Blakelock says he has paid Wakefield $194. Dr. Blakelock gives his liabilities as $3,078.50, and no assets.

JUMPED FROM A FERRYBOAT.

Miss Davidson Broke Down from Hard Work for a Church Entertainment.

Miss Marjory Davidson of 195 Clark Street, Jersey City, attempted to drown herself in the Hudson River yesterday. She went to New York to shop and was returning by the ferryboat Hudson City of the Desbrosses Street Line, at 5 o'clock. Just as the boat was entering the slip at Jersey City Miss Davidson, who stood on the stern, threw open the gate and plunged into the river. No one on the boat saw her, all the deckhands and passengers having crowded to the bow. She was seen, however, by the crew of the tugboat Castle Point, who rescued her and carried her to the Pennsylvania Railroad docks. There she was attended by Dr. J. A. Brooks of the City Hospital, and sent to her home.

Miss Davidson is the adopted daughter of Tenbrook Morris, Superintendent of the New York and New Jersey Transfer Company of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He said that Miss Davidson had been suffering for several days from nervous prostration conaequent upon overwork in connection with an entertainment to be given by the Claremont Avenue Presbyterian Church, of which she is an active member. She was elected manager of the affair because of her popularity. She worked so hard she broke down under the strain. NEW HOME OF THE BOYS' CLUB.

The Laying of the Cornerstone—Mr. Harriman's Help in Enlarging Restricted Quarters.

The cornerstone of the new home of the Boys' Club, at Tenth Street and Avenue A, was laid yesterday afternoon by E. H. Harriman, President of the club. This club, which has been in existence for twenty-five years, and which is said to have been the pioneer boys' club in this country, has a membership of over 400, and during the past year, in its limited accommodations in its former home, at Eighth Street and Avenue A, had a total of over 100,000 admissions. The club had so clearly outgrown its quarters that Mr. Harriman offered to advance the cost of a new building, consisting of five stories and a roof garden, and especially built with a view to club requirements.

The new building will be subdivided as follows: In the cellar shower baths and a carpenter shop will be installed; the ground floor will consist of a large meeting hall, provided with a stage; the floor above will consist of a number of rooms intended for the use of the many smaller clubs which exist within the larger one; the next floor will be for the older members of the club who desire to play billiards and other games; the next floor will consist of a gymnasium, and the fifth floor will consist of a number of class rooms where instructions may be had in drawing, in natural history, and other elective subjects. The building will be of gray brick.

This club is entirely independent of any church or other support. It is supported solely on voluntary contributions sent by many prominent and influential citizens.

The club is open, independent of creed or other limitation, to any boy over eight years old who desires to join. Boys retain their membership up to the age of twenty-one, the club members being subdivided according to age, so that none interferes with the enjoyments of the others. There are the Law and Order Club, the Junior Singing Club, the Literary Club, the Natural History Club, the Senior Club, the employment bureau, and the museum. In all of these instructors are provided.

They finally sighted the game, and Mr. Reeber killed the animal with his rifle.

The animal's antlers had a spread of 60 inches, while the head was perfect

LEGAL NOTES.

ATTORNEY AND CLIENT.—The Court of Appeals has recently rendered a decision involving the lien of an attorney for legal services, as affected by a declaration of trust on his part. About ten years ago Mrs. Kate B. West sued her husband, Stephen A. West, and the latter's lawyer, J. Adriance Bush, to set aside a conveyance made by her in 1889 to Mr. Bush, as having been procured from her by her husband upon false representations. Judgment was rendered declaring that Mr. Bush held the property as trustee for the benefit of Mr. West, and required Mr. Bush to deliver to Mr. West or a person he might name, a deed of the premises. Mr. Bush thereupon conveyed the premises to Alexander S. Bacon, one of the husband's attorneys in the suit. Mr. Bacon at the same time made a formal and explicit declaration of a trust in favor of his client, with the statement that he held the property for the purposes expressed in the judgment, and in no other way, and that upon the conveyance of the property to such persons as the cestui que trust might designate, he would pay over the proceeds of the sale to the latter. Then Mr. West sued Mr. Bacon to enforce the trust and compel the conveyance of the property to him. Mr. Bacon set up as a counter claim that there was due him $500 for services in Mrs. West's suit against Mr. Bush, for which sum he claimed a lien. The Appellate Division, affirming the Special Term, held, in an op

NICARAGUA DEMANDS PAY?

Rumors that She Asks $20,000,000 for Canal Concession.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE BILL

Reports Attributed to the Panama Opposition—Failure of Treaty May Not Kill Canal Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Panama Canal Company does not appear to have given up the idea of attracting the attention and capital of the United States to the completion of the French route across the isthmus. To the Panama opposition to the Nicaragua route is attributed the report heard here to-day that Nicaragua demands $20,000,000 as the price of the concession sought by the United States from that nation. While no member of the inter-oceanic Canal Committee can be quoted on this matter, it is learned from a member that the committee does not understand that any demand has been made for such an amount.

The suggestion has been made that $5,000,000 should be paid for it, but as intimated by the President, nothing has been done in that direction, except to make overtures to Nicaragua for an agreement to be entered into after the Clayton-Bulwer treaty has been set aside and the Hay-Pauncefote treaty ratified. That remains to be settled.

The suggestion of demands for large sums of money is calculated to add to the difficulties already great that stand in the way of the Canal bill. The opposition will base its resistance to the bill, in a large measure, on the ground that it is not commercially necessary, and that it will never attract enough commerce to make it self-supporting. The suggestion that military necessity demands its construction will provide the anti-imperialists with new matter for discussion.

A high officer of the Government, who is opposed to the passage of the bill before the Hay-Pauncefote treaty is ratified, expressed the opinion to-day that the Canal bill will get through even if the treaty fails.

DISCUSSING CANAL TREATY.

The Senate Takes Up the Hay-Pauncefote Agreement in Executive Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The executive session of the Senate to-day was devoted chiefly to the consideration of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. The agreement and the amendment to it suggested by the Committee on Foreign Relations were read at the instance of Senator Lodge, who took charge of the treaty on behalf of the committee. He then made a speech and urged speedy ratification as a necessary preliminary to the consideration of the Nicaragua Canal bill.

Senator Lodge was subjected to many questions during the presentation of his explanation. Senator Beveridge (Rep., Ind.,) asked whether it was not true that the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, as provided for in the pending treaty, would have the effect of permitting Great Britain to acquire property in the area affected. Senator Lodge replied in the negative, saying that it was well known to all that the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, while abrogating the Clayton-Bulwer treaty so far as it applies to the United States and binds this country, still leaves Great Britain bound by its terms. For this reason he was sure there need be no apprehension on that score.

Senator Lodge discussed the amendment suggested during the last session of Congress by the Committee on Foreign Relations providing that none of the provisions of the first five sections of the treaty should be construed as applying to "measures which the United States may find it necessary to take for securing by its own forces the defense of the United States and the maintenance of public order." The Senator argued that this amendment had the effect of giving greater assurance to our own people, and was a necessary safeguard.

At this point Senator Lindsay (Dem., Ky.,) interjected a question, and in doing so made a statement as to what he said he considered a popular misapprehension as to the effect of the amendment.

"I find," he said, "that most people appear to think that this amendment provides for the fortification of the canal, whereas it does nothing of the kind, as a reading of it will demonstrate." He then quoted from the amendment, showing that it applied specifically to only sections, 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 of Article II. of the treaty. He asserted that it provides only in the most general way for the protection of the rights of the United States. He called attention to the fact that, while the treaty of Constantinople applying to the Suez Canal had been used as the basis of the pending treaty, only that portion of several articles of it had been incorporated in the Hay-Pauncefote agreement, leaving out Article X. of that agreement, which gives to the Sultan of Egypt the right to defend the interests of that country in connection with the Suez Canal.

Replying, Senator Lodge said he had not considered, and did not contend, that the amendment conferred a single new power to fortify the canal. The great benefit of the amendment was found, he said, in the fact that it applies to the first section copied from the Constantinople agreement providing that the canal "shall be free and open in time of war as in time of peace to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations." The amendment, further said, was substantially in the language of Article X. of the Constantinople treaty, and therefore might be expected to serve the same purposes intended to be subserved by that article with reference to the Suez Canal.

In conclusion he urged early action upon the treaty as of great importance, because of the general desire to go on with the Nicaragua Canal legislation. He did not, however, indicate any time for taking a vote upon either the treaty or the committee amendment.

Senator Money (Dem., Miss.) made a brief speech in general opposition to the treaty, but indicating that he might vote for it if the amendment was ratified, though not ratisfied, he said that the amendment would make the document entirely satisfactory. From the whole, he thought the United States would best promote its own interests by proceeding to construct the canal without asking the aid or consent of any other country.

BELIEVES CANAL A CERTAINTY.

London Paper Says Doubt of Success Will Not Prevent Building.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The Daily Chronicle, which admits that "there is a doubt as to the profitableness of a canal across Nicaragua," says:

"Considering the wonderful expansion of American trade, however, success is not so unlikely as detractors of the project wish it to appear.

"Nevertheless, if the prospects were five times as problematical as they are, we must face the certainty that the canal will be constructed in the very near future."

President Zelaya May Come Here.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 13.—Further incidents are reported at this capital to have occurred which strengthen the persistent rumors that President Zelaya of Nicaragua contemplates paying a visit to the United States early in December of the present year. It is declared that he will leave San Juan del Norte, (Greytown,) either on an Atlas Line steamer and go direct to New York, or on one of the fruit steamers and land at New Orleans, and thence proceed to Washington by train.

German Comment on Canal Report.

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—The Boersen Courier, commenting upon the report of the Isthmian Canal Commission to the United States Congress, remarks: "The United States are equipping themselves in a magnificent manner for the coming commercial struggle." Most of the papers, however, publish the cabled extracts without comment.

Harvard Boys Scared by a Firecracker.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 5.—An explosion, at first thought to have been caused by a dynamite bomb, caused excitement among the 500 Harvard students at Prof. A. C. Coolidge's lecture upon "Knighthood" in Sanders Theatre, this morning. It was not a bomb that exploded, but an ordinary cannon cracker, placed in the lecture room simply as a joke upon the freshmen. There was practically no damage done.

THE KENTUCKY AT SMYRNA.

Her Commander and Other Officers Visit Constantinople—Telegrams About Her Stopped.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 4.—Capt. Colby M. Chester, Lieuts. William P. Scott and William A. Moffett, and Ensign Leigh C. Palmer of the United States battleship Kentucky will remain here until after the Selamlik on Friday. The other officers of the Kentucky are expected to visit Constantinople.

United States Chargé d'Affaires Griscom, Capt. Chester, and the other officers of the Kentucky have been invited on board the Imugene, the British guardship here, which will go on an excursion in the Bosphorus in honor of the Americans.

While at Smyrna Capt. Chester exchanged visits with the Vali (Governor) and the naval authorities. The latter greatly admired the superimposed turret system.

The Government has stopped all telegrams from Smyrna in regard to the Kentucky.

Morocco Yields to German Claims.

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—A dispatch received here from Tangier says the demands of Baron von Mentzingen, the German Minister to Morocco, for the payment of the three principal claims on account of injured Germans and the punishment of the offenders, have been yielded to by the Sultan.

THE MANILA LIQUOR BILL.

One Section of It Strongly Criticised at the Public Discussion—Provisions of the Measure.

MANILA, Dec. 5.—The hall occupied by the United States Commission was crowded to-day, the occasion being the public discussion of the Manila Liquor License bill. The section providing for banishing saloons from the Escolta and down-town plazas was strongly criticised.

Judge Taft explained that the United States courts had settled the right of the police and the power to limit the sale of liquors. He declared that the condition of the Escolta, owing to the presence of saloons, was disgraceful.

The licenses expire in January, and the section of the bill requiring removals will take effect in April.

The bill provides for a license fee of 600 pesos, semi-annually, for a regular saloon; 800 for a theatre, and 500 for a hotel, besides a bar license. At none of these places can intoxicants be sold to natives. Places are licensed separately for the latter. Liquor dealers are prohibited from selling to soldiers, and Sunday closing is required, but hotels can serve liquors with meals. Licenses are imposed on distillers, brewers, and wholesale dealers.

The commission has passed an act requiring wholesome food supplies for animals used in transportation and imposing penalties for cruelty to animals.

FILIPINO FORCE ROUTED.

Native Scouts Under Lieut. Jernigan Defeat Three Hundred Insurgents.

MANILA, Dec. 5.—A dispatch has been received from Gen. Funston, giving an account of a two hours' fight in the woods of Santo Domingo between an American force and 300 rebels commanded by Sandico.

The American force, consisting of thirty native scouts, commanded by Lieut. Jernigan, attacked the rebels, who retreated, leaving on the field sixteen men killed, including the rebel leader, Aguilar, and an American negro. It was at first thought the latter was a man named Fagin, a deserter from the Twenty-fourth Infantry, but this turned out to be a mistake.

Not one of Jernigan's men was wounded.

Bills Before Porto Rico Legislature.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 5.—Of the first seven bills introduced in the Executive Council the most important are: A measure, propose by Señor José C. Barbosa, to establish trial by jury; a measure, proposed by Jacob H. Hollander, Treasurer of Porto Rico, to provide revenue, and a measure, proposed by William H. Hunt, Secretary of Porto Rico, to compensate members of the Executive Council for their services.

MINERS' NARROW ESCAPE.

Entombed by a Cave-In, They Cut Their Way to an Air Shaft and Reach the Surface.

SCRANTON, Penn., Dec. 5.—Thirty-two men employed at the Nayaug Colliery, in Dunmore, were entombed by a cave-in this morning, but, thanks to a fortunate circumstance, a terrible disaster was avoided. The men were at work about 1,000 feet from the bottom of the slope and 400 feet below the surface, when two acres of the roof between them and the slope came down with a terrific crash, crushing the pillars beneath it and causing a rush of air that almost blew the men from their feet and hurled the roof off the fanhouse.

Their lamps were extinguished, but, finding that the air was still pure, they relighted them and began to cast about for a way of escape. Some counseled remaining where they were until help should reach them from the outside, but the cracking of the pillars in their vicinity told them that the cave-in was extending toward them, and that they must soon find a way out or be caught and killed like rats in a trap.

Foreman John Gibbons, who chanced to be with the men at the time, bade them keep cool and quiet and he would try to find a way out. Crawling on his hands and knees over the fallen roof and sometimes squirming through crevices that barely admitted his body, he made his way to within fifteen feet of the airway which led to the second opening, and which, it was presumed, was not affected by the fall, as it is a narrow passage, cut through solid rock. Returning for the men, he had them take their tools and follow him.

After a difficult and dangerous journey, they reached the point where the fall blocked their way. This was attacked with bars, picks, and shovels, and, after an hour's work, a passage was cleared to the airway, which, as they had counted upon, was open. As fast as they could run they made their way to the second opening, and thence to the surface, where they were greeted with wild hurrahs from the thousands who had gathered expecting to see them brought out crushed and mangled corpses, if they were brought out at all.

DINNER AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Given in Honor of the Commissioners to the Paris Exposition.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The first formal social function of the season at the White House occurred to-night, when the President and Mrs. McKinley gave a dinner to the Commissioners of the United States to the Paris Exposition. The table was set in the state dining room, which, with the East Room and the Red, Blue, and Green Parlors, had been appropriately decorated for the occasion. The Marine Band furnished the music. The guests and those invited to meet them included the following:

Fethers, Peter Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Manning, Franklin Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Parr, Henry M. Putney, Miss Putney, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin H. Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stern, William G. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Valois, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, Senator Allison, Senator and Mrs. Cullom, Senator and Mrs. McMillan, Senator Sewell, Senator and Mrs. Thurston, Senator Depew, Miss Paulding, Miss Wilson, Miss McKenna, Mrs. Abner McKinley, Mrs. Dawes, and Mrs. Hixey.

Farm Company Incorporated.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 5.—The American Farm Company, with a capital of $1,000,000, was incorporated here to-day. The purposes of the company are to conduct scientific and practical farming and stock raising, to operate a chemical laboratory, and eventually to establish an agricultural college. The incorporators are John W. Woodruff of Hamburg, N. Y.; Henry C. McCall of Buffalo, and George A. Fries of Buffalo.

Killed in an Indiana Fire.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Dec. 5.—One life was lost and several persons were injured in a fire early to-day which destroyed the structural iron works of George L. Mesker & Co. and Loewenthal's commission house. The losses are estimated at $110,000. The killed and injured were firemen, caught by a falling brick wall.

CHANCES OF THE ARMY BILL

Opposition of Staff Officers May Kill the Proposed Measure.

MILES'S ANOMALOUS POSITION

Has the Rank and Pay of a Lieutenant General, but Is Not Such in Fact—His Hold Uncertain.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Chairman Hull is confident that he will be able to get his Army Reorganization bill through the House in its amended shape, and he talks hopefully about its chances in the Senate, but at the War Department this confidence is not shared. It is also a matter of grave doubt whether the Senate will pass a Reorganization bill, even one dealing so considerately with the staff as the modified House bill.

Staff officers, who objected to what they describe as Secretary Root's plan to place absolute control of all staff officers in the hands of the Secretary, are glad to find some of that power taken away from him in the House bill as it now stands, but they would be satisfied if the present status of the staff were retained. The difficulty of making an Army bill acceptable to members of Congress is admitted by all who have devoted time to the study of this question of reorganization, for it is found that many members of both houses obtain their convictions about such measures from relatives or friends who are in the army and who object to being disturbed.

"If the Military Affairs Committee wishes to do a decent thing," said an Army officer to-day, "it can easily find the way. Let it at once relieve Gen. Miles from the anomalous position in which he is placed by the peculiar wording of the legislation by which he became authorized to call himself a Lieutenant General, and to receive the pay of that grade without in fact being a Lieutenant General.

"Gen. Miles," added this officer, "in order to be a real Lieutenant General, ought to have secured the revival of that grade in the Army, just as it was revived for Gen. Schofield. Instead of doing that he procured a few lines to be inserted in the Military Academy bill of last session, which provides that 'the senior Major General of the line,' being in command of the Army, shall have the rank and pay of Lieutenant General. That renders his hold upon the rank uncertain.

"A President, who had reason to give the Army a new commander, could send Gen. Miles off somewhere to wait orders, and appoint a new commander in chief. That officer would not become Lieutenant General, because he would not be the senior Major General. Gen. Miles would cease to be Lieutenant General, because he was no longer in command of the Army."

DEBATE ON THE ARMY BILL.

Made the Special Order in the House—McCall (Rep.,) Creates Sensation by Attacking the Measure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Debate on the Army Reorganization bill, opened in the House to-day. After routine matters had been disposed of Mr. Dalzell, (Rep., Penn.,) from the Committee on Rules, presented the following special order for the consideration of the army bill:

Resolved, That immediately after the adoption of this resolution the House shall resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union to consider Senate Bill 4,300, "an act to increase the efficiency of the military establishment of the United States." This rule is not to interfere with other special orders.

Mr. Dalzell, explaining the necessity for the immediate consideration of the bill, pointed out the fact that July 1, 1901, under the present law, the army would be reduced to 26,000—less than half the number now in the Philippines. Legislation of some character was imperative, and the War Department urged the necessity of haste. It would take time to recruit and organize the new army which must replace the old.

Mr. Richardson, (Dem., Tenn.,) on behalf of the minority, said those on his side of the House recognized the necessity for some legislation, but they did not agree that this bill, establishing a permanent standing army, should become a law. If an emergency exists it should be provided for, but a large standing army should not be established. He would not take time, he said, to mention all the obnoxious features of the bill. But one was fundamental. It was proposed to provide an army which could be expanded at the will of one man from 58,000 to 100,000. No matter how good or able that man might be, he was not willing to see one man given such power. It was in his opinion abdicating the functions of Congress.

Mr. Richardson added that he was ready at all times to vote to put down rebellion anywhere and everywhere that it existed, but under the stress of an emergency he was not willing to establish permanently a large standing army.

Mr. Grosvenor, (Rep., Ohio,) in support of the resolution, said that personally he was in favor of a standing army of 100,000 men. The people, he said, were not frightened when a demagogue said that the purpose in increasing the army was to station large regiments near large cities to oppress labor. They were not alarmed by the cries that their liberty was to be subverted. As for the opposition to the "sliding scale," the President always had been practically supreme in the use of the army; why should he not in the use of his discretion have the power in time of necessity to expand the army?

It was a glorious tribute to our system, he added, that never had the President of the United States attempted to abuse his power over the army. One of the magnificent acts of Grover Cleveland had been his assumption of his duty to keep the peace in a great Commonwealth by means of the United States Army when the Governor of that State did not want him to interfere. Mr. Grosvenor said if there had been a standing army of 50,000 loyal men at the battle of Bull Run, the rebellion would have ended in thirty days.

Mr. Grosvenor and Mr. Underwood (Dem., Ala.,) indulged in some sharp cross-firing, after which the resolution was adopted without division.

Mr. Hull, (Rep., Iowa,) who was in charge of the bill, and Mr. Sulzer, (Dem., N. Y.,) on behalf of the minority, then arranged that general debate should run for four hours, two hours on a side, and that then the bill should be considered under the five-minute rule. The agreement was ratified by the House.

Mr. Hull suggested that the Oleomargarine bill, which was a special order for to-morrow, be postponed until the Army bill was disposed of. This request aroused the friends and opponents of the latter bill lest postponement of the order would give one side or the other a tactical parliamentary advantage, and Mr. Underwood finally objected.

DEBATE ON THE BILL BEGINS.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole, (Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania in the Chair,) and took up the consideration of the Army bill. Mr. Hull made the opening statement. He explained the details of the bill, which, he said, followed practically the scheme already twice indorsed by the House of Representatives. The main objection he had heard to the organization proposed was the alleged preponderating influence of the cavalry. This, he said, was necessary because of the effectiveness of cavalry in operations in the Philippines. In concluding this statement Mr. Hull ridiculed the charges made during the recent campaign by the opposition to the effect that the Republican Party desired to foist upon the country a great standing army.

Mr. Hepburn (Rep., Iowa,) asked what provision the bill made for the transfer of volunteer officers to the regular army.

Mr. Hull replied that in the staff volunteer officers could be appointed to the regular army without regard to age or grade, but in the line volunteer officers could not be appointed above the grade of First Lieutenant, and then only when below the age of thirty years.

Mr. Hepburn asked if Mr. Hull would object to an amendment providing that vacancies below the grade of Colonel could be filled from the list of volunteer officers, and declaring it to be the purpose of the act to place volunteer officers commissioned since April 19, 1898, upon the same footing with officers of the regular army.

"I should say," responded Mr. Hull, "to appoint volunteer officers to the grade of Major would do a great injustice to regular army officers who have served twenty or twenty-five years in the army."

Mr. Cochran, (Dem., Mo.,) who followed Mr. Hull, introduced the political phase of the question. He charged that the avowed purpose of the Administration to use an army of 100,000 to enforce its mandates in the Philippines was the very essence of imperialism. He declared it to be his opinion that no army that marched on the face of the earth could accomplish the subjection of the Philippines. Their geographical position made them practically independent of outside control.

Mr. Kleberg (Dem., Texas,) announced his unalterable opposition to an increase of the standing army. Its only use could be the establishment of a military Government in the Philippines, and he appealed to his colleagues to stand unflinchingly against the subversion of the Constitution.

Mr. McClellan (Dem., New York,) said he regretted that he was unable to vote for the bill because, as a reorganization measure, it was the best Army bill ever proposed. If it had stopped at reorganization he might have supported it, but he could not bring himself to vote for a standing army of 100,000 men.

Mr. Parker, (Rep., N. J.,) a member of the Military Committee, in support of the bill, declared that lodging discretion in the President to expand the army was not an innovation, and cited several historic occasions, notably during the administrations of Washington and Jefferson, when Congress conferred upon the President discretionary power to expand the army.

Mr. Shafroth (Sil., Col.,) offered some figures to show that the retention of the Philippines, for which this proposed large increase in the standing army was to be made, must prove a disastrous investment. He stated that it would cost the people of the United States $60,000,000 a year to earn $135,000 for American manufacturers and exporters.

McCALL OPPOSES THE BILL.

The sensation of the day then occurred, when Mr. Sulzer, who had charge of the time on the Democratic side, yielded an hour to Mr. McCall, (Rep., Mass.) This was the first intimation the House had that the Massachusetts member was to oppose the bill. The announcement created a great stir. Mr. McCall on several occasions during the last session antagonized his party, notably on the Porto Rican Tariff bill, and a great desire to hear him was manifested to-day. Members who had retired to the cloakrooms flocked back into their seats and listened attentively to his words.

Mr. McCall said he did not believe in the principle of giving the executive authority to multiply almost by two the regular army, although President McKinley would doubtless exercise that discretion patriotically and wisely. The objection was one of principle. Such a grant of power could not be paralleled in the constitutional monarchies. It was not conferred with any limitation as to time.

The bill proposed a standing army of practically 100,000 men. Such a number, he said, was not needed. A temporary provision should be made for the Philippines, and the character of the bill made it important to discuss what the ultimate policy of the country with reference to the army should be. The Government should have declared at the outset a policy in the Philippines similar to that declared in Cuba. The American system of Government, he said, was manifestly unfit for a colonial policy, and that proposition had been so frequently discussed that he would consider the practical question whether it was for the interest of this country to remain in the Philippines.

"There was no community of interest between the people of those islands and the United States, and they were almost as far as the poles asunder. No advocate of retaining the Philippines had been daring enough to maintain that they should be a part of the American political system. In fact, the great argument in favor of the principle of the Porto Rican tariff was that if we could not apply that principle to Porto Rico, we could not retain the Philippines. "Upon what theory," he asked, "are we to remain in that country?"

COST OF ENLARGED ARMY.

"The motive that had been most widely put forth was that it was for our advantage and especially our pecuniary advantage. As a part of the cost of this policy we are to include the greater expense under this bill, which is the first born and legitimate offspring of the policy. Those who compare our standing army with the standing armies of Europe usually are careful not to compare the relative costs. The French Army costs $125,000,000 a year; the German, $130,000,000; the British, $100,000,000, and the Russian, $153,000,000. These figures include pensions and fortifications. If this bill passes the War Department will need $113,000,000.

"There is another cost not included in these figures, which is a necessary incident to an army and as much a part of its cost as the pay of the soldiers. That is the pension system. We are appropriating for that purpose $145,000,000 a year. Our total charges therefore for military purposes are $260,000,000 per year—an amount greater than the joint military expenses of those two armed rivals, France and Germany."

In conclusion, Mr. McCall pleaded that in dealing with the Philippines American precedents should be followed. He said:

"The time has come when we can frankly declare our purposes. Let us give those people those assurances which our history inspires. Let us tell them that we will aid them for one year or for five if need be in setting up a Government of their own symbolized by their own flag, and we will leave with them all that is most glorious in the meaning of another flag—liberty, independence, and self-government."

There were no demonstrations throughout Mr. McCall's speech, but when he finished the Democrats gave him a rousing round of applause.

Mr. Cummings criticised the bill on the score that the cities of the seacoast States had been overlooked. It provided an inordinate increase of the cavalry branch of the service, but he thought it did not accurately provide for manning the seacoast defenses of the country.

Mr. Cox, (Dem., Tenn.,) a member of the Military Committee, concluded the general debate on behalf of the minority with a twenty-minute speech against the general principle of increasing the size of the permanent army. "If you are to create an army to shoot down the Filipinos, who are fighting for what we fought for," he said, "I will not vote a nickel for such an army."

MR. HULL CLOSES THE DEBATE.

Mr. Hull, in closing the general debate, declared that Mr. McCall had misapprehended the purpose of the bill. The President, under the treaty of Paris, must assert the sovereignty of the United States over the Philippine Islands. "As long as the islands are ours," he said, "we must enforce our authority or disgrace ourselves in the eyes of the world. The people of the United States must decide how long our authority there shall exist." So far as he personally was concerned, he believed that American sovereignty over the Philippines would continue as long as the Republic endured.

"Why do you seek to provide for a permanent army?" asked Mr. Williams, (Dem., Miss.) "Why do you not limit its existence to the Philippine war?"

"Because we desire the army of the United States to do whatever necessity may require," replied Mr. Hull.

"Honestly now," persisted Mr. Williams, "independently of the Philippine question, do you not want a permanent army of 96,000 men for other purposes?"

"No, most emphatically no," answered Mr. Hull.

General debate was then closed and the bill was read for amendment under the five-minute rule.

AMENDMENTS OFFERED.

The paragraphs authorizing the Secretary of War to prescribe regulations as to fitness of volunteers or civilians appointed to the regular army under the terms of the bill were stricken out. Mr. Hepburn offered the following amendment:

Provided, That any vacancy in the Quartermaster's Department may be filled by appointment from civil life.

Mr. Hepburn made this amendment the basis of some severe criticism of the Shafter expedition before Santiago. The scandals which existed in the Quartermaster's branch of the service on that occasion, he said, might have been obviated if competent men from civil life had been in charge.

Mr. Hull defended the Quartermaster's Department, declaring that when the war broke out the Quartermaster's Department was inadequate to the task as a result of the refusal of Congress to do its duty years ago.

Without action upon the amendment the House, at 5:10 P. M., adjourned.

CANTEEN PROVISION IN ARMY BILL.

Likely to Cause Much Contention—The Old and the Proposed Texts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The canteen provision in the new Army bill is likely to cause a great deal of contention. Instead of being a prohibition of the sale of liquor, it provides that no army officer or soldier shall sell liquor. The provision is as follows:

That no officer or private soldier shall intoxicating drinks of any kind, as a bartender or otherwise, in any army post or on any army transport, or in any encampment or fort, or on any premises used for military purposes by the United States, and the Secretary of War is hereby directed to issue such general orders as may be necessary to carry the provisions of this section into full force and effect.

The canteen provision of the present law is as follows:

That no officer or private soldier shall be detailed to sell intoxicating drinks, as a bartender or otherwise, in any post exchange or canteen, nor shall any other person be required or allowed to sell such liquors in any encampment or fort, or on any premises used for military purposes by the United States, and the Secretary of War is hereby directed to issue such general order as may be necessary to carry the provisions of this section into full force and effect.

SHIPPING BILL DISCUSSED

Senator Frye Says Opposition Is Wild and Insane.

WHAT GOVERNMENT WILL PAY

Subsidies, According to Mr. Frye, Cannot Exceed $7,500,000 Per Year—Status of Foreign Built Ships.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Senator Frye (Rep., Me.,) at to-day's session of the Senate concluded his speech upon the Ship Subsidy bill. He devoted his attention principally to a technical explanation of the various provisions of the measure, explaining with especial care that provision which would admit to American registry foreign-built ships. From several sources his attention was directed to this provision, and it is evidently one upon which much of the forthcoming debate will rest.

Mr. Frye opened with a discussion of the cost to the United States in the event of the passage of the bill. He said the amount of the subsidy could be no more than $9,000,000 per year. That limit, he said, was fixed definitely in the bill.

"So far as the cost to the Government is concerned," he added, "it will be really no more than $7,500,000, as the subsidized ships are required to carry the United States mails free of cost to the Government. The amount paid now for the carrying of these foreign mails is about $1,500,000 a year."

Remarkable statements had been made, he said, concerning the amount of the subsidy to be paid, the figures having been put at $30,000,000 and $50,000,000, and even as high as $100,000,000 a year. "But," said he, "there is no method whatever in the madness of the critics of the bill."

The limit of $9,000,000 in the subsidy would not be reached for at least five years, as within that period there would not be enough vessels to draw the full amount of the subsidy. When the limit of $9,000,000 is reached the bill provides that the Secretary of the Treasury shall reduce the amount of the subsidy paid for sailing and speed premiums, the reduction to be pro rata among the ships subsidized. Thus all vessels enjoying the subsidy will be on precisely the same plane and would receive perfectly impartial treatment.

Referring to a provision of the pending bill requiring all ships to take freight up to a certain percentage of their carrying capacity, Mr. Frye said it would prevent vessels like the American liner St. Louis from participating in the benefits of the act. He announced, therefore, that tomorrow he would propose to the Committee on Commerce an amendment providing that all ships shall take on freight to an amount equal to 50 per cent. of their carrying capacity when leaving a port of the United States for a foreign port. That would so distribute the products to be carried as to do no injustice to anybody.

Concerning the subsidy of $170,000 a year provided in the bill for the encouragement of deep-sea fisheries, Mr. Frye said that seamen employed on ships would be recruited from the fisheries service.

Discussing that provision of the bill which enables foreign-built ships to be brought under the American flag and to enjoy a portion of the proposed subsidy under certain restrictions, Mr. Frye said it had been asserted that 500,000 tons of foreign vessels would come in at once under the provision as it now stands. He said it was his purpose to offer a substitute for the present provision, so that it could be determined definitely just how many foreign vessels would be admitted to American registry.

Mr. Hale interrupted his colleague to direct his attention to a memorial of ship builders which he had received. He said he was in sympathy with the general provisions of the bill, but admitted that he was troubled by that provision which enabled foreign-built vessels to be brought under the American flag to enjoy the proposed subsidy. He had received, he added, a strong protest against this provision of the measure, signed by forty or fifty shipbuilders, in the course of which the statement was made that already parties are engaged in foreign ship yards in the construction of vessels which were to participate in the proposed subsidy.

"It is said," added Mr. Hale, "that the bounty for foreign-built ships will amount to more than $3,000,000 a year. I do not think my colleague would look with favor on any such proposition as that."

Mr. Frye replied that there was only one trouble with the statement made in the protest, and that was that it was not true. "Under the provisions of the pending bill," said he, "owners of foreign-built ships can not draw a cent of bounty until they construct in the ship yards of this country an amount of tonnage equal to that which they have brought from abroad."

He believed a provision for the admission of foreign-built ships under proper restrictions was wise, because it would introduce to the United States a respectable fleet of merchant vessels within a reasonable time.

Mr. Foraker (Rep., Ohio,) directed attention to objections urged against the freeship provision of the bill.

Mr. Frye replied that he always had contended against the doctrine of free ships, but when a previous subsidy bill upon which he had worked had proved to be a dead failure in Congress, he had agreed to a proposition to admit to American registry the New York and Paris of the American Line, with the agreement that two ships of corresponding size and speed should be built in this country. That had insured to the United States a strictly American line of ships to Europe.

The success of that venture had induced him to insert in the pending measure the provision for the admission of a certain fixed number of foreign-built vessels to American registry under similar restrictions. He did not believe that another ship would be admitted to American registry except those specifically provided for in the pending measure.

In conclusion Mr. Frye referred to what he termed "the wild and insane criticism" of the measure, criticism which, he said, was based upon no fair or accurate knowledge of the provisions of the bill. It had been carefully considered and materially amended, he said, to meet the legitimate objections which had been urged against it.

Mr. Teller (Sil., Col.,) said he had not heard Mr. Frye state why there had been a decadence in the American merchant marine. "I join with the Senator from Maine," said he, "in a desire for a restoration of the American marine, but I have not received much encouragement from what he has said."

Mr. Frye said that he had discussed that question earlier in his speech, and if, after it had been printed in full, Mr. Teller still desired information he would give it to him.

THOMAS F. NOLAN IS DEAD

"The Irish Barrister" Expires, a Victim of Paralysis.

Had Been a Well-Known Figure in New York for Years—Eccentric but Kindly.

Counselor Thomas F. Nolan, known as "the Irish Barrister" of Tammany Hall, died yesterday at the St. Francis Hospital. The funeral services will be held in the Church of the Holy Redeemer, in Third Street, this morning. Five weeks ago Mr. Nolan was stricken with paralysis. He was taken to the hospital, where his nephew, Father Lynch, gave him every care. Counselor Nolan had been an imposing figure at Democratic conventions for many years. He had startled the politicians by his quaint, droll humor, and with the knack of a Celtic wit he had abused Judge and jury without punishment for contempt. Counselor Nolan had insulted Richard Croker in public. At the famous ten-dollar dinner in the Metropolitan Opera House "the Irish Barrister" defied Mr. Croker's power, and before an audience of 1,000 persons made grimaces at the Tammany chieftain, and he did not lose his political job.

In his law practice and in private life Counselor Nolan was known as a scrupulously honest man. He was always listened to by Judges and jurymen, for, although his eccentricities were plain, through all his nets showed that rugged simplicity and honesty of character which made his name a by-word among Tammanyites as a man who never took advantage of a poor client.

Counselor Nolan was born and educated in Cork, Ireland. He studied law there, and twenty-five years ago he came to New York with a stock of Irish wit, a brogue which he never lost, and a determination to succeed.

He had for years been a friend of Mr. Croker, who was always ready to listen to Nolan's wit. In the early days of his practice Counselor Nolan earned a good income in the criminal courts. The Judges were always ready to listen to his witty stories, and gave his clients the benefit of the doubt in close cases, so that he was able to build up a fair clientele.

One day Counselor Nolan was trying a case, with another Irish lawyer as his opponent, before Justice Barrett. During the recess hour the two lawyers dined and wined to their hearts' content. They appeared in court, and Justice Barrett sternly said:

"This case is adjourned until to-morrow morning, as the counsel are not in condition to go on."

Counselor Nolan braced himself and his voice rose to a roar. He said:

"Your Honor, I have known you for twenty years, and this is the first time that I have ever known your decision to be right." Justice Barrett took no offense at this sally.

When Counselor Nolan was about to be appointed to the position of Assistant Corporation Counsel he called on Corporation Counsel Whalen. Here is the talk:

"Now, Counselor, I have been advised to apply you to this position. The salary will be $1,500 a year. What do you say?"

Counselor Nolan assumed as pompous an air as he could and said:

"Mr. Whalen, I have been talking to my powerful political friends, and they advise me against taking the position at so small a salary."

"Well, I am sorry, Counselor, that you won't take the appointment."

"I didn't say so. My friends advise me not to take it, but I won't take their advice. I will take the job."

Counselor Nolan's official duties were not onerous. He thought at first that there was much work attached to the place. His duty was supposed to be to prosecute all violators of city ordinances. Corporation Counsel Whalen finally showed Counselor Nolan that he was not expected to prosecute too many people. At last Corporation Counsel Whalen was forced to criticise Counselor Nolan harshly for some reason. Nolan listened intently all the time keeping his small eyes blinking. Then he said:

"Do you know, Mr. Whalen, that I knew your late lamented father when you were a very young man? And do you know they say he was a good man?"

This was too much for Corporation Counsel Whalen. He just laughed.

Counselor Nolan was approached by a friend, who said:

"Well, Tom, I see you have got a good job at a big salary."

"Salary," said Nolan, contemptuously; "I don't get pay enough to buy cigarettes for a dude."

In an argument before Justice Barrett Counselor Nolan was making an eloquent plea, but he tried to try the case in the same manner as he would a similar proceeding in Ireland.

"Your argument is not worth the paper it is written on," said Justice Barrett, with a merry twinkle.

"Your Honor, I want to commend to your distinguished consideration my able effusion, and, incidentally, to say that I have two others equally as good in my pocket."

At the Democratic Convention at Kansas City Counselor Nolan was found sitting on a stoop in a side street. A friend said:

"How are you getting along, Tom?"

"I have been bunkoed. I come out here and spend a pile of money, when I could have twice the fun for less money at Coney Island."

At the Democratic Convention at Saratoga Counselor Nolan startled the staid visitors at the Springs, and even his Tammany friends, by appearing daily in white duck trousers, tan shoes, a long black frock coat, and a high silk hat. He would walk with great dignity up and down the hotel corridors, the admired of all the throng. Counselor Nolan's broad expanse of shirt front was emblazoned with jewels. He wore a gray scarf around his collar, attached to which was the emblem of the United States, a jeweled harp from Ireland, and the flag of the Boer Republic.

MOTHERS' HOSPITAL BAZAAR.

A Collection of Animals and Fortune-tellers the Favorite Features.

There was a race between a motor vehicle and a gray donkey at the Mothers and Babies' Hospital Bazaar at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday. It was a race on chances, and the motor vehicle won, if selling all its chances first gave it the blue ribbon. The donkey was the most popular, however, and his pen in the conservatory, just off the ballroom, was surrounded with admiring visitors all the afternoon and evening. He received this admiration with disdain, manifesting it by scornful shakes of the head. Other animals made their feelings manifest in a more impressive manner.

A little monkey, which occupied a cage opposite the donkey, showed his disapproval of feathers on hats by grabbing a dozen of them, hat and all, from the head of a woman who was attempting to make his acquaintance. The hat was rescued, but the monkey chewed up one feather with an expression of rapture on his face. The animal exhibit was the feature of the bazaar. It contained half a dozen or more fine dogs, some beautiful Persian cats, birds, rabbits, a Java squirrel, and a marmoset. Next to this collection, the fortune-telling booth was the most popular.

"I'm keen on fortunes," one girl entering the gipsy encampment said to her companion.

"Yes," said girl No. 2, "that's the only reason I come to bazaars."
